PICTON

Recreational Centres Advocated By Club Speaker

Picton, Dec. 8.—Ideas on recreation was the subject of an interesting address by Mrs. Lela B. Arrowsmith, Toronto, vice president of the Ontario Home and School Association, at the Picton Association meeting Wednesday night. She told how in many places, the school had been used as a centre for recreational centres.

Sports, games, training in handicrafts and the adult education movement are activities which develop in a community centre, growing up closely affiliated with the school. Government grants to assist in equipping schools and gymnasiums to serve this purpose, are now available, she said.

Mrs. Arrowsmith told how Toronto collegiates are used for recreational purposes. Such an idea is not new as it has been operating for some years in the United States. Our juvenile delinquency and our record of physical fitness as revealed by military medical examinations, have proven there is something wrong with our recreational set-up, said Mrs. Arrowsmith. Adopt the resources you have at hand, urged the speaker.

Mrs. A. F. Brown presided. A group of children sang. A social time was spent.

Tennyson Club Meets

Music and selections by Canadian-born composers and writers, featured the December meeting of the Tennyson Club at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Hucks. Miss Florence Barber was soloist, Miss Evelyn Boyd gave piano solos. Those who read selections were Mrs. L. B. Calnan, Mrs. Hucks, Miss Bernice Nugent, Mrs. Gordon Whatham, Mrs. A. K. Leonard, Dr. W. B. Lane read two of his own poems, by request, and also introduced the selections red. A social hour was spent.

At Convention

Those attending the annual meeting of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture in Toronto this week were Mr. and Mrs. Burton Baxter, Mrs. Clifford Peck, D. O. Reynolds, Morley Williams, David Smith, Stirling Palmateer.

Civilians Urged Not to Travel In Holiday Season

Montreal, Dec. 9 — (CP)—Transport Controller T. C. Lockwood in a statement issued here Friday requests civilians to refrain from travelling "except on urgent business between Dec. 22 and Jan. 4, when thousands of the armed forces will be granted holiday leaves."

Mr. Lockwood added that if "unnecessary or merely pleasure trips were dispensed with, personnel of the armed forces would be able to travel without undue crowding and transportation companies enabled to handle traffic efficiently."

Canucks in Paris Resume Luncheons

By MARGARET ECKER
(CP War Correspondent)

Paris, Dec. 9 —(CP)— The Canadian Chamber of Commerce in Paris, for the first time since the occupation, is resuming its luncheons which were a weekly treat for Canadians living here. Chairman once more will be Victor Napoleon Siegel of Three Rivers, Quebec.

Before the war the meetings usually attended by about 150 of the more than 750 Canadians living in Paris, were held in the Canadian National Railways hotel, The Scribe. This hotel, near the Opera, houses Allied Supreme Headquarters accredited war correspondents so the luncheons are being held elsewhere.

Before the war the group every year celebrated July 1 with a party in the Bois de Boulogne, and once a year, in November, made a pilgrimage to the Canadian memorial at Vimy.

"We will have other shrines to visit now," said Mr. Siegel who has lived in France for 50 years.

The chairman has been behind bars since he last presided at a meeting. He spent six months in a concentration camp and when he was freed was forced to live quietly in the country in the south of France, away from Paris and his extensive shop outfitting business.

"They were hard years," he said. "And there was so little I could do."

Mr. Siegel came to France at the end of the last century, "quite by accident on a business trip." He looked Paris over and decided he wanted to stay.

"Sometimes, I think I was wrong to leave Canada, though I went back frequently before the war," he said.

After half a century, he's still strongly Canadian, deeply interested in all Canadian developments and the country's future.

"Canada is a great country, don't forget that," he said. "In a few years she will be one of the greatest countries in the world. Canadians have every right to be proud. I know, I've lived elsewhere in the world."

Airplane Travel in Battle Areas a Priority Game

By DOUG HOW
(CP War Correspondent)

Athens, Dec. 9 —(CP)— We type this Athens dateline with an air of triumph because there is a certain amount of moral conquest in getting here. Let, therefore, be told a tale of ensnarled adventure involving jeeps and airplanes, an ambition to get here and methods of defeating that malevolent mark of our time, the system of priorities, to do so.

The priority is an essential. Its outward expression is that of a number pencilled on the ticket that will take you places aboard one of the Dakota aircraft which amble across the Mediterranean. From the front to Rome is a relatively simple journey. You accept the jeep as transport. If it happens to rain with an autumn intensity, as it did, you spend somewhere around 10 hours huddled amidst its protective inadequacies. You reach Rome and there you are thrown into the great game of chance and priorities.

You will go, you are told, Thursday, with a priority three. You report Thursday and are told the flight is weathered out. You will go tomorrow, same flight. But you decide to beat the first rap and jeep to Naples. That's another six hours in rain-harried jeep. But you're one up in the game of priorities.

In Naples, they say there's not a chance until Saturday. On Saturday you fly into Bari. You find the British officers' hotel jammed with people, many of them involved in priorities because Bari is one of the great gateways to the Balkans and Middle East.

More Priority Twos

Until 5 o'clock Saturday you're to travel in Sunday's plane for Athens. Then three priority twos sally in and you're out. Until late Sunday the opportunities for Monday hold high. Then a load of machinery comes from somewhere bound for Athens with the fateful priority two. You're out again.

From a fellow priority three, a fast-thinking English major, comes the information that a cluster of priority two brigadiers is now at hand. Then suddenly, the clouds lift.

There is a special plane heading for Athens. Four of you threes clamber aboard with heightening ego. You have the passengers' compartment all to yourselves. This, you chortle, is certainly a triumph for the threes.

Then you land at another Italian airdrome and you shudder slightly with reawakened inferiority. The trip, you find, has the primary purpose of carry a dismembered artillery spotter plane to Greece. You will occupy the room that's left. The ground crews toil for hours, shoving, squeezing the little spotter inside the Dakota.

Then you climb into the room that's left, possessed by a satisfied humility and marked, you think, forever with the indelible imprint of a priority three.

Asks Exclusion Of 'Terror Tales' From Broadcasts

Toronto, Dec. 9 — (CP)—Action by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation to exclude "terror tales and objectionable thrillers" from all Canadian radio station programs was urged in a motion granted by Toronto Board of Education.

The motion followed reading of a letter from Dr. Augustin Frigon, general manager of the CBC, acknowledging receipt of a copy of a previous board resolution asking the CBC to prevent radio stations from broadcasting dramas of murder and other criminal and unwholesome activities. Dr. Frigon replied that copies of the resolution had been sent to all Canadian radio stations and that replies indicated full co-operation.

Churchill's Speech Defending Policy One of Most Brilliant of Career

London, Dec. 9 — (CP) — Prime Minister Churchill was obviously enjoying himself yesterday during his historic foreign policy speech — swapping punches with his critics and in high form in exchange quips.

Only once did he seem to lose his temper for a moment when William Gallagher, the only Communist member of the House, interrupted him.

Looking right at Mr. Gallagher, Mr. Churchill snapped.

"You are treated with extraordinary tolerance and great consideration in this House and you should learn to keep your mouth shut at any rate for a few moments."

Other members cheered.

There was a challenge in every sentence of the Prime Minister's speech and he underlined again and again the fact that he considered the amendment on Greece to the address in reply to the speech from the Throne a test of national confidence in government policy.

Mr. Churchill was supremely master of the situation and the House. The mood of members was excited but not ugly. The Prime Minister, as he admitted, was enjoying himself, but he made it quite clear that at the end of the day the government expected handsome vindication.

He made great play of the use of the phrase "friends of democracy" and probed searchingly into the credentials of those who in the liberated countries of Europe sometimes under that title were contributing he said to the Allies' present difficulties.

Many members read into Mr. Churchill's reference to British troops under orders of Gen. Eisenhower patrolling the streets of Brussels, Belgium, preventing a November putsch to destroy the Pierlot government, and his statement that Britain intervened in Italy because she did not trust Count Sforza as a direct reply to the American "hands off" Italy policy. Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., secretary of State, had voiced the policy.

The Churchillian jaw was outthrust and the Prime Minister thumbed the dispatch box with a heavy fist as in biting sentences he threw out his final challenge to judgment by the standards of "any man into whose breast fair play enters."

The Prime Minister's closing words were almost lost in roars of applause as he resumed his seat after one of the most brilliant speeches of his career.

Capital Closeups

By JAMES McCOOK
(CP Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Dec. 9 — (CP) — Many members of parliament, who have protested they have trouble making ends meet because of wartime taxation, are grateful for the opportunity of returning to Ottawa after only a brief visit home. The House will resume Jan. 31, 1945, the old session will be formally closed and the 1945 session opened.

A new session, unlike the special sitting called on Nov. 22, means the members may collect their sessional indemnity of $4,000, or $25 a day if the session lasts for less than 50 days.

The life of the present government, elected in 1940, expires April 17 and announcement of a general election on or before that date is expected by members.

Names: If your name is Jones — there isn't one in the House, by the way — you'll never be called that when you sit in the Commons Chamber.

Speaker J. A. Glen the other day said there was "constant reference to the honorable and gallant member for Prince (Col. J. L. Ralston, former defence minister) by name. The rules of the House dictate that an honorable member should be referred to by the name of his constituency, and I would ask honorable members to observe that rule."

Loyal Commoners, who know Bill or Jack intimately, often flounder hopelessly in debate attempting to remember their friend's constituency when they wish to mention him.

Emblems: If a soldier insists, the army has no objection to him wearing a racial emblem on special days. Thus French-Canadians may wear a Maple Leaf on their uniform headdress on St. Jean Baptiste Day and all Canadians may wear the leaf on Dominion Day. Personnel of English descent may wear a rose on St. George's Day, the Irish a shamrock on St. Patrick's Day, Scots a thistle on St. Andrew's Day and Welsh a leek on St. David's Day.

All Canadian troops may wear a poppy on Remembrance Day.

Quotation: Col. A. J. Brooks (PC—Royal) quoted Abraham Lincoln as saying that "Voluntarism is the unprincipled dodge of cowardly politicians. It has ground up the choicest seed corn of the nation. It has consumed the young, the generous, the patriotic, the intelligent and the brave..."

R. W. Gladstone (L—Wellington South): "I rise on a point of order. From time to time this question has been attributed to Abraham Lincoln. I wish to challenge the honorable gentleman's statement."

Col. Brooks: "I will accept Mr. Lincoln's words and not the words of Mr. Gladstone, although there was a Gladstone at one time who may have compared favorably with Mr. Lincoln."

Mr. Gladstone: "An attempt has been made at the libraries in Ottawa and in Washington to trace this quotation to Mr. Lincoln and it has failed."

ASKS WOMEN'S CO-OPERATION

Ottawa, Dec. 9 — (CP)—Donald Gordon, Prices Board chairman, said Friday there were more pressing problems in the sixth year of war than the producing of unlimited quantities of full-fashioned women's stockings and appealed for co-operation in stemming an "unprecedented pre-Christmas rush for hosiery."

Columnist Convinces 5 Ringleaders of Convicts To Surrender to Him

Atlanta, Dec. 9 — (CP) — After holding four guards as hostages in a barricaded five-storey building at the Atlanta federal prison since Monday night, five ringleaders of a group of rebellious convicts surrendered yesterday to newspaper columnist Morgan Blake of the Atlanta Journal.

The veteran newspaperman, carrying out a pact with the convicts, used as a principal argument an edition of the Journal which gave almost its entire front page to a description by Blake of the prisoners' grievances.

PANIC SWEEPS BELEAGUERED HUNGARIAN CAPITAL

GERMANS DRIVEN FROM TWO ROER TOWNS

Russians Poised 3 Miles From City For Frontal Attack

Germans Not Expected To Defend City of Pest

London, Dec. 11—(CP)—Russian troops drove on Budapest from positions seven miles north and five miles south of the city today as Moscow advices said great panic swept the Nazis inside the beleaguered Hungarian capital.

Strong formations of Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's 2nd Ukraine Army also were poised three miles east of the Danube-straddling city with an all-out frontal assault from that direction expected at any hour.

As yet there were no official Russian reports of heavy shelling of Pest, the section of the city on the east side of the Danube, and it appeared the Russian High Command felt the Germans might consider their situation hopeless and not make a battleground of the city itself.

Other Russian columns far to the north of Budapest reached the central Slovakian frontier on a front of at least 11 miles. The Soviet communique said more than 40 places fell yesterday to the 2nd Ukraine Army drive north and northeast of the capital.

Red army forces immediately north of Budapest had smashed six miles down the Danube from captured Vac, on the Great Bend where the river turns west toward Vienna, and taken [illegible].

The Germans disclosed that Russian armored forces driving up the west bank of the Danube from Ercsi were less than five miles from the city's outskirts. The Germans said Erd was captured.

Hungary's puppet government already has fled Budapest to the Austrian frontier town of Sopron.

Moscow reported 5,600 prisoners had been taken between Dec. 3 and Dec. 7, and that the Germans had thrown large air forces into the fighting north of Budapest. Eighteen German planes were shot down yesterday and 24 on Saturday.

A Berlin broadcast early today said a tremendous Soviet offensive was in the making in the Vistula bridgehead at Barnov, Poland, and that a large scale drive aimed at Cracow could be expected.

6 More Jap Admirals, One General Dead

San Francisco, Dec. 11 — (AP)—Six more Japanese admirals and one General have died, Domei reported today. This brought the total of admirals' deaths reported by Tokyo since May 7 to 73, and generals to 16 since May 22.

Recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, the enemy broadcast disclosed the deaths in reporting the 26th grant of Imperial honors to navy officers and men "who were either killed in action or died of illness in the greater East Asia war."

Last week Yokosuka naval station reported the deaths of 13 other admirals.

The admirals who died, Domei said, were Vice-Admirals Hunju Imaki and Teruo Akiyama and Rear Admirals Hidehisa Iwagami, Takei Miyazaki, Shinki Nakaoka and Senkichi Amano. It was not disclosed how they died. The dead general was Maj.-Gen. Tsuneo Iwabuchi.

Warns Germans Against Joining Military Underground

New York, Dec. 11 — (AP) — The German people were told today in a proclamation issued in the name of Gen. Eisenhower to beware of joining or encouraging others to join underground military organizations.

The broadcast proclamation, 8th in a series explaining Allied military government plans to the Germans, was reported by the Office of War Information.

It told the German people that militarism "must be stamped out in Germany" and that the population would be called upon to surrender articles of "military significance" including weapons, ammunition, explosives and radio transmitters.

BUTTER RATION REDUCED TO SIX OUNCES PER WEEK

Step Taken to Adjust the Consumption to Supplies During Low Production Period

Ottawa, Dec. 11 — (CP) — The Prices Board announced today that the butter ration is being reduced from seven ounces a week to about six ounces a person a week on Jan. 1, 1945.

The Board said the step is being taken to adjust consumption to supplies during the winter months of low production.

The reduction will be made effective by making butter ration coupons valid one at a time instead of in pairs and by having three of these coupons become good each month instead of four.

To encourage householders to spread the reduced ration over the period of shortage, the butter coupons will remain valid until declared invalid as now is the case with sugar and preserves coupons.

Officials said that butter production has been insufficient to keep pace with demand even under the rationing system which first imposed a limit of eight ounces a person a week. The eight-ounce ration was reduced to seven ounces to conserve supplies this year.

Reduce Cafe Quotas

The Board said that a reduction in quotas to restaurants and other quota users will be made to conform approximately to the cut in the consumer ration and no supplementary quotas will be issued.

The Board said that the country's total storage holdings of butter on Jan. 1, together with estimated creamery butter production in January, February, March and April will, after providing for the requirements of the Armed Forces, hospitals, ships' stores and Red Cross for prisoners of war parcels, be only sufficient to provide six lbs. for each holder of a ration book, and a reduced allowance for quota users, such as public eating places.

K. H. Olive, administrator of dairy products, said that "Six pounds of butter per person spread over the next four months will allow 1 1/2 pounds per person per month, and we believe Canadians expect us to adjust the ration so as to assure continuous supply and equitable distribution rather than risk doing without butter entirely later on.

When Coupons Valid

"Under the plan of no expiry date of coupons, there will be no need for householders to use coupons until the butter is really needed," Mr. Oliver said.

NAZIS REPORTED PREPARING GREAT COUNTER-ATTACK

Two New V-Weapons And New Type of Submarine Included In 1945 Plans

By K. V. W. JONES
(AP Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 11 — (AP)—Reports reaching London from many sources indicate that Germany is gathering her forces — including two new V-weapons and a new type of submarine — for a 1945 counter-offensive which she hopes may turn the tide of the war.

Two enemy V-weapons—the flying bomb and the rocket bomb—already are in use against southern England and continental points. German production chief Albert Speer was quoted as saying recently that "V-3" would be ready for use against New York before the New Year and now there is talk in Germany of "V-4", but no hint as to the nature.

Meanwhile it is a matter of official knowledge the Germans have developed a submarine equipped with radical new devices for underwater breathing. Known as the Schnorkel Spirall submarine, the new vessel has been dubbed the "Snorts" by the British.

London newspapers have told their readers that swift hit-run raids by jet-propelled planes are possible.

Can't Stop at Source

"The new rockets are impossible to stop at their source, as they are manufactured in vast underground factories," the Daily Mirror said in a dispatch from Brussels. "Their sites are smaller than buzz-bomb sites, and infinitely more mobile. V-2's have been fired from a city square, roadways, and small clearings in the woods. Next day the men who fire them move on."

Reports from neutral countries place Germany's fighter plane production at 1,500 craft a month despite the Allied aerial onslaught, and there is some talk of a Luftwaffe "comeback" based on jet plane activities. These craft already are being used for reconnaissance behind the Allied lines.

A report from the front inside Germany says the enemy has found a way to "dim out" his artillery, reducing the flash of a 105-mm. gun to that of a pistol. This would give the foe an important means of hiding his artillery concentrations.

"The Germans still have a lot of fight left in them," said the London Herald, but declared the enemy manpower shortage and Allied air superiority are factors operating against the enemy.

British Patrols Are Less Than 200 Miles From Mandalay

New Delhi, Dec. 11 — (AP) — The British drive to squeeze the Japanese out of North Burma carried past Naba and Indaw today with patrols fanning out less than 200 miles from Mandalay.

The British 36th division took Naba, key junction on the Myitkyina-Mandalay railroad, and Indaw, four miles west, in an unopposed operation yesterday.

The occupation of Indaw represented a 100-mile advance for the British forces since they took off from Mogaung Aug. 1.

The ship has air-conditioned wards, two operating rooms, an X-ray theatre and every convenience of a modern hospital.—(Canadian Army Overseas Photo).

LEYTE ISLAND'S STRATEGIC PORT OF ORMOC TAKEN

Thousands of Japanese Squeezed and Trapped in Narrow Pocket by Action

General MacArthur's Headquarters, Philippines, Dec. 11—(AP)—Leyte Island's strategic seaport of Ormoc was in American hands today—captured just four days after surprise landings to the south—and three United States columns squeezed thousands of Japanese trapped in a narrow pocket by the action.

Ormoc was seized Sunday by the U. S. 77th Division, which launched the knockout from the town's outskirts after a quick drive from beachheads established Thursday under naval and air cover.

The 7th Division was less than a mile from Ormoc after making contact at Albuera on the west coast with a column which came west over the hills from Burauen in Leyte valley. In the ever-narrowing corridor between these forces were thousands of Japanese.

Gen. MacArthur reported in his communique today:

"Trapped and compressed into a narrow pocket by these three Allied columns, the enemy's forces in the southern segment of the Yamashita line, although many thousands strong, are unable to extricate themselves.

Gradually Destroyed.

"They are being destroyed with little opportunity for effective retaliation."

Capture of Ormoc represents a heavy blow to the Japanese. It was vital to the enemy as a reinforcement port for his troops in the Ormoc corridor, running through mountain country from Ormoc to Carigara Bay on the north. This corridor, on the northwest shoulder of the island, is Japan's last effective grasp on Leyte, which Tokyo considers the key to the Philippines campaign.

The Japanese still have a small port facing the Visagyan Sea. This is Palompon, 18 miles northwest of Ormoc, and there was every indication the Japanese would make a fight for every inch of Leyte.

FOOD SHORTAGES, EPIDEMIC DANGER THREATEN ATHENS

Heavy Bombers Attack for First Time E. L. A. S. Concentrations

Athens, Dec. 11 —(AP)— Acute food shortages and the imminent danger of epidemics threatened this strife-torn capital today as British heavy bombers for the first time in the week-long civil struggle attacked E.L.A.S. concentrations around the city.

R.A.F. Wellingtons and cannon-firing Spitfires joined the sanguinary fighting — already reported to have cost the Leftists 1,500 killed and 2,500 wounded—after an E.L.A.S. attack supported by mortars and artillery had been repelled yesterday by British troops using tank and field guns.

Several shells fired from E.L.A.S. positions fell near British headquarters on the eastern outskirts of the city. Sniper bullets struck the Grande Bretagne Hotel, temporary seat of the Greek government on Constitution Square. One 75-mm. shell struck British headquarters. The British replied with artillery and mortars.

Heavy rain curtailed action during the night but fires started by shellfire still were smoking today on the northern slopes of the Acropolis.

Germans Believe Great World Alliance Against Them Divided

By CHARLES S. FOLTZ
(AP Staff Writer)

Madrid, Dec. 11 — (AP) — The Germans in cafes and nightclubs here are looking and acting far happier today than a fortnight ago. The reasons are the British - E.L.A.S. clashes in Greece, words spoken in London and Washington, and the silence of Moscow.

Any neutral in this capital will be told the Germans believe the great world alliance against them is splintering.

Nothing in the past year has delighted the Germans more than dispatches from Washington, London and Athens which they interpret as an indication the Anglo-American powers are determined to block further Soviet expansion in Europe and the silence from Moscow which they say means the Russians are not pleased.

Germans here say "We will never have three masters in Germany but only one." They mean that when German resistance ends the country must be surrendered to one of its enemies, but not to Russia, Britain and the United States for a divided occupation. Germany, they say, must remain united even in defeat.

The Germans' only hope for a separate surrender is in a break among the United Nations. With or without a formal peace they argue they could cease fighting on one front while holding the other. This would be done only if the Germans saw a chance to gain thereby.

That's why they are delighted here to see dispatches in the Spanish press grouped under such headlines as "American Press Fears disunion in Allied Camp," "Churchill opposed to Communist Dictatorship."

GREATEST FLEET 4-ENGINE PLANES RAIDS GERMANY

Parade of Bombers Across East Coast Of England One Of Greatest Spectacles

London, Dec. 11. (CP) —Sixteen hundred American heavy bombers and 800 fighters—the greatest fleet of four-engined craft ever mounted in aerial warfare—raided Western Germany's rail centres today with 6,000 tons of explosives and an unstated number of R.A.F. heavy bombers added to the weight of the attack on Germany.

The record American heavy bomber fleet was from the British-based United States 8th Airforce and was part of a co-ordinated operation by heavy bombers from all three Allied air forces in the European theatre.

The Lancasters, joined by Mosquitos, jolted three German cities in the Ruhr before noon. Rail yards and a fuel plans at Osterfeld and refineries at Meiderick and Bruckhausen were the targets.

Berlin radio reported bombers from the United States 15th Air Force over Austria and headed toward Southern Germany. It was the third raid from Italy in three days.

Eighth Air Force heavies bombed the mainline rail centres of Frankfurt, nearby Hanau, and Giessen.

Early reports indicated moderate opposition from ground guns and little or no interference from German fighters.

One fighter group left the bombers and dived down to explode eight locomotives near Kassel. All the targets were obscured in cloud and bombing was by instrument.

One of Greatest Spectacles of War

The parade of bombers across the east coast of England early today treated Britons to one of the greatest spectacles of the war.

The roar of 7,000 aircraft engines filled the air as the bomber formations flew out in deep layer-formations.

Despite adverse weather a fleet of more than 500 heavy bombers loosed 1,500 tons of bombs on railyards at Coblenz and Bingen on the Rhine yesterday in a continuing assault on vital German communications supplying the westernn front.

More than 650 fighters accompanied the U. S. bombers, which were forced to attack by instrument because of heavy clouds. Temperatures ranged down to 50 degrees below zero and frozen bomb bays had to be cracked open by hand.

No enemy fighter opposition was encountered and anti-aircraft fire was described as meagre. Three bombers and one fighter were listed as missing, presumably due largely to the bad weather.

Nearly 1,000 sorties were flown yesterday by continent-based planes of the U. S. 9th Air Force and the 1st and 2nd Tactical Air Forces in support of Allied ground troops. No planes were lost.

Saturday night a force of R. A. F. Mosquitos gave Berlin its 185th raid of the war.

Occupied German Towns Docile Under Allied Occupation Rules

By WADE WERNER
(AP Staff Writer)

Paris, Dec. 11 — (AP) — One of the ironic features of the present phases of Europe's liberation is the lamb-like behavior of German communities under Allied occupation thus far.

Before the Allies crossed the German frontier in September, Nazi propagandists uttered dire threats of guerilla resistance behind the lines wherever German territory might be occupied. But military government detachments uniformly report the conquered German population docile and generally co-operative.

The men responsible for carrying out the program of military government in Germany, however, are not assuming for a minute that this paradox will continue indefinitely.

Although a number of German towns have been taken inside the western frontier — including the sizeable city of Aachen — there are not yet any full-fledged communities among them. The most vigorous age groups, essential personnel, municipal officials and police have been evacuated.

This picture is likely to be altered suddenly and radically when breakthroughs encircle and isolate a big section of the Fatherland's population before the Nazis can evacuate the dynamic core.

The harsh laws and regulations of the military government are designed to take care of any situation that might arise and there is no disposition to relax them to any degree on the basis of preliminary experience in the presently occupied areas.

What military government detachments learn through actual contact with conquered communities will be taken into consideration by Allied governments and may influence their decisions concerning the post-war treatment of Germany.

Americans Gain Over Mile in Area N. West of Duren

3rd Army Fighting Inside Siegfried Line at Dillingen

By EDWARD KENNEDY
(A. P. Staff Writer.)

Paris, Dec. 11 (AP)—U. S. 1st Army infantry and tanks advanced 1 1-4 miles today in fresh snowfall, driving the weakening but still determined Germans from the Roer Valley towns of Dhorn and Echtz the latter 2 1-2 miles northwest of the ruins of Duren.

The main force of Lt.-Gen. Hodges, drive was along a 10-mile front, more than six inches deep in snow, in the area west, northwest and southwest of Duren, a Roer river stronghold of 39,000 just 20 miles over open country from Colgne.

Only action along the British-Canadian front to the north came when troops of the 1st Canadian army raided German outposts three miles northeast of Nijmegen, taking 20 prisoners and killing six, without suffering casualties.

To the south, the U.S. 3rd Army beat down counter-attacks in the steel city of Dillingen and near Saarlautern and fought the severest kind of battles from house to house in Saareguemines, Roden and Fraulatern.

The 3rd Army was fighting inside the Siegfried Line at Dillingen and beyond Saardautern and progress necessarily was slow.

On the right, the U.S. 7th army was at grips with the Germans on the east side of the big French base of Haguenau, into which the 79th infantry division forced its way yesterday. Heavy fighting raged at several places in the Haguenau area, including the streets of Reichshoffen, a mile south of Niederbronn.

Tanks in Prominent Part.

The U. S. 1st Army slogged through Dhorn, three miles west of Duren. The Germans had vacated this village as well as Obergeich and Echtz. Tanks played a prominent part in the new thrust.

To the north, other infantry formations still fought in the streets of Pier, five miles northwest of Duren, where the Germans had tanks. Enemy armor also guarded the approaches to Schophoven, where American infantry last was reported 500 yards away.

The 1st Army opened a new pre-dawn attack at 4.30 a.m. from the vicinity of Lucherberg and covered 2,000 yards, reaching the outskirts of Merken, close to teh flooded Roer and 3 1-2 miles northwest of Duren.

Contrary to reports late yesterday that Gey, four miles southwest of Duren, had been cleaned out, the Americans still were fighting for each house in that village.

South of Gey, the Germans in the first light today launched a counter-attack against American holding Strass. Front reports said the thrust was being held.

The 35th and 26th Infantry Divisions of the 3rd Army extended their lines in the centre of the western front east of Sarreguemines, squeezing the Germans from some of the last bits of France in that sector.

Progress at Saarbrucken Not Reported.

No further progress was reported either toward the Saarland capital of Saarburcken, three miles or so from U. S. troops, or inside the nearby French rail centre of Forbach. A font dispatch said the 3rd Army held only about a fifth of Dillingen, where a tank factory and one of the Saarland's largest steel plants are located.

The 7th Army battling for Haguenau, city or 19,500 in the Karlsruhe corner 31 miles from that city on the Rhine, was engaged heavily near the village of Griesbach and at Mertzwiller where German infantry fought with skill and resolution with the support of dug-in tanks. Laktenhouse, midway between Haguenau and Bischwiller, was skirted in an advance.

Floods impeded other 7th Army units and French 1st Army troops in the clean-up of what remains of the Alsation pocket centred by Colmar. The storming of Kientzheim and Sigelsheim placed the Americans within 3½ miles of Colmar to the northwest. The French were four miles west.

More than 500 heavy bombers and nearly 2,000 lesser planes supported the Allied armies yesterday. Fighter-bombers knocked out 150 railcars and 14 locomotives and cut rail lines in 13 places. Most damage was done in the Saar area opposite the 3rd Army.

BONOMI FORMS NEW GOVERNMENT

Communist and Christian Democrat Are Vice-Premiers

Rome, Dec. 11 — (AP)—Premier Ivanoe Bonomi has formed a new Italian government in which the Communist Palmifo Togliatti and the Christian democrat Giulio Dirodino will serve as vice-premiers.

The composition of the new cabinet was announced officially last night. Portfolios were distributed evenly among the Liberals, Christian Democrats, Labor Democrats and Communists — the four parties which decided to support Bonomi. The Socialists and Actionists, the other two parties of the Committee of National Liberation, decided to stay out.

Count Carlo Sforza, minister without portfolio in the last cabinet who was rejected by Britain for the post of foreign minister, is not a member of the new government.

The new foreign minister is Alcide de Gasperi, a Christian Democrat. The Minister of Interior was retained by Bonomi.

Dirodino is a pre-Fascism minister of Justice and War.

Bonomi has notified Allied authorities that his government would keep the armistice terms and not raise the monarchy question until after the war. His first government which resigned two weeks ago, also made these pledges.

NEW POTATOES GROWN IN CELLAR

Some kind of a record for early potatoes is claimed by Mr. Alman Moore, Wallbridge, who on Dec. 1 dug new potatoes in his cellar and enjoyed them at the family dinner table. The "spuds" dug by Mr. Moore were of the early Cobbler variety, their growth being the result of accident rather than intent. Early last summer Mr. Moore dug his potatoes and placed them in his cellar. Several got buried and with climatic conditions apparently favorable the young tubers developed.

EXTENT OF INJURIES RECEIVED BY RELATIVES

Wounded in the chest and suffering three fractured ribs when struck with shell fragments from a German 88-mm. artillery gun, Gunner Reginald Clarke, son of Mrs. Emily Clarke, 117 Bridge Street West, has been in six different hospitals since his injury on November 17th on the Holland fighting front. Word of his injury was learned only late last week in a letter by his brother.

Member of the 8th Battery in the 8th R.C.A., Gunner Clarke enlisted early in the war and went overseas with the First Contingent in 1939. He has two brothers, Ernest Clarke, overseas since 1941, and George Clarke, ticket office employee with the local Canadian National Railways.

TRANSPORT SECTION OF A.L.I. (TANK) REGT. OUT ON MANOEUVRES

The convoy under the command of Transport Officer Lieut. Clare Riddell, and Staff Sergeant Don Brown, transport non-commissioned officer practised uniformity of speed, distance intervals, control of traffic at crossings and maintenance.

The unit used its available mechanized vehicles using hand signals controlled by the leading armored truck to regulate the traffic drill.

The practice took practically all day with personnel enjoying lunch en route.

MEMBERS OF ARMED FORCES ENTERTAINED

The Y.M.C.A. "Open House" for members of the armed services was conducted at the building yesterday with men from as far west as Edmonton, Alberta, and Rossland B.C., and as far east as the Merchant Service in Halifax.

A goodly number of hostesses were on hand to help entertain the men in social games, etc.

Afternoon tea was provided by the "Y" at five o'clock, with Margaret Hoolihan, Betty Whalen; Marie Carey and Rita Walsh assisting in the serving. The usual sing song was conducted in the afternoon and previous to the showing of the pictures in the gymnasium at 8.30 p.m.

TWO R.C.A.F. OFFICERS WILL BE CHARGED WITH CAUSING DISTURBANCES

Last week police were called to the Trianon Ballroom where it was alleged two R.C.A.F. officers from the Mountain View station were causing unnecessary disturbances. The two officers were escorted from the premises and given into the custody of R.C.A.F. service police.

On Sunday afternoon city police were called to a downtown restaurant where it was reported two air force men were drinking and causing disturbances. Imagine P. C. Doherty's surprise when he found the same two air force officers in something of the same difficulty. This time they were placed in the confines of the police station cell block and will face civil charges.

"It's either getting to be a habit or they're in a rut," remarked the desk sergeant.

Veteran farmer, hunter and during the last twenty years a recognized authority on bees, Byron O. Lott, one of Hastings County's venerable gentlemen, was last week elected an honorary life member of the Ontario Beekeepers' Association at its annual convention held in Toronto.

At the same meeting Mr. Lott was elected a director of the association for the fifteenth time. The entire board of 13 directors was re-elected.

The association, while approving higher prices for honey, registered opposition to any move toward compulsory pasteurization.

It also supported a resolution of the Canadian Beekeepers' Association that the Prices Board be asked to increase the ration coupon value of honey from two to four pounds as soon as any slack appeared on the market.

Crashes Into Rear Of Parked Truck

When a 1936 model Chevrolet motor car crashed into the rear of a parked transport on Highway No. 2, three miles east of Belleville early Sunday morning, the two passengers in the vehicle miraculously escaped serious injury as the motor car was completely demolished as far back as the front seat.

There was a light rain falling causing a mist as J. Hott, Kitchener truck driver, had to park his transport owing to engine trouble. Flares had been placed out as a caution when an automobile, driven by FO. Donald Awde, of Grimsby, crashed into the rear of the stationary truck. Mrs. Lila Awde, wife of the driver, sustained a minor laceration of the forehead.

FO. Awde informed Traffic Officer Harry Caldwell, who investigated, that visibility was exceedingly bad at the time and immediately upon seeing the lights of the truck he had applied the brakes of his car, but the vehicle skidded on the wet icy pavement to crash into the rear of the truck. The momentum of he car was so great it went beneath the truck as far as the windshield. The front portion of the car was a complete wreck, police reported. Both vehicles were headed in a westerly direction on the four-lane highway.

Canadian Railroaders Doing Big Job in War Zone Area

Number 1 Railway Operating Company, R.C.E., whose members are principally made up of former Canadian railroaders, is doing a big job in French rushing priority war materials to the front line areas, according to Spr. Mac Bonter, former tobacconist of this city.

Writing to Locomotive Foreman Albert Jonks to express appreciation for cigarettes received from the C.N.R. veterans cigarette fund, Spr. Bonter tells briefly of the work the No. 1 Railway Operating Company is doing on the continent.

Quoting "The Maple Leaf", the overseas army newspaper, Spr. Bonter states that the former C.P.R. and C.N.R. railroaders in his company now manning the "bricks without straw" railway system in France are doing a mighty efficient job. "So I guess that is all that matters", he said. "For many weeks all manner of supplies have been coming hundreds of miles from the coast. A vast amount of this tonnage has been coming by patched-up railways and Canadians are right in there pitching".

Equipment used consists of American locomotives, especially built for continental railroads; British locomotives and some captured rolling stock, including German, French and Italian freight cars of various shapes and sizes.

"I am now only working eight hours a day hostling, which is quite a change from the main line", Mac wrote. "We are living in box cars which are quite comfortable, thanks to ourselves—we had to steal everything that we have in them".

"Thanks again for all the cigarettes that you have sent us. We do get issued with a few every week but they don't last long".

Spr. C. S. Robinson, son of Harry Robinson, Station Street, has also written to Mr. Jones in appreciation of cigarettes. He stated that they had been very busy and were not getting too much time to themselves.

"Our system of operation is very much the same as we use at home", he wrote. "We have our own division to look after. We take over from U.S.A. crews and at the other end of the line our No. 2 company, carries on.

"Most of the time we are out on the line but every so often we have to take our turn working around the shops. All engines have to be serviced here and some days we turn out as high as 48 engines. Tonnage carried by trains isn't anything like at home but the number of trains sent over the road in a day takes care of that."

Allied Leaders Do Not Believe in Reports Hun Abandoning Sub Building

Washington, Dec. 11 — (AP) — Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt place no belief in reports Germany has abandoned U-boat construction.

Branding the reports as "probably German-inspired" and "untrue," the two leaders said in their monthly joint statement covering submarine and anti-submarine activity during November:

"On the contrary, improved types of U-boats may at any time be thrown into the battle and retention of our present command of the sea will undoubtedly call for unremitting vigilance and hard fighting."

Germany already has introduced new devices, such as an extensible air intake and exhaust, which enables U-boats to remain submerged for long periods and thus to "penetrate into areas denied to them for the past three years."

Shipping losses in November were described as "very small," and the number of U-boats sunk in proportion "has again been satisfactory."

CENTRES OF GREEK STORM

This photo of Lieut.-Gen. Ronald Scobie (uniform), commander of British forces in Greece, and George Papandreou, Premier of the Greek government, was made when they inspected Greek troops shortly after liberation of Athens. In the House of Commons Prime Minister Winston Churchill defended use of British troops to support the regime of Premier Papandreou against Leftist elements in Athens. Churchill won a vote of confidence after the Commons debate.

Two Rare Old Paintings Owned by Local Resident

Two rare and beautiful paintings, formerly owned by a lady-in-waiting to the German Empress Dowager and which hung in the salons of the Imperial Palace at Potsdam nearly two centuries ago, are now in the possession of Miss Dorothy Kirkpatrick, of this city.

Painted on rich dark brown mahogany wood, the pictures, known as cathedral panels, are beautiful reproductions of a master artist's conception of the Disciple Peter and the Apostle Paul.

They are believed to have originated in Spain, for in that country they were acquired by Count Von Seckendorff, German Ambassador to the Royal Court of Spain over two hundred years ago. He brought them to Germany. Miss Kirkpatrick came into possession of the paintings about ten years ago through a lineal descendant of the German nobleman.

Artist Unknown.

The artist who painted these masterpieces is unknown. No identifying signatures are apparent on the beautiful colorings of these fourteen-by-eighteen-inch panels. They are about one-half inch in thickness.

Art critics of New York have failed to identify the work. The beautiful lines and soft shadings and colorings betray a mixture of the works of world-famous artists. They resemble a Gainsborough in their paintings, but the figures are like those of a Van Dyk. The portrait effect has a startling likeness to that of a Rembrandt.

The skin tones are exceptionally delicate in these head and shoulder paintings of the two Apostles. St. Peter's robe is colored in a soft Raphael blue against the rich darkness of the brown mahogany background. The robe of St. Paul is done in a soft rosewood shade, that melts richly into the mahogany coloring.

Handcarved Frames.

The handsome frames, which have been retouched since coming into Miss Kirkpatrick's possession, are of handcarved rosewood and gold, with beautiful inlays of holly design, ebony and mahogany.

A startlingly beautiful effect is achieved if the pictures are placed within the glow of light. Miss Kirkpatrick recently showed them at a group meeting where she described their origin to her audience.

Similar paintings, it is believed, are on display in the famous Washington Mellon Museum of Art, where they have attracted the admiration of art critics and art lovers of the nation.

Airman Who Staged Acrobatic Display Came From Alberta

Vancouver, Dec. 11 — (CP)—Sgt. Donald Palmer Scratch of Ashmont, Alta., was the airman who staged a sensational display of aerial acrobatics in a Mitchell bomber at Boundary Bay, Wednesday, before plunging to his death, Air Force officials announced here.

It was a repeat performance for Sgt. Scratch. He had been discharged from the RCAF, Aug. 31, in Newfoundland, after another such unauthorised flight in a monster Liberator bomber.

Before his wild sky ride over the Boundary Bay station, 20 miles south of Vancouver, and briefly over Vancouver, Sgt. Scratch badly damaged a Liberator at the Boundary Bay field in an attempt to take off. Scratch left the damaged plane and took off in a Mitchell for his 4 1/2-hour ride.

Air Vice-Marshal F. V. Heakes, air officer commanding, Western Air Command, said Scratch was an officer when he staged his wild ride in Newfoundland, presumably because he had not been permitted to fly as a first pilot.

"He was court-martialed and dismissed from the service," said Air Vice-Marshal Heakes. He was permitted to re-enlist as a sergeant pilot at that time when there was a scarcity of flying personnel, the air vice-marshal added.

He said that under present rules it is not possible for an airman to re-enlist after being dismissed from the service.

Air Vice-Marshal Heakes said there are not more than five persons who could have given such a display of flying as put on Wednesday by Scratch.

"We have included a psychiatrist on the court of inquiry," he said.

Sgt. Scratch enlisted in the RCAF July 18, 1940.

Air Vice-Marshal Heakes said the crash could have been caused by failure of Scratch's gas supply.

"The motor on one side might have failed and the other have pulled him over in a roll and into the ground," he said.

Scratch's ship rolled over just as it began its vertical dive into the ground.

POLICE BLOTTER

Donald Claus, Tyendinaga Township, was apprehended by city police over the weekend on a charge of fraud. Claus is being held in connection with the alleged non-payment of a board account, police say. When apprehended he was also found in possession of a beer ration book made out in his own name. Both matters will be aired in Tuesday's police court, Chief Probert revealed today.

Window peepers were reported active on Isobel St. shortly after midnight Saturday. Despite the fact the complaint was immediately radioed to the police cruiser no signs of suspicious individuals were in evidence.

Belleville police are in possession of a gasoline truck filling hose that was found lying on the highway near West Huntingdon last week. The filler hose undoubtedly fell off a gasoline truck.

TRENTON

Trenton Sailor Home On Leave; Took Part In D-Day Operations

Trenton, (Special)—S. A. Gerald Paro, R.C.N.V.R., son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Paro, is spending leave at his home here after serving on H.M.C.S., Kenora, one of the minesweepers which took part in the invasion of France.

Before joining the navy in April 1942, he was manager of the A. & P. store in Trenton, and is a former graduate of Trenton High School.

The Kenora, along with three other Canadian minesweepers, was part of a mixed British-Canadian flotilla which did a pre-invasion sweep on the night of June 5th, manoeuvring in and out through the heavy traffic in the English Channel. They started sweeping during the afternoon and continued until the following morning (D-Day), when the Army started their show. The whole area of the French Coast was lit up with fires and flares and the little Kenora bounced about keeping time with the explosions. They were under fire once from coastal batteries but did not see any enemy surface ships and only two German aircraft. Two escorting U.S. destroyers laid down a smoke screen, which allowd them to escape.

They took part in sweeping out the harbor of Cherbourg and the crew was allowed ashore to look around. Though the town was in fairly good shape, the harbor was filled with German and French wrecks.

He enlisted in the R.C.N.V.R. in 142 and after training on H.M.C.S. York at Toronto and H.M.C.S. St. Hyacinthe, went to sea last May.

He was an only child and after his parents' death spent some time with his grandparents in Rednersville. His wife is a niece of Miss Lottie Jones, local florist.

Former Resident Lost On HMCS Shawinigan

Trenton (Special)—Among those lost on the corvette "Shawinigan" in the North Atlantic recently was Coder Arthur Eugene Kemp, formerly of Trenton, and whose wife and two small daughters live at 164 Livingstone Ave, Toronto.

Born in Belleville he moved at an early age with his parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Kemp, to Trenton, where his parents for some years conducted a grocery and china shop at the corner of Elgin and Middle Streets.

Prior to the war Coder Kemp worked as a civil servant at the Trenton Air Station, and a keen musician, played in several nearby orchestras.

WATCH ON THE MEUSE

Machine-gunners of the British Second Army keep their eyes and gun trained on a road near Geijsteren, along the banks of the Meuse river, Germany, for German night and dawn intruder patrols. A new offensive is expected to be launched on this sector in the near future.

Kidd, Kingston; First Vice President, Maxwell A. Strange, Kingston; Second Vice President, Mrs. Harry Rollins, Belleville; Third Vice President, Edward Way, Tweed; Secretary, W. The Last Beach-head

They went away to war as boys, straight from a world that was filled with boyish hopes and dreams, a world remote from suffering.

Soon they will be coming home again. It is too much to hope that they will have remained unchanged after knowing the obscene grim horror of war.

They will have aged. All will bear mental scars. For them, the last great beach-head will be the landing on the shores of Canada, and the re-entrance into civilian life.

Let us give them—not sympathy, but understanding; not charity, but the chance to fit themselves quickly and easily into the ways of peacetime living . . . the chance to recapture the years of youth and the bright opportunities they put aside so that Victory might be ours.

Christmas Buying

One week from Sunday is Christmas Eve and into the next eleven days of business one of the wonders of modern trade will be enacted—the immense volume of business in so short a time.

Christmas business has been good to the present but a good deal remains to be done before the last Christmas gift is purchased and the shops close on Saturday night, December 23rd.

Those who buy immediately achieve an advantage in more time to buy, smaller crowds to contend with and salesmen and salesladies with more time to give in individual attention to the anxious purchaser, who so often is in a quandary what to select or even to think of as a possible gift.

Expectation is general that Christmas trade this year will be well up. Much money is afloat, nearly every person is at work and as work brings in money, there is a natural tendency for all to celebrate Christmastide in a generous spirit.

The early buyer has advantages which are worthwhile. But of course there will always be the late buyer. Here the early buyer can help out, leaving the way clear for whoever is for one reason or another tardy in making the necessary purchases for Christmas.

Britain's Health Better

One of the favorable developments of the struggle is that Britain's public health is better than in the days before the war. Dr. George Buchan, medical officer of health for Willesden, London, England, said so in Toronto and remarked that he did not know the cause. "Even with all the years of bombing, the mortality rates are lower than in pre-war years." He said that "statistics prove this and it is surprising," and that he did not know why this should be. The situation as he disclosed it is, people have been living in shelters, have gone through blackouts, lacked well ventilated housing, suffered damage to sewers and water supplies and where one might have expected an epidemic, there has not been one.

It has been said that health of the people individually and as the nation as a whole has been the subject of intense study, in order to provide a balanced food under rationing and that this might be to some an explanation for the improved health of the British Isles. There is the attitude or spirit of the people—they have had to devote their fullest attention to the war with every possible person working at capacity and a people with their minds constituted as the British mind is under wartime conditions, are formidable and so strong.

On the other side, there is the fact of damage to sewers which Dr. Buchan mentions and that is something which might one would think be a source of danger.

It was formerly expected that there would be many cases of "nerves" resulting in neurotic condition but the report has been throughout the war that there is really none of this.

Whatever the reason, the fact remains that the public's health is better at a time when all anticipation would have inclined to a view that the public health would deteriorate under bombing and other wartime conditions, whereas the fact is it is improved.

Diplomatic Appointment

Baron Silvercruys of Belgium, ambassador to Canada for the past eight years, has been appointed by the Belgian Government as ambassador to the United States. Canadians will offer the gracious diplomat congratulations upon the great honor which has come to him.

Canada has in the Baron a true friend who has found in this country a great wealth of friendship. "I have developed a profound admiration for its people," he said and he will continue to hold the Dominion in the highest regard.

The Baron indicated that the Belgian people have a deep admiration for the United States. He was in Washington near the close of the First World War and so has an extensive knowledge and acquaintance with the United States.

His knowledge of the United States and of Canada will stand his country in good stead.

Quake and War

Allied air power is punishing Japan's war industries with raids which have caused heavy damage. Now Mother Nature has inflicted by an earthquake factory damage upon the Nipponese in various areas, though Tokyo says the damage is light.

Earthquakes have before caused very heavy loss in Japan. Twenty-one years ago nearly one hundred thousand persons lost their lives. Today such a quake as that of 1923 would probably deal a severe blow at war industry. But nature's quakes are not subject to man's regulation as are the arms of war. War's mighty strength can be hurled at enemy Japan with systematic destruction levelled against everything having to do with the war effort. It is the power of United Nations arms that will bring the Japanese to their knees for that power can be levelled direct at those things which will decide the fate of war.

Lost Symbolism,

(Montreal Herald)

No figure of speech appears as unappropriative today as that about "pouring oil on throubled waters."

Oil is no longer a symbol of restored peace. We know it only as a flammable explosive which powers death and sets nations ablaze.

Iran's oil, for example, has certainly not quieted the troubled waters of international relations. In fact, the situation in oil-soaked Iran appears so delicate that a carelessly dropped cigarette but might be disastrous.

The Allies are rushing construction of a pipe-line from India to China—and the oil it carries when completed will assuredly not soothe Japan.

For the duration, oil seems doomed to stand as a symbol of death, destruction and disagreement.

Ground Troops May Fly

(From "Aviation News," New York)

The army is frankly facing the possibility that all ground forces may leave off walking and rolling and start flying. There is no air force-ground force fight involved. The army simply shifts its logistics into a third dimension. If such a shift takes place on a large scale, vastly more airplanes will be needed than are presently planned for tactical and strategic aviation. Estimates of aircraft necessary to equip and maintain future United States air power have to be revised upwards as a result of expanding air borne operations.

"Tough"—and With Reason

(London Sunday Chronicle)

"We go into Germany as conquerors!" That is General Eisenhower's declaration. He knows how to treat Germany. In his mind there are no doubts, no arguments about a "hard peace or a soft peace." White flags and submissive civilians will not weaken his resolve. Tearful greetings from those who have been ferocious enemies for five years and stampede to protest their friendship will not tempt the Allied armies from their immediate purpose—the complete and decisive conquest of Germany.

Woman Appointed Chaplain

(Windsor Star)

Lieutenant Madeline Hawkins, who has been made a chaplain at the training centre in Kitchener, is a genuine pioneer. She is the first to enter an entirely new field, and thus she bears a tremendous responsibility. Hers will be the task of proving that the move is a wise one. As a graduate deaconness of the Church of England, she has the requisite training to fit her for her duties, and she will without doubt discharge them in a manner which will convince even the most skeptical.

RETURN

Now, I've two of them to read to
And from dawn to dusk pay heed to;
There are two on me to clamber
And to run my pockets through.—
Boy and girl—a blessed couple—
Energetic, strong and supple,
Tugging at me till I'm breathless!
Do I like it? Yes, I do!

Let me say in explanation
They are here for the "duration."
Now, the house is strewn with play-things,
Toys that run or squeak or buzz,
And they're left for me to trip on,
Bark my shins against, and slip on
And to pick up after bedtime!
Does this please me? Yes, it does!

Though I'm heavier and much older,
There are two to ride my shoulder,
Two to jog me off to London—
As their daddy once I ran;
Two that love a bit of roughing,
Just to set their grandpa puffing;
Two to run me fairly ragged!
Can I stand it? Sure, I can!

Men Laugh at Women, But Why?

By J. J. M.
(in The Winnipeg Tribune)

Men laugh at many so-called characteristics of the opposite sex. And what are some of the things about women that give the boys a chuckle?

Let's start off with women's love of gossip.

Admitting that most dames aren't adverse to getting the inside dope on some sister's private life, do men turn a deaf ear to the same sort of chat?

Not that I've noticed!

Many a time I have sat in with a small gathering of stags and the conversation has started out with: "Man, oh man, is Pete Whosis ever in the doghouse!"

Whereupon all those present will draw up their chairs closer to the table as they eagerly listen to details of when Pete got into the doghouse, and why—and also how long it was expected he would have to stay there.

While on the subject of woman's love of gossip, who was the original gossip columnist? A gent by the name of Winchell, I believe.

Then we come to the often laughed at subject of woman's inability to make up her mind.

Well, have you ever watched a male golfer addressing his ball and noticed how many times he wiggles and waggles, and shifts his feet, and stares up the fairway, before he finally decides to hit the darned thing?

And a lot of women would like to know how long it is going to take the prime minister to make up his mind on the Zombie question.

Then men always laugh at women's hats. They think they're the silliest things.

Yet they attract men's attention, which is what they're intended for, so what's silly about that?

Talking about hats, how about the so-called lucky hat that so many fishermen hang onto?

Isn't it silly to suppose that fish pay any attention to the hat a fisherman is wearing?

And now let's take up the well-worn subject of how a woman changes her mind without the slightest apparent reason. Don't men do the same?

They certainly do.

How often have I heard male friends of mine, after returning from the races, explain: "I would have made money, if I hadn't changed my mind at the last moment."

Men laugh at women's intuition. They say it's a lot of baloney.

Yet many's the man who, after pulling off a successful business deal—in which he took a chance—proudly says: "I just played a hunch."

What's the difference between a man's hunch and a woman's intuition?

None.

Men laugh at the amount of time women spend in fixing themselves up.

Yet I'll bet they would spend just as long themselves if they had anything to fix that would make them better looking.

Men think that, because women spend so much time in front of their mirrors, it is a sign of vanity—which is a lot of hooey.

Women look at their reflections with a critical eye. Men gaze at theirs with open admiration.

Men laugh at women because they talk so much.

But who do most of the talking, who give the most long-winded speeches, in any mixed assembly of men and women? The men.

I know, because I have often been forced to be a long-suffering listener.

Finally men laugh at women's emotional instability.

They will recount with glee how excited women get.

Yet, for a genuine demonstration of mass hysteria, you have only got to attend a sports event and watch male spectators when the home team wins in the last minute of play.

Yes, men laugh at women. But why?

Gen. McNaughton To Be Candidate In Grey North

Owen Sound, Ont., Dec. 11—(CP)—Canada's Defence Minister — Gen. A.G.L. McNaughton — has accepted an invitation to run as Liberal candidate in the Grey North federal riding in a by-election early next year.

Announcement that the 57-year-old former commander of the Canadian Army overseas would be the Liberal standard-bearer was made last night by John Dolfin, president of the Grey North Liberal Association.

The seat was made vacant recently by the resignation of William P. Telford, Liberal, representative since 1935 who has been unable to take his place in the House of Commons for more than a year because of ill-health.

Gen. McNaughton, in a telegram to Mr. Dolfin accepting the invitation, said that while he will be busy for the next few days "completing arrangements for the dispatch of reinforcements needed by our troops overseas" and for the return home on leave of troops with long service, he could meet the association executive here next Saturday.

First Political Venture

Contesting of the seat will be the first political venture by Gen. McNaughton, who before the war was head of the National Research Council.

Date of the by-election has not been set, but Mr. Dolfin said a writ probably will be issued at Ottawa within a few days. The Progressive Conservative party so far has been the only other party to name a candidate for the next election in the riding. He is Mayor Garfield Case of Owen Sound.

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

WORDS OF ONE SYLLABLE

Our druggist says he cannot make up the formula you give on p. 30 of the booklet "So You Have Indigestion?" because the amount of lactated pepsin is not indicated. He says it calls for 3 oz. of the salts and 1 oz. of glycerin but it does not specify how much pepsin. (T. O. B.)

It is as plain as the rouge on a lady's lips—"a saturated solution of magnesium sulfate (Epsom salts) in elixir of lactated pepsin with glycerin, mixed in the proportion of three fluidounces of the solution with one fluidounce of glycerin."

In other words you (or your druggist) dissolve in three fluidounces of the liquid universally called elixir of lactated pepsin all the Epsom salts that will dissolve in it, and add to it, if you can get it, an ounce of glycerin (about two tablespoonfuls).

There's the main difficulty just now—there is a restriction on the sale of glycerin except on physician's prescription. Of course, you can't expect your druggist to take a recipe or formula I have published as a physician's prescription in that respect. You must have a bona fide prescription signed by your own physician.

I know of no substitute for the glycerin in the formula. It may work fairly well if you use four fluidounces of the elixir of lactated pepsin instead of three fluidounces and the glycerin.

You are by no means the first reader who has experienced difficulty in following the instructions in the booklet for the non-surgical drainage of the gall-bladder. (Copy of the booklet "So You Have Indigestion?" mailed on request if you inclose ten cents and stamped pre-addressed envelope). But I contend any druggist who can take his mind off the general merchandise for fifteen seconds should be able to find the answer to the puzzle as it stands.

I wish people who try to get the formula and find glycerin not available would try out the substitution suggested—simply a saturated solution of Epsom salts in four fluidounces of elixir of lactated pepsin (which contains some glycerin anyway) just as the booklet directs for the formula as there given, and report their experience for the benefit of other sufferers from chronic cholecystitis (gall-bladder trouble).

I simply dare not take chances on what might happen to these detailed instructions for the use of this medicine if I were to offer them here. Editorial plastic surgery used to send me right up in the air, but with the extreme shortage of print paper it became chronic and so I quit reading my own stuff.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Six Operations

Please send your pamphlet on hernia. I have been operated six times for hernia, but it always recurs in a few months. (P.A.C.)

Answer—As a matter of fact, although one would hardly suspect it listening to the surgeons sounding off when they are trying to sell the patient an operation, recurrence of hernia occurs in at least one out of every four cases, some time after the operation. Any one with hernia should remember this when deciding whether to have the ambulant (injection) treatment or the radical operation. Hernia is just as likely to recur after ambulant treatment has effected an apparent cure, but if it does, at least you haven't risked your life to have a try at it and you haven't lost a month's wages while confined to hospital.

Bunion

Will the corn cure you recommend help bunion? (C.W.W.)

Answer—No. The so-called "corn cure"—solution of thirty grains of salicylic acid in one-half ounce of flexible collodion—may be painted on corn, wart or callus once a day for a week or more, to soften the corn or wart or callus and enable you to wipe it away. It cures nothing. The corn or callus will return if the friction or pressure continues. Bunion is partly dislocated great toe joint, with an inflamed bursa pad over it. Nothing short of surgery can cure bunion.

The Best Tank in Battle

By WES GALLAGHER
(A.P. War Correspondent)

2nd. Armored Division, Germany—Many officers and men of this veteran division believe Germany's new "Royal" or "King" tiger tank with its "super-88" gun is the best tank in battle today.

"Our Shermans are all right in their class, but they are outclassed," is the way the men put it.

Next in the enemy's armory they rank the regular Tiger or the Panther. Some believe the panther is the best all-around tank of the bunch.

At least 23 Royal Tigers have been knocked out on this front, but the men who did it say it is a question of a lucky shot or simply overwhelming them with other tanks or tank destroyers.

The new Royal Tiger weighs between 67 and 72 tons, has a top speed of about 20 miles an hour and its six inches of armor in front will turn Allied 75 and 76-mm. shells at ordinary distances. Armor on the side is two to three inches and on the back three to four inches thick.

It has a new super velocity 88-mm. gun with a shell almost a foot longer than any previously used. Its velocity is higher than anything the Americans are using against it. Smokeless powder makes it hard to detect.

The new Tiger has a faster turret than the old hand-operated Tigers. It has 34-inch-wide treads, which spread the great weight over a larger area.

The barrel of the 88 is more than 21 feet long. It is used chiefly in defensive positions and the Germans dig in around towns, keep the tank well camouflaged and wait until the advancing Americans are within 800 yards before opening up.

Here are some other opinions:

"The Tiger is the best tank in the world today," said Lieut. Wm. P. Trinen, [illegible], N.D., tank platoon leader. "We need higher velocity guns to burn holes in German tanks."

The Tiger's most vulnerable place is on top, where there is only about a half inch of armor. A direct hit with a high explosive artillery shell knocks them out, but the chances of scoring such a hit on a moving tank with artillery is small.

NEWFOUNDLAND AND CANADA

Newfoundland, the "half-way" stop between the United States and Britain, is neither geographically nor politically a part of Canada.

Notwithstanding large numbers of American servicemen are stationed in Newfoundland and tens of thousands of others are passing through, many people in the United States are unable to get it through their heads that Newfoundland is not in Canada.

Newfoundland businessmen are still continually being referred by American firms to their Canadian distributors.

When the Dominion of Canada was created in 1867 provision was made for the admission of Newfoundland into the federation, but, despite negotiations from time to time with that end in view, Newfoundland has never availed itself of the privilege.

Until 1933 Newfoundland was a self-governing dominion with its own governor-general, premier and parliament and was a full-fledged member of the sisterhood of British commonwealths with a status in the Empire similar to that of the Dominion of Canada itself.

Because of financial difficulties, in 1933 Newfoundland lost its dominion status and reverted to that of a British Crown Colony, being governed by a British governor and a commission composed of three members appointed by the United Kingdom and three by Newfoundland. It was contemplated that this arrangement would continue only until such time when the island could again support itself.

Newfoundland, among the dozen largest islands in the world, is often called "the senior British colony" because it antedates in discovery, though not in continuous settlement, all the other overseas units of the British Empire.

John Cabot, sailing in the service of Henry VII of England, discovered the island in 1497, at least a year before Columbus saw the mainland of South America. The following entry in the accounts of the English privy-purse expenditures is supposed to refer to the discovery: "1497, Aug. 10. To hym that found the New Isle, L10." This does not necessarily mean that the king paid Cabot 10 pounds for discovering the island. The name, of course, alludes to the fact that the island had just been discovered.

Sir Humphrey Gilbert formally occupied Newfoundland in 1583 and the Treaty of Utrecht in 1713 acknowledged it to be British. Newfoundland's first governor-general was appointed in 1728 when Canada was still a French possession.

ALLIED MORTAR CREWS BLAST AT NAZI ATTACK

This dramatic scene made during a German counter-attack on Hoven, shows Yank mortar crews firing at Nazi tanks. The Americans entered the town after a heavy artillery barrage wrecked most of the buildings and forced the Germans to withdraw.

Somewhere in the European theatre of operations two Dutch soldiers, members of the new Dutch army, engage in house-to-house sniping, from the cover of a ruined building. They wear American steel type helmets.

Hope of Natural Death Remote for Hitler

Twenty-five years ago an insignificant looking man wearing a worn raincoat with hat pulled over his eyes began a relentless march out of the mists of obscurity. Germany underestimated him, the world underestimated him. It was a fatal mistake, for the man was Adolf Hitler, Marguerite C. Stevenson writes in The Kansas City Star.

Today the world buzzes with conjecture as to his injury, illness or death. The Nazi system, of course precludes our knowing his whereabouts or the exact state of his health. Basing our opinion, however, on the available facts, when and how is Hitler likely to die?

The fuehrer, now 55 years old, is only one of a succession of dictators in the world. What happened to the others?

Alexander Died at Age of 33

Alexander the Great, born 356 years before Christ, died at 33, the victim of his own excesses. Themistocles judged Alexander rightly—"greater in genius than in character." In justice, Alexander was probably the most talented, the most impressive, the most far-seeing of all the dictators.

Two out of three of the first thirty Roman emperors, all of whom used dictatorial powers, came to violent ends.

The Nazis have torn several pages from Sulla's book. He was Himmler, Goebbels and Goering combined in a Roman toga. He established the early counterpart of the Gestapo (the OGPU as well). He conducted "purges" and incited race and class hatreds. Objects of art turned up in strange places. Men were killed for possessions of comparatively small value. But Sulla, unjustly, died a natural death at 60.

Julius Caesar, to go on with the dictators, as every high school freshman knows, was assassinated at the age of 56, suffering more than twenty wounds from men he had favored as friends.

Nero Through at 31

Caligula and Nero inherited a criminally insane streak and came to murder and suicide, respectively. And not a moment too soon—Caligula at 29, Nero at 31. The Romans so detested Nero that they tried to remove every evidence that he had lived. Perversely, the average person has a distinct mental image of his fiddling and reciting poetry while Rome burned.

Alaric, the Visigoth, who destroyed many Greek and Roman cities, died in the same year he sacked Rome. So far as we know, the death was natural.

Attila, the Hun, was so merciless to conquered people that he considered he had been put on earth by God to punish others. He died mysteriously and on the night of his marriage to the glamorous Hilda. It was most fortunate timing for Italy, which he was about to invade.

Genghis Khan, who controlled vast territories, died a natural death at 65.

In lonely and forbidding surroundings, Napoleon died a victim of cancer at 52.

Duce May Escape Violence

Among contemporary dictators, Mussolini, who is apparently in his last illness, stands a chance to die a natural death as long as he is under Nazi protection. Insurance rates in England have never been as high on the possibility of Mussolini's assassination as they have been on Hitler's.

Is there a chance that Hitler will commit suicide? It is most unlikely. He threatened suicide if the Munich putsch failed. It failed, but he lived on. Napoleon contemplated suicide, but that was all. Dictators must, of necessity, be neurotics. They are prodigal only of other people's lives. Caligula was a disgusting coward whose legions must have despised him. Stories of Hitler's "winning" the Iron Cross are seldom the same. Mussolini left Italy as a youth to avoid military service. The little over a month that he finally served in World War 1 was terminated by wounds in Il Duce's backside.

Hitler's Case History

If Hitler were to live to a natural death, what is his physical inheritance and his case history as far as we know it?

His mother, Klara, and his father, Alois, were distant relatives. Klara, comparatively frail, was 29 when Hitler was born, his father 52. Hitler's mother, after a long illness, died of cancer when she was 45. The father, a drunkard, died of a stroke at 65.

Hitler himself is highly emotional, subject to fits of crying. He sleeps poorly. He has gained some weight in the last few years. When he was a boy he suffered lung trouble. He was temporarily blinded by poison gas in World War I. In 1935 he underwent a minor operation for a polyp on his vocal cords. He broods and talks of death. He neither smokes nor drinks. He is practically a vegetarian. Authorities do not agree on the purity of his personal life.

Natural Death Unlikely

The average life expectancy of an individual of 55 is 17.4 years, 20 if no physical impairments are discovered at this age, but the chances of Hitler dying a natural death are very slight indeed. There have been rumors of attempts on Hitler's life. The bombing at the Munich beer garden in November, 1939, may have been a "plant" for the effect on the German people. The Nazis are certainly not above it. Since the most recent bombing attempt on July 20, Hitler has been silent. It is not beyond the realm of possibility that the sinister Himmler has "out-Hitlered Hitler," isolated him at Klessheim on the pretext of "protecting" him and taken over the Nazi reins.

Barring the existence of an unknown mental or physical state which might carry him off, it will be a miracle if Hitler escapes assassination in the turbulent months ahead for Germany. If he survives the German defeat, he will stand trial before an Allied military court. The verdict is a foregone conclusion.

Hitler's "kampf" draws to a disastrous close.

SWISS INVENTION

The diamond was first used for drilling purposes in 1864, when a Swiss engineer invented the diamon drill-bit.

75 YEARS OF SERVICE TO THE NATION

FOR THREE-QUARTERS OF A CENTURY, the history of General Motors in Canada has been one of Service... Service to the private motorist—Service to the industry—Service to agriculture—Service to the nation in war and peace!

This 75-year long tradition of Service has its roots in the pioneer Canadian carriage shop from which today's great GM organization originated and developed. It has found expression not only in the manufacture of fine transportation equipment—but in the maintenance of that equipment. It has played a prominent part in making Canada mobile, prosperous and great. It has put wheels under this growing nation—and has kept these wheels rolling, trustily, thriftily and well.

Throughout the critical war years, the engineering resources and technical skill which GM had built up served Canada in the production of heavy fighting equipment—trucks and tractors, guns, shells and planes.

Representative of GM Service, in communities from coast to coast, have been Canada's General Motors Dealers. Long active in providing both passenger and commercial users with the best in automotive values, these dealers, during the war years, have pledged themselves to the task of "Saving the Wheels that Serve the Nation".

After Victory, when Canada's requirements are once more tuned to peace and progress, Canadians may rest assured that General Motors will serve and amply fill those requirements with "More and Better Things for More People".

● Serving Canada's lumber industry are sturdy GM haulage units, built to stand heavy usage.

● Serving Canada at war, in every battle area, are more than sixty types of GM military vehicles.

● Serving Canada, by promoting the development of splendid modern highways, are GM cars and trucks.

● Serving Canadian industry and commerce are GM commercial vehicles of every type.

● Serving Canada's mines, where roads are rough and the going is tough, are thousands of rugged GM trucks.

● Serving Canada's homes and farms by providing thrifty transportation, are hundreds of thousands of GM cars and trucks.

WEDDINGS

HALL — CRAWFORD

A very quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at Bridge Street United Church Parsonage on December 2nd at 3 p.m. by the Rev. E. W. Stapleford when Irene Ethel, eldest daughter of Mr. Wesley Crawford and the late Mrs. Crawford, of Roslin, was married to William Allen Hall, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Hall of Huff's Island.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked charming in a floor length gown of white sheer over taffeta. Her cape length veil was caught to her hair with a matching headdress and she carried a shower bouquet of American Beauty roses.

Mrs. Harry Hall of Huff's Island, sister of the bride, as bridesmaid, was wearing an attractive gown of white sheer over taffeta and tiny cap. She carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses.

Mr. Harry Hall, of Huff's Island, brother of the groom, acted as groomsman.

The groom's gift to the bride was a chest of silverware; to the bridesmaid, sterling pearl earrings and to the groomsman, gold tie pin and collar clip.

The happy couple left for Toronto, Hamilton and points west.

For travelling the bride chose a rose wool dress with brown accessories.

Friends were present from Roslin, Moira, Foxboro, Ivanhoe, also Mr. and Mrs. Rob't. Crawford, Viscount, Sask.

On Friday evening, December 8, a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Hall with thirty friends present.

ROBINSON—McCAMON

The parsonage at 44 Hillside St., was the scene of a pretty wedding on Thursday afternoon, December 7th, at four o'clock, when the Rev. J. A. Dilts united in marriage Gladys Norene McCamon, to James A. Robinson, both of this city.

Iva Doran and Arthur Mumby were attendants for the bridal couple.

A buffet dinner was served to sixteen guests at 192 Station St., following the ceremony. A three-tiered wedding cake centred the bridal table. Best wishes were extended to the bride and groom from their many friends.

KUTASIENSKI—COLASANTE

Trenton.—St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church was the setting for a lovely wedding ceremony on Saturday morning, December 9th, at nine o'clock, when Louise Colasante, of Carrying Place, daughter of Mrs. Colasante and the late Mr. M. Colasante, became the bride of Edward Krupa, of Oshawa, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. Kutasienski. The Rev. Father Carley celebrated the Nuptial Mass.

The bride was wearing a charming floor length gown of white sheer accentuated with sequin trimming. It was fashioned with round neckline and long tight fitting sleeves. Her shoulder length net veil was caught to her hair with a dainty cap of tiny white flowers. She carried a shower bouquet of pink carnations and an ivory prayer book and rosary, gifts of the groom.

The matron of honor was Mrs. John Colasante, sister-in-law of the bride, who was attired in a pastel blue floor length sheer dress and bandeau of matching blue flowers dusted with veiling. She carried a shower bouquet of pink carnations.

Mr. John Colasante, brother of the bride, was groomsman.

A wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's mother, Carrying Place. The mother of the bride received the guests wearing a two-piece blue gown with matching accessories and corsage of roses. She was assisted by the groom's stepmother who chose a brown ensemble with accessories in the same shade and corsage of roses.

For travelling on the wedding trip to points east, the bride selected a chocolate brown suit, muskrat top coat and black accessories.

On their return, they will take up residence in Trenton.

The Scottish Kilt

By George Blake
(B.B.C. Press Service)

London (by mail) — Down our village street the other day there cycled one of the funniest figures I've seen in a lifetime. He was a young, fair-haired man, wearing a leather jerkin with the badges of the 8th United States Air Force upon its sleeve. Nothing funny in that, by any means, but it was rendered comic by the fact that this young chap was also wearing below it a kilt—a fully pleated kilt in bright yellow tartan. That he was cruising along on a lady's bicycle four sizes too small for him completed a fantastically amusing picture.

Our village people just smiled with affectionate tolerance as this earnest young American pedalled along. You see: we knew at once that he was a guest in a household near at hand which takes in an American bomber crew from time to time and gives the lads a rest between tours and duty over Germany. Two boys of that household are on active service overseas; they wore the kilt when they were youngsters, and now it seems to be a lot of fun for the American lads to get themselves up in this strange garb and parade the countryside; much as if I, stationed in Chicago for a spell, were to roam round in the eagles' feathers of a Red Indian chieftain.

This interest of lads from North America in our Scottish tartans and in the kilt is one of the war's charming little oddities. I don't know whether they think the kilt is comic or whether they think it is romantic, but many a photographer in Scotland is turning over quite a bit of money just now, hiring out kilts to Canadians and Americans and then taking their pictures. The shops that deal in tartans have always a bunch of overseas boys goggling into their windows. I myself served in a Highland regiment in the last war, and when Canadians or Americans come to visit us they just can't keep their fingers off a little souvenir which lies on a table in our drawing-room. This is the sgian dubh—or black knife—the ornamental gadgets which officers of Highland regiments used to wear inside the stocking on the left leg. It's a pretty thing, with the regimental badge in silver filigree on the ebony handle, but I've never been able to understand completely why it so fascinates all our visitors. Is it just attraction of the strange and curious? Or is it the pull of the old legend of the kilted clansman—a legend given to the larger world mainly by the genius of Walter Scott?

Here in Scotland we are actually a bit cagey about tartans and the kilt and Highland costume generally. The kilt may be, if you like, our old school tie—as a sardonic New Zealander suggested to me the other day—but it is part of our tradition. Indeed, the traditions surrounding the kilt are so subtle that we don't by any means think that everybody of Scottish birth is entitled to wear it. I happen to be a Scot to the extent of fifteen-sixteenths (in spite of the villainously English name) but I shouldn't dream of wearing a kilt even if it suited me. And why? Simply because I am a Lowland Scot, of a people no more used to sporting the tartan than the inhabitants of the Isle of Man. In strict history, the kilt is the traditional dress of quite a small section of the Scottish people — the Celtic Highlanders, the real clansmen of the western and northern counties, and their direct descendants.

I'm not pursuing this theme of the kilt without a serious purpose: but one or two other things about this strange garment and the tartans of which it is made are worth explaining. The original tartans were really badges—the badges of the different Scottish clans: a dark rusty red for the Camerons; a bright and challenging red for the Royal Stewarts; dark green with bold yellow stripes for the Gordons; dark green with red and white stripes for the Mackenzies —the tartans of the Seaforth Highlanders, and so on. In their early forms these tartans were woven by the women of the clan, the native wool dyed with vegetable dyes, gathered in the woods and on the moorlands of the Highlands. As for the kilt itself, it wasn't originally the sort of short skirt that it has now become. It was in the first place a one-piece, strictly utility garment, consisting of one great length of tartan cloth which the aboriginal Highlander wound over his shoulder to cover the upper part of his body and then round his loins. What we nowadays call the plaid—the bit of loose tartan material hanging from the left shoulder of a man in what is called "full Highland dress"—is really the vestigial symbol of the bit of cloth the real Highlander wound round his shoulder.

In fact, the kilt and the tartans that make it are apt to be rather bogus nowadays. During last century the influence of Walter Scott, and then that of Queen Victoria, turned the old Highland dress into a sort of romantic fashion, a rather cheap sentimentality; and I don't think I'm spilling the beans too rashly when I tell you that some of the tartans made and sold today, and some of the conventional accoutrements of so-called "Highland costume," are purely commercial inventions.

Be that as it may, take it from me that, if there is some silly sentimentality about the kilt and the wearing of the kilt in general, there is in Scotland a very deep-rooted sentiment about this symbol of national history. Quite early in this war it was decided officially that the Highland regiments of the British Army, the kilted regiments, must go into plain battledress like the rest of the lads. I think that decision was inevitable. Speaking from experience, I think it was wise. In the last war, the first thing we had to do was to cover our kilts with khaki aprons for the sake of camouflage. When my battalion went to Gallipoli, we had, promptly to shed our kilts and get into khaki shorts, simply because the swish of that heavy cloth on perspiring legs set up sores, just as it did in the water-logged trenches of the Western Front. But when the 1939 decision to do away with the kilt for the duration was announced you could have heard the row a thousand miles away. The Highland regiments really did resent the necessity. People argued seriously about the effect on morale. And I daresay many people far overseas noticed in the newsreel that, when the pipers of the 51st. (Highland) Division led the Allied march into Tripoli, they were wearing—the kilt; faithfully carried all the long way across the desert from Alamein for this moment of glory.

And does it matter? From the kilt of the Highlands to Dumbarton Oaks may seem a long step but it's their local national customs things like the kilt—that all nations prize. Small nations are often richer to customs than the big ones. And Dumbarton Oaks is a big nation's proposal. But ask the average Scotsman about the Conference and he will quickly agree that its findings are right. As a matter of fact, it wasn't the possible modification of national characteristics that worried any Scot I talked to, but the question of how that place in the United States came by such a famous Scottish name.

So one has to reflect that even in this age of large-scale planning for peace, this age of standardization and rapid international transport, you still can't get away from the things which different nations count among their own precious possessions. And that makes a man pause to think. For this is also the age of destruction, of occupation by enemy armies, and the wholesale imposition by force of alien ways of living.

I often think of Czechoslovakia, a country I happen to know pretty well. It kept its own traditions within the old Austrian Empire, and when it gained its independence in 1918 old President Masaryk's first acts were to encourage the native culture—the country's music, its strange devotion to physical fitness through the Sokol movement, down to the wearing of national costumes so brilliant and beautiful that the loudest kilt ever worn in Scotland is drab in comparison. And Czechoslovakia has been under the Nazi heel for five, nearly six, years. The people live the lives of slaves. I don't suppose they dare even hum one of their lovely folk-songs.

The Czechs are a tough people, and their country has not—so far—been blasted and fired to any great extent. It's when one thinks of a nation like the Dutch that one's heart begins to sink. Yes, the Dutch are tough too, but theirs is a tiny little country, and we all know what is happening to it now. We have been told plump and plain that it is in danger of obliteration as a going concern. It is a largely agricultural country; its life depends on the dykes keeping out the sea; and now the dykes are being smashed, and the salt is poisoning the fields. One wonders if, when the Boche is gone at last, any Dutchwoman will have the heart even to make herself one of those pretty lace caps they wear.

And does it matter? Oddly enough, when I was thinking about this, I picked up the report of the British council for the past year. You know what the British Council is? A body which encourages the study of British culture abroad — not propaganda but helping the folk of other nations to learn English, read British books, study British music and pictures, and so on. Well, the men who framed this report have been thinking about the subject we're discussing now; and after describing how they have worked during the war, they say:

"The British Council is more naturally an instrument of peace, and it has now to prepare a greater part in the no less difficult peace effort. Such thoughts," it goes on, "must be present in the mind of any government of a nation with great cultural traditions. Cultural relations are not competitive but reciprocal, and no government should look with equanimity on the prospect after the war of international competition in the cultural field. Those in charge of cultural relations should bring messages of peace and good sense. The ways of life of great nations are not to be shown as if they were the patent medicines of competing advertisers; and it is for the nations, and above all for the United Nations, to secure that this does not occur."

Well—that seems pretty good to me, coming from an official source. It seems to say quite clearly that the preservation of different national cultures is an aim of high policy. And since we have seen only too clearly that National Socialism has the obliteration of regional culture as almost its first object, I think we may imagine that the world will be happier under the shield of the great United Nations in terms of the Dumbarton Oaks agreement.

6th Division Reduced in Size

Ottawa, Dec 9. (CP)—Posting of Maj.-Gen. Hardy Ganong, 54, of St. Stephen, N.B., former commander of the 6th Canadian Division of Home Defence draftees, to Newfoundland Command, the reorganization and reduction in size of the 6th Division were announced yesterday by defence headquarters.

Gen. Ganong will replace Maj.-Gen. P. E. Leclerc, 51, who is retiring from his Newfoundland Command to return to civilian life as sales executive of a Montreal flour mill.

Reorganization of the 6th Division follows the passage of an order-in-council last month making 16,000 Home Defence troops available for service overseas. Units of the Division, including Home Defence troops, were among forces sent to Kiska in 1943.

The division reorganization is in line with the government's conscription policy, under which experienced infantry troops have been withdrawn and sent to concentration areas in Eastern Canada. It was announced earlier that Atlantic command would be disbanded and its responsibilities turned over to military districts at Quebec, Saint John, N.B., and Halifax.

Reports that Pacific Command, to which the 6th Division is attached soon would revert to its pre-war status of a military district were apparently premature since yesterday's headquarters announcement said no "immediate" change was contemplated.

Ex-Queen of Seas Now 100 Years Old

In the land-locked peace of Sparrow Cove, Port Stanley, in the Falkland Islands, reposes in dignified retirement after many vicissitudes and threats to her existence, a great lady of the seas, who has passed the century mark. She is the Great Britain. At the time of her launching at Bristol in 1843, she was the largest ship in the world and considered a marvel of engineering.

The occasion of her anniversary has served to recall her hectic career by a writer in P.L.A., the Port of London Authority monthly.

A century ago, he says, there were very few ships of over 1,000 tons and the Great Britain, of nearly 3,500 tons, was a "mammoth" vessel, "gigantic," a "Titan among the minnows." Also, she was one of the earliest vessels to be made of iron, and one of the first to be driven by a propeller. In fact, she had been originally designed in 1838 by the famous engineer Brunel as a paddle-steamer for the Atlantic Service of the Great Western Steamship Company, and had actually been re-designed during construction for screw propulsion.

Results Far-Reaching

This decision was to have far-reaching results, for the Admiralty were subsequently so impressed by the ship's performance that they took the daring step of experimenting with the propeller in naval construction, a contribution to British sea-power of which the old ship is still particularly proud. Alteration to the dock in which she was completed caused delays and it was not until early in 1845 that she put to sea and sailed around the south coast of London. Here she was inspected by the young Queen Victoria, who was very impressed with the sixty-four staterooms, boudoirs, the music room and 1,200 yards of scarlet and purple carpet.

The Great Britain, as a six-masted, one-funnel ship, sailed from Liverpool on her maiden voyage to New York on July 26, 1845, and is believed to have made the passage in fifteen days, being the first iron-built, screw-driven ship to cross the Atlantic. Her Atlantic career was not very long or successful. On the night of September 22, 1846, the Great Britain, betrayed by the presence of a new unnotified light on the coast and an unusual "set" in the southwest gale, ran ashore in Dundrum Bay, on the northeast coast of Ireland. Brunel rescued her and she was towed to the Mersey.

Long in Australian Trade

Eventually the Great Western Company sold her for £18,000 to get rid of her, and she was refitted for the Australian emigrant trade.

She sailed for Melbourne in 1852 which 630 passengers and £1,000,000 in gold and silver specie, the first of thirty-two such voyages over a period of twenty-five years, only interrupted by trooping service during the Crimean War and the Indian Mutiny.

In 1875 the old ship was laid up for sale. She was bought in 1881 and transformed into a sailing vessel.

In February, 1886, she started from Penarth for Panama with a cargo of coal but never arrived there as she ran into a gale off the Horn and was badly damaged. She ran for Stanley, and there on May 25 was surveyed, condemned and sold for a hulk.

Her sailing days were over, but not her career. For another forty-seven years until 1933 she was used by the Falkland Islands Company for storing wool and coal. Then in 1933 she had regretfully to be abandoned. For three more years she lay at anchor at her old moorings awaiting her fate. In 1936 she was condemned to be towed out to sea and sunk, but was reprieved, and in 1937 was taken to honorable retirement in Sparrow Cove.

FACING HARD CHRISTMAS

London, Dec. 11 (CP) — Germany is facing its "hardest, grimmest Christmas," the German Transocean agency said last night, and for Berlin and other big cities "there is no Christmas spirit, no Christmas trees, no decorations and presents will be very rare."

Why the Germans Fight

(London Daily Mail)

I have been hearing from German prisoners why they think Hitler and his generals are continuing a war which is going so badly. The answers fall into these categories.

The first, a very large category, includes those who really do believe in a conclusive secret weapon.

They think they are fighting for time for the scientists to complete their researches and their tests. The V-1 and V-2 are proof that the German scientists can produce new things. It is worth giving them another chance.

The second is a much subtler version of this and usually it is simply hinted at.

It is intimated that certain preparations, scientific and otherwise, must be completed and hidden away.

Then Germany will get back her men who are now prisoners and repair her cities without fear of bombs. Thereafter the new secrets will be produced and the next war will be won.

What they are fighting for now is simply time to make those preparations.

The third group simply says that Germany is fighting because that is all she can do. It is senseless to surrender if surrender means organized extirpation. If Germany must go under, let her go under in a blaze of pride and glory, not in a meek capitulation.

Count Carlo Sporza Speaks From Italy

Rome, Dec. 11 (AP) — Count Carlo Sforza declared today he abandoned a pledge given the Allies to support Marshal Pietro Badoglio because the former premier was unable "to revive a military spirit" and because under his regime a new form of Fascism was being created in Italy.

In an interview, Sforza, who is vigorously opposed by Britain for any prominent place in a new Italian government, said he had given the pledge "in order to overcome certain oppositions raised from abroad to my return to Italy."

Commenting on Prime Minister Churchill's statements in the House of Commons yesterday, Sforza asserted, "It was my sacred duty to oppose Badoglio, which I did, not with 'intrigues' but with an open fight during which all the nation was with me."

Aviation WAS GEARED TO COMMERCE

About 1926 an era of great expansion began in the aviation industry on this continent. During the following eight years, networks of airlines spread over North and South America.

Nickel Steels, because of their superior strength and toughness, were used for crankshafts, connecting rods, propeller shafts, gears and other vital parts of the new airplane engines. Other Nickel alloys were used to give longer service life at high temperatures when exposed to corrosive exhaust fumes.

The Canadian Nickel industry through its research laboratories and rolling mills, gave every possible assistance to the aviation industry. Thus another new market was developed to help take the place of war markets wiped out in 1918.

Today Canadian Nickel is again diverted to war purposes, and again the industry looks to the future with confidence. Plans are ready to develop and expand old and new peacetime markets, so that the Nickel industry may continue, through its own initiative and enterprise, to make still greater contributions to Canada's welfare.

Detroit's Win Over Boston Puts Red Wings in Tie For Second Place With the Leafs

Bruins Salvage Even Split Over Weekend by Defeating Toronto

By The Canadian Press

Detroit Red Wings, featuring the brother act of Modere and Eddie Bruneteau, last night emerged as standout candidates for Montreal Canadiens' leading role in the National Hockey League by subduing Boston Bruins 7-6 at Detroit.

Victory put Jack Adams' men in a second-place tie with Toronto Maple Leafs, who dropped a 5-3 decision to Boston Saturday, and only three points off the pace of Canadiens, idle during the week-end. The Detroiters have a game in hand over both rivals.

Chicago Black Hawks and New York Rangers got nowhere in their fifth-place argument by playing a 1-1 draw at New York.

The Bruneteau combination provided more than half the Detroit momentum in a see-saw battle, with veteran Mud picking up two goals and two assists and younger brother Eddie, recruited from the Allan Cup champion Quebec Aces, accounting for another pair of scores.

Rookie Steve Wochy fired the decisive shot at 15:39 of the third after his mates had wiped out an early 2-0 Bruin lead. Wochy's goal gave Wings a 7-5 edge, that yielded only one score, Bill Cowley's unassisted effort, to a last-ditch Boston assault. Cowley also registered two assists to regain first place in the league scoring race by three points over Toe Blake of Montreal.

Other Boston scorers were Art Jackson, Bill Jennings, Herb Cain, Armand Gaudreault and Fernand Gladu, while Carl Liscombe and Joe Carveth completed the Detroit scoring.

Bennett Shows Well

Bruins, backed by the superlative netminding of rookie Harvey Bennett, exploited their breaks to earn Saturday's victory over Toronto. Jennings and Gaudreault led the offensive with two goals each.

Pat Egan, burly Boston defenceman, gave the Bruins a lead they never relinquished, when he broke through for the only first-period goal. Jennings made it 2-0 early in the second before Mel Hill put Leafs in the game on a solo dash. Gaudreault and Jack McLean matched goals to leave Bruins ahead 3-2 at the end of the period, and in the third Nick Metz sandwiched Toronto's final score between Jennings' and Gaudreault's second tallies.

Rangers and Hawks put on an uninspiring exhibition for 14,124 Manhattan fans, struggling through nearly 30 minutes of scoreless hockey after Ab Demarco equalized a first-period score by Chicago's Fido Purpur to create the 1-1 deadlock.

CATARACTS SECOND

Shawinigan Falls, Que., Dec. 11—(CP)—Shawinigan Cataracts yesterday edged out Cornwall Cookies 2-1 and thus took second place in the inter-provincial hockey league standings.

H. Carnegie and Laframboise scored Shawinigan's two points in the first period, while Proulx shot Cornwall's goal in the second stanza. The final frame went scoreless for all.

CAPITALS HOLD 4-POINT LEAD OVER PITTSBURGH

Buffalo Bisons Also Retain Top Position in East Division of A.H.L.

By The Canadian Press

Indianapolis Capitals, with a 6-1 victory on home ice over Hershey Bears Sunday following a 2-2 draw with Pittsburgh Hornets Saturday, took a four-point lead over Hornets in the western division of the American Hockey League.

Standings in the eastern division held unchanged as each team won one of its week-end games. First-place Buffalo Bisons, at home to St. Louis Sunday, handed Flyers a 7-1 defeat while at Providence the Reds just edged out Pittsburgh 5-4 after leading by five goals at the middle of the second period. Second-place Hershey Bears won their first victory in four starts Saturday when they shut out Providence 5-0 at Hershey.

In the third game Saturday Cleveland Barons defeated St. Louis 5-2 at Cleveland.

At Indianapolis the Capitals piled up a five-goal lead before Bill Warwick notched up the Bears' only counter early in the third period. Playing coach Johnny Sorrell and winger Tony Bukovich each scored twice for Capitals while Bill Thomson and Pete Leswick accounted for one goal each.

At Buffalo, St. Louis' lone goal, their first against Bisons this season, was credited to Red Doran, though it was carried into the cage by Art Giroux. It came midway in the third period after Bisons had piled up seven, all by different players. Scorers for Buffalo were Gordon Davidson, Roger Leger, Paul Mundrick, George Boothman, George Pargeter, Len Haldersoh and Kenny Kilrea.

Jack Lavoie starred for the Reds at Providence, accounting for two goals as they piled up a five-goal start over Pittsburgh. Toward the end of the second period Dede Klein and Chuck Shannon counted for Hornets and in the third Doc Prentice and Jimmy Jamieson added two more to leave Reds with a one goal margin.

At Pittsburgh Saturday Tony Hemmerling and Johnny Mahaffy gave Hornets the lead in the first period and Tony Bukovich came back with one for Indianapolis. Pete Leswick tucked in the goal for Indianapolis that tied the count in the last frame.

Ross Knowles started the scoring early in the first period in the game at Hershey. After that Providence held the Bears until well into the third, when Hershey went on a scoring rampage, driving in four goals in less than three minutes.

In the Saturday game at Cleveland, Barons had the lead all the way, piling up three goals in the first period and two in the third before St. Louis got in their two.

New York, Dec. 11 — (AP)—Suggestion for the major league magnates who will be meeting here for the next few days (with an assist for minors): since Judge Landis insisted that he wanted no statues and memorials and since his son, Col. Reed Landis, has suggested that the money should be devoted to developing boys' baseball, how about organizing and helping to support "Landis Leagues" for kids? . . . The minors already have proposed some good plans for helping high school baseball, but that won't keep the kids going through the summer...

Cincinnati's Ray Mueller has picked up 12 pounds since he caught his 217th consecutive ball game at the end of the season. Now he's eager to start again after George Gibson's mark of 433 straight.

ST. CATHARINES JUNIORS IN TIE FOR FIRST PLACE

Earn Position by Defeating Marlboros on Toronto Ice

By The Canadian Press

St. Catharines Falcons went into a first-place tie with Toronto St. Michael's, each with a record of 5 wins and no losses, when they worked out a 4-2 victory against the luckless Marlboros Saturday on Toronto ice. In the other half of the Gardens' double header, Young Rangers trounced Port Colborne Recreationists for the second time this season, emerging with a 5-1 decision, and the winners now stand on even terms for third spot in the OHA junior "A" race with Galt Red Wings who succumbed to Generals 5-4 at Oshawa Saturday night.

The Falcons won their tilt with Marlies in the third period by overcoming a two-goal deficit with a four-counter splurge, with Smelle counting two tallies and one assist and McMurdy and Edwards notching one apiece. Young Rangers scored twice in the first stanza against Port Colborne and Cunningham found the net for Recreationists for the only sinker of the second frame. Young Rangers ran in three more in the third to make it 5-1, with Dewsbury getting the last two in succession.

Galt led Generals 2-1 in the initial period at Oshawa but the Memorial Cup champions went ahead in the second on a brace of markers while the rivals split even in the final session with two each. Babando of Galt was the ace sniper of this rugged engagement with three goals, Bill Curik earning a single. Scorers for Oshawa were Sullivan, Taggart, Denny, Petsura and Gallagher. Petsura also helped his individual record with two assists.

What's Doing in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Plans for international games with Canadian universities were dealt with in a discussion of the post-war program Saturday at the 62nd annual meeting of the U. S. Intercollegiate Lacrosse Association at New York. Field lacrosse with 10-man teams is played in the States and the adoption of box lacrosse after the war was suggested.

Because of his poor showing in a bout in England Nov. 15, Danny Webb, Montreal Negro yesterday was suspended for two months by the British Boxing Board of Control and his purse for the fight was ordered confiscated. Similar action was taken against his opponent, Kid Tanner of British Guiana.

Wally Stanowski will return to Winnipeg Tuesday with his family and won't be back with Toronto Maple Leafs until he "is free of all military obligations," Coach Hap Day of the Toronto National Hockey League team said yesterday. Stanowski was not in the Toronto lineup for the game with Boston Saturday night.

A new high of 319 team entries in the Toronto Hockey League was reached in the 1943-44 season it was reported at the annual meeting Saturday. It is expected the record will be exceeded this year. Guest speaker F. S. (Dinty) Moore of Port Colborne, president of the Ontario Hockey Association, stresses the need for parental interest in boys' sport. He suggested establishment in Canada of large outdoor artificial ice rinks similar to those in pre-war Europe.

Carding a 69 in the last round for a tournament total of 274, Staff Sgt. Dutch Harrison of Wright Field, O., scored a one-stroke victory over Henry Picard of Harrisburg, Pa., to win the $2,500 first prize Sunday in the Miami Open. Johnny Revolta of Evanston, Ill., was third with 276.

The executive of the Ontario Amateur Baseball Association, in session at St. Catharines Saturday, proposed standardization of planned community centres to accommodate regulation-size playing courts and made preliminary arrangements for season-end playoffs. Toronto and Windsor will compete in the senior series with Merritton Hayes, Ontario and Canadian titleholders.

FIRST OLYMPIC GAMES WANTED BY LONDON, ENG.

None of Major Stadiums Have Been Damaged Greatly by War

By HAROLD CLAASSEN
(Associated Press Sport Writer.)

Atlantic City, N.J., Dec. 11 (AP)—Col. Evan Hunter of the British army and Secretary of the British Olympic Association, has asked the delegates to the 56th annual A.A.U. convention to support London's bid for the first post-war Olympic games.

"London has been battered and shoved about a bit in the blitz and during the more recent robot bombings but from the information I have, none of our major stadiums have been damaged greatly and we could be host to the games with a minimum of effort," he said.

He pointed out that the United States would find it less difficult to finance a jaunt to London for its athletics than the war-torn countries of Europe would in finding the cash for a trip across the Atlantic.

Hunter spoke just before the delegates closed their sessions yesterday, many of them heading to New York where the Sports Federation meets tonight.

The U.S.A.S.F. is the successor to the American Olympic Association and is the organization in charge of U.S. participation in the Olympic and Pan-American games. This will be its first meeting since 1941 when plans were made for the 1942 Pan-American carnival at Buenos Aires, dropped because of the war.

Brig.-Gen. William C. Rose of the War Manpower Commission opposed Hunter's London suggestion and urged the games be held in Washington, where it has been proposed to build a huge stadium as a war memorial.

BOOST IN DRAFT PRICE LIKELY TO BE REJECTED

Baseball May be Ruled by Three - Man Advisory Council

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sport Writer.)

New York, Dec. 11 (AP) — The Major-Minor League annual meeting opened here today and the news was passed by word of mouth that the big leagues probably will reject the Minor Leagues-approved boost in draft and waiver prices.

No official would permit himself to be quoted, but an administrative source indicated that the amendment to increase the waiver price by 33 1-3 per cent would be turned down by the Majors as well as the amendment to add territorial protection for the Minors from threats of invasion by Major League clubs.

Meantime a poll of a majority of big league club-owners indicated the game will be ruled by a three-man advisory council comprised of Ford Frick, National League President; Will Harridge, American League prexy; and Leslie M. O'Connor, Secretary to the late Commissioner K. M. Landis.

Without exception each of the magnates interviewed agreed this would be the best solution until after the war, or a least for a period of one year.

Clark Griffith, on the other hand, stated that he favored the choosing of a successor to Judge Landis immediately. The Washington owner sprang a surprise when he intimated that he would ask for only 35 night games for 1945 instead of an unlimited arclight schedule. This is seen as a sort of compromise with night ball opponents who appear determined to limit each club to 14 night games this season.

The majors also were expected to discuss the post-war problems involving high school baseball and promotional work with emphasis on the improvement of umpire standings.

CASUAL COMMENT by K.J.C.

A couple of feudists, meeting in a feud district, one asked the other:

First Feudist — Look here, Bill, what did you-all shoot at we-uns fer? I ain't got no quarrel with you-all.

Second Feudist—You-all had a feud with Ben Bottomley, didn't you?

First Feudist—Yes, but Ben's dead.

Second Feudist—Well, I'm his executor.

Attention, Mr. Steer:

Fred Russell, sports editor and columnist of The Nashville Banner, is the author of a new book, "I'll Go Quietly," a collection of various articles he has written throughout the years. Some time in the future we'll devote more space to some of the more amusing tales he has to tell. At the moment, though, we are more interested in his account of the settling on eighteen holes as the proper distance for a golf course. Maybe it isn't new. But it is in this corner.

It seems that the original golf courses in Scotland, circa 1858, varied considerably. Some had only seven holes, others thirteen, still others fifteen, while classic St. Andrews itself had twenty-two. So the board at St. Andrews met to arrive at some uniform figure. After long discussion an aged Scot spoke up.

"Well," he said, "you gentlemen have been considering this situation for many hours and I have been hoping that you would decide along lines agreeable to me without any insistence on my part. I see, however, that I must speak for myself.

"As you gentlemen know, it has been my custom to start out for a game of golf with a full bottle of pure Scotch whisky in my bag — not, you understand, for any reason except that the inclemency of our local climate makes it expedient for me to have a small medicinal nip on each tee.

"Now, gentlemen, I have here a reasonably small glass which contains about an ounce and a half when not filled so full that a drop may escape. Naturally, I find it pleasant to play golf so long as there is a drink left in the bottle. On the other hand, it would be unhealthy for me to continue to play when the bottle is exhausted."

More on Golf:

Although it is a little chilly for divot digging, here is another golf yarn that's going around the sports columns:

According to "Jolly Cholly" Grimm of the Chicago Cubs, the fun-loving Cotton Tierney was the originator of at least one golfing practice which is not ordinarily recommended. The two of them did considerable divot-digging in their spare time and there was a stream across one fairway that Tierney never was able to negotiate even once. Finally he made it on his first shot. As they crossed the bridge over the water hazard, Cotton spilled forth a dozen new balls into the stream with the slightly daffy remark, "I owe you those."

Remember when:

Joe Louis was awarded the Edward J. Neil Memorial Trophy as the man who did the most for sport in 1941. The Boxing Writers' Association of New York voted the trophy by acclamation for the first time in the four years it was awarded.

Grid Squads Travel:

While the Cubs, White Sox, Pirates and Athletics were ordered to abandon their training camps in California and do their spring conditioning within a hundred miles or so of their home bases, H. G. Salsinger, sports editor of the Detroit News, points out the professional football Washington Redskins have continued to do their training at San Diego, Calif., moving a large squad from the Atlantic seaboard to the Pacific seaboard.

Salsinger also reviews the 1944 collegiate football schedule to show how gridiron groups, larger than baseball squads, tour the country, while major league ball clubs are restricted to training sites north of the Potomac and Ohio rivers and east of the Mississippi. Duke University, for example, had games at Philadelphia, Baltimore and New York, each calling for long trips; University of Oklahoma played 8 of its ten games away from home, University of Arkansas eight of 11, Presbyterian College of Clinton, S. C., only one of eight at home, with numerous others having similar schedules that called for large groups to make long journeys.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 354

The Kibitzer

The eternal cry single in bridge is the luck that laughs at science. No matter how accurate you are, luck can punch holes in your think-tank. And it is just as likely to be for you as against you.

This deal could tell a story about luck and science flirting with a slam. Nor, in this case, would they live happily ever after.

The bidding would start like this:

SOUTH	NORTH
1 H	2 C
2 H	3 H

By this time, south has learned that north has adequate support for a rebiddable heart suit and four tricks. With his own seven, south can see 11 tricks so far.

The contract should be four hearts. But a south with slamitis might bid four no-trump to learn how many aces and kings his partner holds. With the reply he gets, he may stretch to six hearts.

The opening lead by west is the spade queen. To make a slam, south must not lose more than one trick. But when dummy goes down, he sees chances of losing a trump trick and a diamond trick.

South takes the first trick with the king of spades and leads a small trump. Dummy wins with the heart ace and returns the jack. East does not cover and declarer successfully finesses.

Right there, west shows out of trumps. So east must have the queen and another trump. Which looks as if east must win a trump trick. That is, unless declarer is clever enough to trap east.

Seven more tricks are taken in this order: Spade ace, club king, trump a spade, club ace, trump the last dummy spade, ace and king of diamonds.

By this time, south has left the K 10 of trumps and a small diamond. East has left the Q 8 of trumps; also a diamond or club.

The small diamond is now led by south and it makes no difference whether it is taken by west or east. By this time east has left nothing but two trumps and must play before south does.

East is smothered into playing a trump at the 12 trick. It leaves him gasping like a fish.

BASKETBALL

The Aces played Ironmen in the "Y" Employed Boys' basketball league over the weekend by taking both ends of a doubleheader of basketball. The Aces triumphed 12 to 6 over the Sharks and then turned around and beat the Just Us quintette 16 to 4.

In the opening game Captain R. Clair and T. Buchanan scored three baskets each for the entire Aces' 12 points, while G. Ward, J. Boag and J. Wright sank single baskets for the Sharks. In the second game Clair scored two baskets for the Aces with D. Smith, T. Buchanan and M. Burke getting one each. T. Mossip was the other Ace player. J. Ethier and D. Boxford scored single baskets for the Just Us squad.

"Y" Secretary J. E. Short announced today the Employed Boys' Brotherhood would hold its annual Christmas party at the Y.M.C.A. on Thursday, December 28th.

2 British Fleets Ready for Action In Eastern Waters

London, Dec. 11 (CP)—A great new British Pacific naval command in addition to the present Far Eastern Fleet has been created to join in the all-out offensive to bring Japan to its knees, the Admiralty disclosed last night.

An official announcement, reflecting Prime Minister Churchill's promise that Britain would send the greatest possible forces to the Orient to help defeat Japan, said the fleet will be commanded by Admiral Sir Bruce A. Fraser, who since August has been Commander-in-Chief of the Far Eastern Fleet.

Simultaneously it was disclosed that the Far Eastern Fleet will be centred in the Indian Ocean as the East Indies station, a command which lapsed when the Japanese overran the Malayan Peninsula and captured Singapore. This fleet will be commanded by Vice-Admiral Sir Arthur J. Power, who had been Fraser.

Under the new set-up it was believed that Admiral Fraser's fleet would operate under command of Admiral Nimitz in the Central Pacific and under Gen. MacArthur in the Southwest Pacific, as strategy demands.

The East Indies station would supply floating power to support Admiral Mountbatten's advance back into lower Burma and Malaya.

Rear Admiral C. S. Daniel, who won the D.S.O. for his anti-submarine work early in the war, has been made Vice-Admiral and placed in charge of administration of the new British Pacific fleet.

A Good Start:

The Sporting News comes up with a Judge Landis story we'd never heard . . . When the major league club owners met to install him as Commissioner in 1921, the judge was missing . . . A courier finally located him watching a kid game on a vacant lot . . . When Landis finally reached the meeting, he apologized: "Sorry, gentlemen. I came upon the opening game of the season in a vacant cow pasture and I just HAD to stop and look at it."

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma had her Gils uniform on today, Gils standing for Give Lifts to Servicemen and being ma and 5 other ladies, and after supper she said to pop, My, William, it's gastly to think of a poor sensitive boy snatched into the hubbub and turmoil and savegery of war and forced to commit practical atrocities even in a just cause.

Now don't worry, I hardly think there's much chance of their calling on me at my age, pop said and ma said, Dont be silly, I was thinking of a boy I gave a lift to this afternoon. He was one of these shy, modest types who make you think of retiring violets among cactuses, and the way he sat there sighing to himself I knew he was brooding over the terrible things he had been forced to do against his own shrinking nature. So I thought I'd better boost his morale a little by pointing out to him that in time of war we're all part of a big relentless machine and sometimes we are compelled to perform actions for the common good even though they go against our finer civilian grain. And I reminded him that no matter what he was forced to do to others they'd do it to him if they had the chance. And in a way it seems that's where I struck the nail right on its proper head, ma said.

How do you mean, in a way? pop said, and ma said, Well, to quote his exact words, he said, "Lady, that's just what I'm up against. I can dish it out but I can't take it." I didn't expect such a slangy remark from him, but the strange part was, he meant it litterly. It seems he had acute stummick trouble that unfitted him for combat duty, so he was forced to work in the mess hall and dish out overflowing portions of food that he himself couldn't eat a mouthful of, and then watch all those healthy young wolves gobble it down and clammer for more. So you see I was pretty right, ma said.

Yee gods, pop said.

Saying it from in back of the sporting page.

Russo-French Mutual Assistance Treaty Is Signed

Moscow, Dec. 11 (AP) — France's relations with Soviet Russia were cemented today with a new treaty of alliance and mutual assistance negotiated by Gen. De Gaulle as the crowning achievement of his 16-day visit to Moscow.

The pact, paralleling a 20-year Alliance between Britain and Russia was announced last night several hours after the French leader had boarded a special train en route to Baku where he will take a plane back to Paris.

While the text of the treaty was not immediately released, an official announcement said both governments had affirmed their intention to fight on together until "complete victory" over Germany is achieved. They also expressed their determination to take jointly all measures necessary to safeguard Europe against future aggression.

Gen. De Gaulle issued a short statement saying:

"I am sure the days we have spent here will leave a mark in the history of this war, and I believe, too, they will leave a mark in the peace for the good of all men. Long live Soviet Russia."

The treaty was signed in the Kremlin early yesterday, following an all-night session which began with a formal banquet at which the French and Russians were joined by British and United States diplomatic and military representatives.

Throughout the negotiations the western Allies were kept informed of developments, and there were indications the pact was concluded within the framework of the ties binding the United Nations.

Frankford

Frankford.—The members of the Victory group held their final meeting for 1944 at the house of Mrs. Smith Osterhout the convener. The meeting opened with the singing of a Christmas hymn. Readings were given by Mrs. Harry Montgomery, Mrs. L. M. Coutts, Mrs. Roy Osterhout, Mrs. L. Hanna, Mrs Harold Terry and Mrs. G. W Dickson. A bean bag contest was a lot of fun for both those taking part and the onlookers. Misses Shirley King and Doreen Osterhout sang "A White Christmas". Mrs. Clapp was the winner in a newspaper stunt and an island contest. Mrs. Harold Morrow entertained with a piano solo. A Canadian City contest was won by Mrs. R. Osterhout and in a word contest Mrs. C. Bennett was lucky.

At the close of the program Mrs. Dickson spoke a few words of appreciation of the work Mrs. Osterhout has done in her year as convener and Mrs. H. Montgomery presented her with a wall plaque on behalf of her group. Mrs. Osterhout was taken very much by surprised and spoke briefly thanking the ladies for the lovely gift. A lunch was served by the ladies and a social hour brought to a close a delightful evening as well as a profitable year's work.

The neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Sandy Morris on the ninth of Murray gathered at their home on Wednesday evening to spend a little time with them before their departure from the community. A short program was put on by the school children. Mrs. Gordon Chase read an address presenting Mr. and Mrs. Morris with a magazine stand and a picture. Refreshments were served and the singing of the National Anthem closed the program.

The Frankford L.O.L. No. 240 held its annual banquet in the lodge rooms on Thursday. The members' families and the members of the ladies' lodge were guests and a chicken supper was served. Mr. Geo. Stricker, Worshipful Master, was chairman for a short program, the main feature of which was an address by Rev. H. H. Lackey. Misses Marion Free and Margaret Bufelt played instrumental solos and Misses Margaret Bufelt and Joan Terry gave an instrumental duet. Miss L. Frost sang a solo accompanying herself on the guitar.

The W.A. Group with Mrs. Harry Slingerland as convener sponsored a bazaar in Rose Lowery Hall on Thursday afternoon. Fancy work, home cooking and farm produce were on display in large quantities. Tea was served by the ladies during the afternoon with large varieties of cookies and sandwiches to tempt one's palate. While the guests were enjoying their tea, piano music was furnished by Mrs. S. Martin.

The efforts of the ladies were crowned with success, as almost everything offered for sale was disposed of before the time of closing.

Mrs. Joe Carr, Mrs. G. Plumpton and Mrs. Floyd Ketcheson spent a couple of days last week in Toronto and attended the Ice-Capades.

CHAPTER TEN.

The twins had arrived impromptu at the Ingersoll house in town upon an occasion when Loveday and Larry had gone to his mother for a family dinner just before Betty-Lou's wedding. This Loveday considered a great piece of luck; she could not be moved for ten days of unexpected rest and luxury for her. Larry's mother, who had more than once expressed sharp disapproval of the procedure of having a baby at all, under the circumstances, had been more or less forced into the role of nurse and had sustained it with great spirit.

Later when Loveday, Larry, the big baby boy, and the two ecstatically happy small girls had found themselves back in the Buckingham Way cottage, rejoicing so heartily in the reunion that details like a hospital bill for more than one hundred dollars and the general disintegration of the house that had stood empty for three months bothered them not at all.

And then Larry quit his job. It was for the usual good reasons, but good reasons did not pay the milk bill or buy cotton for baby rompers. There was an interval of illness and discouragement, and then he got another job in a branch agency.

The parent firm, however, in Bayonne, New Jersey, suddenly went into liquidation, and Larry was unemployed again. Loveday put her pride in her pocket and wrote to Warren St. George for advice. He had written her shortly after her marriage that, owing to the fortunate handling of her small estate, he could continue the monthly allowance longer than they had at first thought, and it had gone on without interruption. Her suggestion to enlarge it to seventy-five dollars a month until the bills were paid he thought was sound, and he and Aunt Laura were adding a hundred this particular month on their own account, always regarding Loveday as one of their children and always affectionately hers.

The spirit of the letter did as much for her as had the miraculous comfort of paying bills.

But when months went by and Larry obtained no regular work she would not write the St. Georges. She had sensed in their last brief letter that her silence about her own problems had pleased them, had made them respect her. She would not jeopardize that respect again. There was no false pride in that. She had no real claim upon them.

She was genuinely grateful now when her queer old father-in-law took the factory bus to come out to se her and brought with him a sack of beans of his own picking. When Marge or Alma or Betty-Lou called and contributed a pound of butter or a marble cake Loveday never made any pretense that it was not welcome. In the fall, when the orchards all about were heaped with fruit that did not pay for the gathering, Loveday quite unashamedly took her small girls and a basket and went to collect her winter supply of apples and prunes. She never talked either of money or poverty with the neighboring women, or indeed with anyone, but thrift, down to the last spoonful of stew or the staled crust of bread, was forever in her mind. Under the great oak she had fenced off a little vegetable garden; she grew her own tomatoes and cabbage and corn, saw most of them blasted and destroyed by the sun because she could not afford to water them, and hoarded whatever was left without surprise or complaint.

But she had plans and she impressed them enthusiastically upon Larry whenever he grew despondent. Friends Haven would sell, they would have a dazzling sum of money, enough to buy a darling house somewhere with two bathrooms and a patio; enough to buy the neighboring house, too, and rent it, and thus be sure of an income for life. And if there was enough left they would buy an automobile agency for Larry.

"If we bought that first, Love, I'd make enough to buy the rest."

"No, no, the home first." Sometimes when, as today, the relentless rain beat upon the house and the level fields were spotted with pools, or in the burning summer when the ice cart was late and the milk bottles, even when standing up to their necks in a pail of water, were not cold enough to keep their contents sweet, Loveday mentally moved into the shady little cool house on a hill, with the fountain in its patio tinkling and the gas stove in its kitchen spotlessly white, and lived there for a while.

"What's Larry doing today?" Marge asked one day. Loveday, who had been dreaming over the string beans, looked up and answered briskly:

"Well, he has a plot today. There's a man in Merced who was talking about some job, and Jim Unger had to go to Merced today, so Larry went along to see this man."

"What sort of a job?"

"Foreman on a ranch up Gerber way. It sounds possible. A hundred a month, and you get a house and eggs and milk-all that."

"But Larry doesn't know a thing about ranching."

"No, but when you consider the men who do, you feel that he might pick it up easily.", Loveday would not be discouraged. "The trouble is," she went in hesitantly, "that Larry really wants to stand well with the community; he wants us proud of him. But whatever he tries just seems to fizzle out. So I feel—" Loveday stoped short and her face brightened into a smile as a small girl of three shyly opened the sitting room door and stood there in rumpled faded little pyjamas, with sleep-reddened cheeks and tousled gold hair.

"Mommy—" she began uncertainly.

"Yes, you can get up, darling, and Betsy, too!" Loveday reassured her. The small girl came over and leaned against her, still heavy with sleep, but according her aunt a shy smile. The baby broke into a vociferous jabbered welcome, and another small girl, the indistinguishable double of the first, also emerged from the sitting room and went to push her own tumbled curls against her mother's other arm.

"A man is coming to our house," said Betsy.

"Marc Villard! Oh, come in, Marc. How on earth did you find me?"

Too thoroughly delighted to think of the kitchen in which she must receive him, or the state of herself and the children, Loveday took his coat and umbrella, introduced him to Marge, and put him into a chair by the stove. His dark little monkey face beamed.

"Telephoned your husband's mother." Marc would show no confusion, for she was exhibiting none. "Here, which are you?" he asked one of the small girls. "Sit up here and look at my knife." Both twins crowded onto his knees.

"This is fine," said Marc. He went on comfortably to explain that a young friend who was still in medical school was doing a survey of the town, would be there for several days. Marc was going on to Palm Springs for a few weeks' rest and had offered to drive his friend down. "And I couldn't go through Bakersfield without hunting you up!"

"Oh, I should hope not! Tell me all the news."

She drank it all in eagerly. Fanny had a little girl; Nini was still flitting about heart whole and fancy free; the senior St. Georges were just the same. Rodney was not too happy in his father's law firm and was working for a commission in the navy.

"And Chris?" she could ask it without a change of color.

"He is working on a new play, I believe, somewhere on Long Island. You knew Merle was dead?"

Her look flashed amazement, shock.

"No!"

"Yes. They had no child, you know, in many years-seven or eight There was to be a child, but something went wrong. Flu, I think."

"This was when?"

"Just last week. It was terribly sudden. I only heard Sunday. Everyone feels terribly about it."

"I should think so!" Loveday's breath came quick and shallow.

"Dr. Villard looks like someone and I can't think who," Marge put in interestedly after a profound study of the visitor's face.

"I know who!" Loveday laughed. "Marc, there's a mistake somewhere, and this is certainly your little boy," she said, catching the grave, contentedly busy baby from the pen and sitting him on her knee. "I've been wondering," she went on, "Who Owen looked like. It's bothered me ever since he was born. And look!"

"Do we look alike, jeune homme?" Marc asked smiling.

"Oh, I see it," said Marge.

"Well, if he'll have brains like yours I think he will show good taste," Loveday said diplomatically. "The girls are like Larry-at least they're fairer than ever I was, and I think they're going to stay fair."

"They are beautiful children," Marc said.

"If I'd known you were coming I would have had them all cleaned up, and then you'd see that they really are! Larry," Loveday said, "is supposed to bring home something for supper, but he may forget. However, there's plenty of food if you'll stay."

"Ah, but I cannot! I must go now." Marge had made her farewells and gone off in her mud-spattered car, and now Marc could have a word with Loveday alone. "Why did you run away from us all my dear?" he asked affectionately, standing, looking up at her tallness.

"I was engaged to Larry, you know."

"And that was the reason they came home without you and we never saw you again?"

"They never told you?"

"Never. There was something more, then?"

"Something that seems silly enough to me now," she said, turning away and busily folding dry white undergarments at the table. "I had been a lonely girl, you know, growing up in the country with older people about me, and it was terribly important to me that the St. Georges liked me, that they made me one of the family. I was engaged to Larry; I loved Larry, but that didn't save me from Chris."

"From Chris!"

"Yes. I lost my head completely, but I didn't know what it meant—not eating and not sleeping and floating about on air all the time! His voice chilled me to the bone and then made my face burn—"

"You make me wish I was in love," Marc said as she paused.

"He went south, you remember, and we-Nini and Rod and you and I went down to visit him. You came back, but we stayed on for a few days."

"Of course I remember."

"It was there- on the terrace that last night—"

"Stars," the man put in understandingly with a smile.

"Stars and the sound of the ocean . ." Loveday said. "But I wanted to talk to Chris that night. But Nini knew why, and she came out—when Chris had moved his chair over to mine. I imagine that a good many fools of girls have experienced the charm of Christopher St. George. But to me it was the end of everything. I didn't sleep all night I wanted to die. And when we got to Bakersfield the next day my one thought was to escape."

"Your husband was very ill then, I remember?"

"Larry, yes. My being here helped him, and as soon as he was well enough we came here."

"To this house."

"Yes. We had loved each other a long time."

Larry rushed in. He had run the two blocks from the bus stop; he had no umbrella, but his coat collar was turned up and his shabby hat pulled down, and he answered her welcoming call with the statement that he wasn't wet. Loveday introduced the two men, and for a moment Marc came back into the kitchen.

"You'll stay for dinner, Doctor? Loveday'll scare us up something, won't you Love?"

"I've already tried to keep him." Loveday mentally opened a jar of home-preserved tomatoes and compounded a cream soup, poached the four eggs that had been intended for breakfast, and served them on a bed of string beans, adding coffee and jelly and biscuits.

"Stay, Marc, we'll feed you," she said.

But he would not stay. Larry looked at him intently in the garish light.

"Say, think he looks like the baby?" he demanded.

"Marge and I both saw it! You'll have to be his godfather, Marc, and let him call you 'Uncle Marc!'"

"But I should hope all your children would do that!" Marc protested wih his charming smile. "Tell me what I may send them, Please; for if you don't tell me I'll send something anyway."

"If sometime you would send them those disgusting dolls that are called 'Soppy Poppy' dolls their young hearts would go out to you in a manner I couldn't describe. But both exactly alike or there'll be trouble."

"Your boy I am going to send what I sent Fanny's little girl. A leather coach-open like a chair, you know, to push about."

Her eyes danced.

"Oh, Marc, we haven't anything like that! If you would, to take him to market, it would be wonderful!"

.Marc made careful notes in his little book. And quite simply he kissed her good-bye when he went away.

"He's nice," Larry said when he was gone.

Larry was tired and silent. The children were in bed and quiet before Loveday put before her husband a bowl of smoking soup with crusts floating in it.

"You're so damn kind," he said, beginning his meal.

"What's in this? Gosh it is good!"

"If I told you," she said, "you might leave me and the children once and for all. Dried peas, the ham bone I lifted from your Mother last Sunday, the crusts your daughters left upon their plates, three large onions donated by Mrs. O'Brien, whose cellar is full of them, and a spoonful of celery salt-oh yes! and a cupful of milk three days old!"

"Loveday," the man said, finishing his soup and pushing back his bowl, "I'll be darned if I can see how we can keep this up. If only that place at Indian Hill would sell," Larry muttered.

"I know. But the trouble is that the woods are full of those stately old wrecks," Loveday observed, and there's nothing much anyone can do with them. Larry" she added, somewhat timidly, "what if we went there to live?"

"My gosh, we can't even keep this place up! And what would I do? If I can't get a job here, where everybody knows me and my folks, how could I get one in a little jumping-off place like that?"

"You mightn't have to get a job. At least nobody would know what we were doing, and nobody could—could pity us!" Loveday's eyes glowed as the plan rapidly took shape in her mind. "There are fruit trees there, and we could plant vegetables and have chickens and perhaps take over what Bettencourt does. He makes it pay, somehow. And we'd have no rent, Larry."

"We'd have taxes. And we'd have that big barn of a place to keep warm." Larry's eyes remained gloomy and his voice was depressed.

"Well, old Wing Foo and Annie Lum made a living there, and Bettancourt can evidently pay the taxes and make something besides. And, Larry, there'd be lovely trees for the children to play under, and closets, and all Mother's old china and towels!"

"And everyone saying that I couldn't support my family!" He said it darkly, but she knew his every intonation, and he was weakening. "I'll be darned if I like the idea of having everyone there know that I'm a flop," he said, "and that I'm living off your place and on your money!"

"But not forever, Larry," she pleaded. "Only until you get into what you want to do!"

They moved on a hot March day when every fruit tree and acacia and hawthorn and lilac in Indian Hill was in riotous bloom. Plum and prune and apple blossoms lined the long road north, and the old village, when she entered it with her son heavily asleep in her lap and a drowsy little daughter pressing against her either side, seemed to Loveday to be shouting a welcome.

There had been rains; there were pools and floods and washout all along the way. But Friends Haven stood high above the town; only deep ruts through the garden and the churned black mud of the cowyard still spoke of winter. Everywhere else was spring.

200 Women Stage Riot, Clean Out Butter, Sugar Stock

Watertown, N. Y., Dec. 11 — (AP) — William Navarra, manager of a chain grocery, said Saturday nearly 200 women staged a two-hour riot and cleaned out his stock of butter and sugar, scarce throughout the U. S. at present.

Navarra said the disorders started late Friday when one woman ignored the half-pound customer allotment and emerged from a storeroom with two pounds of butter.

Others followed suit, many of them leaving without paying for their butter, Navarra reported. Those failing to get supplies fought the others. Some grabbed butter and sugar out of orders made up for delivery.

One woman was knocked into a crate of eggs, smashed 15 dozen. The only male customer grabbed some sugar and left.

Plans for Proposed Hospital Discussed at Public Meeting

Trenton (Special)—The public meeting held in the Town Hall on Friday evening in the interests of the Trenton Hospital Fund brought forth many points of view from those attending, but it was noted that at least a few of the preliminaries of the final campaign were settled.

With W. Chambers as chairman, one of the first points brought to mind was that the original name of Trenton General Hospital Fund has now been changed to "Trenton Memorial Hospital uFnd." This latter had been voiced by many recently as a fitting memorial to those who have made the supreme sacrifice in this war. Mr. Chambers pointed out that, though the Lions Club had been the original sponsors of the hospital, it was definitely a town project and must be given the supoprt of every citizen both in the town and in the surrounding district.

Postpone Organization.

Friday's meeting was originally called with the intention of organizing campaign groups within local service clubs, fraternal organizations and industries; and after much discussion it was decided that this should be done, but not before the beginning of the year.

Mr. Alan McNab moved that the Board of Directors, along with the Finance Committee, wait on the Town Council to see what their attitude is toward the hospital and what assistance the town might give to the project. His motion was seconded by Mr. N. J. McNair. All were in favor, but with the understanding that they wait until the first meeting of the new council, and that they take along with them representatives of various labor groups of the town.

Dr. E. A. McQuade spoke briefly on hospitalization, stating most physicians in Ontario in fact in Canada, were very much in favor of Health Insurance. He said though many citizens are now paying on these plans they are unable to get hospital accommodation when needed, solely because of the shortage of hospitals. He pointed out that the site chosen by the hospital Board, at the base of Mount Pelion, is ideal for a hospital and that he had been assured by prominent outside physicians that Trenton would not lack for surgeons once their hospital had been erected.

Would Be Decided Asset.

A letter was read from Dr. Gordon Johnson, who was unable to be present, stating he felt certain a hospital would be a decided asset to Trenton and the community as the shortage of beds now existing in nearby hospitals was likely to persist indefinitely as Health Insurance increased.

W. H. Ireland, Chairman of the Hospital Board, pointed out that the directors had interviewed Dr. Vivian, Minister of Health, also local members of parliament, and although they did not get definite assurance, they were later advised that regulations will in all probability be passed providing assistance from the government for the building of a hospital.

Speaking of the site chosen for the hospital J. J. Macnab, local contractor, said it had been rumored that Trenton's water supply would not be sufficient to provide adequate water pressure to the hospital on that site. Mr. Nacnab challenged this statement and said he was confident this could be done. While on the subject he said, too, he understood the Water Department of the Trenton Public Utilities had a surplus of cash on hand, some of which might easily be turned over to the Hospital Fund if the proper authorities were approached, as the profits from the Water Department definitely belonged to the people. He suggested canvassing there for $10,000.

Plan 54-Bed Institution.

The original plan of a 54-bed hospital at a maximum cost of $150,000 fully equipped to be built after the war, is still the objective, though some argued in favor of starting on a much smaller scale. (A 54-bed hospital is the smallest under which a school of nursing may be conducted). This was settled on a motion from O. G. Larry and seconded by George Woods. This motion was made after George Hardy a member of the Hospital Board pointed out that this was the original objective and that as far as he knew nothing had been done to change it up to the present time.

$42,000 Has Been Raised.

$42,000 of this objective has already been raised and Mr. Hardy pointed out that this fund was simply held in the Bank, in Trust, and that, in the event of a hospital not being built, every cent would be refunded to its original donors.

Mr. Larry moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Hardy for his untiring efforts in the collecting, and the motion was seconded by Mr. Ireland. Mr. Chambers pointed out that Mr. Hardy had been responsible for more than twenty per cent of the amount already collected.

Two thoughts which should give much concern to the merchants and others in the town were brought forth by one of the speakers at Friday's meeting. He pointed out that his observation had been that many who journeyed to Belleville to visit relatives and friends in hospital (and these people were extremely numerous) stayed on in that city for several hours shopping, spending money which might otherwise be spent in Trenton had it not been necessary for them to visit Belleville Hospital.

The other point was concerning a town grant. He pointed out that if the 1945 council was not in favor of giving the hospital a grant, it might be possible to replace them the following year with others who were more in line with seeing the town grow to the extent of having a hospital of its own.

Every speaker voiced the opinion that no greater memorial could be made to those gallant heroes of this war than the erection of a hospital for the future needs of their families.

British Defeat Several German Counter-Attacks

Rome, Dec. 11 — (AP) — Large-scale German counter-attacks against the British 8th Army bridgehead west of the Lamone river on the approaches to Faenza have been defeated decisively, Allied headquarters announced today.

The fiercest of these counter-thrusts was directed at gaining a foothold on the ridge running southwest from San Prospero to Pideura, west of Faenza. Both San Prospero and Pideura had been captured by 8th Army troops in bloody slugging matches.

The Germans fought desperately to prevent the inevitable encirclement of Faenza, stronghold on the Bologna-Rimini highway. They threw the crack 90th Panzer Grenadiers into the assault, backed up by tanks and self-propelled guns.

There was a fierce struggle south of Celle, which is less than two miles west of Faenza, and a mile south of the highway. British forces gave some ground but held at a vital road junction just south of the town.

There was bitter fighting on both sides of recently-won Castel Raniero, four miles southwest of Faenza.

Meanwhile, Italian patriots operating in the Adriatic coastal areas cleared German troops from Port Corsini, a vital centre for barge traffic bringing supplies for the enemy.

Russian Drive Through Hungary May Be One of Most Decisive of War

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(AP War Analyst)

Something to watch is that great Russian drive through the heart of Hungary, because it may easily develop shortly into one of the decisive engagements of the war and alter the complexion of the conflict in eastern Europe.

Naturally in appraising the value of this offensive, or any Allied offensive, we regard it from the standpoint of its value to the united effort to administer the coup de grace to Germany as quickly as possible. How then does the Hungarian battle fit into the picture?

Strategic Position of Hungary

We must remember that Hungary is one of the most important strategic centres in all Europe. The expansive Danubian basin through the centuries has been one of the main routes of invasion to Austria and central Europe — and that means to Germany.

The situation at this writing is that Budapest is more than half surrounded by Red forces which are close to the outskirts. The Nazi-controlled government has fled to Austria.

On the north the Russians have smashed up to the neighboring Czechoslovakian border, and are heading along the valley of the Danube towards Vienna. Southwest of Budapest they've reached the famous Lake Balaton, a mighty finger of water 50 miles long and 10 miles wide — which forms a natural defence for Austria, barring large gaps at either end.

Victory for the Russians at Lake Balaton would in effect turn the right flank of the whole vast German battle front in eastern Europe. Exploitation of this advantage by the Red forces would compel the enemy to pull back from Warsaw and the Vistula line to his own frontier. Then the battle of Balaton Lake looms as a momentous matter.

A break-through into Austria would be a catastrophe for Hitler, especially since a considerable portion of the Austrian population is said to be ready to revolt against him.

–THE WONDER YARN

YOU AND WE, of course, know of the remarkable qualities of the nylon hosiery previously available, but hosiery is only one of nylon's possible textile uses.

Ever since C-I-L's nylon plant at Kingston opened in 1942, its total output has gone into such war uses as parachute cords and canopies, glider tow ropes and other essential war materials. Meanwhile, many peacetime uses other than hosiery have indicated themselves to us.

These every day uses have become apparent because of the unique characteristics of nylon yarn. There is, for instance, its high strength and resistance to abrasion or wear. It dries quickly and preserves its original form and dimension. This extraordinary and hitherto unobtainable feature is what we call "permanent setting". That is, a peculiar chemical quality of nylon yarn permits a fabric made from it to be set to shape by the application of heat. The fabric will retain this form under all normal wearing and laundering conditions. Just what this promises to the ladies may well be imagined.

Again, because of its chemical nature, anything made from nylon is exceedingly unattractive to moths and highly resistant to mildew. The strength and elasticity of nylon enables it to be made into textile yarns of a fineness hitherto impracticable. This fine yarn will, in turn, after the war, make possible fabrics of previously unobtainable sheerness.

When nylon—child of chemical research—again becomes available for civilians, it will be released to the knitting and weaving manufacturers for a host of new and improved textile products.

Highway Traffic At Standstill Across Province

Snowfall of 11 Inches Blankets Quinte District

By The Canadian Press

All southern Ontario was held in the grip of one of the worst snowstorms in its history today. The storm apparently centred in Toronto and district, where the storm was the worst ever experienced and traffic was paralyzed by deep drifts.

Six deaths were reported in Toronto and Chief Coroner Smirle Lawson issued an urgent appeal to all persons over 50 years of age not to shovel snow and not to walk through the heavy drifts. Hospitals are jammed to overflowing and ambulances are unable to make trips because of the snow.

A broadcast appeal from Mayor Conboy asked all persons not engaged in essential industry to stay home from work. Department stores are closed — including Eaton's and Simpson's. It was the first time in the memory of employees who could be reached at the stores that they had closed because of weather conditions.

The Ontario Department of Highways announced that all highways in southern Ontario are impassable and appealed to motorists not to venture out on any trips.

Street car traffic in Toronto was reported to be 25 per cent normal. Schools are closed for the day. The Ontario government offices at Queen's Park closed at 11:30 a. m. after an announcement by Premier Drew who said everyone who came to work at the buildings should return home and help with shovelling snow. Milk deliveries were cancelled and bread deliveries also are not being made. An appeal was issued to people not to visit stores to buy milk unless they need it for babies.

Drifts to Continue During Night

There was little hope of relief for Toronto or other parts of Ontario. The Dominion Meteorological Bureau at Toronto announced that while the fall of snow could be expected to stop at about three p. m., a heavy gale would continue to pile it up in drifts until some time tomorrow morning.

At Hamilton police and fire services are curtailed and milk and bread deliveries cancelled. Transportation in the city and district generally are at a complete standstill. Drifts are as much as six feet deep. Schools are closed and only skeleton staffs are at work in offices and plants.

Hamilton milk distributors said they had only one day's supply of milk on hand and suggested the possibility of a shortage of fresh supplies from the country cannot be shipped to the city because of drifted highways. It will be a week, they estimated, before full supplies are available. Hamilton had two fire alarms shortly after ten a.m., but neither were serious.

All Southern Ontario Covered.

The heavy storm blanketed all of the southern part of the province. Kingston in Eastern Ontario reported that residents of nearby Wolfe Island are isolated because the ferry Wolfe Islander is tied up, because of heavy snow, high winds and poor visibility.

All roads leading to the village of Sharbot Lake near Kingston are blocked. Rural roads are impassable around Napanee and Gananoque. Kingston faces a milk shortage with farmers unable to reach dairies. But schedules in Kingston are disrupted. Twelve snowplows are in action on district highways and officials said the highway from Belleville to Prescott is being kept open only with difficulty.

Woodstock Isolated.

Woodstock in Western Ontario is virtually isolated as far as highway traffic is concerned. Highways in all directions are impassable. It is estimated that more than 100 transport trucks are stalled on highways in the immediate vicinity of the city or waiting in Woodstock for the storm to abate. Trains are running late. Bus service in the city is delayed and drifts as much as four feet deep are common.

Brantford reports it is digging out of the worst storm in years. City and suburban bus services are disorganized. Private cars and trucks are stalled in the city and district. Hundreds were late for work.

Sweeping out of the northeast with a force of blizzard proportions, the blinding snowstorm which commenced in the Belleville area during the early hours on Monday evening had all but completely demoralized vehicular traffic throughout the district today.

Although early measurement indicated that only approximately 11 inches of snow had fallen up to mid-morning, the sweeping gale had caused drifting to the extent of completely stopping traffic on all the highways.

Buses Tied Up.

Highway passenger buses failed to complete their schedules with many district buses not attempting to start their runs, while transport companies claimed their trucks had been completely tied up from Montreal to Toronto since four o'clock this morning. No attempt to make even local deliveries or pick-ups would be made until the storm abated and snowplows cleared the traffic lanes, it was stated by transport firms.

Attendance of country students at the Belleville Collegiate was nil, it was reported by Principal W. S. Turner, while many of the urban students also remained at their homes. Only country students to put in their appearance at the high school were those from Foxboro. Half an hour later the driver returned to pick up students announcing it was his last trip for the day.

Trains Delayed.

Apparently heavier in the western part of the province than in the east, the snow storm had resulted in railroad yards at Toronto being blocked with result that west trains were either delayed or stopped running altogether, local railway officials reported. The mail train due in from Toronto at noon had not at that time left the Toronto yards, while west freights out of Belleville were being held up because of snow conditions. East trains were still running at noon, although late, it was reported.

Almost a complete tie-up in mail was reported by Postmaster J. V. C. Truaisch with even the local letter box collector being delayed more than three hours on his first trip. Stage drivers from the outlying district had not reported at noon with postal officials not expecting them to get through. Letter carriers in the city reported streets never to be in such a heavy condition. Householders were advised to bring their mail to the post office if possible, as it was doubtful if letter box collections would be made.

Bread Shortage Expected.

Possibility of a bread shortage in the city of trains and trucks from the west were held up was forecast by local groceries who depend on Toronto firms for their bread supply. Several Toronto firms send their bread to Belleville by train while others use trucks. One bread truck from Toronto which ordinar-

GERMAN ARMY'S DEFENSIVE FIGHT SHOWS WEAKNESS

Enemy Yields Buffer Zones Between Saar And Palatinate Says Communique

By EDWARD KENNEDY
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Paris, Dec. 12 —(AP)— U. S. 1st Army infantry drove to the flooded Roer river today, captured Merode and fought yard by yard and house to house through a string of fortified German villages about two miles west of Duren.

The German army's defensive fight in stout and thick works before vital arsenals of the Fatherland was reported in front dispatches to be weakening west of the Roer, inside the Siegfried Line at Dillingen and Saarlautern and in northern Alsace under repeated batterings of three American armies.

No action was reported along the 1st Canadian and British 2nd armies' sectors to the north of the Allied line. Latest total of prisoners taken by the 21st Army Group since D-Day, June 6, is 223,538, it was announced today.

Merode, a forest village 3½ miles southwest of Duren, was cleared by the U. S. 1st Army during the night. The Germans still held out behind thick walls and in cellars of Merken, Pier and Gey, all within four miles of Duren, the southern bastion of the Roer river line and the largest German city encountered beyond Aachen. Two-thirds of Merken, almost on the river 3½ miles northwest of Duren, was cleared.

Going Made Harder.

Lt.-Gen. Hodges' veterans reached the Roer river, five miles southeast of Merode after advancing down a hill in the area of Bergstein captured last week. Snow in that sector had melted, creating a bog which made going harder.

The U. S. 3rd Army finally captured Sarreguemines, pulled up to the border of the Saarland and started shelling the important German cities of Sweibrucken and St. Ingbert, five and seven miles inside Germany.

The 3rd cleared out five fortified blocks in Fraulautern, a mile north of Saarlautern, and a similar area in Ensdorf, the same distance east. Both are in the Siegfried Line. It appeared that the Germans were quitting the western end of Fraulautern. The Germans maintained pressure around the steel city of Dillingen, three miles north of Saarlautern, but attempted no more counter-attacks in the ruins of Saarlautern itself, a city as devastated as Aachen.

Blackout Relaxed At Dover, Folkestone And Other Towns

London, Dec. 12 —(CP)— For the first time since the start of the war, blackout restriction were relaxed last night at Dover, Folkestone, Hythe, New Romney, Lydd and other coastal towns and adjoining rural areas.

The modification was similar to the half-light, or "moon-glow," now general in London.

Decisive Battle in Greece Appears To Be in Making

New York, Dec. 12 —Guthrie Jangsen of NBC, broadcasting from Athens today, said a decisive battle appeared to be in the making and "I don't know how long I can go on sending you these broadcasts—communications may be cut at anytime".

"The rest of Greece is under E.L.A.S. control", the reporter said, "except for the lower half of the Piraeus peninsula, where the British made some advances yesterday.

"E.L.A.S. is co-ordinating and will doubtless try to force a decisive battle within the next few days, before more British reinforcements can arrive".

Athens, (AP)—Sharp gunfire still echoed through this battleground capital, sending homeless and terrified civilians scurrying out of the path of the fighting, while rebel leaders were reported drawing up peace proposals.

An impartial source described leaders of both the Leftist political Party, E.A.M., and its militia arm, the E.L.A.S. as "realizing now they will eventually lose" the bloody conflict with British and regular Greek troops.

Declaring the Left-Wing leaders were now "relenting in their demands" that the government of Premier George Papandreou make way for another in which they would have control, this source said E.L.A.S. troops would withdraw from Athens and all the department of Attica in return for guarantees that none would be prosecuted.

(In London, the Daily Mail said Field Marshal Alexander, new Supreme Allied commander in the Mediterranean, had been sent to Greece with personal instructions from Prime Minister Churchill "to end the fighting as quickly as possible, provided this can be done with the full assurance of future peace and co-operation among the political parties".

More Conciliatory Attitude.

(The Mail said the commander was accompanied by Harold MacMillan, British resident minister to Allied Mediterranean headquarters.)

The possibility of a peace, or at least a truce, also was strengthened by publisher Dimitri Lambrakis, who has been working as a negotiator. He reported E.A.M. leaders as much more conciliatory than they were a week ago.

Lambrakis asserted that establishment of a regency would help Greece "emerge from the tragic impasse she is in". He declared "it is imperative" that King George II "accept setting up of a regency as suggested by political leaders".

The fighting is costing both sides heavily in casualties. No official figures have been issued on the British side, but they are mounting. It is estimated the E.L.A.S. have lost 4,500 killed, wounded and captured. This is believed to be nearly 10 per cent of the whole E.L.A.S. strength.

CAMILLIEN HOUDE ELECTED MAYOR OF MONTREAL

Election Follows Dramatic Return From Four Years of Internment

Montreal, Dec. 12 — (CP) — Camillien Houde, silver-tongued veteran of a score of political battles, was mayor-elect of Montreal again today, following a dramatic return from four years of internment.

Mr. Houde was chosen Chief Magistrate of Canada's largest city for the fifth time in his stormy career yesterday, and with his election over Adhemar Raynault—three times mayor of the city—went a three-year mandate. A referendum conducted with the municipal voting gave a comfortable margin to a proposal that the term of office be extended from two to three years.

Fifty-four aldermen were chosen from 98 candidates, with 12 other seats going by acclamation, but most of the interest centred on the mayoralty battle between two men who have both been closely connected with municipal and provincial politics for a decade.

Aldermen elected included J. M. Savignac, staunch supporter of Mr. Houde in other years, and Lucien Croteau and Albert Charpentier—the only aldermanic candidates Mr. Houde ever indicated that he supported in the campaign.

THOUSANDS OF JAP IMPERIAL TROOPS ARE WIPED OUT

Defence of Ormoc Takes On Proportions of Annihilation

General MacArthur's Headquarters, Philippines, Dec. 12—(AP)—Japan's bloody but vain defence of Ormoc took on the proportions of an annihilation today as headquarters reported thousands of crack Imperial troops wiped out in a deadly trap just south of the Leyte Island port city.

The U. S. 77th and 7th Infantry Divisions effected a junction just south of Ormoc on Monday and eradicated the 26th Japanese Division, caught in a vice fashioned after strategic landings on the coast south of Ormoc Thursday.

Other units of the 77th meanwhile destroyed the entire garrison defending Ormoc, Gen. MacArthur announced in his communique today.

Annihilation of the Japanese in the Ormoc sector eliminated the southern segment of the Yamashita line. While MacArthur did not specify the number of enemy troops wiped out in the trap, he said in his Monday communique that 'many thousands' were in the narrowing pocket. There was little indication many could have escaped.

Great stores of equipment and supplies were captured.

Ormoc, which the 77th Division entered Sunday, was an important base of reinforcement for Japanese fighting in the Ormoc corridor to the north, where bloody engagements have continued for weeks despite torrential rains.

Tear Japs Out of Mountains

With Ormoc taken, the Americans turned more power to the task clearing the enemy from the mountains northwest shoulder of Leyte Island.

Terrain still was virtually impassable, but MacArthur reported his 32nd division was "slowly surging forward" against enemy positions in the rugged corridor, which runs from Ormoc to Carigara Bay on the North.

American bombers scored effective sweeps of the central Philippines and beyond, cratering airdrome runways and blasting harassed shipping.

The most spectacular single strike was the 79-ton bombing of petroleum installations at Tarakan and Balikpapan on Borneo, where direct hits burst pipelines and storage tanks, flooding the area with flaming oil. A freighter was sunk offshore.

London, Dec. 12 — (CP) — The United States air fleet that blasted Germany yesterday left an odd straight line rainbow in the sky as it returned to ritish bases. Watchers near the Strait of Dover saw the phenomenon formed by vapor trails caught in the sun's rays.

Canada's Ships Had 'Tremendous' Role in Invasion

London, Dec. 12—(CP)—Canada's secret naval war that preceded and complemented the invasion of Normandy is a secret no longer.

In an exclusive story in London's Evening Standard, naval correspondent Gordon Holman has told how Canadian and British craft teamed up to bring off the greatest mass U-boat slaughter in history, with slight casualties to themselves. Outstanding loss for Canada was the sinking of HMCS Athabaskan in the early stages of the fight.

The operation was tremendous in scope, lengthy, and eminently successful.

First phase of the campaign was to seal off the English Channel so U-boat forces in the French ports could not be reinforced. The second consisted of destroying the U-boats already in the French ports, and the third was the convoying of the tremendous invasion armadas as they moved with freight-train regularity to the continent.

British Suffer 40,000 Casualties, 500 Planes to Free Greece, Crete in War

London, Dec. 12 — (CP)—Foreign Secretary Eden disclosed in the House of Commons today British forces had suffered 40,000 casualties and had lost nearly 500 aircraft in fighting to free Greece and Crete since the beginning of the war.

Most of the casualties — killed, wounded, prisoners and those missing — were suffered in 1941 when Britain launched an unsuccessful expedition into Greece and was forced to evacuate Crete.

In addition, Mr. Eden said the Royal Navy had suffered heavily—losing five cruisers, 13 destroyers, 3 submarines, one sloop and 47 minor vessels.

Three battleships were badly damaged, he said, along with one escort carrier, 12 cruisers, 10 destroyers, 1 corvette, three submarines and a number of smaller ships.

"It must be remembered that in those days we were all alone against a victorious Germany and Italy and in dire peril," Mr. Eden said.

One member suggested the British Commonwealth of Nations had taken by far the greater part in the liberation of Greece.

"I don't think there has ever been any question of that anywhere," replied Mr. Eden.

Pressed for a report on casualties since the new British landing in Greece, Mr. Eden said "If you are referring to the present fighting that is going on in Athens I have no detailed figures at present, but I understand that the casualty figures are, happily, very small."

BOMBARDMENT MIGHT OF ALLIES THROWN AT REICH

Magdeburg-Leipzig Refinery Zone Near Berlin Objective of Mighty Armada

London, Dec. 12 — (CP) — Another triple-strength blow by all the heavy bombardment might in the Allied aerial command apparently was aimed at German industrial targets today in the wake of yesterday's record-smashing assault by an estimated 5,000 bombers and fighters.

A new parade of American heavy bombers left Britain before noon. German radios shortly reported them in the Magdeburg-Leipzig refinery zone southwest of Berlin.

Simultaneously, heavy bombers roared up from the south and swept into Austria, Berlin said, indicating activity by the Italy-based U.S. 15th Air Force.

The two American battlefleets were still emptying their bomb bays when a third bomber formation was reported entering western Germany, probably British Lancasters or Mosquitos.

These attacks came after fast RAF Mosquito bombers returned to western Germany last night with blockbusters. Earlier, continent-based R.A.F. fighters and bombers attacked tactical targets before dusk.

Offensive Climaxed

The fury of Allied bombing offensive was climaxed yesterday by a three-way attack including both the U.S. 8th and 15th Air Forces and R.A.F. bomber command.

The Britain-based U.S. 8th Air Force put 1,000 bombers in the air yesterday and with an escort of 800 fighters smashed railyards at Frankfurt, Hanau and Giessen. It was the largest single bomber fleet ever put in the air — twice the size of Germany's peak aerial effort in September, 1940, when 800 planes attacked London.

The 10,000-ton bombload hit home yesterday as Allied air spokesmen announced that every synthetic oil plant in the Ruhr had been crippled and every mainline rail route to German defences in the west severed in the past month's heavy bomber offensive.

GRANTED SAFE CONDUCT

London, Dec. 12 — (CP) — The Germans have granted safe conduct to relief ships carrying supplies to the German-occupied Channel islands, Home Secretary Herbert Morrison said today.

Between 60,000 and 70,000 persons on these ritish islands are short of food and medical supplies.

Occupied by the Germans in 1940, the islands were by-passed when the Allies invaded Europe.

Report Russians Had Entered City Not Confirmed

Last Defensive Tank Rings Now Being Attacked

By EDDY GILMORE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Moscow, Dec. 12 —(AP)— Russian tanks battled into the northern suburbs of Budapest today, while another powerful Soviet column drove westward past the Great Bend of the Danube above the city toward Bratislava and Vienna, Russian dispatches said.

The main body of motorized Russian infantry driving down the Danube upon Budapest was declared within full view of the capital, and tank units ranged on ahead.

Hastily-reinforced German garrisons suffered high casualties in embittered, short-range fighting, and there were increasing bayonet clashes in the outer anti-tank zone, it was announced.

The Soviet communique announced total gains of three miles and capture of the towns of Veresegyhaz and Szada, both 8 1-2 miles northeast of the capital, by Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's 2nd Ukraine army.

Other Red army troops edged in toward the capital from the east, south and southwest.

(The Paris and Algiers radios said the Russians had penetrated Budapest, but this report appeared without any foundation.)

Malinovsky's northern arm swept around the great bend north of Szob. In gains of up to seven miles, the Russian front along the central Slovak border was extended to almost 30 miles. These advances put the Red Army troops within 85 miles of Bratislava, the Slovak capital, and 116 miles from Vienna.

On this front the Russians captured Hont, three miles west of the rail junction of Dregelypalank, taken Sunday, and also seized Varsany, 8 1-2 miles southeast of Balassagyarmat, previously captured.

Front reports indicated that while the Budapest fighting was in the final stage there still would be much resistance.

The Germans are said to have thrown up virtually the same kind of anti-tank ring about Pest, the part of the city east of the Danube, as they did around Sevastopol. On the north it hinges on the big suburban town of Pest and on the south on the town of Csepe on the island of the same name.

DAMAGE CAUSED

London, Dec. 12 — (CP) — The Germans launched another barrage of flying bombs against southern England during the night and the government announced today that damage and casualties were caused.

LONG-RANGE PLAN BEING DRAWN UP TO CONTROL HUNS

Allied Officials at Work in London on Control Measures

By FLORA LEWIS
(AP Staff Writer)

Washington, Dec. 12 — (AP)—Allied officials in London now are drawing up recommendations for long-range control of Germany.

This was learned today, along with the fact that the question of economic treatment, which caused a cabinet row in Washington this fall, is being considered.

The agreement signed by representatives of the European Advisory Commission on military occupation plans is still being reviewed in the various capitals. There is every expectation, however, that it will be approved because Britain, Russia and the United States sanctioned the plan point by point as it was written.

Plans for Final Elimination of Nazis

This leaves the commission to go on to plans for final elimination of the Nazis, demilitarization of Germany, and controls to make it impossible for Berlin to build another war machine.

The only open question on the occupation plan is France, which did not take part in writing the agreement because she was not made a member of the commission until after it was completed.

However, Moscow reports indicate Gen. deGaulle went into detailed discussions with Premier Stalin on plans for Germany.

The United States' attitude on economic treatment of Germany now has been settled, it is understood, on the basis that German industry should be strictly controlled to prevent any possible war use, but that production can be continued to the extent that Europe needs it.

German, Jap Peoples Must Share Responsibility, Says British Labor

London, Dec. 12. (CP)—The Labor Party adopted a resolution today declaring the whole German and Japanese peoples must share the responsibility for "crimes" of their leaders, despite the warnings of some delegates against any threat of vengeance that would stiffen German resistance.

Lord Strabolgi, while supporting the convention's stand that "neither the German nor Japanese people as a whole can be acquitted of all responsibility", urged a more moderate government policy "for the sake of quick victory".

"If you keep harping on unconditional surrender you play right into the hands of Himmler and Goebbels and the rest of the Nazi leaders", he said, "You must give the German people some hope for the future".

Deputy Prime Minister Clement R. Attlee, leader of the Labor Party, led the fight for the resolution and contended it was "just and right" that the German and Japanese people should make what reparations and restitution is possible".

As Labor convention moved into its second day a fight was shaping behind the scenes on the government's policy in Greece, with several big unions sponsoring resolutions sharply criticizing Britain's intervention in the political clashes of liberated countries.

Asserting "we cannot and do not acquit the German and Japanese people of all responsibility", Mr. Attlee said.

"We believe both these nations must be disarmed and deprived of power to start new wars, but if this is to be done effectively there must be an organization with power to enforce it".

Mr. Attlee, leader of the minority Labor Party, said countries throughout the world—especially those in Europe—must be willing to sacrifice some of their nationalist sentiment in the interests of peace.

"Membership in a larger organization", he contended, "does not conflict with the reasonable claims of nations to live their own lives".

"If old systems do not fit in with the expansionist policy which world conditions demand, they must go", Mr. Attlee said. "Many nations suffer from a too vivid sense of history. I hope that when victory is won these people will turn their minds with hope to the future, looking forward to new opportunities instead of harking back to the past. . . .

"It is not enough to wish for peace and to execrate war. We must say what we are prepared to do to maintain peace. We must say what responsibility we are prepared to accept. . . . .No enduring peace is possible unless there is a continuing co-operation between the British Commonwealth of Nations, the U.S.S.R. and the U.S.A.

Churchill, Stalin, Roosevelt to Meet, Plans Being Made

London, Dec. 12 — (CP)—Without elaborating, a foreign office commentator said today that arrangements were being made for a new Churchill-Roosevelt-Stalin conference. There are no plans for a meeting of the three countries' foreign ministers, he said.

MADOC GIRL'S HUSBAND, S/L. J. C. HOVEY, AWARDED D.F.C.

Squadron-Leader J. C. Hovey, a native of Nova Scotia, and husband of the former Helen Gilman of Madoc, has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross, Royal Canadian Air Force officials announced today.

Mrs. Hovey is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Gilman, of Madoc who moved to Kirkland three weeks ago. She met her husband, when he was the best man at the wedding of her sister. They have a small son.

No details of the action in which Squadron Leader Hovey won his decoration are available as yet.

SAILOR DID NOT LIKE JAIL CONFINEMENT

Apparently the brig on a Canadian battleship is more inviting than the confines of the cell block at the city police station here. Last night city police had an occasion to apprehend a sailor lad on a charge of intoxication. After being placed in the cell block the sailor boy viewed the confines and then proceeded to demolish the detention room door. It took the efforts of a couple of policemen to quell the one-man riot. Today in police court the sailor lad paid $5.00 for damage to the cell block door, as well as a conventional drunk fine.

ONLY ONE MOTOR ACCIDENT REPORTED

As the result of snow-choked streets that filled with swirling snows as rapidly as the city snow plow operated, only one motor accident was reported to city police up until noon on Tuesday.

This particular accident occurred late Monday afternoon, when two motor cars were in collision at the intersection of Jane and Everett Streets. Police investigations showed that a motor car driven by Wm. Thompson, 255 Albert Street, was in collision with another automobile, driven by John R. Irvine, 87 Chatham Street, at the above mentioned intersection. Irvine told police he was proceeding westerly on Jane Street when his car was struck at the rear door. Damage to Mr. Irvine's car resulted in the door, body and rear fender being dented, while the front of the Thompson car, including grill, fender, headlights and radiator resulted.

NEW SET OF CHAINS STOLEN FROM GARAGE

When E. C. Adams of Frankford, went to procure a brand new pair of automobile tire chains to place on his motor car yesterday the chains were missing. Mr. Adams reported the matter to Ontario Provincial Police here stating he had not seen the chains since purchasing them last fall. They had been stored in his garage, but today may be assisting some other motorist in storm difficulty. Of course that won't help Mr. Adam, in the event he becomes stalled in a snowbank.

Robt. Templeton 91 Years Old

Mr. Robert Templeton, one of Belleville's oldest and most highly esteemed residents, celebrated on Saturday last the 91st anniversary of his birth. He is enjoying remarkably good health for a man of his advanced age and many friends will be pleased to extend to him congratulations and good wishes. His son, Mr. John Templeton of Toronto, was here to spend the weekend with him.

Mr. Templeton came to Belleville from Perth, Ontario, over seventy years ago and for many years he was successfully engaged in the drug business here. In recognition of his birthday and as an expression of their kindly feelings for the oldest member of their profession here, the druggists of this city sent to Mr. Templeton an especially prepared birthday cake accompanied by a nicely worded note conveying their congratulations. The note was signed by Mr. Charles Dolan for the Dolan Drug Store; Mr. J. Vincent Doyle for Doyle's Drug Store; Mr. Percy W. Geen for Geen's Drug Store; Mr. Court Miller for McKeown's Drug Store; Mr. George Pauley for Pauley's Drug Store; Mr. Allan Schryver for Schryver's Drug Store; Mr. Bruce Lattimer for Lattimer's Drug Store, and Mr. H. C. Seldon for Seldon's Drug Store. The gift and the kind message from the druggists were much appreciated by Mr. Templeton and added greatly to his enjoyment of his birthday.

ed the dense forest to the north and reached to within 29 miles of the German city of Karlsruhe behind the Rhine.

Supply dumps were seized at Haguenau. The Americans were within four miles of the German Palatinate north of the city.

Farther south beyond Strasbourg, the 7th and the French 1st Army were within 3 1/2 miles of Colmar, checked more by floods than by Germans. The French cleared eight miles of the Rhine bank from the Swiss frontier to Kembs and faced the formidable German fortresses across the river.

The Germans appeared to have abandoned hope of holding out much longer west of the Roer and to be fighting a screening action while they hauled the rest of their artillery and tanks to the east bank. There the Germans with forced labor have thrown up three lines of narrow trenches and strongpoints stretching from Duren to Julich between the Roer and the Erft river, which flows within eight miles of Cologne on the Rhine.

The Roer front curved around for 15 miles or more and projected within 21 miles of Cologne.

Before Duren, the Americans were 18 miles inside Germany in the deepest invasion yet of the Reich. Duren is little more than 300 miles southwest of Berlin and like the capital, a ruin from Allied bombs. Duren was within plain sight of the Americans.

Capture 441 Prisoners

The Germans were estimated to be landing 3,000 rounds of shells daily in Dillingen, home of one of the Saarland's greatest blast furnaces and a tank factory.

The 3rd Army captured 441 Germans yesterday, raising its total to 83,130 since Nov. 8, when the current drive started. In the same period, Lt.-Gen. Patton's men have destroyed 145 tanks, 412 artillery pieces and 315 vehicles exclusive of what supporting planes have knocked out.

Flt. Lt. Joe Foley Of Wellington Awarded D.F.C.

The war came to Wellington, Ont., a few days after it started. The little lakeside village has sent her sons to the many battlefronts in the uniform of the navy, army, air force and the merchant marine. Some of them lie in lonely desert graves. Others went down with their ships. Still others lie in the bloody fields of France, Belgium and Holland. Many more are fighting.

But Joe Foley, everybody in the village knows Joe, brought the first signal honor to the Prince Edward County village the other day when someone pinned the Distinguished Flying Cross above his R.C.A.F. navigator's wing.

Villagers will be proud of Joe. They remember the quiet-voiced boy who sang in the United Church choir when the rest of the kids were playing shinny on the ice-covered surface of West Lake. Joe played the violin too, and studied his music while the gang went behind the rink and got in a few hours at softball.

Taught in Sunday School.

Sure Joe was a regular guy. He clerked in the little store owned by the late Calista Bonter and delivered the groceries. He had a Sunday School class too, but the gang did not hold that against him, for they knew Joe was a regular guy. Occasionally Joe tried out with the big hockey team. He couldn't make it so he signed with the Gore Gobblers in the Blood and Thunder League, and did a good job. Joe couldn't skate very well, but he always got in the way of someone to prevent a score. He was satisfied with that, for he knew he did all he could.

Then came the war. Joe figured, like hockey, well—maybe I can't fight very well, but I'll get in someone's way and maybe stop a score. He joined the R.C.A.F. He trained well and hard, just like he used to stay at home and study violin, or prepare a paper for his class at high school. For Joe was a regular guy. This war was a serious business.

He took his I.T.S. training at Belleville, went to Aylmer and later to Ancienne Lorette, Québec, where one day a high-ranking officer pinned the wing of a navigator on Joe's heaving breast.

33 Operations Completed.

Then he went overseas. That was two years ago. He became an integral part of the crew of a Halifax bomber. He went through hell, but quiet-smiling, soft-voiced Joe always came up with the well-known Foley grin on his face. Thirty-three times he has flown over the continent. He has seen his blockbuster blast hell out of German targets.

Then something must have happened. Those friends of his, and there are many of them, will have to wait for the official citation because Joe will never tell it. Anyway, Joe won the D.F.C. and was presented with it the other day. The news came officially from Ottawa. His wife, the former Kathleen McNeill, of Wellington, had had no word of it when this newspaper informed her.

Joe is now taking a well-earned rest after a tour of operations, for he is a flight lieutenant, one of those guys who got their rings the hard way. And well he might be, for Joe was and is a regular guy. And when you see him you will never know or even guess, that this quiet-voiced, modest lad brought the first D.F.C. to Wellington.

Experiences of Air Force Chaplain Recounted by Rev. Grant Sparling

"Twenty-four hours a day as a sky pilot at a Canadian air training station," was the topic of the address given at the regular Kinsmen dinner meeting Monday evening as Rev. J. Grant Sparling, rector of Christ Church, told of his experiences as an Air Force chaplain in this war.

Showing a fine touch of humor, which instantly makes him popular with the younger generation, Mr. Sparling kept his listeners in almost continuous laughter as he related many amusing incidences which crop up each day in the course of a chaplain's duties. He indicated that a chaplain's job was a full time job entailing a wide variety of work and lengthy hours. Success which the speaker attained as chaplain is indicated by the fact that until recently he was senior padre of the Western Command of the R.C.A.F.

The chaplain's duties, according to Mr. Sparling, begin with the work parade early in the morning and last until around midnight when they meet and talk with airmen coming in from night flights. In between are sandwiched visits to the hospital and to the guard house where he endeavors to smooth out difficulties.

"In the early days of the war with no chapels or churches on the stations, the chaplain was truly pastor of the station," stated the speaker. "The chaplain alone represented God."

Domestic Interviews.

Domestic interviews with station personnel are frequent with the chaplain. These interviews had been increased by hasty marriages with no time for necessary adjustments before the husband was stationed. Visits to the airmen's barracks during the early evening hours presented an opportunity to meet lonely airmen. Here occasionally the chaplain would run across a game of craps and although strictly against station regulations the padre would never inform on participants. The padre's learning of jargon used by players did much to discourage the personnel from the pastime, it was stated.

Tribute to station mechanics in their particularly monotonous and uninteresting jobs was paid by the former padre, while air crew personnel were termed as "splendid fellows." His days spent as chaplain in the R.C.A.F. were termed by the speaker as "most interesting and profitable."

Introduced by Kin Ted Follwell, the guest speaker was thanked by Kin "Red" Carroll.

Net Profit Announced.

Kin Ernie Colebourne announced a net profit of $1,109 from the recent fur coat draw staged by the Kinsmen Club. Also arrangements for the annual presenting of gifts to under-privileged children and Children's Aid Society wards were completed.

Principals of the four Belleville public schools and Separate School, with Kiwanis and Rotary members and Y.M.C.A. workers who assisted in the annual Kinsmen Shell-Out party were guests at the luncheon with Kin Bill Denals officially expressing thanks of the club for their assistance. "Stub" Barrett, recently appointed honorary member of the club, was also present at the meeting and called on for a few words expressed his appreciation of the honor bestowed upon him.

President "Matt" Currie presided over the meeting with Kin Frank Lang as song leader and Kin Walt Harden as fine collector.

ly get in at five o'clock did not arrive until ten this morning.

Rawson bus service in the city was still operating at noon with proprietors stating they were doing "the best we can" but no attempt being made to maintain regular schedules. At noon two of the company's buses were stuck in the snow with two trucks attempting to pull them out, also getting stuck. Buses were operating in snow up to the fenders.

"All we can say is that we are still operating", stated a bus official at noon, "but people will just have to wait till they get there".

There was no immediate danger of a milk shortage in the city according to one milk distributor who stated that they were 'okey for tomorrow." City deliveries were being delayed, however, it being expected that deliverymen would be from four to five hours late in completing their routes. Deliveries from the farm would also be held up, according to one distributor. There would be a shortage of cream for churning but this could be kept at the frms until roads were opened allowing trucks to make their pickups.

Trenton reported a complete tie-up with three transports reported stuck just outside the town between 6 R.D. and he main Trenton Air Station. The Trenton-Belleville bus did not attempt to leave on its regular scheduled trips.

Businessmen endeavored to keep their stores open for business, however, as was proven by Mr. Joseph Trimble, manager of Maher Shoe Store in Trenton, who despite a broken ankle made the trip from his residence to the store behind a team of trusty bays owned by S. Bassett.

Conditions Bad in North.

The same conditions held true in the northern end of the county with four inches of snow having been received at Bancroft by ten o'clock with snow being swept before the gale so as to entirely block vision. The provincial snow plow left Bancroft for Madoc, but it was not known where the trip was completed. The Bancroft-Belleville bus also left but had not arrived at Madoc shortly before the noon hour.

Storm conditons abated in the Belleville area during the noon hour, but despite the subsiding of the storm, the city snow plow had been unable to cope with conditions to keep main traffic arteries open for general traffic.

Ski suits were familiar sights in Toronto and other cities, girls donning them to come to work. Some used skis. In Toronto even the weatherman was late for work. The Toronto Daily Star and the Toronto Evening Telegram did not publish their usual noon editions. The Star said it would have two editions today, one just before two p.m. and another later in the day. The Telegram was expected to publish an edition at two p.m. An editor at the Star said as far as he knew it was the first time weather conditions had prevented publication of the paper.

U.K. Opens First Emergency School To Train Teachers

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(CP Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 12 — (CP) — The first emergency training school for teachers now has been opened and many more will be operating early in the new year as England and Wales move toward full implementation of the 1944 education act — termed by Education Minister R. A. Butler a "complete recasting" of the school system.

Similar legislation for Scotland now is before the Commons.

A critical teacher shortage, coupled with lack of schools, has delayed for at least a year the raising of the school-leaving age from 14 to 15, one of the main features of the bill.

To Train 70,000 Teachers

The government's plan is to set up dozens of special colleges where an estimated 70,000 men and women can be given 12-months to 18-month teacher-training courses, supplementing the flow of instructors from normal schools and universities. Enrolment priority is being given to ex-members of the services and war - industry workers.

Many schools were destroyed or damaged in the blitz or by buzz-bombs. Schools repairs and construction have been put on equal, over-riding priority with housing for manpower and materials.

Modernizing School Facilities

To modernize school facilities, building regulations have been issued by the government, setting out general standards common to all primary and secondary schools. New buildings will be as up-to-date as the most modern school buildings in Canada. Spacious play-grounds will be provided and each school must have a separate lunchroom. Classes must be held to a maximum of 30 in primary grades, and 30 in secondary grades and nursery rooms.

These regulations, like most of the education act, come into effect Next April 1. The first-year additional cost of the reforms is set at £5,500,000 (about $24,750,000), increasing to £80,000,000 a year ($350,000,000) by 1955 when it is expected the leaving age will have been jumped again, to 16.

Better pay for British teachers is in prospect.

Justice Macaulay Dies in Vancouver

Mr. Justice Charles D. Macaulay, a former barrister of this city, died in Vancouver, B.C., at the age of 79 years on Sunday, December 10th. He was in failing health for some time. The news of his death, which was received here by Mrs. James Grant, Church Street, a relative, will be learned with much regret by many old friends here.

The late Mr. Justice Charles Daniel Macaulay was born at Frankford. Upon being called to the bar at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, he returned to Belleville and practised his profession here until 1901 when he went to Dawson City, Yukon Territory, as a Stipendiary Magistrate, and a year later he was elevated to the Territorial Court, the Supreme Court of the Yukon. In 1940 he retired from the bench and took up residence in Vancouver.

During the time Mr. Justice Macaulay practised law here he was prominent in the life of the city and enjoyed the high esteem of all citizens. He was a faithful member of St. Michael's Church and served as a member of the Separate School Board. He was the last of his family; a brother Dr. Macaulay, died in Brockville some time ago.

Surviving are his wife, the former Miss Minnie Davy of Belleville; a grandson, Charles Edward Macaulay, now serving in the navy, and his daughter-in-law, formerly Miss Doris Vermilyea of Belleville, now of Vancouver. His son, Robt. Macaulay, who also practised law here, died a few years ago in Vancouver.

Mr. Justice Macaulay visited Belleville every few years, generally at Christmas time, and his visits were looked forward to by many old friends who will now miss his home comings.

Ivanhoe Sailor Sports Beard The Envy of All

His name is Arthur Reed, and he lives in Ivanhoe—that is he did, before the call of the sea became too strong and he decided to do his bit by joining the Royal Canadian Navy.

Yesterday he walked up the street and even callous-hearted males, who would not flip an eyelid at Betty Grable if she walked before them in unmentionables, turned and took a second look at the handsome young leading torpedoman.

For he sports a beard—brother, a beard, that is a beard. Eric the Red, in his Viking heyday would have gone green with jealousy if one of his henchmen would have appeared on the ship's prow with facial spinach the color, size and shape of Arthur Reed's hirsute adornment.

Six months ago his girl friend sent him a large supply of razor blades. But Art decided to show the folks back home, that he could get along without 'em, and decided to grow a beard. He did—and its the pride of the trim little destroyer "St. Laurent" on which Art and a few of his naval buddies put in time knocking off the occasional Nazi submarine.

But the beard is the point of this story. Any Canadian warship can sink submarines, but not every Jack Canuck Tar can upholster his chin in the Reed manner. It is long, it nearly covers his chest. It's curly, a natural permanent, and it is silky to the touch. It is almost red, and sets off to a nicety the sparkling blue eyes, that gleam merrily a few inches above it.

"Huh," snorts Art, "these things are common around Halifax, but brother they are a rarity in Ivanhoe, and I want to show the girl, that I can really raise one. They do help when out on the Atlantic and the weather is cold, but this facial mattress was not grown for that purpose. It's six months old and I can take it off any time now." Incidentally Art has been in the navy two years, had 10 months at sea, and has seen enemy subs sink.

35,600 Cigarettes Sent by Veterans To Boys Overseas

The December shipment of Canadian cigarettes sent to Belleville and district boys serving overseas by the Army and Navy Veterans' fag fund saw 102 names listed. Secretary James Lazenby announced that including 5,000 cigarettes sent to H.M.C.S. "Belleville" the semi-monthly total amounted to 35,600 cigarettes. Of this latest half-monthly quota one shipment went to Pte. R. S. Clarke, who is a prisoner of war at 7-A Stalag, Germany.

In a recent reply from Italy Rose Weese told of meeting Tom Hallam and Ross Rutter along a muddy road in Italy. "I might say we all wish to thank you for the many lifts in morale you have provided by sending cigarettes regularly to the boys. They not only appreciate them, but look forward to the next delivery", wrote Ross. The same expressions were received from F/L. "Tip" Tummon, former Tweed and Belleville hockey player now stationed in Holland.

"The fellows in my outfit were a little short on smokes, when I received your last shipment of fags, so you can readily understand how welcomed they were. Naturally it was my turn to lend the fellows the odd deck of fags", wrote J. D. Doherty. Scores of other replies adding thanks for cigarettes already received and also the season's greetings are being received by Secretary Lazenby daily, all expressing hopes of the future continuance of the fund.

The list of Belleville and district boys serving overseas sent individual shipments of 300 cigarettes each by the Army and Navy Veterans, Belleville Branch No. 201, included the following:

POLICE COURT

Owing to the intensity of the worst snowstorm and blizzard of the year, the venue of today's city police court was moved from the police court rooms at the Police Station to the Court House where His Worship, Magistrate T. Y. Wills, disposed of what cases could be presented.

Seventeen cases of breaches of the parking by-laws were listed for trial, all parties concerned having paid one dollar, and a similar amount as costs, for their delinquency. In each case the motorist in question had parked their vehicles so as to interfere with the progress of the city snow plow. "We intend to summons every motor vehicle driver, who parks his vehicle in a manner so as to impede the progress of the opening of our streets, when heavy snow falls. It is a violation of city by-laws to park motor vehicles on city streets over night. This is one of the principal troubles the operators of the city snow plow has to contend with," revealed city police officials today.

A juvenile appeared on a charge of fraud, namely the obtaining of board and lodging by false pretenses. The lad's mother promises restitution.

Stoker 'Barney' Wright in On D-Day Invasion Arrives Home

After two years in the Navy without home leave, arriving back in Canada in time for Christmas was a real surprise in the life of Stoker 1st Class "Barney" Wright, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Wright, 34 Hillside Street. He had already made plans to spend Christmas with friends in Manchester, England, when he was granted 45 days furlough.

"It sure does seem good to be back home after more than two years away," stated the young seafaring tar who in 14 months' action made eight round trips across the Atlantic on convoy duty and who played an active part in invasion operations last June. "Barney" was guest of Kin "Boiler" Lloyd at Monday evening's Kinsmen luncheon meeting and expressed his appreciation to the club for cigarettes sent to service members overseas.

"I just want you fellows to know that the boys overseas really appreciate what the Kinsmen Club is doing", stated "Barney" as he briefly addressed the club members. "Your cigarettes are really appreciated and the milk sent by your "Milk For Britain Fund" is filling a real need in Britain. All I can say is keep on sending."

Crew member of the Canadian destroyer St. Laurent which has been credited with three enemy submarines sunk, one of them in the Bay of Biscay in co-operation with an R.A.F. Wellington, Stoker Wright indicated, that the combined sight of innumerable surface craft and thousands of planes during D-Day operations was a sight, which he will never forget. The St. Laurent had been detailed to convoy an escort area in that part of the English Channel used by the American forces during their landing operations.

"I never again expect to see a sight like that presented by the hundreds of ships during invasion operations and the thousands of planes with their vapor trails as they provided air cover," assured the young sailor.

Three Subs Sunk.

Three submarines were sent to the bottom with depth charges loosed by St. Laurent crewmen while Stoker Wright was a crew member. The first of these was in the Atlantic during convoy operations when a mammoth German U-boat surfaced to engage in a losing fight with the Canadian destroyer. Forty-five survivors were picked up from the German craft, and were described as being "very well-behaved." Several, however, were imbued with the idea that the Germans were the "master race" and that Hitler was all-powerful. Average age of the sub survivors was from 18 to 20 years, it was stated.

The second sub sunk by the St. Laurent was accounted for during invasion operations and went down with her entire crew, while the third sinking occurred in the Bay of Biscay during the siege of Brest. Survivors were picked up from this sub.

Has Been in Russia.

During convoy operations Stoker Wright has been south nearly to Gibraltar, north on the Russian supply route and to Iceland.

High tribute to the English people for hospitality shown to Canadian service members was paid by the Belleville sailor. Members of all three services are highly respected for their fighting ability. "But Belleville girls are the nicest," Barney assured.

Engineering Union Attacks Policy in Greece

London, Dec. 12 — (CP-Reuter)— The executive of the Amalgamated Engineering Union, largest union in Britain, passed a resolution today describing British policy in Greece as "disastrous" and calling for its immediate reversal.

The resolution sent to the Labor party, the Trade Union Congress, and to the Amalgamated Engineering Union delegation to the Labor party Conference meeting in London, protests against British policy respecting the internal affairs in Greece and other continental countries. It adds "We view with grave concern the decision of the British government to use munitions and the armed forces against the resistance movement in Greece."

21-INCH FALL 72-YEAR RECORD

Toronto, Dec. 12 —(CP)— A record snowfall of 21 inches, from 5:15 a.m. yesterday until noon, was recorded today in Toronto by the Dominion Meteorological Bureau.

"Only thing comparable to it was in December, 1872," an official said, when a 23-inch fall was recorded for a two-day period.

The present storm, which has continued with only a two-hour break since yesterday, was expected to reach that mark if it kept up, and he said it would probably keep snowing until sometime tonight.

GERMAN MONEY USED TO WRECK MORALE OF HUNS

Foreign Workers Say 'Lassen Sie Nur' ('Keep the Change'), Hint Money Soon Valueless

By CHARLES S. FOLTZ
(AP Staff Writer)

Madrid, Dec. 12 — (AP)—Three little words of German have become a powerful weapon in the hands of foreign workers in Germany. They are "Lassen sie nur" and, as used by foreigners, mean "keep the change."

Foreign workers caught behind Hitler's dwindling frontiers with no chance of getting back to their homeland, are using this phrase on street cars, at newsstands, in cafes and everywhere in Germany to express their disgust at the German cause and their conviction that German money soon will be valueless.

Judging not only from comments of neutrals or Germans reaching Spain on Stuttgart-Barcelona airlines but also from comments in the German press itself, the phrase and what it represents is beginning to get under the thickest of German hides.

Authorities have tried to stop it by ordering that the portion of a foreign worker's salary which used to be sent to his homeland be placed in German banks.

Earn Money Outside

The foreigners retaliated by earning money outside their official jobs, some engaged in the lucrative black market business and others are doing extra work illegally for the Germans. With this money, they are conducting a lusty and efficient campaign against German morale.

A German reporter visiting Croat workers' camps reported "a complete disregard for the value of money" among laborers. He told his readers the Croats gambled for stakes "which were enough to frighten a German earning five times their daily salary."

The hamburger fremdenblatt was horrified to find even German children affected and warned parents should not give children enough money to throw about carelessly — "even if it is their intention to help the children through this trying period of the war."

The "keep the change" campaign is costing foreign workers little but apparently is making a big dent in German morale.

Federal By-Election Writ Is Issued For N. Grey Riding

Ottawa, Dec. 12 (CP)—A Federal by-election will be held in the Ontario constituency of Grey North Feb. 5, it was announced today.

Nominations for the by-election, to be contested by Defence Minister McNaughton, will close Jan. 29.

It was expected that Gen. McNaughton would be opposed by Mayor Garfield Case of Owen Sound, who has been nominated Progressive Conservative candidate in the constituency.

The Grey North seat became vacant recently when M. P. Telford, the sitting Liberal member resigned because of ill health.

VOTE ON SEAWAY PROJECT

Washington, Dec. 12. (AP)— An agreement was reached in the Senate yesterday to vote today on the proposed St. Lawrence Hydro-Electric Power and Seaway Development estimated to cost between $200,000,000 and $400,000,000.

Senator George Aiken (Rep.-Vt.), who had discussed the project for several days, introduced it as an amendment to the $600,000,000 postwar Rivers and Harbors Bill with a promise from Senator John Overton (Dem.-La.) that there will be no motion to table it.

Superforts Raid Tokyo 4 Times Japanese Say

San Francisco, Dec. 12. (AP)—Tokyo radio reported American superfortresses dropped incendiary bombs "in two or three places" tonight (Japanese time).

Recorded by the Federal communications commission, the broadcast said it was the fourth incursion over Tokyo by the superforts today.

Between midnight and five a.m. superfortresses from the Miariana slands made three incursions into Japan, radio Tokyo announced.

The broadcast, intercepted by the federal communications commission, said that "all the planes fled southward, apparently without dropping any bombs".

The Shiuoka area was badly shaken up by last week's earthquake and a resultant tidal wave which covered houses with water. Hence the flight may have been for photographic purposes to establish the damage sustained.

No mention was made of any Japanese fighter interception.

J. E. BIRKS DIES SUDDENLY

Campbellford, Dec. 12. (CP) — J. Ernest Birks well known Campbellford druggist died suddenly early today. He was a member of Ionic Chapter R.A.M. and was a native of Trenton. He is survived by his sister, Mrs. Lloyd E. Deviney, of Toronto.

District Law Associations Meet

Cobourg, Dec. 12 —(CP)— A meeting of the district law associations with lawyers present from Prince Edward, Hastings, Northumberland, Durham, Ontario, Victoria and Haliburton counties yesterday discussed "competition" from trust companies whose fees from handling estates were said to take a great deal of income from the legal profession.

It was agreed that an effort would be made to see if the matter could be handled in cooperation between the lawyers and the trust companies. G. N. Gordon, K.C., of Peterborough, said that several large estates in his city netted the local solicitor only a small amount for drawing up a will while the large income for handling the estates went to trust companies.

A resolution was passed that it be recommended to the Ontario Federation of County and District Law Associations that a protective association similar to that of other professions be organized to give a measure of security to the lawyers.

A motion by Mr. Gordon was carried in which it was proposed that both alimony and divorce actions be taken out of the hands of the Supreme Court and transferred to county court jurisdiction in the interests of speedier disposition.

LAUNCHING CARS BOMBED

At 21st Army Group Headquarters, Dec. 12, (CP-Reuters)—A terrific explosion followed the bombing of V-2 launching cars at Leiden station in Holland yesterday.

After 1,000-pounders and 500-pounders had been rained down on the target, pilots saw "an enormous orange explosion and peasoup debris". A second attack was made on the target in the afternoon.

Tokyo To Be Evacuated Says Berlin Radio

London, Dec. 12. (AP)— The Berlin radio said that evacuation of non-essential workers from Tokyo was proceeding, with a contingent of 20,000 planning to leave the city of 7,000,000 today.

Plans to evacuate several districts had been announced previously by Tokyo.

"Measures for the evacuation of Tokyo are progressing according to plan", the Berlin radio said. "Twenty thousand persons will leave the capital on Tuesday, especially the old and infirm, as well as children and expectant mothers.

"No workers on the war industry, transport and press may leave Tokyo, however, as special permits are required by the police", Transocean said. "Neither can workers in the essential industries (gas, water and electricity, doctors, chemists and nurses). The civic defence forces must also stay".

The agency reported that American bombers had appeared over Tokyo again today, apparently from the Marianas bases, but had dropped no bombs. A second group of bombers was reported over the capital tonight, dropping incendiary bombs.

Nazi Airmen Return To Italian Battle Zones

Rome, Dec. 12 —(AP)— The German air force has returned to the Italian battle areas, swooping down over the Allied 5th Army front, bombing and strafing troops and communication, Allied Headquarters announced today.

As enemy airmen made these attacks yesterday the Lamone river rose to a depth of seven or eight feet, after a week of heavy rain, slowing down British 8th Army operations in eastern Italy to patrols.

The Germans reacted strongly to 5th Army patrol thrusts south and southeast of Bologna and made several small scale counter-attacks.

German artillery was strongly active along the west coast and central fronts. In one 15-minute period their guns poured more than 700 rounds into one region of the 5th Army sector.

Medium forces of escorted U. S. 15th Air Force heavy bombers attacked an oil refinery, an ordnance depot and railway yards in the Vienna area yesterday and other heavy bombers attacked railway yards at Graz.

In all the Mediterranean Allied Air Force flew approximately 1,900 sorties, from which 25 planes failed to return. Two enemy aircraft were destroyed.

Big Citrus Crop on Way

New York, Dec. 12. —The Florida citrus industry sustained some damage in the recent hurricane, but it will deliver more citrus fruit than in any previous year, with the exception of 1943, and it probably will come close to equalling that year's record production, Gov. Spessard L. Holland of Florida, declared here yesterday.

Speaking at the third annual press luncheon, given by the Florida Citrus Commission in the Sherry-Netherland Hotel, Gov. Holland explained that only the grapefruit groves had been hit extensively by the storm. There will be just as many oranges and tangerines as ever, he said.

New Records

New evidence of the great air strength of the United Nations was provided on Monday when a new record was set of the greatest number of four-engine bombers in the world's history striking at Western Germany in one blow.

The United Nations have increasing power and therefore new records can be established. Germany has yet to see the full power of assault by the Allies. At any rate yesterday there was a world record hung up to the disadvantage of Hitlerite or Himmlerite Germany.

A further description of this air assault given in the press was that of the almost endless line of heavy bombers passing along the east coast of Britain to the raid on Germany in deep layer-formation.

The record in numbers of heavy bombers no doubt established new records in destruction caused by the visiting Allied fleets of planes.

Butter Ration To Be Lowered

Reduction of the butter ration to about six ounces a week from seven, beginning on New Year's, came no doubt not as a surprise to some who have been following reports of the amount of production but to others it may have meant a surprise. The Prices Board yesterday announced that production estimated for the period of the first four months of the new year as only about six pounds for each holder of a ration book after taking care of the requirements for the Armed Forces, hospitals, ships' stores, Red Cross for prisoners of war parcels.

A change is made by making butter coupons valid one at a time instead of in pairs and of having three of these coupons come good each month instead of four.

Another interesting change is that householders are to be encouraged to make their butter last as long as possible by leaving coupons valid until declared invalid. That will mean that there will be a tendency of consumers to save butter and hold off buying as long as possible since there will be no expiry date until such is declared.

Japanese Admirals Die

Japanese admirals are dying fast since last May 23rd. No fewer than 73 have been reported as having died and the generals' list of dead totals 18 in the same period. Last week six Japanese admirals and one general was announced in the mysterious Japanese way as having died. What significance there is in the Japanese method of not revealing the cause is not known, whether death in battle or from sickness or the result of defeats suffered by the Japanese.

The Japanese navy has suffered very heavily in many battles with the American forces. Whether this would explain the death list or not is not clear.

Germany Between Fronts

Fatal toll is being taken of the Germans in men and territory on the Allied fronts in the east and west. The enemy armies are losing thousands of men daily and the Russian advance is gaining territory from the German armies. Russian troops are deep in the Balkans now and are about Budapest, the capital of Hungary, and observers see the present offensive as a possible drive against Austria. On the Western Front the Allied forces are meeting heavy resistance but still are gaining ground. Between them the German strength is being tried.

Between the East, West and South Fronts Germany is caught. The pinch will grow more and more severe and German manpower which has suffered so heavily during the past years must be tried to the uttermost.

The Allies are working to turn out more and more munitions so heavy has been the demand upon the war material in the past six months and especially latterly owing to the Nazi resistance on home ground. The home front is working tiredlessly in the factories in a way that will provide the extra munitions needed in such volume as in this global war.

Food Makes Inches

"Now, the size and height and weight of the adolescent depends mainly on his or her food. Heredity plays some part, of course, but food plays more. Father may be no more than two bricks and a jam-pot high—a shrimp. But there's no reason why Alfie should be a shrimp too. It's interesting that the Japanese who are born and brought up in the United States are inches taller than those brought up in Japan. The difference? Well, different food. Give fifty growing boys an extra dose of milk, and they grow more in size and weight than do fifty without it. So it isn't only nature which determines size and weight, it's nature as well,". says The Radio Doctor, talking from London over the BBC.

Saving London Churches

(London Times)

The Commission on the City Churches appointed by the Bishop of London some three years ago has now issued its report. On the main issue of preservation its language is emphatic:

No Wren church not already destroyed nor damaged beyond the possibility of satisfactory restoration should be removed except in a case of most urgent necessity, and all other churches which survived the Great Fire of 1666 "should be retained as far as possible entire." Forty-five churches are affected by this recommendation—well under half the number that stood in the city before 1666. But only 72 survived the Great Fire and of these Wren was responsible for 51. The nineteenth century demolished 19 of them and more have been threatened recently, but the present commission's report should adequately safeguard what remains of a precious architectural heritage.

Of the 45 churches covered 28 have so far escaped serious damage. The report recommends the restoration of eight or nine of the 17 which have suffered at the enemy's hands. The soundness of these proposals should be beyond dispute, for Wren was not only an architect of genius but a great town planner.

German Prisoners Who Reach England

(E. V. Emmett, in the BBC Bulletin)

Some of the prisoners even firmly imagine they are in America or Canada. They refuse to believe they are in England because they know quite well from what Dr. Goebbels has told them that "all England is in ruins and the people are starving!" One of the prisoners did know he was in England—but he demanded to be sent to what he called the German lines; he was under the impression that part of England was in German occupation. He really was. How can you expect to get the real truth into the heads of men who have been brought up exclusively on lies? It certainly is a problem.

In the Bible

(New York Herald Tribune)

All that our forefathers found in the Bible is there today, unchanged and unchangeable. The things for which the war is being fought—the freedoms we invoke, the right of individual conscience and the individual liberty of men under God—the Bible has held all these up to the hearts and hopes of men for centuries. And neglected but undying, the same pages have held for us today's much visioned "one world"—in which, because all men are children of one Father, men are brothers, one of another.

Moonlight on Egyptian Desert

(From The New Yorker Magazine)

Men stationed in Cairo find that great pressure is brought to bear on them to go out into the desert to see the pyramids by moonlight. A soldier friend of ours who did this reports that the pyramids by moonlight were a fine sight but not as striking as something he saw on his way back to town. The car he was in overtook a caravan of camels, each of which wore a red taillight.

PROBLEM-MAN

If the women you believe,
  I'm the one it's hard to buy for.
When it comes to Christmas Eve
  Mine's the gift they vainly try for.
I won't mention, though they plead,
Anything I really need.

Once again the women say,
  And they shake their heads about it:
"He is fond of Christmas Day,
  Wouldn't like to live without it,
But though hints from others fall,
He's no help to us at all!"

Hear them tell it, to and fro,
  Since mere man has no defenders:
"Nearing Christmas he will go
  To the store and buy suspenders!
That's a trick all women hate.
Man for such things ought to wait!"

Hear them: "He's the silent kind!"
  And they add: 'Disheartening this is Being answered: 'Never mind!
  All I want is love and kisses.
Nothing more I'd bat an eye for!'
That's what makes him hard to buy for."

NUGGETS OF KNOWLEDGE

Montreal is known as "the City of Saints" because its streets are named after saints.

The idea expressed by the phrase "a nose for news" is centuries old. Ralph, a servingman in "A York-Shire Tragedy," one of the plays attributed sometimes to Shakespeare but actually of unknown authorship, says: "Now my nose itches for news."

Why do railroad tracks appear to meet in the distance? A person sees objects because they reflect light rays to the eye. Light is reflected from every part of an object and any two rays from an angle at the eye. Objects close to the eye look larger because the angles between the light rays are larger and the farther away the objects the smaller the light angles. Consequently a distant object looks much smaller than a close one. In looking down a railroad track a person looks at an object of uniform size but of varying distances. The two rails appear to run together in the distance because the angles of the light waves grow smaller and smaller along the track.

The number of miles of underground railway track in Pennsylvania is greater than mileage of surface railway track in that state.

According to the U. S. Hydrographic Office, the highest tides in the world are those in the Bay of Fundy. The greatest difference between high and low water is in Minas Basin at Burntcoat Head. Under normal conditions it is 54.5 feet. It is said that owing to local conditions of wind and weather the tide in the Bay of Fundy has been known to reach 60 feet. These high tides are due largely to the configuration of the bay. As a general rule bays that open directly into the sea and which have narrow heads exhibit this phenomenon. The highest tides in waters adjacent to the United States proper occur near Calais, Main. There the mean range in the height of the tide is 20 feet and the spring range is 22.8 feet. In the harbor of Granville on the French Normandy coast the tide rises and falls 46 feet.

To say a person believes the moon is made of green cheese is to ridicule his credulity, it being presumed that such a person would believe the most absurd thing imaginable. In this connection "green cheese" is used in the sense of fresh or unseasoned. A green cheese is a new cheese. Such a cheese is supposed to resemble the moon in shape, size and color. This homely comparison is very old and probably originated with the country people of England. Sir Thomas More (1478-1535) wrote: "He should, as he list, be able to prove he moon made of green cheese."

For many years the Treasury Department has destroyed worn-out and mutilated currency, bonds and stamps by incineration. New machinery is being installed to macerate it. By this means five tons of high grade pulp will be salvaged every day.

CAMILLIEN HOUDE

Had 15,000 Majority.

The final returns gave Mr. Houde 62,817 ballots, and Mr. Raynault 48,104, but it was not until late in the counting that Mr. Houde was assured of victory. Earlier, the lead changed hands several times in a see-saw battle.

The total of some 111,000 ballots cast fell below the record 150,000 when Mr. Houde was elected in 1938, but the 46 per cent turnout was far ahead of the 32 per cent who cast their votes in the 1942 elections when Mr. Raynault was returned for his third term in eight years.

Mr. Raynault drew his greatest support from English-speaking districts, a circumstance which Mr. Houde noted when he spoke over a Montreal radio station (CKAC) shortly after his victory was assured.

"We may not see eye to eye now on some very important matters," he said in the English portion of his broadcast, "but the day will come when you will need Quebec's stability and Quebec's soundness for other purposes than war. I hold no bitterness and when that day comes, you will be welcome."

Logical Stand Claimed.

The mayor-elect returns to the Chief Magistrate's chair that he vacated during his fourth term when he was interned after urging residents not to comply with National Registration regulations. Much of his campaigning was to the effect that the action which led to four years of internment was a logical stand consistent with his opposition to conscription.

Mr. Houde received the election results at his St. Hubert Street home, sitting in his basement office under a framed drawing of himself in internment. Like Mr. Raynault, he made his radio address from his home, later going down to the city hall where he made another speech to the crowds gathered there.

Mr. Raynault in his radio address said he was "not beaten by my opponent but by circumstances," adding that he accepted his defeat without hard feelings and that he had had no personal desire to return to office at this time "but I agreed to run under the pressure of a great number of citizens."

Hamilton, Dec. 12 — (CP) — The Ontario Hotel Authority Board at its first local meeting yesterday granted 69 applications for hotel beverage licences, deferred 38 pending applications to dining-rooms and deferred another five because of complaints. Judge W. T. Robb said the Board was especially interested in seeing that hotels operate dining rooms.

What Sergt. Jonas Cooper (above) U. The bed was ten feet by eight feet, the dominant feature of a suite that was, the sergeant recalls, "just like the movies."

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

EXERCISE AND HEART DISEASE

There is a widespread popular notion — and from what readers say in their letters I infer that some physicians share it—that a person with heart disease must carefully avoid exercise or physical activity, lest the exertion or effort strain, damage or overtax the heart.

This is unfortunate. It is wrong. In the great majority of cases of heart disease it is injurious to the heart and to the patient's prospects. I am expressing here, not just my idea but the present consensus of medical opinion. Of course it is a question of professional opinion and not one of fact.

If I had, say, coronary thrombosis, coronary occlusion, angina pectoris, myocarditis, valvular leakage, or other serious organic disease of the heart, I might remain more or less at rest for a while, under the care of my physician, but not for long. As soon as the alarming episode, let us call it, had passed I'd resume reasonable daily activity such as strolling around the block a time or two today, around two blocks at a time or two tomorrow, around three or four blocks the next day and so on.

When I had covered my beat fairly well in that way, I'd set my course for the bowling green, every day. For the first day or two I'd just sit around kibitzing and maybe condoling the poor geeks who paid me election bets again and again—they're past all learning—but in a few days I'd begin playing.

In recent years numerous reports have appeared in medical journals, by physicians with large experience in dealing with heart disease, indicating that this general policy of graduated or gradually increasing physical activity is the best management of almost any kind of heart disease.

In a general way the best gauge of the effect such thereapeutic exercise or activity is the way you feel, that is, the way you feel physically, not your worry or imagination. If you feel all right, or better just fine after your day's activity, then you may rest assured the exercise has really done you good, your heart and your longevity.

On the other hand, if you do not feel so good after the day's activity, then it may be that you have overdone it and you should go slower or take it easy for a bit. But for goodness sake don't get fussy or alarmed about it—some of the surveys and reports above mentioned testify strongly to the fact that the heart disease patient who takes sufficient exercise regularly is likely to outlive the one who avoids all activity, exercise, work or play in the belief that it is harmful or dangerous.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Count 'em and Let 'em By

I am 5 feet three and weigh nearly 180 pounds. I have to count my calories. In order to reduce two pounds a week I suppose I have to keep my calories down to less than 900.

(Mrs. L. M. P.)

Answer — After all, what's a calory or two between meals? Don't count 'em so carefully. In the earlier weeks of a sound reducing regimen there may be little or no loss of weight but only reduction of bulk or measurements. Water retention. This is self-regulating. Send stamped pre-addressed envelope and ask for (do not use clipping) the pamphlet "How to Lose Weight."

Emergency Emetic

Please repeat the name of the quick emetic you recommended for use in case a child swallows poison.

(Mrs. C. G.)

Answer — A grain or two of copper sulphate (blue vitrol) given in a spoonful of water, works almost instantaneously. This is the right emetic dose for an infant. For older child or adult four or five grains may be given, dissolved in tablespoonful of water. If the druggist hesitates to sell you copper sulfate on the ground that it is "poison," I don't know how you can get it. Soluble one-grain tablets are supplied to ophthalmologists by manufacturers, for use in making solutions of "blue-stone" for treating eye inflammations. The U. S. Pharmacopoeia authorizes as emetic dose five grains of copper sulfate. I once used it with prompt and satisfactory result, when my own baby got hold of tablets of corrosive sublimate (bichloride or mercury) and swallowed some.

Postcard

Please send a few copies of the booklet "Save Your Teeth." I don't quite see how any person who knows so little about teeth, can write so much about them.

(......D.D.S.)

Answer — I'm sorry, Doctor, but a postcard request will not do. If you will provide a stamped envelope bearing your address I'll be glad to send a copy of the booklet.

South African Letter

Durban, South Africa, Dec. 12—(CP Cable)— An important domestic issue has arisen in South Africa regarding the position of Indians in Natal Province, as effected by three ordinances recently passed by the Natal Provincial Council.

They are the residential-property regulation ordinance, the housing ordinance and the expropriation ordinance.

The greatest exception has been taken by Indians to the residential ordinance, which provides for control by agreement between racial groups of the acquisition of fixed property everywhere in Natal. The three ordinances, in the opinion of the Natal Indian Congress, are instruments in a policy of racial zoning and segregation and in dealing with matters already covered by Union of South Africa legislation, it is contended, they conflict with Union statutes.

The Indian Congress says they are not in accord with the Pretoria agreement of last April. Drawn up at a conference of Natal officials with Indian representatives present, this was an informal agreement governing infiltration of Indians. The Congress also said the ordinances make the Natal provincial administration a dealer in land property.

In a note to the Congress, Field Marshal Smuts indicated that assent would be reserved regarding the residential ordinance. The Pegging Act—a measure passed in 1943 to halt Indians buying up property in residential areas of Durban—which is to be repealed on the passing of the ordinance will remain temporarily in force while other ways of settlement are being explored. The Prime Minister's note said the ordinance is not in accordance with the Pretoria agreement which thus is dropped and can be considered as of no further effect.

He intimated that assent will be given at an early date to the housing and expropriation ordinances and added that the government in its desire to see the "atmosphere of misunderstanding and suspicion" removed as soon as possible suggested the Indian community establish a small standing committee to improve relations between the authorities and the Indian community.

Commenting on this note, the Natal Indian Congress said the repudiation of the Pretoria agreement rests entirely on the shoulders of Field Marshal Smuts and repudiation automatically released the Congress from its share in the Pretoria agreement.

The Smuts' note added that as the Pretoria agreement failed in its object, it has become necessary to explore a settlement along other lines.

CANADA'S ECONOMIC POSITION

S. H. Logan, President, and S. M. Wedd, General Manager, The Canadian Bank of Commerce, Show Requirements for Prosperity

Banking Service Improved by New Bank Act

At the Annual Meeting of the Shareholders of The Canadian Bank of Commerce, held in the Head Office of the Bank in the City of Toronto December 12th Mr. S. H. Logan, President, and Mr. S. M. Wedd, General Manager, presented the Annual Statement of the Bank's operations in the past year, together with a review of Business Conditions. Mr. Logan's address to the meeting follows:

Attention is now being directed to the reconversion of our productive machine from war to peace, but it is necessary to plan carefully, yet with imagination, to avoid the dislocation to the national life which might result from too precipitate action. This task, or series of tasks, will not be achieved without considerable care and foresight on the part both of Government and of business, and by effective co-operation on the part of all our citizens.

RECENT FEDERAL LEGISLATION

As you know, the Bank Act came before Parliament this year for decennial revision. Preliminary to its discussion in the House of Commons the Banking and Commerce Committee of the House thoroughly reviewed the Act as it stood and gave full consideration to various amendments which were suggested. Many of these were proposed by the Government with the purpose of enabling the banks to serve more efficiently the credit needs of the public and of broadening the lines upon which the banks may assist the trade and industry of the Dominion, both during the period of transition from war to peace and afterwards.

In addition to this decennial revision certain important ancillary legislation was also enacted. The Industrial Development Bank was established as a subsidiary to the Bank of Canada with the object of assisting new as well as existing enterprises, particularly those of small or moderate size to obtain intermediate and long-term credit.

NATIONAL HOUSING ACT

Movements of population during the past few years necessitated by the exigencies of war production have brought into sharp relief the housing problems of this country. The Government has already taken steps to alleviate as far as possible the shortage in some districts, but a wider programme is contemplated according to the wording of the National Housing Act.

FARM IMPROVEMENT LOANS ACT

Of a somewhat similar character are the loans which may be made by any bank under the Farm Improvement Loans Act, the purpose of which is to ensure intermediate and short-term credit being more readily available to farmers for the purchase of implements and equipment as well as the construction and improvement of buildings, fences and drainage works.

POST-WAR RECONSTRUCTION

It is trite perhaps to point out that almost all economic discussion covering the future begins with a statement concerning the need for high levels of production and employment. This objective in effect suggests a counterpart—a relatively higher overall standard of living. The one cannot be achieved without the other.

The tasks of recasting the productive machinery cannot—must not—be underestimated. Reconversion will not be automatic nor can it be viewed as simply a change of heart. The tasks ahead will neither be simple nor easy and this fact should condition us to a willingness to co-operate according each to his ability. Consequently policies being formulated for post-war economic activity are bound to have a marked influence for some time to come and therefore become a matter of present concern.

In keeping with the policy of control against inflation, excess profits taxes and individual taxes have played an important role. While no time limit is suggested for repeal or revision, having regard for the possible need for inflation control during the early stages of transition, it is clear that obstacles discouraging to investment in productive enterprise materially hamper the business expansion which has been mentioned and, of course, adversely affect maximum employment.

FOREIGN TRADE

A year ago I laid great emphasis on Canada's international trade. Canada to-day is not exporting in the ordinary sense of the term. Much is being sent to armed forces in every theatre of war, but we are not trading.

As producers of primary products from our farms, forests and mines, we know that we are dependent upon and will continue to be dependent upon the markets of the world for the consumption of such goods upon which much of our prosperity rests. Our production capacity has been increased far beyond the present needs of our own people, and in any plans for post-war reconstruction we must bear in mind that for full consumption of many of our products we must have access to world markets and that we must develop such markets.

When our future manufacturing policy is considered cognizance must be taken of the fact that these outside markets cannot be neglected at the start and picked up afterwards. Our markets abroad must be cultivated from the outset if they are to be developed in the future.

War tends to make countries more self-sustaining, which means, in effect, that they are forced of necessity to depend more and more upon themselves. This makes it all the more difficult for Canada to expand her foreign trade.

On the other hand, in addition to primary products it must be remembered that this country has during this war developed a technical skill for the making of many kinds of chemicals, manufactured articles, utilities and appliances heretofore undreamed of, and in the last analysis that must have its effect in a most substantial way upon what Canada can produce and export in the future.

While we in Canada can produce in our own country many of our necessities and luxuries and while trade within our own borders will always be an important factor in our national economy, international trade has been and must be a part of our economic fabric if there is to be achieved full employment, worthy standards of living, and the prospect of a comfortable old age which all of us would so greatly like to see.

Such a fortunate condition of our national life cannot be brought about by Government paternalism or by Government action alone. For its realization there must be not only foresight and thoughtful consideration by all of us but understanding and toleration between our rural and our urban people, and harmonious co-operation between employers and employees.

The results will not be achieved by following the theories of radical reformers or by the formation of a multiplicity of political parties from which can emerge only national and economic weakness or impotence—a fact which has been demonstrated very plainly in other countries. There must be a unity of purpose between the people of all parts of Canada, unmarred by emotional or other prejudice if we are to attain the ultimate ideal of a free, happy, contented and prosperous people.

GENERAL MANAGER'S ADDRESS

The assets of the Bank reached a new record at $1,178,647,000 at the close of its fiscal year on 31st October, an increase of $175,463,000 over the previous year. Quick assets at $903,780,000, of which $191,898,000 was in cash reserves, were 80.2 per cent of the Bank's liabilities to the public. Holdings of short-term securities include $254,385,000 of Certificates of Deposit issued by the Dominion Government to cover war expenditures pending tax and loan receipts. Longer-term Government securities totalled $226,328,000, an increase of $78,850,000. Current loans in Canada declined $13,708,000, reflecting a reduction in borrowers' inventories. Deposits by the public continued to rise to a total of $1,029,000,000. The number of deposit accounts rose to 1,219,000, 97 per cent of which were held by individuals.

The more experienced members continue to bear the responsibility of instructing the large proportion of the staff who had had little or no previous training. Women employees now constitute 57 per cent of the total, as compared with 21 per cent in 1939. Members of the staff numbering 1,679 have joined the armed forces, of whom 175 have been casualties. The Bank is proud of its personnel in the service and looks forward to welcoming them back in the not distant future.

Every effort is being made to expand the service of the Bank, particularly to small borrowers, and actively to offer the Bank's loaning facilities to every credit-worthy citizen.

BUSINESS CONDITIONS

One of the most significant economic developments this year is the physical expansion and improvement of the merchandising and industrial equipment of Canada.

New warehouses, factories, stores, etc., as well as extensions and alterations to existing establishments, undertaken during the past twelve months involve expenditures of over $75,000,000. The amount for industrial projects, about $50,000,000, is almost half as large again as in 1943.

There was an over-all increase in industrial activity of about 7 per cent., of 10 per cent. in domestic trade and of about 40,000 people in civilian occupations.

The crop outturns, close to the record harvest of 1942, were not altogether the result of a favourable growing season. They also represent, as does the high output of live stock products, a most strenuous effort on the part of the farmers of this country. How strenuous this effort was can be judged by the fact that a total agricultural production about one-third above the pre-war average was achieved with an agricultural working population at least 25 per cent. below average.

The Bank has been fully employed in every phase of this great annual output of goods and services and at the present time, as our figures will indicate, is in an excellent position to co-operate in serving the future credit needs of the Dominion.

Japanese Forces Expelled From Kweichow Prov.

Chungking, Dec. 12 (AP)—Japanese forces have been expelled from Kweichow Province and driven back over the Kwangsi border, the Chinese high command announced tonight.

Earlier, the Chinese said one of two Japanese forces invading Kweichow had been swept back across the border by forces of Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek which recaptured Liuchai, just over the border in Kwangsi.

This action left only the enemy column along the Yuyun-Ishan trail to be dealth with.

The Chinese continued advancing toward Antan, on the Kwangsi-Kweichow railway about 17 miles beyond Liuchai. Less than two weeks ago the now-battered Japanese were driving into Kweichow toward the Burma Road stronghold of Kweiyang. The Chinese announced that Hsiasu, a railroad town 12 miles from the Kwangsi border, had been retaken.

The deepest penetration of the Japanese was to within 70 miles of Kweiyang, a potential springboard for drives on Kunming, 300 miles southwest, or Chungking, 300 miles northwest.

Formerly pessimistic quarters here now believe the Chinese might be able to withstand any full-scale invasion of Kweichow and some predict the Japanese chance to take Kweiyang or Kunming has been lost.

300 on Board Ship When Sunk

London, Dec. 12 —(CP Cable)— The Press Association Monday carried a story of the torpedoing of the steamship Nerissa off Ireland in 1941, containing some previously unreported details of the sinking in which one of those lost was Sam Robertson, London Superintendent of The Canadian Press.

The Press Association said there were about 300 on board, 114 of them members of the crew, and the passengers included a number of civilians some of whom were crossing on government work.

Survivors were landed at Londonderry by a destroyer which picked them up after they had been in lifeboats 10 hours. They spoke of the ruthlessness of the submarine's attack since no warning was given.

Some time after the torpedoing it was announced that 34 passengers and 84 of the crew were lost while 35 were saved, including 22 wounded.

Rumor Denied But Persists Franco Resigned

Paris, Dec. 12 — (CP-Reuter) — While Paris newspaper reports that Gen. Franco, dictator of Spain, had resigned were officially denied during the weekend in Spain, Miguel Maura, former Republican minister of the Interior, told Reuter that news from Madrid confirmed the report of Franco's resignation.

Maura — who, other reports say, is leaving for the Spanish frontier—added that he was prepared to form a transitional government meanwhile. In an attack on Franco in a broadcast from Paris Monday, the French commentator, Henri Benazet, said the dictator, seeing that his regime was shaken to the roots, was pinning his last hopes to a monarchist restoration, calculating that Great Britain — "that nostalgic lover of vanished thrones" — would give her support.

Calling Franco's regime "the reign of an inquisition," Benazet declared that "the vainness and even indecency of any such a scheme are evident to anyone who remembers Franco's past."

Later the happy couple left on a wedding trip to Gravenhurst and points north.

On their return, they will reside at the groom's home at Boulter, Ontario.

Winter Means Nothing to Salads; At Home in Menus During All Seasons

By LAURA C. PEPPER
Chief, Consumer Section,
Dominion Dept. of Agriculture

Salads know no season. They are at home in menus the year around. Our neighbors to the south frequently serve a salad of fruit or vegetables at the beginning of a meal as an appetizer and this custom is growing in popularity among Canadians. Such a salad should be small, simple and tasty but not sweet.

A salad used as a garnish with a main dish should be colorful, well seasoned and small in size. As a main dish accompaniment a simple green salad or a combination of raw vegetables is ideal.

Main dish salads should contain some protein food such as eggs, meat, cheese, fish or chicken to give the salad body. Servings will, of course, be larger and there should be generous servings of a good dressing. Most people prefer a cooked or mayonnaise dressing with this type of salad and the lighter French dressing with salads served as appetizers or accompaniments to the main course.

A fruit salad is often the perfect answer to the dessert problem and artistic arrangement of such a salad should make it a picture to look at as well as a treat to eat.

Salad Pointers.

The home economists of the Consumer Section of the Dominion Department of Agriculture give pointers for successful salad making.

—No damp, tired looking salads, please! Thorough drying and crisping of all raw ingredients and thorough draining of cooked ones take care of this point.

—Don't cut ingredients in pieces so small that they lose their personality and, contrariwise, don't leave them in pieces so large that they are difficult to eat. Raw vegetables should be cut smaller than cooked ones and may be coarsely grated. Salad greens should be torn or broken rather than cut.

—The celery you put into a potato salad is equally important for the texture contrast it supplies as for its flavor. Use at least one crisp raw ingredient in any combination of cooked foods.

—Don't be subtle in your use of those two invaluable flavorers, onion and garlic. Onion juice, obtained by scraping the cut surface of the onion with the edge of a knife, and mixed with the salad ingredients or the dressing spreads the flavor delicately and evenly. Garlic needs to be used with great discretion. A light rubbing of the salad bowl with the cut surface or a cut clove of garlic dropped into French dressing and later removed is the right technique.

—When fish, meat or cooked vegetables are used, the whole salad is given a lift if these ingredients are marinated separately in a little French dressing for an hour or so before being combined with the other ingredients.

—The mixing of a salad calls for a light hand and should be done by tossing with two forks, not by stirring with a spoon which breaks up or mashes the ingredients.

Salad Accompaniments

When the salad is served as a separate course the proper accompaniment adds to its importance. Some good ones are:

—Crisp crackers sprinkled with grated cheese and paprika and placed under the broiler for a moment.

—Melba toast.

—Cheese straws.

—Hot tea biscuits, plain or cheese.

—Hot muffins; plain, bacon, cheese, tomato, corn or bran.

Colorful Christmas Salads

—Jellied Beet or Cranberry salad with garnish of parsley or cress.

—Apple and Celery Salad with some of the red skin left on the apple; garnish with green pepper and cranberries.

—Moulded cabbage salad in green tinted jelly. Pour a little of the gelatin mixture into lightly greased moulds and arrange sliced cranberries to form a wreath. Allow to set before adding cabbage and the rest of the gelatine mixture.

—Add chili sauce to mayonnaise or cooked dressing and use on plain cabbage or heart of lettuce salad.

French Dressings and Variations

¼ cup vinegar
¾ cup salad oil
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
Dash of pepper
½ teaspoon dry mustard.

Place all ingredients in a jar with a tight fitting lid. Shake until thick and creamy looking. Store in a cold place. Shake well before each using.

Variations: to ½ cup of dressing add one of the following, blending thoroughly.

Peanut Butter Dressing: 3 tablespoons peanut butter. Use on cabbage or carrot salad.

Cranberry Dressing: 3 tablespoons cranberry sauce.

Cheese Dressing: 3 tablespoons grated dry cheese. Use on vegetable salad.

Mincemeat Dressing: 3 tablespoons mincemeat. Use on lettuce or other greens.

BOYS WANTED MICE

Waterloo, Dec. 12 (CP)—A waterloo resident who decided to give away six pet white mice because he had no winter accommodation for them, inserted an ad with startling results. He was deluged with telephone calls and became dizzy with answering the doorbell as numerous boys anxiously asked if they could get them.

The War Today—

Idea of Nazi Counter-Offensive Is Still Largely Brain-Child

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press War Analyst.)

Word from London that Germany is reported getting set to launch a counter-offensive in 1945—if the report is substantiated—that she has real hopes of standing off for a considerable period any wholesale Allied invasion.

It must be admitted that the way the tides of fortune have been favoring the enemy on the western front provides some basis for their hope that they may be able to continue their delaying actions for a time. Foul weather, floods and mud—plus Allied transportation problems—have done for the Germans what their military skill couldn't have done with the badly knocked-about war machine at their disposal.

Naturally the longer the Germans are able to keep an all-out Allied offensive from maturing, the better will be their chances of getting ready for a counter-blow in the New Year. More young school-boys will have got big enough and strong enough to be flung into Hitler's melting-pot—for mere children are dying for Hitler these days. Vital supplies like synthetic oil and gasoline may be replenished somewhat.

The reports received in London from many sources seem to concern the development of "secret" weapons—improved flying bombs and rocket bombs, and a submarine equipped with radical new devices for underwater breathing. This leads to the thought that the projected counter-drive will revolve largely about these inventions. In other words it will be a long-range counter-offensive which they even hope to make effective in some degree against North America.

Of course the idea of a German counter-offensive is still largely a brain-child. Whether it comes off, and the extent of its success, depends on the development of the Allied offensives, both in western and eastern Europe. A stretch of fair and cold weather, to clear the skies for flying and freeze the earth for military movement, might easily knock the Nazi dream into a cocked hat.

It behooves us to remember, however, that the German is still dangerous.

DIRECTING CHINA'S WAR EFFORT

This photo, showing Marshal Chiang Kai-Shek with his troops, is one of the most recent of the man who has directed the destinies of China for the past 88 years. Headlines tell of the Marshal's appointment of T. V. Soong as Premier of China, an appointment which leaves the Marshal free to devote all his efforts to war tasks. Furthermore, it is noted that Soong, brother of Mme. Chiang, is moderate towards China's Communists with whom Chiang has been at loggerheads. This photo is from Time's "Inside China."

Canada Needs International Trade After War to Maintain Employment Says Pres. of Bank of Commerce

Banking Service Broadened to Meet More Efficiently Public Requirements

Toronto, Dec. 12 — S. H. Logan, President of The Canadian Bank of Commerce, said in addressing the Bank's Annual Meeting today that international trade must be part of Canada's economic fabric if full employment and worthy standards of living are to be achieved. Such a fortunate condition could not be brought about by Government paternalism or by Government action alone. For its realization there must be not only foresight and thoughtful consideration by all but understanding and toleration between our rural and urban people, and harmonious co-operation between employers and employees. The results will not be achieved by following the theories of radical reformers or by the formation of a multiplicity of political parties from which can emerge only national and economic weakness or impotence — a fact which has been demonstrated very plainly in other countries. There must be a unity of purpose between the people of all parts of Canada, unmarred by emotional or other prejudices if the ultimate ideal of a free, happy, contented and prosperous people is to be attained.

Must Plan Carefully

"Attention is now being directed", Mr. Logan said, "to the reconversion of our productive machine from war to peace, but it is necessary to plan carefully, yet with imagination, to avoid the dislocation to the national life which might result from too precipitate action. Within recent months a number of changes and additions have been made in national policies indicating, on the part of the Government, recognition of the problems ahead of us. At the same time this recognition and accompanying action have for a long time had the attention of business men everywhere."

Amendments to the Bank Act last summer enabled the banks to serve more efficiently the credit needs of the public and to broaden the lines upon which the banks may assist the trade and industry of the Dominion, both during the period of transition from war to peace and afterwards. The Industrial Development Bank was established as a subsidiary to the Bank of Canada with the object of assisting new as well as existing enterprises, particularly those of small or moderate size to obtain intermediate and long-term credit. Under the National Housing Act, passed to alleviate the housing shortage, the chartered banks had an important part to play in making home improvement loans. Of a somewhat similar character are the loans which may be made by any bank under the Farm Improvement Loans Act, the purpose of which is to ensure intermediate and short-term credit being more readily available to farmers for the purchase of implements and equipment as well as the construction and improvement of buildings, fences and drainage works.

Cultivate World Markets

Mr. Logan pointed out that Canada was not exporting today in the ordinary sense of the term, for in sending over half of her production abroad for war purposes she was not trading. Productive capacity had been increased far beyond the present needs of Canadian people and access to world markets must be had for full consumption of many products. Outside markets could not be neglected at the start and picked up afterwards. They must be cultivated from the outset if they were to be developed in the future.

Great Physical Expansion

S. M. Wedd, General Manager of the bank, said that one of the most significant economic developments this year was the physical expansion and improvement of the merchandising and industrial equipment of Canada. New warehouses, factories, stores, etc., as well as extensions and alterations to existing establishments, undertaken during the past twelve months involved expenditures of over $75,000,000. The amount for industrial projects, about $50,000,000, was almost half as large again as in 1943.

S. H. Logan, President Canadian Bank of Commerce, who addressed the Bank's annual meeting today.

Total assets of the Bank on 31st October reached a new high level, $1,178,647,000, of which over $900,000,000 were quick assets, mainly cash, notes of, cheques on and balances with other banks and high-grade securities. Deposits by the public were again substantially increased, and totalled $1,029,000,000. The number of accounts also showed a healthy growth and now aggregated 1,219,000. The accounts of individuals made up 97 per cent of this total. Mr. Wedd said efforts were being continued to broaden the number of accounts carried with the Bank, not only deposit accounts but borrowing accounts as well, and to give every consideration to the needs of the small borrower. It was the policy actively to offer the loaning facilities of the Bank to every credit-worthy citizen.

Wellington, New Zealand, Dec. 12 (CP)—New Zealand would consider sympathetically any plan for the migration of British war orphans here, Prime Minister Fraser told the House of Representatives today. He said New Zealand has opened discussions of the matter with the British government.

S. African Troops Only 500 Yards From Sawegying

Kandy, Ceylon, Dec. 12 (CP-Reuter)—Moving swiftly down the Kalewayuen road in their drive towards Mandalay, East African troops were today only 500 yards from Sawegying, in the Chindwin sector of western Burma.

Sawegying, less than 200 miles from Mandalay itself, was their first important objective in this thrust.

At the same time, far to the northeast, units of the British 36th division—the division which captured Indaw—after consolidating their positions were sending out patrols near Katha, farther east, before resuming their march on Mandalay.

The occupation of Indaw—on the railway between Myitkyina and Mandalay—means that the 36th division had advanced nearly 100 miles since it set out from near Mogaung Aug. 1.

De Marigny and Wife Are Leaving Havana

Havana, Dec. 12 —(AP)— Alfred De Marigny and his wife, the former Nancy Oakes, are leaving Havana, where they found refuge after he was forced to leave Nassau, Bahamas, under the threat of deportation a year ago.

De Marigny, acquitted in Nassau last year of a charge of murder in connection with the death of his father-in-law, Sir Harry Oakes, wealthy Canadian mining magnate, will go to London, where he hopes his wife will join him in the spring. He was denied a visa to enter the United States.

Mrs. De Marigny left yesterday for Palm Beach, Fla., to visit her mother, Lady Oakes. She plans to go from there to New York for a stay of several months. De Marigny said he hopes to engage in war work in London. Born in the British colony of Mauritius, he is a British subject.

Allies Determined To Continue Bombing Of Military Targets

London, Dec. 12 (CP)—The Allies are determined to concentrate on bombing German military targets despite Nazi robot and rocket raids on England, Foreign Secretary Eden said today.

He made this clear after one member of the House of Commons called on Prime Minister Churchill to give the Nazis the same warning about V-weapon attacks that he gave in 1942 when he threatened retaliation if the Germans used gas.

"The principle on which our targets in Germany are selected is that of destroying as quickly as possible Germany's power to wage war," said Mr. Eden. "There really is no comparison between what they are able to do to us and what we are doing to them."

New Baseball Commissioner Likely To Be Named Before Start of New Baseball Season

Incumbent Will Not be Given Wide Powers Enjoyed by Landis

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

New York, Dec. 12 (AP)—The promptness with which Major League club owners set up an advisory council providing for the continuance of a commissioner led veteran baseball observers to believe today the game will again be under a one-man rule before the start of a new season.

While this does not mean the owners will hurry the selection of a new commissioner, yesterday's action indicated immediate tackling of the problem of finding the right man.

A special eight-man committee, four from each league, will be appointed to work on a new Major League agreement (the former pact of 24-year standing was terminated yesterday) stressing the provision of a new commissioner.

This committee, appointed by the league presidents, is expected to make a report by February.

It is believed the new agreement will be streamlined, clarifying certain hazy rules, and will deny the new commissioner some of the wide powers granted to the late K. M. Landis.

Meanwhile, baseball will be governed by the advisory council comprised of Will Harridge, President of the American League, Ford Frick, National League head, and Leslie M. O'Connor, Secretary-Treasurer under Judge Landis, who will act as chairman.

The council will operate with all the powers and duties of the commissioner as provided by the Major League agreement of 1921.

Today's separate National and American League meetings deal with the amendments handed to them by the Minor Leagues with the draft and territorial problems the most important. The minors want a 33 1-3 per cent increase in the draft price and the right for any Minor League Club to take over the franchise of any Major League team which intends to invade said team's territory.

The question of pro football interfering with the baseball schedule will also be discussed as will the number of night games to be played.

The two leagues voted to establish a Landis award to be presented to the most valuable players of each league. The players will be selected by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Frick, whose four-year term as National League President expired yesterday, was re-elected for four years, with Sam Breadon, President of St. Louis Cardinals, named Vice-President for a one-year term. Clark Griffith, Washington head, was elected Vice President of the American League for one year. year.

Cowley Is Still Atop the N.H.L. Scoring Race

Montreal, Dec. 12 — (CP) — Bill Cowley is still atop the National Hockey League scoring race in official figures released today, after recovering from a drop that put him temporarily into second spot in unofficial tabulations during the week.

The great Boston centre picked up a goal and three assists during the week-end to run his total to 29 points on 10 goals and 19 assists. That put him three points up on Canadiens' Toe Blake who was idle on the week-end.

Clint Smith of Chicago, Toronto's Gus Bodnar and Elmer Lach of Canadiens were locked in a three-way tie for third spot, each eight points behind Cowley with 21.

Richard continued as goal leader with 15, two more than team-mate Blake. Cowley was out in front in assists with 19, two more than Lach and Bodnar. Nobody seriously threatened Pat Egan's title of penalty king, with the Boston defenceman well out in front with 38 minutes in minors and majors.

Ten penalties showed Toronto in front with a total of 131 minutes.

Bill Durnan of Canadiens continued to hold the lowest goals-against average with a percentage of 2.375 per game.

New York, Dec. 12 — (AP)—Baseball's switch to a three-man commission form of government means that every player contract (in the majors at least) has to be revised. It will be done by a "rider" changing references to the commissioner.

Toronto, Dec. 12 — (CP) — It almost looks as though the National Hockey League has solved the problem of how to maintain itself in a president in the style to which it was accustomed. Now that Red Dutton has been drafted again, apparently against his will or better judgment or something of that nature, chances are this thing can go on forever.

If the governors can just persuade the Red to stay in his post for a few months each time he tries to get out of it, eventually he will peer out from behind his whiskers and realize it's been a lifetime job after all.

Not that there would be anything wrong with that, since nearly every one is agreed Dutton would be the best can for the job, if he would stay, if he wouldn't be interfered with too much, if, etc.

It might work, too, if (there we go again) the critics would still their talk of finding a new man for the post. Like that recent speech made by Art Ross of Boston Bruins, before he told Dutton he evidently had been "misquoted."

New, boys!

All barriers seem to have been dropped in the Montreal amateur hockey kingdom. Verdun Royals of the Montreal League have challenged Valleyfield Braves of the interprovincial loop to a sudden-death game, with a side bet of $500. Wright Cyclones, another Montreal area team, also is willing to put up $500 for each game it can get with interprovincial teams. There was a time when the amateur hockey fathers would have been deeply and publicly offended by such goings-on.

Lionel Conacher thinks amateurism is a dead pigeon and any idea of maintaining such a fiction in the Olympic Games should be scrapped, says Andy (Toronto Star) Lytle. Brown has done big things for Boston in the sport world, sponsored the American Olympic hockey teams, and generally is in the know . . .

DAVE CASTILLOUX SUFFERS FIRST K.O. OF CAREER

Montreal Boxer Knocked Out in Fifth Round by Ike Williams

Buffalo, N.Y., Dec. 12 — (CP) — Dave Castilloux of Montreal suffered the first knockout of his ring career here last night when a flurry of punishing punches in the fifth round won a T.K.O. decision for Ike Williams of Trenton, N.J. Castilloux weighed 135 1/2, Williams 135.

Castilloux — who claimed he had never been knocked down, let alone out—was still on his feet when the finish came at 1:53 of the fifth round of a scheduled 10-rounder, but he was bleeding from the mouth, nose and left cheek as referee Luke Carr stepped in to award the fight to Williams.

Williams won the first, second, fourth and fifth rounds with the 3rd a split.

In the semi-final, Cliff Beckett, 154 1/2, of Sudbury, Ont., scored a technical knockout over Clyde Miller, 154, of New York City in 1:55 of the second stanza. Beckett dominated the action all the way, swinging hard and often. He climaxed the victory with a roundhouse right to Miller's head.

QUEBEC TO HAVE TWO DEFENDERS OF ALLAN CUP

Senior League Has Ironed Out Difficulties With Amateur Association

Montreal, Dec. 12 —(CP)— Quebec Province, which for a time thought it might not have any league from which to glean a defender for the Allan Cup next spring, now appears destined to have two.

The Quebec Senior Hockey League, whose Quebec Aces are present Allan Cup holders, has smoothed over its differences with the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and will be the main contender as the province's senior representative.

In addition, the interprovincial circuit is operating with a success that leaves little doubt that it will produce a challenger to meet the Q.S.H.L. champs for the provincial senior honors.

Quebec Aces and Montreal Royals are making a straight two-way fight out of the Q.S.H.L. race, and will continue to do so unless Ottawa Commandos and Hull Volants are strengthened. Aces and Royals are locked for leadership at the moment with 10 points each, with Ottawa trailing with five and Hull bringing up the rear.

Valleyfield Braves are out in front in a well-balanced interprovincial league, with seven wins, three losses and two draws to date. Shawinigan Cataracts, Cornwall Flyers and Lachine are trailing in that order, with only seven points separating the first and last teams in the loop.

The Montreal Junior Amateur Hockey Association will again carry the torch for Quebec in the Memorial Cup race. Canadiens are out in front at the moment, with Royals in second place.

STAFFORDS PULL OFF FIRST WIN IN SENIOR RACE

Defeat St. Catharines Saints 8-0 and Were That Much Better

By The Canadian Press

Staffords pulled off their first win in five starts by inflicting an 8-0 defeat on St. Catharines Saints in a one-sided senior O.H.A. fixture on Toronto ice last night. The reverse kept the visitors one point below the league-leading Hamilton Majors who are only two points ahead of the Toronto tail-enders, so it's still anybody's race.

The Torontos led 2-0 in the first period, doubled the total in the second and re-doubled their count in the final frame. Strongman figured as the scoring ace with three goals.

In the O.H.A. junior "A" series, Galt Red Wings walloped Recreationists 14-5 at Port Colborne to go into a tie with Oshawa Generals for third place, four points behind St. Michaels and St. Catharines Falcons. This was the third victory for Galt in six starts.

Raymond Mayer pulled off a nifty for Galt when he scored three goals and had assists on two others, all in the third period. Joe Krompotich of the Red Wings also added five points to his season's marks with three goals and two assists but these were scattered throughout. Matheson of Ports was the most effective man against Galt in earning three out of Recs' five counters, the others going to Cunningham and D. Stewart.

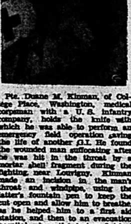
SAVES A LIFE



Pte. Duane M. Kinman, of College Place, Washington, medical corpsman with a U.S. infantry company, holds the knife with which he was able to perform an emergency field operation saving the life of another G.I. He found the wounded man suffocating after he was hit in the throat by a mortar shell fragment during the fighting near Louvigny. Kinman made an incision in the man's throat and windpipe, using the latter's fountain pen to keep the cut open and allow him to breathe, as he helped him to a first aid station, and then to an evacuation hospital, where the doctors finished the operation and the man's life was saved.

Fatal Delay

Donovan had done some work for the local squire, who was so pleased that he asked him if he would like a drop of whisky.

"Yes, sorr," said Donovan.

"Hot or cold?" asked the squire.

"Cold, sir," was the answer. "I'll never have any more hot whisky as long as I live."

"That's funny," replied the squire. "What makes you say that?"

"Well, you see, sorr, it's like this," answered Donovan. "The other night I had a drame, and in the drame a man asked me to have a drop of whisky, and he asked whether I'd have it hot or cold. I said 'hot', and believe it or not, sorr, while the kettle was boiling I woke up.

Election Promises.

Here's an open letter to the majority of the members of the 1945 Belleville City Council.

In his immortal poem—"The Cremation of Sam Magee"—Robert W. Service used these words—"a promise made is a debt unpaid." And that is exactly the position some of our city aldermen will find themselves in at the 1945 council inauguration.

We followed with exacting interest and attention the election platforms of many seeking municipal office on Dec. 4th. And that goes from Mayor-elect Frank Follwell right down to the last alderman. Some were more explicit and used election planks in their campaign to assure the electors that something should be done in Belleville regarding the matter of civic playgrounds.

Well, we are pleased to be able to report that a majority of the 1945 council either made such promises on a public platform, in advertising or on the public streets. So to those who were of the opinion civic playground conditions should have been improved prior to the election, the kiddies now say "a promise made is a debt unpaid."

Such statements resembling these were publicly heard:

"This city needs better playgrounds for our children."

"We need a centre where children can enjoy good healthful recreation away from the environment of juvenile delinquency."

"Other cities have free skating rinks, why not Belleville?"

"Give our kiddies the proper recreational facilities and we can dispense with juvenile courts."

These, and other similar statements were made prior to our recent civic election, let's hope they won't be forgotten like the usual run-of-the-mill election promises of the past.

(A good time to start would be with the open air rinks the city has promised the kiddies for 1945.)

Clear the Decks.

S. R. "Sandy" Burrows, O.H.A. executive member and convener of group No. 2 in the Junior O.H.A. for 1945, announced today the group would convene at the Hume Arena over next weekend.

"There seems to be a general trend towards the revival of junior hockey all over the province. Why in our district alone we'll have the largest junior group seen in many years. We all know that transportation problems are difficult, but apparently the junior clubs have solved this question as our association is flooded with junior applications for affiliation," revealed Mr. Burrows. Junior teams already affiliated include Tweed, Stirling-Madoc, Trenton; Belleville, Campbellford and Hastings in group No. 2, bringing the roster up to six clubs.

Yesterday Manager Walt Gerow started flooding the ice surface at the Hume Arena with satisfactory results. The frost had penetrated the ground over the weekend and if weather conditions are suitable for continued ice making the Hume Arena should be open for skating before Christmas, so get the old blades out and sharpened.

Remember When.

Nels Stewart, veteran hockey battler of another era, ended a brief retirement period five years ago tonight by scoring a goal for the New York Americans exactly fifteen seconds after stepping onto the ice for his first N.H.L. game of the year. It was the 318th goal of his career. However, he finally retired for good the next season.

Int. Loop Record.

Only one perfect nine-inning contest has ever been hurled in the International League, and that was recorded by a Buffalo flinger.

The tilt took place at West Side Park, Jersey City, August 9, 1910, with Chester Carmichael, husky Bison righthander, keeping the Jerseys at bay as he bested Rube Kissinger, 1 to 0.

Two perfect seven-inning fracases have also been entered in International League annals, the most recent by another former Buffalo favorite—Bill Harris, against Toronto, June 3, 1936. The other abbreviated fray in which no one qualified as a base-runner was hurled by Southpaw Jack Frill of Jersey City against Providence, July 6, 1912.

Dave Schriner Sadly Missed By Maple Leafs

By The Canadian Press

Coach Clarence Hap Day of the Toronto Maple Leafs probably will look on November 18 as one of the sorriest nights for his team in the 1944-45 National Hockey League campaign.

That was the night Dave (Sweeney) Schriner from Calgary body-checked a goal post and put himself out of action for six weeks. When Sweeney headed for the hospital, Leafs were leading the league with a one-point edge over Montreal Canadiens. They had won seven games (counting the one in which Schriner was injured) and had lost only two.

Since then they've slipped back into a second-place tie with Detroit Red Wings and in seven games have won only three and lost four.

Schriner, 31-year-old left-wing smoothie, appeared to be on his way to a new N.H.L. goal record when he was injured. He had scored 11 goals in nine games and had six assists as well. He was making a striking comeback after a one-year absence from the game. He'll be missing from the Toronto lineup until the new year at least.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 535
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Try your luck with this bridge hand:

♠ A K Q J 10 8
♥ K Q 9 3
♦ 7 4 2
♣ None

This is to be the beginning of a new deal. The hand you see is held by the dealer. Say you are the dealer.

There is no question in your mind as to which suit you will bid first. You will, of course, first show the spade suit. Even a pinochle player would have to agree with you there.

But if you get another chance to bid, which suit would you bid next? Would you show the heart suit next? Or would you rebid the spade suit before mentioning the hearts?

When one suit is only one card longer than the other, bid the longer once, then the shorter, then the longer again. When one suit is at least two cards longer, bid it twice before showing the shorter.

Therefore, you would first bid spades. On the next round, you would bid spades again. On the third round, you would bid hearts. Partner then knows you have six spades and four hearts.

That gives your partner a chance to work with you. He counts the cards he holds in each of your suits. Then he adds them to the number of cards you say you have in each suit.

With that, he is able to decide what should be the final trump suit for your pair. And it is his duty to tell you which is the best combined trump suit.

Could be your partner has two spades and four hearts. If so, he sees eight cards in each. In other words, he would then know your pair has the same number of cards in each.

With the same number in each, prefer as trumps the suit most evenly divided in both hands. So, he would insist on having you make hearts the final trump suit.

Lone Wolf, please copy.

Errol Flynn will be supported by ten women in "Don Juan." Looks as though he is starting to trade on his publicity . . . Maurice Chevalier has been cleared of being a collaborationist. Seems that he didn't sing willingly for the Nazis. But Danielle Darieux, who was reported innocent of the same charges, is in trouble again, it having been discovered that she made films under Nazi auspices. . . . Our next "Tugboat Annie" will be Jane Darwell and Edgar Kennedy will undertake the role Wallace Beery made famous . . . Macey's New York department store, advertises perfumed writing paper as "Signed, Scent and Delivered" and a certain brand of diapers as "Pee Wee" . . . Because of the fag shortage in the states those ciggies you see being smoked in night club scenes are stuffed with sawdust. Ugh!

NO TRACE OF CREW

Montreal, Dec. 12 (CP)—A plane which crashed into the waters of Northumberland Strait off Prince Edward Island Sunday night was a Mosquito bomber of the R.A.F. transport command, it was learned last night. The car ferry Prince Edward Island later found wreckage of the plane but no trace of the two-man crew.

SHELVED VOTE

Washington, Dec. 12 (AP)—Heeding advice of the state department, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee yesterday shelved by a 12-8 vote a resolution advocating unrestricted entry of Jews to Palestina. The department said passage of such resolutions now would be unwise from standpoint of the International situation.

Little Benny's Note Book

My sister Gladdis and Harvey came over to play bridge last night, Gladdis saying, We're just in time to hear Glen Gluster's show, you know who's going to be his guest star tonight, dont you mother?

Of course, Phil Arkins, ma said. Isn't it killing how those two never weary of insulting each other? she said.

And she quick turned on the radio, and Glen Gluster was just saying to, Phil Arkins, Well, Phil, fancy seeing you on my program, even though I was polite enough to invite you against my better judgement. And congradulations, Phil, I heard you were thinner than ever, but I really believe you're taking on weight. I wouldn't be surprised if you tipped the scales at about 85, he said, and Phil Arkins said, Oh well, we cant all be pleasingly plump like you, Glen. Speaking of tipping the scales, I heard you tipped them right through the drug-store window the last time you tried to way yourself, he said.

And after the program pop said, Yee gods, all the comedians on the air seem to spend their entire time knocking one another.

Of course, that's what makes them so funny, ma said, and Gladdis said, Well naturally.

Maybe there's something to that, Harvey, let's try it, pop said. I'll bet my wife is crazier over bridge than yours is. Why, would you believe it, she shuffles the toast every morning and insists on dealing everybody 13 slices. You never saw anything like the crumbs on our breakfast room table, he said, and Harvey said, Well last Sunday in church when the usher approached my wife with the collection plate she looked him straight in the eye and said, "I pass".

If that's an attempt at so-called humor, pardon me for not laughing, ma said, and Gladdis said, Excuse my seriousness too.

The result being bridge.

PROUD OF SON

Toronto, Dec. 12 — (CP) — Mrs. Harry Bower said last night she was "proud" that her son "made the right decision." She was talking of FO. Frederick Bower, killed with two R.A.F. men when they crashed their bomber into Lake St. Louis rather than risk a landing with a faulty engine on the crowded outskirts of Montreal.

FRENCH CIVILIANS WENDING THEIR WAY HOMEWARD

French civilians pick their way over the rubble of St. Avold, France, coming back to what is left of their homes as the battle lines move into Germany. An Allied bulldozer clears the streets of the town of wreckage.

AN APPLE FOR EVE

By Kathleen Norris

CHAPTER 11

Nobody was about. Wing Foo evidently had not received her letter. Collins, the lawyer, presently came rattling up in his mud-spattered car to open the house with a flourish of keys and give them the news.

Wing Foo had another job. He was cooking for the engineers' mess up at Camp Gurney. Yes sir; they'd named it for Loveday's great-grandfather who had commanded the first little Presidio here in 'sixty-one. They were getting ready to take care of thirty thousand soldiers. Someday she and Larry'd have to drive up that way—it wasn't but four miles—and take a look-around.

"An army camp, Larry! It seems so strange. It seems to bring the war so near!"

"The camp doesn't bring it any nearer. But she's moving up, all right!"

"Strange. Strange." Loveday tightened her hold on little Owen. "I don't like it," she said.

Bettancourt was still here; he'd come in sometime in the evening. And if there was anything the Collinses could do just let 'em know. Mrs. Collins was laid up with arthritis, but she'd be tickled to death if they'd all come down to supper.

"Oh no," Loveday said, her heart singing with the singing day. "There's so much to do! And we brought food."

First to air a bedroom for the children—Grandma's old room with its empty coal grate and unforgotten pictures and lamps and cushions. Blankets to shake free of moth balls; mattresses to turn; tired babies to feed bread and milk and settle down for naps. And then—everything!

Dust everywhere, and water stains, and smells of shut-in air and upholstery, mice and wood rot and drains. Loveday ad Larry ate sandwiches of corned beef and fresh bread, standing, working while they ate. The big stove was fired; the good smell of coffee drifted about; a bonfire smoked in the yard. The groceries in their bags and boxes were put away in the big familiar pantry. Mrs. Bettancourt came over with eggs and home-baked rolls and a strange great cheese that Loveday afterward observed looked like something's bladder.

"Oh, Larry, isn't this wonderful? Isn't this fun?" Loveday, her head tied up, her son crowing and shouting in his chair in the sunny back yard, her daughters ecstatically trotting to and fro, came in and out of the opened doors, stopped to exult over a discovery, followed Larry out to the barn to ask questions as to the disposition of beds for the night.

"Wouldn't we have been fools to sell it!" she said again and again. And Larry would answer, with his sober face growing brighter and brighter, "You bet your life we would have been!"

When they had been at Friends Haven about a month and when the place was beginning to look more orderly and habitable than it had been for a long time, quite unexpectedly one day five of the St. Georges came to call. Rodney Fanny, and Fanny's little girl Isabel were on the front seat, the senior St. Georges in the back.

This was one of the fortunate times. The day was cloudless and warm; Loveday and the twins were out on the terrace in fresh if far from new frocks; the baby was asleep, and Larry was in town. Everything about the old house looked mellowed and dignified today; tree shadows softened the walls; the kitchen was in order; fresh Swiss curtains moved at the open upstairs windows. Barns, sheds, the long roof of the laundry and storerooms were set in new green; the small girls were in themselves an enchantment in their faded, brief blue frocks, with their mops of gold hair freshly brushed and glittering in the sun.

"I was just giving these women an afternoon collation!" Loveday said, welcoming her guests. "Larry wanted me to go out and look at the camp with him, but luckily Mrs. Canaletti couldn't come and I had to stay with the children. Oh, Fanny!"

She and Fanny were in each other's arms; they laughed at their own emotion as they drew apart. Aunt Laura, too, kissed Loveday in the old motherly way, and everyone exclaimed over the twins.

"These aren't yours!" Fanny said. Her own child was as sturdy as a tulip, with dark Dutch braids tightly pinned about a square little head. She stood close to her grandmother, looking doubtfully at the twins. The twins, intoxicated with publicity, put on a series of curtsies and gyrations that made even Loveday laugh.

"Stop showing off!" she said finally. "Take Isabel off and get some more cookies. Two each now, Betsy."

"Betsy! Delicious," said Fanny. "Betsy and Martha."

"Now tell me everything!" Loveday commanded.

"Well, first, darling, apologies for all sundry!" Fanny said with her joyous laugh. "All this long time I've been thinking of you and meaning to write and meaning to start a regular correspondence, and what with my babies, and Arthur being moved about, and then Mother's illness and Nini's going away—and poor Merle's death, of course—"

"Such a shock!" Laura St. George's sweet, pathetic voice put into the pause. "Just as we all had hopes for something so different—for life instead of death, as poor Chris said. He was crushed, of course, and Nina and I didn't feel that we were particularly successful in cheering him up. Dear Chris! He went abroad a few months ago; he's to have an opening in London. It's been such an upset time! And letters are never quite as satisfactory, are they? They don't cover the ground. But now tell us everything about yourself. You did get the little coats—were they too big?"

"They were perfect, and the girls wore them until they were up to their hips, practically. And, Fanny, you've another baby girl at home? What fun! Margaret, is she a Margaret? And Nini's engaged? Is it really engaged, this time, or another experiment? Loveday could not pour out the eager questions fast enough; her face glowed. "Martin Lancaster, is that his name? She'll have a beautiful name. But Rodney"—she turned to him now with a suddenly sobering manner—"What's this about your going away?"

"Call of duty." Rodney grinned, standing straight and saluting.

"Call of duty?" Loveday glanced bewildered from face to face.

"Oh, we're going to have a lot of this, Loveday," Laura St. George said with a mother's anxious look.

"Going away—where?" Loveday asked.

"Into the army," Fanny supplied in an odd voice that had a note of triumph in it. "He's going to an officer's training camp!"

"But—but you're with Uncle Warren in the firm!"

"Was," Rodney amended it smilingly. "I'm after a uniform and a commission now. When you next see me I'm hoping to be Lieutenant St. George. I'm to be sent down to San Diego way."

"Trouble brewing, Loveday," Warren St. George said quietly.

"I know." Loveday looked at Fanny. "Arthur's in it, of course," she said slowly of Fanny's husband. "But I never thought of it as touching us. He's flying—he's not gone across?"

"He was in England," Fanny said. "He came back again in January. Now he's gone again."

"But, Fan, where?"

"We don't know where."

Loveday looked about the circle of faces.

"It seemed so far away in Bakersfield," she said. "Just that there was a war. I never thought—" She stoped. "You, Fan," she added piteously and was still.

"I'm at home for a while with Mother and Isabel and Margaret," Fanny said, stirred by the bewilderment and awakening in Loveday's face, but quietly too.

"Margaret!"

Special Medical Parcels Will Be Sent Canadians

In keeping with the service which the British Red Cross has granted to British prisoners of war, the Canadian Red Cross will undertake to forward special medical parcels to Canadians in prisoner of war camps, it is announced through the post office department.

This service is intended for such personal appliances as spectacles, dentures, trusses and special prescriptions, as well as vitamin tonic preparations, laxatives, band aids, camphor ice, medicated salves, antiseptic foot powder, medicated throat lozenges, germicidal soap and acetylsalicylic acid tablets. Privilege of sending special medical parcels is restricted to the official next-of-kin of a Canadian, British Commonwealth or United States prisoners of war, if the next of kin lives in Canada.

Postal authorities point out that in view of transportation difficulties it is important that the weight of the parcels be kept as low as possible and should be wrapped with the list of contents plainly marked and addressed to the prisoner of war at his prison camp address. The parcel should then be enclosed in an outer wrapping and addressed to the Red Cross Enquiry Bureau, 18 Rideau Street, Ottawa.

Next of kin must first satisfy the Bureau as to the prisoner's need for any of the permissable items. No item which may be included in a next of kin parcel may be included in a special medical parcel, it is pointed out.

Chinese Troops Streaming South

Chungking, Dec. 12 —(AP)— Chinese troops from the north streamed southward today through Chungking as other Chinese drove down the Kweichow-Kwangsi railway in pursuit of Japanese retreating from Kweichow Province, the High Command said.

The High Command appeared intent upon full preparation for any new Japanese assault upon the province. The sight of the troop movement southward spread relief throughout this wartime capital.

On the fighting front the Chinese took the rail town of Liuchai, just inside the Kwangsi border and pushed onward toward Nantan. At last reports from the field the Chinese were only a few miles from Nantan.

There was no indication whether the troops from the north were drawn from the ranks of those who have been held down by the Communists, but it seemed likely.

HOW TO RELIEVE PILE TORTURE
QUICKLY AND EASILY

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is natures' warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from J. S McKeown or any I.D.A. or other drug store and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money.

Nazi Girls in Allied Prison Still Confident of Victory

By MARGARET ECKER

Paris Dec. 12 — (CP) — The riddle of the German women is the riddle of the Sphinx—if you can judge from 70 of Hitler's Blitzmadel (German equivalent of the CWAC) and his victory workers now locked up tight in a prison barracks in the heart of Paris.

These are the women who didn't get away, who were captured by the Allies when Paris was liberated. A few of them were taken in Aachen and sent to Paris for internment. Most of the group wore the grey uniform of the Blitzmadel that called from the French their derisive nickname, souris (mice). The others were workers brought from Germany to do jobs French refused to do.

Bear No Hard Feelings

French gendarmes stand storm guard at the doors of the building only a few hundred yards from the Champs Elysees, but inside the barracks these women seem as mousy as their nickname. They smile shyly at you as you pass along the corridor, and everything about them seems to assure you they bear no hard feelings.

Mme. Raymonde Postall, of the French Red Cross, who is their kindly but firm jailer, with tell you her prisoners are good workers. They choose to work, scrubbing, or sewing for the French poor. They do not like to sit idle.

Then she will add: "Make no mistake, these women are still profoundly Nazi. They still believe in the ultimate victory of Germany. They are obedient, co-operative, hard-working, but they are certain the day will come soon when they will be the conquerors."

A slim dark girl in slacks and a brown sweater entered, bowing modestly as she appeared at the door. She was a pretty girl with dark hair, brown eyes, a quiet manner and a smile. She was the exact opposite of what one expected an officer in Hitler's Blitzmadel would be.

Through an interpreter she answered questions without hesitation. She had been studying dentistry at the University of Berlin when the war started. Under Nazism women were encouraged to attend universities, she said. First she had enlisted as a Red Cross worker but a year later she was drafted into the army for which she had already had training in "Hitler's Little Children."

Denies Cruelties

She had served in Poland, Lithuania, Russia, Belgium and France. With the polite smile of someone making tea party chit chat she said: "Everything we have done for victory is right."

"I have never seen any signs of cruelty by my people anywhere I have been. I hardly know what the Gestapo is myself.

"And in Germany itself you can ask many people and they won't even know what the Gestapo is." She added: "The stories of atrocities are propaganda. They are unthinkable in the Wehrmacht."

Of the occupation of France she said that it had been a boon to the French, "but being in France made us very unhappy. The youngsters were even unpleasant to us because their parents were revolutionaries with no appreciation of freedom"

She said the Blitzmadel was a wonderful life, "with lots of sports, exercise, good food, recreation." She was paid 300 marks a month, 220 of which was deposited for her in a bank in Germany.

When the Jews were mentioned she admitted that many "had gone away to America because they weren't happy in Germany." But those who remained had had "wonderful lives" living together in the ghettoes, allowed "to work and come and go as they pleased."

Before she left she said: "I hope and know Germany will win the war."

Tragic Experience

A lovely blonde girl with sad eyes told how she had been a stenographer in the German General Staff. Hers was a tragic story. She had been drafted November, 1939, as a stenographer, earning only 20 marks every 10 days.

She'd fallen in love with a soldier of the Wehrmacht and he had promised to marry her when he returned from Russia. He was killed and when her baby was born her father, a lieutenant-colonel in the German Army, turned her out of the house. But the state gladly paid for the baby's upkeep in a nursery school while she worked in France.

Rome, Dec. 12 — (AP) — Eight Italian spies ranging in age from 20 to 27 have been executed after conviction by Allied military courts, it was announced today in a statement describing spy schools set up by Germans in occupied Italy.

Sir H. Alexander Visiting Athens

London, Dec. 12 —(CP)— Field Marshal Sir Harold Alexander, Allied Mediterranean commander, and Harold MacMillan, British minister resident in the Mediterranean area, visited Athens today, NBC correspondent Gunthrie Jantzen reported over Athens radio.

Both immediately consulted Maj.-Gen. Ronald Scobie, commander of British troops in Greece.

Mr. MacMillan and Field Marshal Alexander were reported sent to the Grecian capital personally by Prime Minister Churchill in an attempt to mediate political strife there.

The NBC correspondent said, however, their visit to Gen. Scobie this morning "does not mean that surrender or end of hostilities is in sight."

Storm Interferes With Schools

City public schools opened as usual this morning, but there was a marked decrease in attendance owing to the storm. Teachers continued classes with available pupils. In the afternoon an increased attendance was in evidence, however.

At the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School, where Christmas examinations were to continue today the tests were postponed until tomorrow owing to the absence of so many rural pupils who were unable to be present for today's school.

School buses were unable to operate on schedule into Belleville and after early-morning futile attempts to get started abandoned the day's trip.

9 French Gestapo Members Condemned

Paris, Dec. 12 —(AP)— Nine members of the French Gestapo were sentenced to death today for collusion with the Germans, and two 20-year-old defendants were given life at hard labor.

The nine included the ringleaders, Henri Lafonte and Charles Bony. A 12th defendant, Edmond Delahaye, secretary to Lafonte, died in Fresnes Prison a few hours before the verdict was announced. He suffered an acute attack of diabetes in court yesterday.

The 12 were in a group of Frenchmen who worked for the Germans, some in German uniform, and throughout the occupation staged a series of murders, kidnappings, tortures, extortions, and robberies in the guise of police activity.

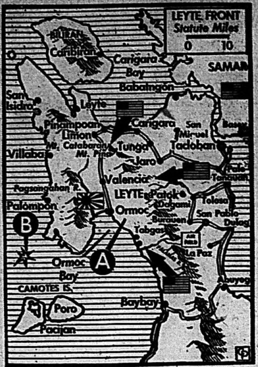
CAPTURE OF ORMOC ON LEYTE



American forces in three sensational moves seized the centre of the Japanese Yamashita line on the Leyte west coast, wiped out a 13-ship Nippon convoy, inflicting heavy loss of life, and stopped a spectacular enemy paratroop threat. An amphibious force, composed of the Yank 77th Infantry Division, supported by Navy and Marine elements, sailed around the south end of Leyte Island and captured Ormoc (A), in the enemy's rear, just beating a convoy (B), into the principal Leyte port. The Americans accounted for 13 vessels in the convoy.

Reinforcements Rushed to Athens

Athens, Dec. 12. (CP-Reuter) — British reinforcements are being rushed to Athens, it was announced here today as British troops at dawn began a large-scale sweep against E.L.A.S. forces in the eastern suburbs of Athens.

During the night a series of heavy explosions shook the centre of the city. According to one report they were caused by E.L.A.S. troops—the armed force of the Leftist E.A.M. Party—blowing up houses to build defence works.

More E.L.A.S. men have infiltrated into Athens and the Athens area in the last 48 hours, and there are now estimated to be 25,000 in and around the capital.

E.L.A.S. forces actually inside the city were believed to number between 10,000 and 15,000. Another 10,000 to 15,000 were estimated to be on the high ground around the capital.

Measures were being taken by the British and American relief organization to deal with the food shortage in Athens.

Mess Room Chatter Of Canada's Airmen

With the R.C.A.F. Overseas, Dec. 12 —(CP)— Most potent of the Spitfire Wings in the Tactical Air Force in the west, the Canadian wing led by Wing Cmdr. Dal Russel, D.S.O., D.F.C. and Bar, of Montreal, has added dive-bombing to its repertoire.

In three operations each on one day, outfits commanded by Sqdn. Ldr. Dean Dover, D.F.C., of Toronto, Sqdn. Ldr. Bill Olmsted, D.F.C., of Hamilton, Ont., and Sqdn. Ldr. R. I. Smith, D.F.C., of Regina, recorded 37 direct hits with bombs falling on railway lines around Munster. In addition 17 locomotives were disabled by machine-gun and cannon fire and about 30 Hun transport vehicles were shot up.

German anti-aircraft fire was the heaviest encountered by the Canadians in some time. Dover's plane was hit three times.

The first Messerschmitt 262 jet-propelled aircraft brought to earth by the R.C.A.F. or R.A.F. was shot down over Nijmegen, Holland, by members of an R.C.A.F. Spitfire squadron.

Sqdn. Ldr. R. I. Smith of Regina, Flt. Lt. Hedley Everard of Timmins, Ont., Flt. Lt. Tex Davenport of Russellville, Ark., Flt. Lt. J. McKay of Cloverdale, B.C., and FO. Lloyd Sinclair of Paris, Ont., shared the kill.

Flt. Lt. W. Toews of Point Atkinson, B.C., mid-upper gunner, and Sgt. R. Elliott of (39 Thome Crescent) Toronto, rear-gunner of a Halifax bomber, have been officially credited with destruction of a German Junkers 88 night fighter during a combat over Bochum.

They drove the fighter off once but he came back again. The second time they could see their tracers going into the fuselage and the German's nose dropped and he went down almost vertically.

Pilots of a Typhoon fighter-bomber wing in Holland are wondering what happened to a German locomotive last seen plunging toward Goesfeld, a marshalling yard in the Ruhr network, apparently with no one aboard.

Cannon fire from the City of Montreal squadron sent the engine darting down the track from an insecure hiding place. Bombs and cannon strikes flickered against cab and boiler and no one could have lived.

Taking part in the attack were Flt. Sgt. Fox of (2236 Garnet St.) Regina, FO. Ray Oldfin of (3012 King Edward Ave.) Vancouver and FO. Ronald McKinnon of Tignish, P.E.I.

Flt. Lt. G. W. A. Trake, D.F.C., of Wolfville, N.S., has finished his second tour of operations with an R.C.A.F. fighter wing and posted to non-operational duties. His score is 8¼ enemy aircraft destroyed, one probable and five damaged. His successor as a flight commander in the Spitfire squadron led by Sqdn. Ldr. A. H. Sager of (4107 Albert St.) Vancouver, is another Nova Scotian, Flt. Lt. H. P. Fuller of Hortonville.

Three City of Oshawa Squadron pilots also have finished tours and been taken off "ops"—Flt. Lt. John McColl of Waterdown, Ont., FO. W. H. Palmer of Kamloops, B.C., and Flt. Lt. A. J. Fraser of Assiniboia, Sask.

Air Cadets of Today Will Be Canada's Fliers of Tomorrow

The air cadets of today through a proposed four-way program headed by their own youth movement training and augmented by the co-operation of Canadian flying and other organizations, will lead the way in post-war aviation, Douglas Boyd, Toronto, Ontario secretary of the Air Cadet League of Canada forecast here yesterday.

Speaking to the Rotary Club at its weekly luncheon Mr. Boyd predicted that the boys of today of 15-17 years of age would take their places in the van of civil aviation, flying, the Royal Canadian Air Force and citizenship, based on their present and future training as air cadets in the years following the war.

He described the birth and growth of the Air Cadet movement in Canada and the justifiably proud results achieved by the efforts of a "few civilians on a part-time basis."

4,000 Joined RCAF

Four thousand partially trained air cadets, he said, had graduated from air cadet squadrons to the Royal Canadian Air Force, and fifty per cent of these in turn had graduated from that branch of the armed services with commissions.

Although recruiting has stopped in the RCAF, Mr. Boyd pointed out that the Air Cadet League is carrying on with its original plan which was Youth Movement. Now in a peacetime job the youths will receive physical and mental training to fit them as useful citizens to their respective communities.

As a seafaring life is second nature to the youth of Norway so must aviation be to the youth of Canada if this country expects to get anywhere in world air commerce. A tremendous body of young air-minded men must be available, was the speaker's opinion.

Will Fill Future Role

He predicted that a large number of young men now in the service of the Royal Canadian Air Force would not want to carry on in civilian aviation. "A great proportion are in there now through choice, because they wanted to serve in that branch of the service in wartime."

"Besides this fact," Mr. Boyd added, "the average life of a man in the air force is from 5-6 years. Many will be leaving soon. The young men of 15-17 of today will be the choice for civilian jobs of the future."

The aviation industry wants air training continued for it foresees a shortage of men who will train easily. It will need men trained in every phase of the industry, and this is so important that it is working out a scheme for subsidized apprenticeship for boys. The air cadet league will be a pool for the boys who will want to carry on.

Consider Grading Tests

Canadian Flying Clubs Association sees in these boys the future pilots of private aircraft. Some will go on for transport work. So interested is the Association that already grading tests of eight hours are under consideration.

The Air Cadets will continue to be a component part of the Royal Canadian Air Force. Secretary Boyd stated. There will be auxiliary squadrons and the Air Force Reserve. Air cadets may go on for selection for the permanent force and for special staff work. It is not a dream of the future that there will be an RCAF Royal Military College. The Navy has one already.

Inculcation into a youth of the background of citizenship is not an easy task, the speaker asserted. The Air Cadet scheme is the formation of "Gen" Clubs, organizations of the boys that are self-governed and which calls for discussion of tactics, air matters, things at home and other subjects. Repatriated air officers will address the clubs at intermittent periods.

Duty Fitness

Also assisting in this basis of good citizenship is a plan, now being inaugurated, of duty fitness. This does not make star athletes out of the boys but makes and keeps them physically fit. Within a year a tremendous difference will be seen in those who take up this work, the speaker said.

Concluding, he said that air cadet work must be carried on, "for it is as important as anything we can do. If we want Canada to be a country we can be definitely proud of, we must take care of its future citizens."

The speaker was introduced by Alderman Lorne McDougall, of the local Air Cadet Committee, while Rotarian Joe Shortt expressed the club appreciation. President Pinkston was in the chair with Bert Houston and Sandy Burrows providing the musical calisthenics.

U.S. 1ST ARMY ADVANCES CLOSER TO BONN

CANADIANS BREACH LAMONE RIVER DEFENCES

Pre-Dawn Attack By Southern Wing Gains Over Mile

New Panzer Army Thrown Into Cologne Plain Battle

By EDWARD KENNEDY
(AP Staff Writer)

Paris, Dec. 13 — (AP)—The southern wing of the U. S. 1st Army sprang into action before dawn today, slashing eastward toward the Rhine city of Bonn inattack beyond the Hurtgen Forest southwest of besieged Duren.

In less than three hours, the Americans had advanced more than a mile and entered the village of Rollesbroich, 13 miles southwest of Duren and 35 west of Bonn.

The advance was between the Hurtgen and Monschau forests and was 4 1/2 miles east of Rotgen. A little farther north, other units of the 1st Army, now opposed by the new German 5th Panzer Army, were within 28 miles of Bonn which lies 15 miles southeast of Cologne.

Drawn up to Roer River

The 1st Army was drawn up to the swift and high Roer on both sides of Duren. In the centre of the western front, the U. S. 7th Army trained its artillery on large sections of the German defences inside the Bavarian Palatinate while the 3rd Army fought slowly deeper into the Siegfried Line inside the industrial Saarland.

It may now be disclosed that the Germans have thrown their new 5th Panzer Army into battle on the Cologne Plain. The commander is Gen. Hasso Eckardt Von Manteuffel, 47, veteran of the siege of Bizerte in North Africa. His army includes armored units, regular infantry and Volksgrenadier troops.

The last infested cellars west of the Roer were being cleared by the U.S. 1st Army. A few Germans during the night filtered back into Derichsweiler, Gey and Maria Weiler, virtually suburbs of Duren, and these were being blasted from the cold mud, one by one.

Swift advances by the U.S. 7th Army in the Karlsruhe corner brought the German frontier within sight at many points and placed great sections of the Siegfried Line works within short artillery range. Vanguards were within 15 miles of Karlsruhe.

Edge Forward 700 Yards

Six miles inside the industrial Saarland, the U.S. 3rd Army shouldered its way through another 700 yards of Fraulautern, winning half that satellite town a mile north of Saarlautern. Repeated counter-attacks were broken three miles north of Dillingen and additional pill-boxes were captured.

The 3rd Army moved across the German frontier anew, spanning the flooded Blies river and capturing Habkirchen, three miles northeast of Sarreguemines.

Once again no action was reported today from the sectors on the north of the Allied front held by the 1st Canadian, the British 2nd and the U. S. 9th Armies.

Gen. Crerar's men held a strip of German territory east of Nijmegen; Lt.-Gen. Dempsey's Tommies were drawn up along the Meuse river opposite the Netherlands frontier bastion of Venlo; troops of Lt.-Gen. Simpson had reached the Roer on the left of the U. S. 1st Army some days ago.

Virtually all the Germans except sacrificial units had been driven behind the Roer, which normally is only about 130 feet wide at Duren. Most of that ruined industrial city lies east of the river, and there was no sign of an immediate American attempt to cross the flood waters.

At Outskirts of Duren.

Troops at Maria Weiler were virtually in the outskirts of Duren and were 18 miles inside Germany and 21 short of Cologne. One American company was cut off in Mariaweiler during the night but re-established contact before dawn.

South of Duren the Hurtgen Forest had been left behind after a lengthy blood bath which started in mid-October.

German broadcasts continued to reflect concern about Lt.-Gen. Patch's drive toward the Palatinate, the western twelfth of Bavaria, west of the Rhine. The 7th Army closed within eight miles of the French border town of Wissembourg, natural gateway to the province.

The Maginot Line, partly inhabited by French civilians, was passed but the whole Siegfried Line was ahead. In this area, the German frontier breaks sharply westward from the Rhine.

The drive combined with that of the 3rd Army on Patch's left to squeeze the Siegfried Line from west and south. In this section, however, the line is thickest, being fortified up to 30-mile depths to the Rhine.

Some 30 or more towns were swept up yesterday, eight or more of them inside Germany. Behind the German lines, Allied air power hit again and again in operations suggesting an attempt to isolate the Germans in the whole central and northern sections of the western front.

Stubborn Opposition.

The 3rd Army gains in Fraulautern were through deeply-echeloned German defences and against stubborn opposition. Elements of the 95th Division edged deeper into a maze of pill-boxes and fortified houses in Ensdorf, a mile to the east of Saarlautern, and in Saarlauternroden, just north of the city. Gains were in scores of yards.

A few miles north of Dillingen, the 3rd Army knocked out a particularly troublesome little fort, equipped with a revolving turret that could be raised or lowered to shell troops on any side.

(German broadcasts acknowledged the Americans had broken out east of the Hurtgen Forest and said both sides were suffering severe casualties in the battle before Hurtgen. Advances in Lorraine and Alsace were reported.)

Charges Japanese Killed Several Thousand Prisoners

Chungking, Dec. 13 — (AP) — Gen. Fang Hsien-Chueh, Commander of China's 10th Army, declared today the Japanese ruthlessly slaughtered several thousand Chinese prisoners of war after taking Hengyang.

Fang, now in Chungking after his escape from the fallen Hunan province city which he defended for 47 days, said the Japanese ignored his appeals to abide by international law and cease the massacre.

Merchant Fleet Hitler Sank Sailing Again for the Allies

By FRANK LOWE
(CP Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 13 — (CP Cable) — A fleet Hitler sank is sailing again for the Allies.

It is a fleet of 2,500,000 tons of merchant shipping — 250 ships of 10,000 tons each — which British salvage men lifted from the sea' bottom where German E-boats, U-boats, surface raiders and bombers laid them. Today they are as good as ever and once more carrying men and munitions as though their careers never were interrupted.

The story, news today, began almost at the start of the war. Then Britain's most important defence line, her sea supremacy, was attacked and ships essential to her continued resistance were being sunk in disastrous numbers.

New ships to replace losses could not be built fast enough so it was decided sunken hulks must be refloated. Salvage bases were established all around Britain's coasts and later as the war spread the scheme was extended from Iceland to Ceylon.

The first job of these bases was not to refloat ships, however, but to keep key harbors open. As the blitz intensified, vital docks at Liverpool, London and Glasgow became clogged with wrecks of ships sunk at their moorings.

Salvagemen succeeded in clearing them away so other vessels from Canada and the United States could dock with supplies.

Their work was one of the turning points of the war. With the British merchant fleet reaching a dangerous low they rebuilt wounded ships and put them back into the fight.

Outside of Britain salvage workers toiled in the Mediterranean lifting ships from harbor beds at Tobruk, Algiers, Bari and Valetta and Naples, probably the salvage workers' greatest triumph in the Mediterranean. Ships were piled on the bottom all along the quays and tons of debris were piled atop them to keep them down and keep the port blocked. Yet 170 of those hulks were refloated in record time.

All this though was just a preparation, although a vital task, for the greatest mass salvage job in history — the invasion of Normandy. Salvagemen were on the job before beachheads were established.

There they worked and died and lifted ships and kept the channels clear. Everything from the smallest landing craft to the biggest transport handled was saved and sent back to sea again.

BRITISH LABOR CALLS FOR END OF GREEK STRIFE

Avoids Denunciation Of Govt's. Policy After Explanation Given by Bevin

London, Dec. 13 — (CP) — The Labor party today adopted a resolution calling on the government to take steps to bring about an immediate armistice in Greece, but avoided any direct denunciation of Prime Minister Churchill's intervention policy.

After a hot fight, the resolution put forward by the party's executive committee carried by a card vote of 2,445,000 to 137,000. Approximately 1,000 delegates are attending the convention, but each represents a union of known membership.

Demands that the party break away from the government policy won thunderous applause but were beaten in the balloting after Ernest Bevin, Minister of Labor, bluntly told the delegates that the Labor Ministers in the Churchill coalition government accepted full responsibility with the Prime Minister for British policy in Greece.

Action Based on Facts.

Mr. Bevin, head of Britain's biggest trade union — transport and general workers — said he appeared before the convention as a representative of the war cabinet, and bluntly declared:

"Whether you agree that the cabinet's judgment was right or wrong, at least it was arrived at on the basis of facts and with the sole objective of trying to the best we could to get Greece and other countries back on their feet."

He said the crisis in Greece developed because the Leftwing ELAS forces broke an agreement reached with all parties in Greece to co-operate in keeping order until a free election and plebiscite could be held to decide whether the Greek people wanted a monarchy or republic.

Mr. Bevin said:

"I say to the public — boldly, I hope, because I am not going to hide anybody — that I am a party to the decisions which have been taken. Looking back I cannot bring it to my conscience that any one of the decisions was wrong. The stability of Greece is vital to the stability and ultimate settlement of the Balkans as a whole."

"The steps which have been taken in Greece are not the decision of Winston Churchill," said Bevin. "They are the decisions of the cabinet. I took part with my labor colleagues in the whole of these discussions going over nearly four years trying to work out the best way to handle these terrifying problems that would arise at the end of the war."

Tempers at High Pitch.

Tempers of the delegates were at razor edge as Mr. Bevin spoke after Arthur Greenwood, chairman of the Labor Party's executive committee, cautioned against letting the

City and District Struggling Back to Normalcy After Worst Snow Storm of Many Years

Following one of the worst winter storms to visit this area in recent years, Belleville and district struggled valiantly to restore transportation to something like normal today. Provincial highway No. 2 leading east and west from the city was reported open although the going was heavy, while the same condition existed north of the city on highway 14.

In the city vehicular traffic found heavy going as result of the city snowplow breaking down during the height of Tuesday's storm, while at mid-morning today only the bus lines had been plowed, the work being done by ordinary scraper plows.

Today city officials have arranged with the H. J. McFarland Construction Company of Picton to bring two plows to the city and clean all streets. At mid-morning the plows were still reported battling their way through the drifts en route to the city.

Gangs Clear Front Street.

During the night the city bulldozer was used to clean some of the snow off Front Street, while this morning the city public works department had eight trucks and approximately 20 men clearing snow from the street. Front Street was blocked off from Bridge Street to Campbell Street early in the morning and workers were shovelling the snow onto trucks for disposal at the dump. Sections of the downtown area will be progressively blocked off until the area is cleared, it was stated by City Engineer Charles Mott.

Routes to the hospital and to the city water filtration plant were being cleared his morning by city equipment, it was stated.

Trucks Back on Routes.

Transport companies planned on putting trucks back onto the highways today following their 36-hour layoff, but it was indicated they were doing so without a definite knowledge of highway conditions. Highway plows were reported through during the night but drifting still continued. Picton and Trenton bus proprietors intended to attempt their usual runs.

Railroad officials reported freight service west to Toronto completely at a standstill, while passenger service over the same line yesterday ran up to eleven hours late. Number 14 due in Belleville from Toronto at noon yesterday did not arrive until eleven last night, while No. 6 also was about three hours late. Number

(By The Canadian Press)

Transportation services and business activities in Southern Ontario are returning to normal today after being crippled yesterday in the most paralyzing snowstorm in history. The storm was responsible for the death of at least 21 persons.

The Ontario Department of Highways announced that all main highways in the province now are open for motor traffic although some may be "narrow and heavy." The Department said the snowstorm was confined to about a 50-mile wide belt along Lake Erie, Lake Ontario and the St. Lawrence River and was at its worst in the Niagara Peninsula. Reports from St. Catharines to the Dominion Meteorological Bureau this morning were that the snow there is two to five feet deep.

The Meteorological Bureau said prospects are that the weather today and tonight will be fair and cold with strong winds and possible snowflurries in some sections. However, there will be no heavy snowfall anywhere in the southern part of the province.

Department Stores Open.

Although schools in Toronto remained closed today, the department stores—including Eaton's and Simpson's—most offices, the Toronto Stock Exchange and other business places are operating today. They were closed yesterday.

Street car service in Toronto is practically restored to normal, the Toronto Transportation Commission announced.

The railways announced that trains now are leaving Toronto on time although some are arriving a bit late. Yesterday no trains left the city for eight hours. Airlines said they are ready to resume flights but so far can't get passengers out to Malton Airport to get aboard. Incoming flights are being made on schedule.

Bread is being delivered to Toronto stores and bakery firms said they also are delivering and selling bread along the main streets. Bread was available last night and again today at fire halls. So is milk. However, dairies said they are trying to break trail along the side streets to get deliveries back to normal again.

Early reports from the province were that areas hit by the storm are returning to normal. Traffic has been resumed on streets and highways in and around Galt. Kingston is still battling heavy snowdrifts.

MORE THOUSANDS OF JAP TROOPS DROWN OFF LEYTE

Spilled to Their Deaths From Bomb-Blasted Reinforcement Convoys

General MacArthur's Headquarters, Philippines, Dec. 13 — (AP) — More thousands of Japanese troops drowned off western Leyte Monday and Tuesday in Philippines inland seas which have claimed far in excess of 30,000 enemy soldiers, spilled to their death from bomb-blasted reinforcement convoys.

The latest losses occurred as American planes, attacking for 36 hours, accounted for five transports and 4 destroyers of an 11-ship convoy despite the terrific battle put up by covering fighter aircraft. Night-prowling patrol-torpedo boats blasted a sixth transport, leaving only a destroyer of the convoy to get away unscathed.

Gen. MacArthur, whose previous communique accounts of the devastation wrought on eight other convoys estimated at least 30,000 enemy soldiers perished, said today concerning the ninth convoy:

"Enemy troop losses by drowning are believed to have been heavy."

Spotted Monday

The six transports and five destroyers were spotted Monday at dawn off northwest Leyte.

During the day, U. S. planes, boring through swarms of fighters over the convoy, sank three destroyers, a transport of 10,000 tons, a second of 5,000 tons and a third of 4,000 tons.

That night, the patrol-torpedo boats sank a 5,000-ton transport of the convoy at anchor at Palompon. Palompon, connected by a poor, winding trail to the Ormoc corridor,

MAJ.-GEN. SCOBIE AWAITING REPLY TO BRITISH TERMS

E.L.A.S. Troops Staged Unsuccessful Attacks Against Centre of Athens

By STEPHEN BARBER
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

Athens, Dec. 13 (AP)—E.L.A.S. troops staged strong but unsuccessful attacks against the centre of Athens during the night even while their leaders were debating British orders to cease fighting.

The strongest assault was aimed at a British barracks northeast of the heart of the capital on the Kifissia road.

(A British communique broadcast from Athens said further British reinforcements had gone into action, that some progress had been made against the E.L.A.S. Piraeus, port of Athens, and that R.A.F. planes silenced one E.L.A.S. 75-millimetre gun firing on central Athens.)

Maj.-Gen. Ronald M. Scobie, British commander in Greece, still awaited a reply to his cease-firing terms to the E.L.A.S., and there were indications the Leftist leaders were wavering in the fight to force the resignation of Premier George Papandreou.

Scobie's terms were presented yesterday to Miltiades Porphydrogenis, representative of the E.A.M. (National Liberation Front) and former Minister of Labor in Papandreou's cabinet, who was brought to British headquarters in a British army vehicle.

Urged to Accept Terms.

After Porphydrogenis had departed for his own headquarters, it was reported that Svolos Tsirimokos, an-

SUPERFORTRESSES IN HUGE FORCE HIT AT NAGOYA

Japan's Third Largest City and Centre of Aircraft and Aircraft Parts Plants Pounded

Saipan, Dec. 13 (AP)—Nagoya, one of Japan's most inflammable targets was bombed at mid-afternoon today by a force of B29s equalling or exceeding the largest group yet to hit Japan.

Upsetting enemy defences the Superforts made a feint toward Tokyo and then cut northwest of Nagoya, withdrawing over Nagoya bay after making their bombing runs.

Superforts went into action in the face of a westerly wind, slowing their speed and probably increasing the accuracy of their bombing.

The planes also flew 3,000 to 4,000 feet lower than they did in the Tokyo raids, flying under cloud layers to avoid leaving vapor trails.

Today's flight involved a round-trip of about 3,000 miles, 300 to 400 less than required to reach Tokyo.

Nagoya's 1940 population was 1,328,084 and is exceeded in size only by Tokyo, 165 airmiles to the northeast and Osaka, about 90 miles to the southwest.

Nagoya boasts the largest concentration of aircraft and aircraft parts plants in Japan and is also one of the four primary industrial centres of Japan.

Nagoya is served by four trunk railways and in peacetime it was Japan's fourth busiest seaport.

Nagoya's wealth of industrial targets includes arsenals, electric plants, electrochemical plants, machinery, machinery tool factories, explosives and iron works.

The city also is inflammable. It has densely crowded residential districts and mushrooming, congested industrial sections crowded with small wooden shacks even in the city's heart. This provides a great fire hazard.

Several B29s made night reconnaissance flights over the Nagoya area the past few days. One plane found it blacked out, with no searchlights, ack-ack or interceptors.

Report of this attack followed a Japanese claim that bombs fell recently in the Imperial Palace grounds in Tokyo. A Tokyo home broadcast recorded in Melbourne said a manor house had been damaged.

Another Tokyo broadcast said — "one or two" B29s roared over Tokyo last night, dumped incendiaries "in two or three places" and then "fled toward the southeastern Sea."

Prior to the actual bombing the Japanese said other B29s were over Japan three times between midnight Monday and 5 a.m. Tuesday (Japanese time).

Answers With Reserve About Reports Huns, Bulgars, Serve With E.L.A.S.

London, Dec. 13 —(CP)—Foreign Secretary Eden told the House of Commons today there had been reports that Germans and Bulgarians were serving with E.L.A.S. forces which are battling with British troops in Greece. Mr. Eden said, however, that he had no statement to make at the present time. His assertion came in reply to a question.

He said he was "answering with reserve because I do not wish to make things more difficult than they are."

Achieve Surprise Crossings Catching Enemy Unprepared

Open Up a New Sector Along Seven-Mile Front

By WILLIAM BOSS
(CP War Correspondent)

With the Canadian Corps on the Adriatic, Dec. 13 — (CP Cable) — Canadian units of the British 8th Army smashed the enemy's Lamone river defences on their sector along a seven-mile front Sunday night, it was permitted to disclose today.

In an assault following a heavy artillery barrage, the Canadians—almost to their own astonishment—achieved surprise crossings which caught the enemy totally unprepared.

Havoc wrought at the onset of the artillery operation was completed by the arrival of the assaulting Canadians in position an hour before the enemy knew what it was all about.

Thrown Off Balance

After diversionary attacks elsewhere had succeeded in throwing the Germans off their balance, the 1st Canadian Corps stormed the swift-flowing, 50-foot river at two points in succession.

Much potential resistance had been reduced earlier by artillery action under cover of which infantry had approached the banks, dragging assault boats.

Germans manning positions in the dikes opposite were mostly killed or wounded while others in more sheltered positions apparently failed to realize the danger, confident that the rain-swollen river — which had been called "the Leopold Canal of the Adriatic" — made their location impregnable.

Over 45 Mins. Before Discovered.

Majs. Gordon Logan of North Sydney, N.S., and Tony McLaughlin of Great Billage, N.S., led the assaulting companies from a Nova Scotia Highland Regiment while Majs. Sammy Ridge of Millbrook, Ont., and Robert Cole of Toronto commanded a western Ontario regiment's leading companies.

Cole's men had taken their first objectives and were engaged in preliminary consolidation before a single shot had been fired. They first were discovered by the enemy on his side of the river 45 minutes after they had crossed.

Their foothold was gained just south of highway No. 16 on the extreme right of the operation where a bridgehead was first established.

Other western Ontario companies under Maj. Andy Beckington of St. Marys, Ont., and Capt. Robert Chamberlain of St. Thomas, Ont., crossed and then cleared the riverside villages of Villanova and Borgo Di Villanova.

DISCHARGED MEN ENLIST

Vancouver, Dec. 13 (CP)—About 400 men discharged from the R.C.A.F. in Vancouver under a reduction order have volunteered in the army through Pacific command, army officials said yesterday.

USES CHILD AS SHIELD

Tacoma, Wash., Dec. 13—(AP)—A bandit, who used a small child as a shield, obtained about $5,700 in a holdup of the Puget Sound National Bank yesterday. The child, about six years old, was abandoned by the robber as he fled.

German Soldiers No Longer Die 'For the Fuehrer' But Fatherland

By CHARLES S. FOLTZ
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Madrid, Dec. 13—(AP)—Heavily-censored, controlled German newspapers now reaching Spain give ample evidence that wherever Hitler may be, or whatever his physical or mental health, he no longer occupies a pedestal in the German mind.

From 1939 through the early part of this year almost all death notices concerning soldiers killed in action or civilians killed at home by bombing carried the line "Fur Fuehrer."

They die for the Fuehrer no longer. Of 17 paid death announcements in a recent Deutsch Allgemeine Zeitung, not one mentions the Fuehrer. The German soldiers died, according to the announcements, for Germany, for the Reich, for the Fatherland, or, as one said simply, "on the field of battle." But not for the Fuehrer.

Nazi censorship apparently noticed the omission the next day, for a column in the Hamburger Freindenblatt containing death notices of men killed in action or by bombing were grouped under a headline supplied by the newspaper. It said "Fur Fuehrer, Volk und Reich Gabenelhr Leben."

There also were signs that the Nazi-approved worship of ancient gods was sinking. While the German cause was in the ascendancy and conquest seemed easy there were few references to Christian faith in death announcements. Now these are frequent.

RAF Fire Bombs Put the Torch To Krupp Works

London, Dec. 13 —(CP)— R.A.F. fire bombers put the torch last night to Essen, home of the Krupp armament works.

The Essen raid increased operations against Germany in a 24-hour period to four major attacks on eight German cities by 4,000 British and American planes loaded with 10,000 tons of bombs.

Losses were 12 British bombers, 11 American bombers and nine American fighters in the four attacks.

It was the second straight day of 10,000-ton bombing for Germany.

Some night fighters opposed the Essen attack, but five were shot down. Six German aircraft were knocked out of the air by British Mustang pilots during a daylight attack on Witten by R.A.F. Lancasters.

All losses by the U. S. 8th and 15th air forces were due to Nazi ground gunners who filled the sky with ack-ack, particularly around Merseburg, where a synthetic oil plant was hit.

Tactical air units based in France and Belgium supplemented the heavy bombardment campaign.

Thunderbolt pilots tangled frequently with German fighters on the U. S. 3rd Army front. Eleven Nazi craft were destroyed in the air. Seven U. S. 9th Air Force planes were listed as missing.

Reds Have Pushed Huns Back 1100 Miles From Before Moscow

Moscow, Dec. 13 (AP)—Three years ago today Hitler's hitherto unstopped Wehrmacht was in full flight fro mthe outskirts of Moscow after penetrating to within 11 miles of the capital. Today, the Red army fighting in western Romania has pushed the front 1,100 miles from Moscow.

Thus the Soviet capital is celebrating another memorable anniversary which the Red army created Dec. 13, 1941, was the occasion for the official announcement that the German plan to encircle Moscow had failed.

Miss J. Watson Given Place in Student Who's Who Publication

Miss Joyce Watson, 141 Foster Avenue, who will receive her honor B.A., in history and politics from Queen's University this May, is among the students who will be listed in the 1944-45 issue of 'Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges". The book will be released in April.

This publication is published through the co-operation of over 600 American Universities and Colleges. It is the only means of national recognition for graduates which is devoid of politics, fees and dues. Several students from accredited colleges are selected each year, by an unprejudiced committee for their biographies to appear in Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges. These books are placed in the hands of hundreds of companies and others who annually recruit outstanding students for employment.

The purpose of "Who's Who" is to serve as an incentive for students to get the most out of their college careers; as a means of compensation to students for what they have have already done; as a recommendation to the business world; and as a standard of measurement for students.

Miss Watson was elected by the unanimous vote of the Levana Society to the position of Senior Levana Representative on the Alma Mater Society, the student government of Queen's. She is a member of the Levana Executive and a past member of the Levana Council. For the past two years she has been the senior student officer of the Canadian Red Cross Corps on the Campus and an active member of the Queen's Debating Union.

From the Girl Guide Association, Miss Watson received their highest award, the Gold Cord.

Miss Watson graduated from the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School in 1941 and during her collegiate career was president of the Library Club for several years, student organizer of the Collegiate News Column in this paper, Cadette Lieutenant-Colonel of the Cadette Corps in 1940-41, and received her Athletic School Letter.

debate develop into a "chastisement of Churchill".

"I would prefer it to be kept on the level of an attempt to champion the cause of the Greek people and their future", he said.

Cries of "Freedom!" came from some delegates on the floor as the discussion opened.

First criticism of the Greenwood resolution came from John Benstead, general secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen, who said that while he would support it "the Labor movement will not always be satisfied with milk and water resolutions".

"Why should Great Britain do all the dirty work of the world?" he asked. "Why has there not been complete agreement between America, Britain and Russia on this matter?"

"We will have to support it out of unity, but we regret the bankruptcy of our present leadership", said Lawrence Plover, representing the Miners' Federation.

Mr. Benstead said Labor promised in 1940 to stand behind Mr. Bevin, and added "we shall do so to the bitter end".

"But we cannot be hamstrung all the time", he said.

An army captain in uniform—Raymond Blackburn—asserted British policy in Greece "has stuck in the gizzard of even big businessman Stettinius United States State Secretary Edward Stettinius) and has made Moscow vomit".

The floor leader for the resolution, James Griffiths, warned that a "vote of no confidence in the government would be an indication to our Labor colleagues in the Cabinet to leave the government forthwith".

NUMBER OF CASUALTIES

London, Dec. 13 — (CP) — German flying bomb attacks on southern England continued unabated during the night, causing a number of casualties.

Room in Hospital Dedicated to Memory Former Hastings Nurse

The memory of a former Belleville girl and one who had devoted her life to the relief of human suffering, was fittingly honored recently in Calgary when the United Empire Loyalist Association of that city presented to the Col. Belcher Hospital a complete room furnished in memory of Nursing Sister Edith May Allison, former matron of the hospital.

Nursing Sister Allison was born in Tyendinaga Township and took her nurses' training at Belleville hospital and served overseas in the First Great War. She was matron of the Col. Belcher Hospital from 1919 until 1932. E. Pearle Allison, Calgary, is a sister and is secretary of the Calgary Loyalist Association.

In presenting the furnishing to the hospital the United Empire Loyalist president, Mr. M. W. Brock, stated the gift was appropriate. "The object is to perpetuate the memory of our ancestors and in a special way the memory of one who personified that bond," he said. "Miss Allison was a wonderful woman, she not only endeared herself to doctors and nurses, but to the patients as well.

CPO. Wm. Hirst Home On Leave After Seeing Much Action in Service

Veteran of the sea-lanes for the past four years, Chief Petty Officer William Hirst, formerly of this city is spending a lengthy furlough with his wife and family at Wellington, Ont. He arrived in the city on Sunday night.

Formerly associated with the Belleville Sargeant Company of this city, CPO Hirst has made a wide and varied experience in the Royal Canadian Navy since his enlistment in 1940. He has been attached in his official capacity as engine room artificer on several types of war vessels and at present is second in command of the engine rooms of the frigate HMCS "La SALLE."

He has travelled the icy sea-lanes of the Iceland-Greenland route and has seen the blue Caribbean water flash under the propellers of his ship on patrol duty between Miami and the Bermudas. He has served in the bleak outposts of Newfoundland and has enjoyed the warmth of the Liverpool pubs.

He was a member of the crew of HMCS "Snowberry" when that gallant little Canadian corvette sank a Nazi submarine somewhere in the North Atlantic. Convoy duty is now second nature to the former Belleville pattern-maker. He will remain home until sometime early in January.

MORE THOUSANDS

is the supply port of last resort for the Japanese since the loss of Ormoc port, 16 miles to the southeast.

Tuesday at Palompon, U.S. planes so severely blasted a fourth destroyer and two freighter-transports that all probably sank.

The enemy air force not only made a stiff fight over the convoy but also scored some damaging blows against an American supply convoy Sunday night as it was retiring from Ormoc after unloading.

50 Enemy Planes Destroyed

"Fifty enemy planes were destroyed in combat with five additional probable," today's communique said. "We lost eight fighters."

Japan has lost more than 1,000 planes in the fight for Leyte. The reinforcement convoy losses to date total 39 transports and 28 escorting warships.

Still plagued by rains, American ground forces on west Leyte maintained pressure on Lt.-Gen. Yamashita's defenders south of Limon in the north sector of the Ormoc corridor.

Even if the Japanese succeeded in getting troops and equipment over to the Ormoc corridor from Palompon, they would face the same peril of the troops already there—entrapment between the 32nd Infantry Division southbound from Limon and the 77th and 7th in position to strike north from Ormoc.

NAZI ASSASSINATED

Strasbourg, Dec. 13 — (AP)—Robert Wagner, Nazi party gauleiter, German government representative of Alsace and Baden and district Volkessturm (People's Army) leader, was assassinated by Frenchmen in his apartment here last week, say reports widely circulated.

BACK TO NORMAL

Brockville Roads Blocked.

Brockville reported roads are blocked for about four miles east and west of the city. Schools, industries and business offices are operating.

A later report from Kingston said most highways now are open in that district, the exceptions being No. 32 Highway to Gananoque and No. 3 Highway to Adolphustown. No buses are operating into or away from Kingston. Five snowplows are clearing the city streets.

Sudbury reported fair weather with "not a snowflake in the sky in this banana belt." There is a light snowfall today at North Bay.

Guelph has dug itself out of the deep drifts but there is no traffic on district highways.

In Toronto W. W. Fowler said an order he issued yesterday asking all vehicles to stay off streets with tram lines will remain effective until the situation has improved. Exceptions to the order are doctor's cars, ambulances, fire trucks, milk, meat and fruit delivery vehicles, coal trucks, electric and gas emergency trucks, navy, army and air force vehicles and newspaper trucks.

Hamilton Schools Closed.

Schools remained closed in Hamilton, where there was 24 inches of snow, but factories were attempting to maintain operations. Milk and bread is being delivered to restaurants, hospitals and stores. Transportation service in the city has been partially resumed after several hundred men worked all night clearing the main streets. Taxicabs are snowed in but it is expected that three cabs will be in operation this afternoon. One prospective mother had to walk about 100 feet from an ambulance into a hospital last night. Another was brought eight miles by sleigh to an ambulance waiting on the highway.

Highway travel was difficult in the Woodstock area, as far east as Paris and west to Chatham. Transport trucks stranded in the city and district yesterday awaited further improvement before moving on. Schools are open but attendance is low.

There were 17 deaths in Toronto, one man being killed when a street car overturned and others dying of heart attacks brought on by over-exertion shovelling snow or wading through the deep drifts. There were two deaths in Hamilton, one at Campbellford and one at Brantford.

Dozens of communities were isolated yesterday. The transportation paralysis was severe in Toronto although the situation eased by nightfall.

This morning Mayor Conboy announced stores which usually close Wednesday afternoon may remain open today.

22 Inches of Snow

More than 22 inches of snow blanketed the Queen City and surrounding districts and a ban was placed on all non-essential automobile travel on streets where street cars operated.

Dominion government meteorologists said they believe the brunt of the blizzard has passed in Ontario and reports last night said the storm was moving eastward.

The wind switched to the northwest in Toronto last night and snow fell only intermittently throughout the night.

Hamilton and St. Catharines also were blanketed under 24-inch snowfalls, forcing a halt to all traffic. Two persons died in Hamilton as a result of the gale.

Schedules Disrupted

While train schedules were all disrupted, most main line trains arrived in Toronto after several hours' delay. Some were forced to wait outside the city limits while workmen cleared the tracks and switches.

All snow-clearing equipment and more than 1,000 city employees were called out to clear Toronto streets, completely blocked by drifts ranging up to 15 feet or more. All milk and bread deliveries were cancelled.

Mayor Conboy called on citizens to form "snow commandos" to help clear the streets and sidewalks and school children — an estimated 100,000 — were given the day off. They also were given a holiday today.

At the height of the storm a Toronto Transportation Commission street car, crowded with people, overturned at a downtown intersection, killing David Quinn. It was the first fatality to occur in a street car since the T.T.C. took charge of all surface lines in the city on Sept. 1, 1921.

Citizens Asked to Help

Others who died in this city were: Charles Bennett; Ernest Scott, Lawrence Graziano, 44; Edward Dodd; Samuel Bawden; Percy Petrie; William P. Turnbull; George Pearson; Alex Gardiner, 69; Samuel Johnston; Vincent Huntley, 54; William Frances, 54; Henry Woolboner, 44; and one unidentified person.

Hamilton dead were: Robert McClure, 45, and Joseph Long, 60. Vernon Hallock, 26, was killed in an automobile crash near Woodstock and George Davies, 54, of Ingersoll, dropped dead as he entered a Brantford war plant.

Life generally was disrupted in practically every centre of southern, western and eastern Ontario. Citizens were asked to help municipal workers in clearing the snow to allow resumption of milk and bread deliveries.

TURN IN SOUVENIRS

Somewhere in the Pacific, Dec. 13 — (AP) — Marine veterans pooh-pooh any insinuations that they are souvenir collectors But they blushed when the order was posted to turn in — along with certain other "souvenirs" — all "40-mm. anti-aircraft guns" taken from the Japs. Such a weapon weighs approximately 3,000 pounds.

'Complete, Ruthless Abolition' Of German War Industries Said To Be United States Proposal

Wiping Out of German Aviation Enterprises Also Reported as Proposed

By JOHN A. PARRIS, JR.
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 13 (AP)—United States proposals for control of Germany were said by a reliable informant today to call for "complete and ruthless" abolition of German war industries and the wiping out of Germany's aviation enterprises.

Other German industries would be controlled so completely that Germany could never again dominate European economy.

Ambassador John G. Winant was reported reliably to have presented the European advisory council two or more memoranda containing the American proposals as part of the Allies' plan to prevent Germany from ever again waging war. Mr. Winant was believed to have discussed the data with President Roosevelt and the State Department during his recent visit to Washington.

The Americans were believed to have suggested that it should be made impossible for Germany's chemical industries to manufacture poison gas or similar weapons.

Provision For Civilian Medicine.

The proposals specified, however, that civilian requirements of medicines and drugs should be allowed, the informant said.

It was reported additionally provided that the whole question of Allied control of industry should be settled jointly by the United States, Britain, Russia and France.

The American plan was said to grant latitude in Germany's future textile industries, since production would be for civilian consumers.

The feeling here was that the American proposal did not go nearly so far as the plan of Treasury Secretary Morgenthau, which would have virtually wiped out German industry and made the country dependent largely upon agriculture.

Britain was understood to have presented her plans covering German industry, foreign and domestic trade.

Neither Russia nor France has submitted views. France was believed waiting until Gen. De Gaulle finished digesting his talks with Premier Marshal Stalin, so as to harmonize French proposals with those of the Soviet Union.

The European advisory council was understood already to have started discussions on the American and British plans.

MAJ.-GEN. SCOBIE

other former E.A.M. minister in Papandreou's cabinet, had sent a message to E.L.A.S. leaders urging them to accept Scobie's terms.

The terms laid down by Scobie provided that the E.L.A.S. forces in Attica Province—which includes Athens—must lay down their arms at once and that elsewhere in Greece the E.L.A.S. must undertake to obey British orders. They were announced after Scobie had conferred with Field Marshal Alexander Allied Mediterranean Commander, who had hastened here to seek a speedy end to the hostilities.

Sporadic fighting in Athens continued throughout yesterday, and a British communique last night said E.L.A.S. snipers had filtered back into some sections of the city from which the previously had been cleared. Several large fires started by E.L.A.S. dynamiting and incendiaries burned unchecked.

R.A.F. fighter planes strafed groups of E.L.A.S. fighters trying to enter the capital.

Shortly after his conference with the E.A.M. delegate, Scobie drove through sections of the city where E.L.A.S. snipers were active, standing upright in the front seat of a scout car, to inspect forward British positions.

CITY AND DISTRICT

14 would again be late today, it was reported.

In contrast to the western run, however, officials reported both passenger and freight service to Montreal running approximately on schedule. Early morning trains came in from the east about on schedule.

Foxboro Mail In.

The only rural mail to be delivered at the Belleville office on Tuesday was that from Foxboro, while this route also ran in from West Huntingdon this morning, it was stated by local postal officials.

The Point Anne stage broke down this morning attempting to buck drifts to the highway. The Point Anne lane was reported completely blocked. No. 7 route out of the Belleville office left this morning for Mountain View and Huff's Island without assurance of road conditions. Without waiting for buses from the north to report, mail for Madoc and the northern part of the county was sent out this morning to proceed as far as road conditions would permit.

The Peterboro train due into Belleville at eleven last evening did not arrive until four this morning when it immediately proceeded on the return trip.

BENNY LEONARD AWARDED NEIL PLAQUE BY ASSOC.

Lt.-Cmdr. In U. S. Navy Did Most for Sport During Past Year

By FRITZ HOWELL
(AP Sport Writer)

New York, Dec. 13 — (AP) — Lt. Cmdr. Benny Leonard of the Maritime service yesterday was awarded the Edward J. Neil plaque by the New York Boxing Writers' Association as the man who did the most for the sport during 1944.

Leonard, who retired as undefeated lightweight champion in 1925 after holding the title some eight years, was selected over such luminaries as Joe Louis, heavyweight champion who was awarded the plaque in 1941; lightweight champion Bob Montgomery and Beau Jack, who drew $36,000,000 in war bonds at a Madison Square Garden show in August, and Willie Pep, the featherweight king.

The plaque is awarded annually in memory of Eddie Neil, Associated Press boxing writer and war correspondent who lost his life in 1938 while covering the Spanish Revolution.

Had 212 Fights

The record books show Leonard, during his ring career extending from 1912 through 1932, engaged in 218 fights. Of these 113 were no-decision affairs and eight were exhibitions. Of the others Leonard won 71 by knockouts, grabbed the decision in 21, fought one draw, and lost three by knockouts and one on a foul.

Leonard entered the United States Merchant Marine in 1942 and recently was promoted to Lieutenant Commander.

Previous winners of the award were: 1938—Jack Dempsey; 1939 — Billy Conn; 1940—Henry Armstrong; 1941—Joe Louis; 1942—Barney Ross; 1943—All boxers in the armed services.

In addition to the Leonard award, the writers also voted a plaque to Gen. J. J. Phelan, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, "in recognition of long and meritorious service to boxing." General Phelan has been connected with the Commission for more than two decades.

The award will be presented at the Writers' annual dinner the week of Jan. 21, 1945.

The War Today— Allies Contributing Willingly To Full Extent of Their Means

By The Canadian Press

DeWitt MacKenzie, Associated Press War Analyst, wrote today he had been asked by an American newspaper editor if there was any "injustice" in the United States carrying "the bulk of the military load in both western Europe and the Orient" and proceeded to declare there was no evidence of slacking anywhere.

"My own feeling (and I've analyzed this war as an observer since it was incubated at the Munich conference, which I attended) is that there's no basis from a military standpoint for any one of the big three to feel that it's carrying an unjust load — a bigger load, yes, but not an unjust one," Mr. MacKenzie wrote. "All the indications support Secretary of War Stimson's recent statement that he's convinced 'all the Allies are contributing to the full measure of their resources.'

Must Not Mix up Problems

"That's the way it looks to this column from the 'military standpoint.' If you retort that power politics are being played in Europe, I shan't dispute you but shall insist that we shouldn't get political problems mixed up with the military aspect— or trade and economic questions, for that matter.

"Naturally there have been times when each of the Allies has felt that its burden was hard to carry. John Bull sorely needed help back in the days of France's collapse, when he was fighting Hitler's blitz with bare fists. During her trial by fire in 1943 Russia urged an invasion of Western Europe by British and America to ease her terrific strain. And recently some have been wondering why the Russians have not 'attacked the Vistula Line to support the Allied drive in the west.

"However, while the needy ones have felt anxiety at the time of need, there seems to have been general recognition that the Allies have contributed willingly to the extent of their means. There never has been any question, so far as I know, of making all the contributions balance exactly …

"Churchill the other day characterized the United States as 'the greatest military, naval and air power in the world.' That's a true bill, and it accounts for the preponderance of our forces in western Europe and the Orient…"

IN MEMORIAM

LAWRENCE — In loving memory of a dear mother, Rose Lawrence, who passed away December 13, 1942.

Those whom we love go out of sight,
But never out of mind;
They are cherished in the hearts
Of those they leave behind.
Loving and kind in all her ways,
Upright and just to the end of her days;
Sincere and true in heart and mind,
Beautiful memories she left behind.
—Ever remembered by Sons and Daughters.

HAWLEY — In loving memory of husband and father, Myron W. Hawley, who passed away December 13, 1941.

Our lips cannot tell how we miss him,
Our hearts cannot tell what to say,
God alone knows how we miss him
In a home that is lonesome today.
The rolling stream of life rolls on,
But still the vacant chair
Recalls the love, the voice, the smile
Of the one who once sat there.
—Ever remembered by Wife, Daughter and Family.

O. Parks Elected Pres. Quinte Seed Growers' Assoc.

Prominent Prince Edward County farmer Mr. Oscar Parks of Bloomfield, was elected president of the Quinte District Seed Growers' Association at their annual meeting and election of officers held in Belleville on Monday afternoon. He succeeds R. Brodie Ness of Portsmouth, who had been president of the association for the past two years. Mr. Ness was retained on the executive as honorary president.

A good representation of district seed growers attended the meeting and heard Kenneth Polis of the crops, seeds and weeds branch, Ontario Department of Agriculture, give an interesting talk on the importance of maintaining proper soil fertility.

Seed Situation Reviewed.

H. R. Parnell, district seed inspector, reviewed the general seed situation and named the various varieties of seed adaptable to district soil conditions. He expressed the opinion that there would be sufficient seed in the district for next spring's requirements without bringing in supplies from other districts.

Members of the association accepted an invitation from E. A. Summers, agricultural representative for Durham County to hold their annual seed fair in his district this year. It was decided to hold the fair at Orono March 14, 15 and 16, with the Ontario Brotherhood of Threshermen being invited to hold their annual convention in connection with the fair.

Officers Elected.

Other officers elected for the next year were as follows: John Rickard, Newcastle, and B. C. Jackson of Enterprise, vice presidents; H. L. Fair, Stirling, sec. treas.; E. A. Summers, Bowmanville, fair secretary; H. R. Parnell, Belleville, fair manager, and Col. R. Vanderwater, Foxboro, and H. B. Parnell, auditors.

Hastings county directors named included D. A. Thrasher, Belleville R.R. 3; C. H. Wilson, Foxboro; Herbert Watt, Foxboro; Harry Coulter, Foxboro; Bruce Prindle, Thomasburg; Ralph Campbell, Foxboro; Norway Maracle, of Shannonville; Colonel R. Wanderwater Foxboro; C. H. Ketcheson, R.R. 2; Dave Hollinger, Stirling and Harry Ketcheson, Holloway.

Directors for Prince Edward Co., are J. A. Alexander, Hillier; Homer Talcott, Bloomfield; Neil Parks, Picton; Sam Danford, Consecon; H. E. Redner, Ameliasburg; James Robinson, Belleville, R.R. 7; Hubert Goodmurphy, Demorestville, and James Barber, Belleville, R.R. 7.

PARKED CAR HIT BY CITY PLOW

Only one accident of proportions occurred on city streets during Tuesday's blinding blizzard, and strangely enough the city snow plow was implicated in the lone motor crash.

Edgar Greer, 121 West Moira Street told local police he had parked his automobile on West Bridge Street early last evening, while visiting friends. In the meantime the city snow plow was proceeding along the street clearing snow, when the plow collided with the left rear fender of the parked motor car.

The matter was immediately turned over to City Hall officials.

MANY DEAD AS WORST BLIZZARD ON RECORD HITS ONTARIO

So huge were the snowdrifts in front of the city hall in central Toronto, Ont., during the worst blizzard in years, that Stanley Todrow, who started out to work on skis, got really buried as he skirted the city hall steps. Many are dead in Ontario as a result of the storm which tied up local transportation, trains and planes.

Belleville Boy Took Part in Action In Which Maj. D. V. Currie Won V. C.

The one hundred and fifty men of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders had been surrounded by German hordes. For three days they had beaten off fierce counter-attacks, cut off from their main body. The streets of the village were littered with German dead, equipment and vehicles. The Canuck Scotties fought valiantly and finally won the day. Their gallant commander, Major David V. Currie, won the Victoria Cross.

In this maelstrom of hell fought Lance Corporal Arthur Bridge, son of Mrs. D. M. Bridge, 27 Alexander Street.

Writing to his mother, the young soldier said, "When we went in, all I could see was two of our tanks knocked out and when we left there were six burned (three Jerries) with other vehicles on the main street. Trucks, motorcycles, tanks and all sorts of Jerry vehicles, guns, ammunition and more dead Jerries than I ever saw before—not to mention the 3,000 we captured . . . I don't want to see any more like that—no thanks."

Since that battle Lance Corporal Bridge has been transferred to a special employment section due to a nervous collapse suffered after the fierce engagement mentioned above.

He enlisted here in 1942 and went overseas in June of that year. Discovered to be too young to proceed with his regiment to the front, he was posted to a reinforcement unit and held in England. Later he was posted to the Argylls.

He is a member of a fighting family. One brother Corporal Rex Bridge, is with the R.C.A.S.C. in England; another brother, Ralph, is also with the Argyll and Sutherlands in Holland. Ralph and Arthur married sisters in Eltham, near London.

A brother-in-law is Flight Lieutenant F. A. Johnston, Mosquito pilot with the now famous City of Edmonton Squadron.

Storm at-a-Glance

Province

Toronto, Dec. 13. (CP)—Though a complete picture of the paralyzing blizzard which hit eastern, southern and western Ontario Monday and Tuesday has not yet been prepared, Dominion Meteorological officials here said the centre of the storm hit districts at the western end of Lake Ontario.

Hamilton, at the extreme western tip of the Lake, had a 24-inch snowfall. Thirty-five miles east, on the south shore of the lake, St. Catharines had a snowfall of from two to five feet, while 43 miles east of Hamilton on the north shore, Toronto suffered a 22 1-2-inch fall.

Following is a brief picture of the situation in various points:

North Bay—Half inch of snow.

Muskoka—Two inch fall.

St. Catharines—Two to five feet of snow, roads drifted and blocked.

London—Six to 18 inches, roads blocked.

Stirling—12 inch fall.

Ottawa—Five inches of snow.

Montreal—Seven to nine inches, roads clear.

Windsor—Five inches, main roads blocked.

Hamilton—24 inches, one-way traffic on main streets.

Barrie—Heavy fall, highways open.

Cornwall—Two inches of snow, highways blocked.

Guelph—Heavy snow, highways blocked.

Sudbury—No snow.

Kingston—Four and half inch fall, roads slippery.

Brockville—Light fall, roads passable.

Brantford—Only main streets cleared.

Bracebridge—Heavy snow, high winds.

Oshawa—Roads impassable.

Goderich—Four inch fall.

Welland—Eight inches of snow.

Hull—Five inches.

FIGHT LOSING BATTLE

Smiths Falls, Dec. 13 (CP)—Ploughs in this section of eastern Ontario continued yesterday to fight a losing battle against the snowstorm which began late Monday and was still raging last night. All highways leading from Smiths Falls were blocked last night. Earlier, trucks managed to batter their way through from Kingston, Ottawa and Brockville until noon.

Snow clearing equipment was in use on town streets, but they filled in quickly and motor traffic was virtually at a standstill.

Toronto

Toronto, Dec. 13 (CP)—Toronto today was digging itself out of the most complete paralysis of transportation, industry and commerce in history following yesterday's raging snowstorm.

More than 22 inches of snow blanketed the city and district between 5:15 a.m. Monday and 8:30 p.m. last night and a blinding northeast wind piled drifts up to 15 feet or more in height on the city's streets. Fifteen deaths were reported as a result of accidents or strain brought on by floundering through drift or attempting to shovel them.

Here is a brief picture of what happened:

All non-essential automobile travel was banned on streets which had street car lines.

All major war plants closed.

All large departmental stores closed.

All school children, about 100,000 were given a holiday.

All milk and bread deliveries were suspended.

All incoming highways and most city streets were blocked.

Thousands were forced to walk to work, some several miles, because buses and some street cars were unable to operate.

All funerals were postponed.

All scheduled operations in hospitals were postponed and only emergency operations were performed.

Ambulance service was supplied only to the most serious cases.

Newspapers were forced to cut publications. The Star published two editions, the Evening Telegram one, and the Globe and Mail suspended publication of its morning paper today.

Trains all ran behind schedule and some departures were cancelled.

Taxis were at a standstill.

Hotel accommodation was at a premium, and by midnight no rooms were available for workers trying to get places to sleep.

Mail deliveries to householders were suspended, but some mail was received in downtown offices.

Many restaurants remained closed because of lack of staff.

Numerous conventions and meetings were cancelled.

The Toronto Stock Exchange, and many offices, were closed.

Ontario government offices at Queen's Park shut down at 11.30 a.m.

CHINESE PURSUE JAPS MORE THAN 20 MILES

Chungking, Dec. 13 — (AP)—Chinese troops have driven more than 20 miles into Kwangsi province in pursuit of Japanese forces retreating westward from Kweichow province and are about 15 miles from Hochih, the Chinese high command announced today.

This represented an overnight advance of about 10 miles on the part of the Chinese, who are moving down the Kweichow-Kwangsi railway.

Chaplain Service In RCAF Explained To Kiwanis Club

"The boys now fighting overseas will not be satisfied with the old world as they knew it when they went away" Rev. J. Grant Sparling told members of the Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon on Tuesday at the Quinte Hotel, when he spoke on the "Organization of the Protestant Chaplain Service in the R.C.A.F." Mr. Sparling has been recently discharged from the Air Force to take over the rectorship of Christ Church.

A new member was introduced and initiated into Kiwanis in the person of Roland "Spike" Pryke, plant superintendent of Reliance Industries Ltd. He was introduced by Ted Schwab and initiated by Cliff Baragar. He will be formally introduced to each member at another meeting. The members of the cast that put on the excellent show last week at Kiwanis Centre were thanked by President Jack McVeigh, while the chairman Mark Vanner and his co-partner Mrs. Russell Smith, who had charge of the arrangements were given hearty applause for their efforts. Mrs. Vic White and Mrs. Charles Richardson, who help design the costumes and stage the show were especially thanked by the club.

Explain Setup

Introduced by Ormonde Butler, Rev. Grant Sparling explained the setup of the Chaplain Service in the R.C.A.F., stating that five Protestant denominations had chaplains in the service and they were recruited on a pro rata basis to the church population and these chaplains were then divided into six commands each under the direction of a director. Explaining that he had served from Yukon on the west to Labrador on the east the speaker was sure that his happiest days in the service were spent on the station and he took his audience through 24 hours of day. He described the insignia of the service showing that it was a cross with wings inverted and the motto 'Bring Heaven to men through the Cross of Christ".

The speaker stated that Chaplains were supposed to issue a daily statement on the state of morale of the station and in this way the command could learn the state of morale across the Dominion of the R.C.A.F. He told of interviews with men ranging from family matters to the state of marriage and also of their moral welfare. "You must be able to talk their language" said the speaker, "and you will get along fine and create a great influence among the personnel. The talk was along the same lines as given to the Kinsmen Club on Monday evening and was fully covered in Tuesday's edition. The thanks of the club was expressed by Lorne McDougall. President Jack McVeigh presided at the luncheon with Charlie Richardson acting as sergeant at arms and Harold Carruthers leading the community singing, Bill Navin being at the piano.

Girls Follow Frank Sinatra To Montreal

Montreal, Dec. 13 (CP)—Five New York girls with a wanderlust, ranging in age from 10 to 17 years, were heading homeward by train today, while three fathers who came here to get them laid the whole thing to the fact the youngsters had heard Frank Sinatra was in Montreal.

"The girls were just crazy about him, and when they saw in the papers that he was appearing in Montreal they decided to come up here," said the parents, adding "all is forgiven and we are happy to have our children back."

The girls were found huddled in Outremont freight yards by Montreal police early yesterday, after a spending spree in Montreal. They had misjudged the time of Frank Sinatra's one-night stand in Montreal by two weeks.

The girls had $1,998 in United States currency and a $100 American war bonds in their possession.

The youngsters had six valises, one hat box and another cardboard box filled with clothing. They had been missing from their New York homes since Dec. 7. Police said they had spent about $500 in Montreal.

The girls were identified by police as Helen Stribano, 10; her sister, Jeanne, 17; Frances Diperri, 15; Joan Lactus, 13, and Concerta Livell, 16. Police said that apparently Miss Livell had been chosen as leader of the group when they started their wanderings.

Fall of Godollo Rips Wide Gap In German Lines

Moscow, Dec. 13. (AP)— Russian assault forces pointed toward Budapest today from newly-captured Godollo, 10 1-2 miles to the northeast, while artillery drew up in close formation at the northern and southern outskirts of the Hungarian capital.

Despite the close approach of the Red Army siege semicircle no front dispatches mentioned anything about the fall of the Hungarian capital being "imminent".

The city's inhabitants have fled westward by the thousands and the German garrison was said to have dug in apparently determined to hold out until full destruction of the metropolis.

From the Russian positions many fires could be observed inside the city.

The fall of Godollo ripped a wide gap in the enemy's defence lines northeast of Budapest. An important rail junction, it was the last major enemy bastion controlling the approaches from that [illegible]. A Soviet communique said the Germans last 400 killed in its [illegible] yesterday.

The Moscow communique also announced capture of Sajos-Zent-Peter, ten miles north of Miskolc, and ten other towns in the Central Slovakia border area.

These advances appeared likely to be linked eventually with the new operations to the west, north of the Danube Bend, the objective being to pinch off from behind some 60 miles of mountainous German defences in northern Hungary.

Izvestia declared that "complete liberation of the Czechoslovak Republic is near".

EISENHOWER PRESENTS DECORATION TO DOUGLAS

St. Lawrence R. Waterway, Power Project Delayed

By C. R. BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Dec. 13 — (CP)—Action on the St. Lawrence waterway and power project was further delayed yesterday when the United States Senate, by a vote of 56 to 25, defeated an amendment which would tie the project into an omnibus rivers and harbors bill.

There had been little hope that this huge project would be authorized by the "lame duck" Congress which goes out of office next Jan. 20, but Senator George D. Aiken (Rep.-Vt.) made a valiant effort to get it through.

In leading the forces arraged against the project Senator John H. Overton (Dem.-La.) opposed the idea of trying to make this agreement with Canada subject of a routine vote in Congress rather than a treaty which would require a two-thirds vote of the Senate.

The project, which calls for expenditure of some $280,000,000 for development of water power alone in the vicinity of Cornwall, Ont., was subject of a new agreement between Canada and the United States Mar. 19, 1942.

Because an earlier treaty covering this project was defeated in the Senate after ratification by Canada's parliament, this new agreement was left for American disposal before Canada acts.

There has been a question of whether it should go through Congress as an executive agreement or a treaty and yesterday's action indicated a strong feeling against the former method of procedure.

Protests Short Notice

Senator Overton also protested that Senator Aiken's amendment was brought in only at the last minute, when there was no time to hold public hearings on it.

Mr. Aiken's reply to that is that few projects before Congress have been subject of more exhaustive committee hearings down through the years during which it has been periodically advanced.

The Vermont senator today read a telegram from President Roosevelt in which the latter approved his action and urged that the project be approved as quickly as possible.

The message, answering an inquiry from Senator Aiken, said:

"Of course I want action as soon as possible on the St. Lawrence seaway. It is logical and inevitable. The quicker the better."

The amendment was lost on a non-party vote but it was noticeable that the bulk of the opponents were from the middle west and south where opposition to the project is strongest.

It is expected a fresh effort to get Congressional approval will be initiated soon after the 79th Congress convenes in January.

Blizzard

Winter is usually welcomed by most people, but not when it brings two very heavy storms such as that of the week before last and that of Monday and Tuesday of this week. The latest storm was of blizzard proportions which created deep drifts across roads, highways and walks. It quite effectively disrupted traffic for snow and ice are two obstacles that modern motor traffic especially does not welcome, for sometimes the surface is so treacherous as to make an accident unavoidable and yet traffic must move if it is possible for this age has so developed by reason of changed conditions of living and the manner of buying that few homes have an abundance of supplies as in other days. Today large supplies of food would be impossible in homes for no other reason but the restrictions on some lines of food in a time of war. Anyway, houses are not stocked with food as they were in the old days when bulk quantities were bought and while refrigeration was not then generally used, the people managed through time-honored methods to keep their food fresh and available when wanted.

It is true that today there are means of combatting a snowstorm's effects by the mechanisms which have been developed for clearing highways and roads of snowdrifts. In ancient days when settlements and homes would be isolated by snow for days, today's isolation does not last that long, for huge plows with ample power set to work to open up the roads and provincial thoroughfares, so that a few hours serve to restore transportation and traffic generally and with this of course soon comes the adjustment of the food supply.

Snow with its blockades and disruption of traffic is not as terrible an element as floodwaters which are destructive of wealth and life. It is unfortunately true that snowstorms cause deaths when people try to make their way through deep snowbanks and over-exert the heart, sometimes with fatal results. It may be remarked that in connection with this last storm whic has far as Toronto was concerned was the worst in 72 years with the fall of 21 inches of snow, there were 14 deaths in that city, of over-exertion in shovelling snow, and the other persons while trying to make their way through four-foot snowdrifts. Such a toll is very sad. In Toronto's case so urgent was the situation that the chief coroner issued an appeal to persons over fifty years of age not to shovel snow and not to walk through heavy drifts.

But it is not often that such storms come. In Toronto's case it was the worst in nearly three-quarters of a century. In Belleville district where the snowfall was heavy but much lighter than in Toronto it would certainly not be necessary to go so far back in time to find a storm of equal intensity.

In this age when many people daily travel considerable distances, the disruption in traffic is much greater than it used to be when traffic was far less and when people did not move about as they do today. Today it is not unusual for many a man or woman to travel many miles to work, even to another town, and hence the interruption by storm becomes greater.

In the past year disruptions have not been confined to weather troubles. Everyone recalls the earthquake tremors of last autumn and the damage and anxiety at Cornwall.

But Canada is a land peculiarly favored. There are rarely very great extremes of temperature, there are a few occasional floods, earth tremors are extremely rare and no extensive earthquake has taken place within memory of history, no violent contortions or convulsions of nature as in quake zones, nothing like cyclones, tempests, tidal waves and such like disasters which claim many lives in other parts of the world.

Fortunately the storms the people of Canada experience soon pass and leave little or no mark in their wake.

Men Are Taller

(Metropolitan Life Bulletin)

Stature shows distinct signs of increase in the present generation. The average height of men in the ages 20 to 29 examined at induction stations for the U. S. armed service in May, 1943, was 68.15 inches (without shoes). This figure is about two thirds of an inch more than the average of 67.49 inches for the first million draftees of ages 21 to 30 examined at mobilization camps in the last World War in 1917.

Not only has the average height increased over this period but as one would naturally expect, the proportion of tall men among the 1943 selectees was also greater than among those of the last war. In the age group 20 to 30 years, the proportion of men 5 feet 10 inches or over among the recent selectees was 27.5 percent as against 22.4 percent reported for the men in 1917. The proportions of six-footers were 8.8 and 6.5 percent respectively.

In other words, the proportion of six-footers amonk young men is about one-third greater at present than it was a quarter of a century ago.

Soil Determines Health

(The Farmer's Advocate)

Soil experts and nutritionists were given a huge jolt when Dr. William Albrecht, of Missouri, told a London audience recently that in these humid eastern regions plant growth and crops did not contain the elixir of life as did the vegetation produced where the hard wheat grows, and as a result of this lack, human frailties are more pronounced and animal diseases are more prevalent. We in the east, it seems, think in terms of bushels and tonnage per acre, but that is not enough. It is calcium (lime) and phosphorus in the food we eat that enables the body to synthesize or build up the various compounds vitally essential to good health and virility. In a man's body of 150 pounds only 5½ pounds are of mineral origin and incombustible in character. But this small percentage is of tremendous importance, and national well-being may well depend on the availability of these elements so important in the metabolism of plants, animals and man.

The percentage of rejects from military service, because of physical unfitness, should awaken all health departments to aggressive action, and live stock raisers in these eastern regions know well enough that animal diseases are much more prevalent than they were two, three and four decades ago. So far as animal diseases are concerned they are a challenge to the soils specialists more than to the veterinary profession, and medical research workers would do well to pursue their studies beyond the drug shelf and the modern text-books on nutrition. Back there in the soil from whence we come are many secrets yet unrevealed. After all, man is only a handful of clay, and many of the perplexing social and international problems that we try to solve through power politics and war could be more easily untangled, no doubt, if we all got closer to mother earth and sought in the first six inches of top soil not only the bulky food to fill our stomachs, but the highly essential soil elements that regulate the health and general welfare of the human race.

New Mothers Are Younger

(Vogue Magazine)

The space between generations has dwindled since the war, with girls marrying younger than has been usual in recent years. The closer association between generations with Grandmother again playing an important part in family life is returning. Families are being forced by war circumstances to set up house together, and the big old family homes again house sons and daughters and their families.

AD FOR PARENTS

He came in to me with a wide-spreading grin.
He stood as he talked and he help up his chin.
His eyes looked in mine and polite was his speech,
His manners were those it takes patience to teach,
And I thought in the moments I spent with the lad
I could vision in him both his mother and dad.

I said when he left and I say it again:
"That sort of a boy takes devotion to train.
That lad wasn't left to the strangers he'd meet
Or tossed to the dangers of night and the street.
You, could tell from his actions that youngster has had
The love of a marvelous mother and dad."

He went on his way, but this tribute is paid
To his parents because of that visit he made.
From the shine on his shoes to the part in his hair
It was certain that boy had been cherished with care.
Thus to sum it all up: What a glorious ad
A youngster can be for his mother and dad!

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Permission Granted To Extend Store Hours Christmas Week

Editor, Ontario Intelligencer,-

As secretary of the Retail Merchants' Division of the Chamber of Commerce, I recently sent a letter to the Industry and Labor Board of the Department of Labor at Toronto requesting a ruling on the question of shopping hours in retail mercantile establishments at Belleville for the four days immediately preceding the Christmas holiday—that is to say from Wednesday, Dec. 20 to Saturday, Dec. 23 inclusive.

I have received a very courteous reply from Mr. Edward Coons, on behalf of the Board, from which I make the following extracts,-

"In view of the fact that the subject matter of your letter is of a nature highly in keeping with the season so close at hand, we do hereby grant, by blanket permission to all the retail merchants of the City of Belleville, that their stores may remain open for the dates, Dec. 20-23, inclusive, and to the hour of 9.30 p.m.

"While this blanket order applies for this year only, we would not want to feel that we would stand in the pathway of progress, or a past custom, in having your merchants serve the ever-increasing purchasing community at this period of the year.

"Will you be so good as to advise the Retail Merchants' Division of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce that it is a requirement to keep a record of the overtime hours permitted by the above authorization under the provisions of the Hours of Work and Vacations with Pay Act of 1944."

ACHIEVE

The Maritimers meantime had made their positions firm to the right of Villanova and were operating under cover of small arms fire from a company under Capt. Syl McKenna of Sydney, N.S.

Then Maj. Sandy Bonnel of Saint John, N.B., struck through to a road junction 1,000 yards northwest, where they played hide-and-seek with a small group of enemy self-propelled guns until daylight.

Outwitted Enemy.

Sappers under Lieut. Jack Young of Vancouver, immediately began developing the bridge site. They're the boys who turned in a terrific job.

The infantry outwitted the enemy and by the time he had realized the attack was on, his artillery and mortar fire rained abundantly not on the infantry, who had gone ahead, but on the engineers.

Sprs. Art March of Port Alberni, B.C., and Ernie Rober of Timmins, Ont., bulldozed the bridge approaches while others under Lieut. Dick Bray, of Ottawa, got the pontoons and other equipment in place.

When things got hottest the boys were glad to find the enemy dugouts and slit trenches which now afforded them some protection.

A second bridgehead operation three miles upstream was launched at 9.30 p.m., one hour after the first.

Companies from another Nova Scotia battalion under Maj. Gordie McNeill of Cape Breton, N.S., and Capt. Don Rice of Bridgewater, N.S., and Saint John, N.B., advanced.

On the right were companies from a New Brunswick regiment under Majs. Rowland Horsey of Vancouver and Lloyd Watling of Chatham, N.B., while on the left Highlander companies moved up under Capts. George Beale and Bill Leadbeater, both of Toronto.

The Nova Scotians hit trouble in the shape of an enemy artillery concentration which caused casualties, and McNeill had his hands full reorganizing.

Reached Bank on Schedule

Rice's equipment floated downstream and his men subsequently crossed with the New Brunswickers on the right. There Horsey and Watling had trouble floating their equipment and changed to boats, yet reached the west bank right on schedule.

Scaling the dike, Horsey led his men in a charge over the top and down the far side. He was amazed at the slight enemy resistance at this point. The enemy retired in confusion — 50 of them falling right into the arms of Watling's men who then pushed inland from their own crossing place.

By the time the regiment's shallow, 800-yard bridgehead was secure, helped by other companies under Capt. Chad Haining of Newcastle, N.B., and Don Smith of St. Johns, Que., it bagged 102 prisoners, killed an uncounted — but large — number and wounded others, at a cost of 10 wounded and none killed.

The Highlanders on the left also ultimately used boats. Beale's boys got over first and Leadbeater's followed; within an hour they had 25 prisoners including a German company commander.

The bridgehead was augmented when forces under Capts. Harold McCutcheon of Port Colborne, Ont., and Bob Murdoch of Toronto arrived. Again the fighting was light and 65 Germans surrendered.

In Position for Counter-Attack.

At this stage the bridgehead's flanks were established but its centre had not fully materialized. This soon was remedied when the Nova Scotians moved to the right, used their fellow-Maritimers' crossing-place and fanned out, passing behind them, to assume their own designated positions on the opposite bank.

They were well into position without undue trouble at daylight when enemy infantry counter-attacked strongly, supported by self-propelled guns.

In subsequent action companies led by Capt. W. H. P. David and Rice destroyed four of the guns, killing their crews and taking 60 enemy infantrymen prisoner.

Two large stretches of the west bank of the Lamone then were solidly in Canadian hands and units holding them were rapidly expanding their gains to form a junction.

Losses Very Small.

Drawing enemy attention to another part of the Canadian sector and then throwing murderously accurate artillery fire followed by an audacious attack on the very place the enemy believed himself most secure did the trick.

The battle of the Lamone was won at a cost of half the casualties suffered in last week's setback at the same place, and, considering the number of Canadian troops involved, their losses were a mere fraction.

Yesterday's German communique admitted establishment of a small bridgehead on the western bank of the Lamone where the 1st Canadian Corps is operating.

Previous to today, no Allied confirmation to the German admission had been made and front dispatches were not received Monday or Tuesday, probably indicating a news blackout on the Lamone operation.

70 P. C. OF CASES RULED ON

Ottawa, Dec. 13 — (CP) — More than "70 per cent of Canadian men and women with overseas service who have been discharged for medical reasons and whose cases have been ruled on by the Canadian Pension Commission have been granted entitlement to pension," Veterans Minister Mackenzie announced yesterday.

Mr. Mackenzie said he based his statement on figures which showed that up to Oct. 31, some 15,335 such cases had been ruled on and of these 11,305 had been granted entitlement to pension. Most of the "favorable" decisions — 10,405 of them — were given on first hearing.

THE COLOR OF THE HAIR

Human hair color is one or another shade of brown. That is, the pigment which determines hair color, like the pigment which determines skin color and eye color, is brown, period.

It is the amount of this pigment in the hair that determines whether the hair appears light or dark in hue. So-called "black" hair, like "black" skin or "black" eyes contains the most pigment, but still the pigment is brown. Blond hair contains the least pigment. Persons having the least pigment in the iris (color ring around central black pupil) are "blue eyed", but one with no pigment at all in the iris is pink-eyed (albino), because the pink or reddish hue of the blood in the vessels in the interior of the eye shows through. Incidentally all babies (except albinos) have blue eyes at birth; permanent coloration of the eyes does not take place until the baby is five or six weeks old.

Red hair is brown hair that happens to contain less air globules in the cortex or outer layer of the shaft to darken the appearance of the pigment—an individual "red" hair examined under the microscope is just brown like all human hair.

The hair of albinois (persons born with congenital lack of pigment) have pure white hair.

Many persons begin to turn gray before thirty, and few reach fifty without some graying of the hair. Graying is more noticeable in persons with dark hair color. That graying is not due to loss or removal of pigment from the hair seems evident from the observation that graying takes place first close to the scalp and only after the hair has grown to its full length does it become entirely gray. The graying is due to failure of nutrition, failure of the blood to supply what it takes to make the pigment. We'll consider presently whether there is anything one can do about it.

Hair that has turned "white" is gray hair in which there are less air globules—no difference in color under the microscope but more air globules in the darker hair.

Purely fanciful and hearsay are tales of hair turning gray or white over night from some great shock or sorrow—such yarns belong in the category of the hero or heroine of the romantic novel of the early Victorian era who developed "brain fever" when the going became too torrid, and the whisper passed about by the woman with a scandal to conceal, that a negro child was born to white people because there happened to be a drop of negro blood contributed by some errant forebear. These things never happen, but they make such interesting conversation.

Casual observers sometimes notice how gray or white the hair of an old acquaintance has turned since last they met—and perhaps draw inferences if the acquaintance has suffered some tragic loss, disregarding the time that has passed in the interim.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Healthy Children

Our two girls, raised on "Preparing for Maternity" and "The Brady Baby Book", are grand specimens of healthy active children. Our family doctor says he has yet to find "Ol' Doc Brady" wrong and what's more, he says, "Ol Doc Brady is a couple of jumps ahead of the march most of the time."

(Mrs. A. M. R.)

Answer—Young couples contemplating going into the baby business had better begin right—send two dimes (without glue, sticker tape, string, wire, staples, rivets, Scotch tape, gum) and stamped pre-addressed envelope and ask for booklets "Preparing for Maternity" and "Brady Baby Book". Young husbands: Greetings. Preparation for the coming of the baby is just as much your personal concern as it is your wife's. If you are a man you'll stay right with her in all study and in all prenatal treatment. When the baby comes you'll be right with her, not outside playing the role of stooge.

Arthritis

For six years have been very stiff and sore in neck, back and hips. Diagnosed as arthritis of spine. Have daily routine of heat, massage and exercises, but am miserable all the time. Have heard much of vitamin D treatment but the doctors I have asked are not impressed.

(R. G. W.)

Answer—Nobody knows enough about it to be much impressed. However, it could do no harm to try. Of course only under your physician's care. I believe I'd want at least the calcium and vitamin D treatment if I had any kind of chronic arthritis. If I were partly or totally disabled I'd want a go at the high potency vitamin D treatment. Send stamped envelope bearing your address, ask for "Calcium and Rheumatis."

CHINESE CURE ALL

Ginseng is not consumed in the United States to any appreciable extent.

A negligible quantity of ginseng root is consumed by Chinese in America and a trifling amount is used by manufacturers of medicines, but the consumption of the root is confined almost entirely to China and virtually the entire American supply is exported to that country.

There is a difference of opinion respecting the medical value of ginseng root, but the general belief of the medical profession is that it possesses little, if any, real therapeutic virtue. It is used to a limited extent as a demulcent, but is not officially recognized by the United States Pharmacopoeia even for that purpose.

With the Chinese, however, it is in great demand. They regard it as a sort of cure-all and use it for nearly every conceivable medicinal purpose. The wild root is considered more desirable by the Chinese than the cultivated and consequently it brings higher prices.

In China branched ginseng roots resembling the human form command particularly high prices, because of their supposed occult virtues. If a boy is weak in the legs many Chinese think the best way to cure him is to give him a concoction made of ginseng root that resembles a boy running or otherwise using his legs. If an arm is affected, then a root that shows a well-developed arm should be used.

Perhaps the real demand for ginseng is based on an ancient superstition that the root has the power of restoring virility to the impotent.

"Ginseng" is of Chinese origin. It is supposed to be derived from two Pekinese words, "jen" and "shen," literally signifying "likeness of man," but figuratively interpreted as meaning "first of plants."

In the United States ginseng is often called "sang."

Before the outbreak of the Second World War China received about twenty percent of her ginseng from Manchuria, Korea and Japan and the rest from America.

The United States normally exports about $1,000,000 worth of dried ginseng root to China a year. It has sold as high as $24 a pound.

American ginseng is not the same species of plant as the native Chinese ginseng.

The first New England ship to sail for China, the sloop Harriet, carried a cargo of ginseng. Captain Hallet traded this ginseng to an English captain for tea off the Cape of Good Hope. "The Empress of China," which sailed to the Orient in 1784 and which was the first American ship to reach China, also had on board large quantities of ginseng.

American ginseng is a slow-growing perennial, and under cultivation requires several years to produce marketable roots.

Sodality Hostesses At Christmas Party

The Social Committee of the Sodality of the Children of Mary entertained at a gay Christmas party on Monday night in the auditorium of St. Michael's Academy. For the occasion, the newly received members of the Sodality and the Columbian Squires were guests. The auditorium was arranged in Christmas decorations in a splash of color, with red, white, green and silver dominating the scene. The tea table was spread with a white lace cloth, centred with a miniature Christmas tree and flanked with red tapers in silver candelabra. There were even crackers supplied for the celebration in which were found all sorts of colorful paper hats. The juke box played popular musical numbers for the enthusiastic crowd of dance lovers. Even a floor show had been arranged with John Doyle assuming the role of a very efficient master of ceremonies. He conducted a quiz contest which produced a great deal of merriment "all around". Along with Tom Mascaro and Inez Forster, John favored with several vocal numbers accompanied by Bill Navin at the piano. Bill also played for the Paul Jones, the Virginia reel and the square dance. Spot dances and a broom dance proved very popular with everyone. Delicious refreshments were served by the girls of the social committee, under the leadership of Miss Gladys MacDonald.

Fashion Flashes

ALL READY to bring color and cheer into the winter fashion scene are charming prints. Black masks, pink and gold fans and red roses make up a pretty design on a gray or beige crepe ground, while another design is of Zebras, in tan and brown on beige.

VERY GOOD with either black or brown is a hat of pink beaver felt, its high crown banded with wine-colored satin which is also used for a many-looped bow. The brim has a rippled flange at the center side.

EASY AID to perk up a simple but well-cut black dress is a tie-on apron of painted silk in an indefinite large floral design in muted shades highlighted with multi-colored sequins.

HIGH FASHION for evening elegance, especially with suburban commuters, is the street-length theatre suit. A good model is of moire, the coat cut on fairly long, very boxy lines and worn over a blouse of black net and lace.

FOR SHEER LUXURY we submit the house robe cut on soft, full lines and fashioned of beautiful materials. Black velvet is used for a charming robe made with full front panel of salmon pink satin and closed with buttons of black velvet rimmed with rhinestones.

FOR A LIFT designed to bring new interest to dark frocks and coats, we recommend a small, wide-brimmed, flat-crowned sailor of white hatter's plush with brim-binding and crown band of white grosgrain and misty pale pink veil.

IT'S WONDERFUL to see long-skirted evening things again, say servicemen. At a fashion show the applause went to a long-sleeved, long-skirted dinner dress of heavy, white silk jersey, the collarless, intricately curved neckline outlined with emerald and sequin embroidery. Low swag drapery on the skirt emanates from the base of a narrow V-shaped midriff section.

FEATHERS FLUTTER on the prettiest hats. Made for wear with an afternoon frock or theatre suit is a small sailor of black velvet, its brim entirely covered with clipped ostrich in pink and blue.

A HOLD-OVER in almost every collection of Spring clothes is the side-draped skirt, especially nice for dressy prints. A pretty design of sombreros, fans and guitars in red, black, rust and green, on a gray ground is used for a pretty frock with skirt drapery drawn into a big self bow at the side.

PRETTY YOUNG things like a glittery headdress for evening rather than a conventional hat or a quite bare head. A thick tiara of black sequins with a sequined petal motif in front makes a nice complement to a street-length dinner dress.

NOTHING SPECIAL is needed in the way of promotion for wonderful durable Alaska seal, so nice in black or safari brown. Made up into a greatcoat to be worn free-swinging or belted, it makes a grand traveler and always looks beautiful.

As the Birthdays Pile Up

Birthday worries are a long way off for lovely Lynn Bari.

By HELEN FOLLETT

THERE'S an old saying that the woman who will tell her age will tell anything. What's the sense in it, anyhow? Birthdays are nothing to be ashamed of, nothing to brag about. Everybody has one every year. To let them get you down is silly. You can't stop Time; he just goes rolling along.

If lines have appeared in facial tissues, be grateful for white hair that forms a softening, silvery halo. But remember that the older a woman is, the more correct and perfect must be the coiffure. Wisps of straggly hair at the sides or neck give evidence that interest in appearance has slowed up; that just won't do.

The Mature Coiffure.

Grey hair should carry an undulation, so grandma, like other feminine members of the family circle must subject her distinguished head to the permanent waving machine. Whether she wears her locks short or sports the high hairdo depends upon size and type. A cute little Grannie with a slim figure and bright eyes looks younger and gayer with a short cut, tresses all in tendrils. The dignified, heavier old girl is made distinguished by a coiffure more formal. A little white brilliantine can be used if locks are rebellious, won't stay put.

As for make up, there you have a subject that can start an argument whenever women gather, some being for, some against its use on the ancients-and-honorables that have passed the sixtieth milestone.

No Age Limit.

The opinion of your good looks reporter is that there is no age limit to the use of synthetic complexion aids, if they are applied with intelligence and discretion.

Heavy face powders should not be used because they are likely to lodge in wrinkles, create a haggard appearance. A light application, fluffed on, imparts the velvety touch, especially if it is a conservative ochre or rachelle.

Carmine rouge is too obvious. The happy choice is a medium red with a faint bluish undertone to match the skin that becomes more transparent with age.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Parents of Serviceman's Wife Object to Her Going with Friends

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My husband was shipped overseas with the Navy about eight months ago. I go to an occasional show with my mother. Several weeks ago I met two girls whose husbands are overseas, and the three of us have been going horseback riding, roller skating, or anything in the line of sports. Sometimes the older sister of one of the girls goes with us as a chaperone; she's 35.

I have a little son of two and when I go out he stays with my sister who has two children of her own. Still my parents are always accusing me of going with other men, and say I should have my son taken away from me. Mother doesn't like any of my friends, and seems to think I should never go anywhere. My husband trusts me, and I don't think he expects me to sit at home. Don't you agree with me that a sailor's wife needs recreation as well as any one?

Distrusted Daughter

If the circumstances are such as you relate in your letter, I can't see why your parents raise such a question as the possibility of having your son taken away from you because you go about with a group of girls who are also the wives of servicemen.

I get so many letters from girls whose husbands are overseas and who tell me that when twilight comes they are so utterly unhappy and apprehensive that they cry until sleep overtakes them. I should think your parents would be glad you have such wholesome amusement as you state.

Some People are Incapable of the "Grande Passion"

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 28 years of age and always had plenty of friends both men and women. I've had my share of dates, but my trouble has been that men fall in love with me, without any response from me. I've had several promising proposals of marriage, but I keep thinking that some day I'll fall in love. All these men remain good friends of mine and still remember me on holidays.

I want to get married, and have children, as I love them. I've known B. for several years and he has always been my old standby, and the more I refuse him, the more he stays around. I like B. but there are none of those thrills that go with real love. I've promised to marry him and am going to do all I can to make him happy, as he is so good. What do you think are the chances for happiness in such a marriage?

M. R.

Some excellent people go along on the even tenor of their ways without ever experiencing what the French call the "grande passion". And while ecstatic heights are denied them, they often make very comfortable husbands and wives. Less jealousy, fewer thrills, etc. I think your chances of happiness with "Old Faithful" are very fair.

The Marry Go Round

Just a Pipe-Dream!

Have you seen any of the new pipes for ladies? I haven't—and I can't believe that the present pipe-smoking craze among women is anything but a passing fad. A defiant gesture, just to show what dare-devils we gals are!

Perhaps, you haven't even heard about the feminine pipe-fad. But, according to one dealer, "requests for women's pipes are coming in from all over the country"; and in one city more than 1,000 pipes were sold to women in two weeks.

Where there is so much smoke, there must be some brier! When a woman goes in for anything, she goes in up to her neck. But there are two reasons—two STRONG reasons—why I know that this latest caprice is just a passing nightmare. So don't let it frighten you.

The first "strong" reason, the strength of the pipe, after it has been smoked for a week or two. Did you ever get a whiff of a dear old meerschaum or brier pipe that your brother had left lying around? Did you ever put it in your mouth and try to pull on it, just for curiosity?

And did it nauseate you— or only knock you down? Or did it smell like violets and taste like ambrosia?

Of course, we women are getting stronger every day. But there is nothing stronger than a seasoned old pipe except a WOMAN'S LOVE! And what a pipe can do to romance (and the smoker's breath)—well, did you ever kiss your Darling, after he had been smoking his favorite pipe all afternoon? And were you almost gassed by the stifling aroma of stale nicotine?

Lots of women have stoically endured these nicotine-kisses for years—just for love! But will men be so heroic? Man's love is a fragile thing. Will he kiss a girl again after the first tobacco-laden sirocco—the first pungent whiff? I doubt it. Very little masculine love is that strong!

My second reason for believing that this feminine pipe-hobby is only a false-alarm—just a pipe-dream— is that it has been blamed on the cigarette shortage.

That is as foolish an alibi as women could have invented. For rolling a cigarette is one of the easiest and most amusing of pastimes. If you can't buy ready-made cigarettes, why not roll your own?

I don't suggest that any girl try to learn to roll a cigarette with one hand while sitting in the saddle, like a cowboy. But even that might be more romantic-looking than knocking out an old pipe.

DOWN SOUTH in sun-flecked resorts we hear tell of many smart women wearing frocks of polka-dotted satin, frocks usually styled on simple but effective lines, with peplums, high necks and short sleeves.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Hair Dyeing is a Fussy Job

Like the face-lift, hair dyeing has become respectable. If the brunette daughter disappears for a few hours and comes back golden-headed, there is neither panic nor war in the family circle. Years back she would have been driven out in the blinding snowstorm, told never to darken the threshold again. Now it is only an episode. She is having fun with her scalp foliage, and that's all there is to it.

One reason for this change of opinion is that bleaching and dyeing are beauty treatments that are being achieved with skill. One trick of the trade—when white hair is colored—is to leave a few silvered threads at the temples. Slick idea, huh? Time was when hair dyeing was considered in the light of taste and, in the opinion of many, only the speedy women ducked into the dye pot or flirted with the peroxide bottle. Now, with these presto-change acts performed in a scientific manner—and done successfully—it is realized that they are a help in retaining youthful appearance.

There are three reasons for this process of color transformation to restore grey hair to the pristine shade, to change the natural tone to a more attractive one, to return bleached locks to their natural state. Hair coloring is not always a vain luxury, but something that may add real value to a woman's life. We are thinking now of girls of eighteen who go grey, of wives whose white hair makes them look older than their husbands.

Home dyeing may be successful if only a few grey strands are to be touched up, but treating the entire growth is hazardous. In the first place, the dyer must have the right medium. There are many good coloring agents, each one suitable for hair of a certain shade. To make a chance selection is to invite trouble. The beauty shop owner has brought order out of chaos for the woman who has used a hair dye without finding out what color it would produce, or paying proper attention to directions.

The hairdresser must have the right kind of training for this work. It takes long experience and a working conscience to accomplish a perfect dyeing job.

The customer usually demands the same shade that was hers before the hair whitened. That is a mistake; usually it would be too dark. When hair turns white the entire color harmony changes.

Any woman contemplating a ducking in the dye pot must remember that nature knows nothing about what is going on, refuses to co-operate, keeps pushing forth the white shafts. That means that every few weeks there must be a touch-up close to the scalp. One application of dye must not overlap another, necessitating the most delicate, careful treatment. You can't put on coat after coat of dye and have the hair look natural; there will be no interesting lights and shadows, and that is a dead give-away.

GOOD MANNERS

Shower for a Service Bride

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

A very dear friend of mine was married recently while her fiance was home from the Army on leave. It was all arranged and planned so suddenly that her family was able to let only the relatives and a few intimate friends know the day before the ceremony. However, announcements have been sent out since.

Would it be proper to give her a shower now after her marriage? Also, should I send her a wedding present?

Natalie.

Yes, it would be proper and generous of you and a group of her friends to plan a shower for her. It might, for example, be a miscellaneous shower, which would give a wider scope in the choice of gifts.

If I were you, I would certainly give her a wedding present, just as you undoubtedly would have done if the wedding had taken place under definitely-planned circumstances.

Silver Wedding Party

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

1.—At a Silver Wedding Anniversary, should the guest of honor wear a hat? She has white hair . . . . .what color dress should she wear?

2.—Who should read the speech to the couple, if the daughter thinks she cannot?

Very Anxious

1.—If the anniversary party is in a home, neither the guest of honor nor the other guests would wear hats. If it is in a restaurant or other public place, and the guests are wearing informal attire, the women would wear hats. There are several shades of blue that are lovely with white hair, some rich shades of gray are also very becoming, and burgundy is often a favorite with women who have white hair.

2.—If the man who was best man at the wedding is present at the anniversary, he would be an excellent choice to make this speech. If he isn't, I suggest that a brother of either the "bride or bridegroom", or other man relative be given this honor.

Time-saving Blueprints for Baking

By LAURA C. PEPPER
Chief, Consumer Section
Dominion Dept. of Agriculture

"Oh! for a gift of time." And what more precious gift could any woman ask for in these busy days when innumerable claims demand our every waking moment. It's not in the least likely that our fairy godmother will present any of us with a beautiful empty stretch of time to call our very own but we can make time and a few minutes saved here and there do add up. Fewer dinner dishes to wash, time saved in watching and stirring while food cooks, food ready prepared when the mending just can't wait. These self-given gifts of extra minutes make hectic days less wearing. In these ways and others your oven can save time for you if you plan for its capacity use less frequently rather than using it haphazard-like every day. This time saver is a money saver too, which is not to be sneezed at, for it takes less fuel to maintain oven heat for three hours than it does to heat it up for one hour three times.

Dishes requiring approximately the same temperature should be chosen as oven companions. If you want to cook pastry or cookies, requiring a higher temperature for a short time, bake them first then reduce the heat for the other baking. Be sure that dishes planned to be cooked together will fit the oven space without overcrowding. For even baking air must be able to circulate freely around each pan.

Apple sauce, the morning cereal and the soup bone can all be oven cooked and, when baking is finished the stored up heat will dry stale bread for melba toast or crumbs, parsley, celery tops or bits of left-over onion for later use as seasonings and will put the "crisp" back in crackers or prepared cereals.

The Consumer Section of the Dominion Department of Agriculture suggests two blueprints for baking. In each plan a complete dinner is oven-cooked and an extra dessert made.

The first plan centres around the baking of a Fruit Cake; the second provides for cookies and gets tomorrow's cereal ready for reheating giving you an extra few moments in bed!

PLAN No. 1

Oven Temperature 300 F.

Dark Fruit Cake, (2½ lbs., 7" x 7")—3 hours.
Cereal Pudding—1 hour
Apple Sauce—1 hour
Spicy Pot Roast with Vegetables—2 hours
Melba Toast—1 hour.

Put fruit cake on top shelf, cereal pudding and apple sauce on lower shelf. At the end of 1 hour remove the pudding and sauce and replace with the pot roast. One hour later add the vegetables to the pot roast. When cake and pot roast are cooked turn off the heat and put thinly sliced bread in oven for melba toast. It will crisp and brown as the oven cools.

PLAN No. 2

Oven Temperature 375 F.

Vegetable Meat Balls—1 hour
Baked Apples—50 minutes
Baked Potatoes—1 hour
Drop Cookies—15-20 minutes
Fruit Crumble—40-50 minutes
Oatmeal Porridge—1 hour

Place vegetable meat balls, baked apples and potatoes on lower shelf. Bake cookies on upper shelf. When cooked replace cookies with Fruit Crumble. Start porridge on top of stove and cook 5 minutes. Cover and place in oven to cook on stored heat after oven is turned off. It will depend on the insulation of the oven whether the porridge will be cooked completely before the oven cools off. Cooking can be finished in the morning if necessary.

Vegetable Meat Balls

2 medium onions, chopped
2 tablespoons dripping
1 lb. ground meat, preferably beef
1½ cups finely diced, cooked vegetables
¾ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 egg, beaten
Flour
2½ cups canned tomatoes
3 tablespoons chopped parsley

Cook onion in part of the fat then skim out and mix onion with the meat. Add vegetables, salt, pepper and egg. Form into 12 balls, roll in flour and brown on all sides in remaining fat. Place in a casserole. Add tomatoes, sprinkle with parsley and cook 1 hour in a moderately hot, 357 degree F, oven. Six servings.

Spicy Pot Roast of Beef

3 lbs. round roast
½ cup water
½ cup vinegar
4 cloves
Small bay leaf
1 small onion, cut fine
½ teaspoon salt
Flour
6 medium potatoes
6 medium carrots
1 medium turnip, diced

Place meat in a bowl, combine water, vinegar and seasonings and pour over the meat. Let stand at least 3 hours, turning the meat several times. Remove meat from liquid, dredge well in flour and brown on all sides, in a little hot fat in a heavy pot or Dutch oven. Place a rack under the meat, add strained spiced liquid. Cover closely and cook in a slow oven, 300 degrees F, until meat is tender, about 2 hours. Turn the meat several times during cooking. Add vegetables at end of 1 hour. Use the drippings in the pan as a base for gravy.

Major League Owners Likely To Approve Unlimited Night Baseball During '45 Season

Both American and National Leagues Meeting Separately in Favor

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sport Writer.)

New York, Dec. 13 (AP)—The lights will be on again in 1945 for most of the 11 Major League Baseball clubs possessing lighting facilities in their parks.

A decision in favor of unlimited night ball is believed certain from today's joint session, in view of yesterday's decision by the National and American Leagues for unrestricted arc-light tilts. Washington, Philadelphia, and St. Louis are expected to take full advantage of this ruling.

Half-hearted opposition voiced by the night-ball-curbing trio of presidents Ed Barrow of New York Yankees, Horace Stoneham of New York Giants and Branch Rickey of Brooklyn Dodgers, was overruled when it was pointed out that the Majors, aided by unlimited night ball last season, attained the highest attendance since 1940.

The owners, however, insisted that this condition will continue only in wartime.

The joint meeting, which ends the three-day conclave, also will decide on the 33 1-3 per cent draft-increase amendment and the territorial protection of the Minor Leagues proposed by the National Association. The pro football controversy, the bonus to free agents, and post-war plans.

Ten-Man Commission.

On the heels of announcing their intention to appoint a baseball commissioner perhaps before the new season, the two league presidents, Ford Frick of the National and Will Harridge of the American, selected a 10-man commission to draw up a new Major League agreement, define the commissioner's powers and clarify by-laws of the constitution.

The members making up the Major League agreement committee are Alva Bradley, Cleveland; Jack Zeller, Detroit; Tom Yawkey, Boston; Don Barnes, St. Louis; Joseph Hostetler, Cleveland, Secretary and league attorney from the league, and Sam Breadon, St. Louis; Horace Stoneham, New York; Warren Giles, Cincinnati; Philip K. Wrigley, Chicago; and Branch Rickey, Brooklyn; of the National League.

Report in February.

The committee will report to the Major League meeting in February when the new Major League agreement will be considered, and the election of a commissioner will follow.

The trading mart figured in two deals yesterday with Chicago White Sox figuring in both transactions. They traded shortstop Jimmy (Skeeter) Webb, for utility infielder Joe Orengo of Detroit Tigers.

The other deal brought outfielder Oris Hockett from the Indians in exchange for outfielder Ed. Carnett.

Toronto, Dec. 13.— (CP) — There has been plenty of talk and speculation about how athletes now in the service are going to fit into big league competition when they are rehabilitated, but Jimmy Dykes, Chicago White Sox manager, has a slant on the idea that has plenty of meat in it.

In an interview with Bill Gaynon of the Niagara Falls Evening Review Jimmy aired his opinion that baseball players who have been in the thick of the fighting are going to find it nearly impossible to get back into the game. His idea is that, besides the constant nervous strain active servicemen have to undergo, they also lose their split-second coordination and timing that means so much to a ball player. He lists Hank Greenberg and Bobby Feller as two who probably never will get back to the heights, even if the war were to end very soon.

Players who have been stationed in camps, either on this side of the water, or in some foreign posting, won't have so much difficulty, he contends, because they are able to get in quite a bit of ball in any case.

It's an interesting argument anyway, although Jimmy will find any number of opponents who will argue just the opposite — however, it's certainly safe to say that any player — in baseball or other sports — will have less chance to get back to the top of the heap after several years away from the game, especially if he's under the strain of combat duty.

Inflation:

Dink (Montreal Gazette) Carroll reports that the preliminary boys and former club fighters around Montreal are getting quite hoity-toity. They used to fight for beans at the small club shows, but when the promoters began staging big shows at the Forum, with Johnny Greco, Dave Castilloux and others of similar calibre, the boys drew big purses for preliminary bouts. Now they won't fight for a mere $40 a bout, Dink says, and are cracking the lid right off the cauliflower ceiling.

Incidentally:

Learning that Danny Webb, clever Montreal fisticuffer, had been suspended in Britain, thus spoiling his chances for bouts worth about $4,500, J. P. Fitzgerald of the Toronto Telegram wanted to know "How Webb finds all that time from Army duties." That's a fair question . . . Tony Allan, veteran sport writer with the Winnipeg Tribune, has taken over Herb Manning's column, — "One man's opinion." . . . Jimmy Pineo, Halifax goalie who tried out with Boston Bruins, has come home again. They say he was good enough for a spot with Boston Olympics, but prefered to try again with Bruins next year . . . Wally Stanowski, still waiting clarification of his military standing, has gone back to Winnipeg to get straightened away. He explained his failure to get on the ice with Toronto Maple Leafs last week to the fact he was out of condition. Which is the peak of something or other, thinks Andy (Toronto Star) Lytle, since Stanowski for two years has been P.T. instructor with the RCAF . . .

New York, Dec. 13, (AP)—Don't look for the appointment of another baseball commissioner in February when the new major league agreement is to be submitted. . . The big leagues couldn't very well offer the job to anyone until his duties and powers are clearly defined and that means until the agreement has been ratified. . . Also, the minors likely will want to have something to say about the selection this time. . Although you'll hear a lot about the Giants' "old men" shooting for the pro football championship Sunday, the Packers' roster lists just about as many 30-year-olds. . . . And when Ken Strong age 37, tried lugging the ball last week Steve Owen claimed there wasn't a man on the field running harder.

Sports Before Your Eyes.

National League Club owners won't get their annual free dinner at the expense of the World Series winner this year Sam Breadon donated his series "take" to war charities and decided that was enough. . . And Bucky Harris almost didn't get invited to the managers' feat last night. It was at the last minute that someone remembered Bucky was an ex-National League pilot.

BOSTON BRUINS OUTPUNCH N.Y. RANGERS TO WIN

Trio of Youngsters Ross Brought Up This Year Heroes of 7-5 Victory

By BOB NIELSEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

A couple of weeks ago a rival National Hockey League coach opined that Boston Bruins would be tough to beat "from here in" and ever since Art Ross' men have been faithfully bearing out that forecast. They gave it added support last night by out-punching New York Rangers for a 7-5 triumph, their sixth in the last nine games.

Heroes of the Boston victory with the aging Herb Cain were a free-wheeling trio of youngsters, Frank Mario, Ken Smith and Bill Cupolo, the "Typhoon Line" which is proving game by game to be much more than one of manager Ross' picturesque expressions.

The new unit fired four goals and picked up three assists while Cain, league scoring champion last year, performed his specialty by converting two of Bill Cowley's neat passes. The assists stretched the Boston centre's league scoring lead to five over Toe Blake of the idle Montreal Canadiens.

The downtrodden New Yorkers put up a game battle before bowing to a three-goal Bruin outburst in the third. Boston took a 2-0 lead in the first on shots by Smith and Cain, but the Blueshirts fought from behind to knot the count three times in the second.

Phil Watson and Grant Warwick made it 2-2 before Dit Clapper shot the Bruins in front again. Wilf Thurier nullified that one and Mario gave the Rossmen their third lead. Ab Demarco deadlocked the score at 4-4 nine seconds before the period ended.

In the first half of the finals, the Typhoons gave Bruins a margin that stood up. Cupolo, Niagara Falls, Ont., native got the first from Smith at 3:42 and Smith scored his second goal of the night, with Mario helping, at 9:25.

Warwick put the Blueshirts back in the game with his second score but Cain sewed it up with less than two minutes left.

It was Rangers' fourth successive start without victory since they pulled the upset of the young season by downing Canadiens 7-5 Nov. 30. Defeat left them a one-game advantage over the last-place Chicago Black Hawks.

HERSHEY BEARS DEFEAT FLYERS

By The Canadian Press

Hershey Bears, by a 5-1 victory over Flyers in a fast game at St. Louis last night, moved within four points of Buffalo Bisons, eastern division leaders in the American Hockey League.

Flyers' lone goal, on a clean shot by Freddie Hergert midway in the first period, was the first score of the game.

Bill Warwick evened the count less than six minutes later with a score which bounced through a tangle of players in front of the Flyers' net.

Bears had complete mastery of the game from the opening of the 2nd period. Alex Ritson gave Hershey the lead half-way through the session and Hector Pozzo clinched it with another goal three minutes later. Third period goals were scored by Harry Hilliard and Hal Cooper.

Such cases hereafter will be given special consideration, following criticism over release from service of athletic stars and stage, screen and radio notables.

Wellington

(By Phone)

Wellington, Ont.—This village is trying to dig itself out from one of the worst blizzards experienced in years. Huge snowbanks and drifts canted obliquely across the main street and piling high in cross streets and at intersections, has temporarily confined villagers to the comfort of their homes.

No buses have come through from either east or west. Alfred Ogilvy, local dairyman took two hours to travel the quarter-mile from his pasteurizing plant to his first customer. Mrs. William Hirst, mid-village resident was unable to open the front door yesterday morning. There was a six foot snowdrift behind it.

Meanwhile, despite the efforts of villagers to clear strees and highways, the heavy winds are blasting finely driven snow in banks and drifts of large proportions, in the wake of cleared roads and streets.

There has been no mail since Monday night. Travellers are stormbound. Residents are plowing their way on foot to stores and the local snowplow is safe in its garage. It can't get out. As fast as the snow is dug out sufficiently, high winds are blowing in refills.

Winter has come to Wellington.

CASUAL COMMENT

A touring American go-getter noticed a lazy Indian chief lolling at the entrance to his wig-wam somewhere out west.

"Chief", remonstrated the go-getter, "why don't you get a job in a factory?"

"Why?" grunted the chief.

"Well, you could earn a lot of money. Maybe thirty or forty dollars a week."

"Why?" insisted the chief.

"Oh, if you worked hard and saved your money, you'd soon have a bank account. Wouldn't you like that?"

"Why?" again asked the chief.

"For heaven's sake!" shouted the exasperated go-getter. "With a big bank account you could retire, and then you wouldn't have to work any more——"

"Not working now", pointed out the chief.

Thorpe Confesses.

An inside slant on one of football's most fabulous characters is furnished by George H. Putnam of Marietta, Ohio. He writes:

"One day many years ago Jim Thorpe and I were sitting in Joe Carr's office talking football in general. Joe Carr, as you know, was president of the National Football League until his death and, in my mind, is the man who made pro football a national pastime. Joe asked Jim this question, 'How is it that you could just run over the greatest football players in the country?'

"Jim gave him that famous grin of his and replied, 'Joe, I've been asked that question a thousand times but have never answered it until now. I knew that I could hit any tackler harder, knowing where I was going, than he could hit me, not knowing where I was going.' What do you think?"

(Could be. As a matter of fact, most contemporaries of the mighty Sac and Fox Indian were of the opinion that even knowing where Thorpe was going didn't help much if he really decided to run over them.)

Remember When.

Montreal Wanderers were one of Canada's outstanding hockey teams. It was just 40 years ago that several old-time greats—Jack Marshall and Dickie Boon—signed Wanderer contracts and turned out to practice for the 1904-05 season in the old N.H.A. It was the following spring the famous Ottawa Silver Seven repeated as Stanley Cup winners, in case you oldies are reminiscing.

Montreal Royals Now in First Place

Montreal, Dec. 13. (CP)— Montreal Royals took over control of first place in the Quebec Senior Hockey League last night with a 9-2 victory over Hull Volants, the two points breaking a first-place deadlock with the idle Quebec Aces. The Volants continued in the cellar, two points behind Ottawa Commandos.

Henry Hayes led the Montreal scoring parade with four goals while Jean Paul Gignac and Alec Smart contributed two each. Gerry Heffernan accounted for the other Royals' goal.

Veteran Rod Lorrain played standout hockey for the Volants and accounted for the only shots that beat Goalie Gerry McNeil.

LESSON NO. 238
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Penny Wise and Pound Foolish use the Leaping Lena system. They vault to the bid they like and close shop. They save a lot of bids and lose a lot of points.

Start getting used to this pair of partnership hands:

SOUTH
♠ A K Q J 10 6
♥ K Q 9 5
♦ 7 4 2
♣ None

NORTH
♠ 9 3
♥ A 10 4 3
♦ A 8 5 3
♣ K 6 4

If south opens with four spades, partner will no doubt stop in his tracks. If south opens with three spades, partner may never hear about the heart suit. The correct opening is one spade.

As in any other fight, a unit of force may be very weak in itself. Yet, when combined with another branch, it becomes a powerful factor in deciding the winning result.

Just so, many a bridge hand may look weak when you see it alone. But when you combine it with the cards held by partner, it suddenly turns into a valuable ally.

The north hand does not impress you as being very strong. True, it has a few cards that look good. But as hands go, it does not look like something to go very far with.

However, when south opens with one spade, north's hand begins to look better. Combined with what partner says he has, instead of looking weak, it looms as if it could do things.

North has a bid of some kind. He has no biddable suit for a takeout. Nor has he support for a spade assist. So, his first reply is one no-trump.

South has eight tricks. With north admitting tricks enough for a bid, south can now see enough for a game. The signal for that is a one-jump of some kind.

That's where signals come in so handy. When south makes a one-jump bid, he knows his partner will not stop until at least game is reached.

Only a chump ignores a jump.

W. S. McMULLEN, SPORTS EDITOR, HAMILTON, DIES

Second Oldest Sports Writer In Point of Service in Canada

Hamilton, Ont. Dec. 13 —(CP) —One of Canada's best-known and best-loved sports writers, 62-year-old Walter C. McMullen, veteran sports editor of the Hamilton Spectator, died suddenly at his home here late yesterday.

His death came on the day this city was digging itself out of one of the worst snowstorms in history —a day which prevented the white-haired editor from coming down to his office.

Although in failing health for the last few years, he had not been ill and reported for work daily to write his column, the "Sport Trail."

He was well-known throughout Canada as a booster of sport and had a large following. He telephoned his office early yesterday morning, but did not come in because of the tie-up in transportation facilities.

Born at Port Hope, Ont., he left his native town at an early age for Toronto where he was employed with the old Toronto World.

Several years later, he left the Queen City to take up residence here and his first position was sports editor with the now-defunct Hamilton Herald. He remained as sports writer until 1911 and then took over the position of advertising manager.

Joined Spectator in 1913.

He joined the staff of the Spectator as sports editor in 1913 and held the position up to his death.

Next to J. P. Fitzgerald, sports editor of the Toronto Evening Telegram, he was the oldest sports writer in Canada in point of service.

A great lover of horses, he was for many years a timer at the Windsor race tracks and later acted as judge at the Hamilton tracks.

One of his first moves after coming to Hamilton was to raise a fund to send William Sherring of Hamilton to the Olympic games in Greece in 1906 and his efforts were rewarded when the young athlete won the marathon race.

During the First Great War he acted as matchmaker for the boxing shows staged by the Canadian Rifles Regiment.

Mr. McMullen also was interested in other sports and in 1931 he was president of the old Canadian Professional Baseball League.

He originated the column "Ezra Reckles," which ran every Saturday for many years in the Spectator.

His only survivor, a sister, Mrs. Pete Melson, lives at Port Hope.

Horror of Jap Prison Ship Told by One of 82 Who Survived

New York—Capt. F. J. Gallagher of the army gave his own account of how an American torpedo saved eighty-two American soldiers last September from the tortures of a Japanese prison camp when 750 survivors of Bataan were being transferred to Japan. The remainder of the "human ballast" which managed to make their way from the flooded holds of the ship were machine gunned or bayonetted in the waters as they tried to make shore.

Captain Gallagher, an engineer who served under General Wainwright in the Philippines, described how the men who had spent two years and four months as Japanese captives, rode for nineteen days and eighteen nights, packed shoulder to shoulder in the holds "of the stinking ship" until they were liberated by the sinking.

The officer, now a patient at Walter Reed Hospital, told the grim story with two other survivors who were introduced to some 2,500 manufacturers attending the forty-ninth annual meeting of the National Association of Manufacturers at the Waldorf - Astoria Hotel.

The story was expanded by Lieut. Harvey Benson of Granger, Tex., who served with the beach defense units of the Fourth Marines at Corregidor, and Sgt. Charles Johnstone of Cleveland. All three lived through the Death March of 1942 and the punishment meted out at the Japanese prison camp at Davao.

"When the Nips felt the approach of our forces some two or three months ago they decided to transfer us from Davao and packed some 750 of us in a ship which had just brought cement to the Philippines," Captain Johnstone related. "About 500 of us were put naked into the forward hold measuring about 50 by 40 feet. All of us had to have somebody else in our lap and in the nineteen days could only stretch ourselves by having the fellow ahead of us stand up a while. There was about four or five inches of cement dust on the floor.

"Everytime there was an alert—American planes somewhere in the vicinity—the Nips closed the hatch covers so that we could get no air. One time we had to go thirteen hours with the hatches covered and when the Japs took the 'Tinko,' the count, it was seen that some 140 men had passed. Those are the times men get religion and the boys started getting it.

"On the nineteenth day, about 4:30 in the afternoon—luckily just after we had drawn our water and food issue—we heard a shot from the heavy calibre gun. Then we woke up in the water and got to the hatchway. Those of us who got into the water were greeted by machine gun fire from other ships in the Jap convoy who had lowered their boats to take up Jap survivors. When the pistols of the Japs in the boats failed they then used their bayonets on the boys. Only the darkness saved those who managed during the night to reach shore. Eighty-two of us reached it."

Polish Pilots Help Hunt Robots

By FLORIAN SOKOLOW
(in The Polish Review)

The day was a fine one; the sky was clear and blue, the sun bright and warm. Only a few little clouds floated across the heaven. Such weather is a rare pleasure in England. The occasion was all the more pleasant because we had picked this very day to witness a unique sort of hunting. This hunting is truly humanitarian. The hunters don't kill anything, they save many people from death. Strange things have happened in this bloody war, but I never supposed that hunting could be so refined.

I talked this over with my companion, a young flight lieutenant, Jan K., who already had to his credit five "Messerschmitts and Focke-Wulfs." Jan was a little sleepy and tired, but willing to show us around.

But to get back to that unique form of hunting: The prey is big German game, those automatic "doodle bugs." The hunters are two Polish divisions and one English division of agile "Mustangs." The result is excellent: 14 of these flying bombs destroyed in a single day.

The Polish flight commanders have something to boast about — this feat was accomplished during the period when effective defence against them had not yet been perfected. Later I heard that one Polish division shot down a couple dozen during a single operational flight.

On the way to the field from London we saw quite a number of these bombs lying along the road and in the fields. There were many more in the vicinity of the field. More kept flying overhead as regularly as commercial planes, sometimes two together, more often alone. However, they became the quarry of our fighter patrols, or, much less frequently, of anti-aircraft batteries.

This new and most profitable sport is most disturbing to spectators. Whenever such a bomb falls in some empty field, the whole airdrome force breathes easily for a moment, knowing that friends and relatives in London are safe for a while. But when this beast, unfortunately most stealthy, sneaks through our defences, we are all uneasy, comforted only by the thought that perhaps some other patrol will shoot it down—some plane even faster than our Mustangs, or even that the bomb will explode itself against a barrage balloon.

For our fighter pilots this battle against these "demons from hell", as we call them, is neither easy nor much fun. They would a hundred times prefer to fight real live Germans instead of automats. Polish pilots have told me that over an extended period this hunting becomes most monotonous and boring. They told me that this work ought to be given to specialists. Indeed, a special corps of exterminators of this plague ought to be formed before it becomes a hundred-fold more terrible than it already is.

We discussed this in a tent where I was to be guest for the night. Captain X returned from a mission whistling a gay tune as he entered. Captain Y, with a long, serious face, agreed with me. We weren't sleepy any more, especially since the whole tent was shaking from nearby explosions. We went out onto the field.

• •

Night hunting for these bombs is perhaps not as good as in the daytime, but it is nevertheless effective. The light from reflectors began its dance across the black velvet of the sky. It caught one bomb in its beam, then another. Anti-aircraft batteries shot round after round without pause. Lights blinked, tracers sped upward, scattering red sparks along their trails.

The whole sky looked like a fantastic multi-colored firework display. One bomb was hit, it burned out and after a moment fell somewhere far away with a dull crash. A second one slipped thru'. There was but one more remedy for that one—anti-aircraft batteries within the city.

From the beginning Polish pilots have played a most important part in aerial warfare over France, without which the invasion would have been impossible. Often they got "top score," even when competing with the best British divisions.

They will win laurels in the most difficult, most dangerous assignments. From the time of my visit they have scored great successes over the western front, and have continued their brilliant work over England.

As I think over all this, I involuntarily recall another visit I paid to what was then the "cradle" of Polish Aviation in England, not far from the field where I now was. It was in January, 1940, but it seems centuries ago.

Only rarely was mention made of the Polish campaign in the world press. The rebirth of Poland as a nation conquered but reincarnated in the hearts of her fighting men abroad still seemed merely a propaganda scheme. Who in England would have thought at the time that this exiled air force was to play so large a part in the crucial Battle of Britain?

• •

And still that abandoned airfield is so fresh in my memory. There weren't many pilots. They had come by various routes, mostly by way of Scandinavian countries. Some were already aces, others were young boys in training who had covered themselves with glory during the September campaign.

Very few are still living. Sir Kingsley Wood, who was present at their first military review, has also since died.

That was a simple review, but we all felt that we were witnessing something most significant. Only two ranks marched past, dressed in RAF blue with silver eagle insignia. The rest were in various garments, most in jackets and slacks.

Nearly five years of toil and heavy losses have passed, but these years have been marked by a splendid development of the Polish Air Force from these modest beginning as an air force in exile. Those who have been lost were soon replaced by other Polish youths.

Now, as the war draws to an end and the Luftwaffe has been almost completely driven out of European skies, our air force continues to make the name of Poland famous throughout the world.

Some day soon the complete story of this air force will be published. Then we shall learn how valiant young Poles are.

Ma started to read her new mistery book and pop started to read his paper, saying, Now for a cosy evening at home in the steeming jungles of New Guinney.

If that's suppose to be a suttle slur on the temperature of this room, I'll have you know that it's just exactly comfortable in here, ma said, and pop said, I believe you're right at that, it's just exactly comfortable for tropical plants and little chicks about to burst out of their shells.

Now William it's the same old proverbial story, ma said. You're sitting there with a heavy knitted vest on and expecting me to feel the warmth of it, she said, and pop said, Quite the other way around, my dear. You're sitting there expecting me to feel that my arms are naked and I haven't got any kind of a vest on, just because that happens to be your own unclothed condition, he said.

I'm as warmly dressed as any sensible woman that's not an Eskimo, ma said. Why dont you be reasonable for once and take off that knitted vest, she said, and pop said, Because for Peet sake I dont breethe through my vest.

Now William if you want to make a sensible remark why dont you try to make one that makes sense for land sakes ma said, and pop said. That's exactly what I just did. We take every kind of air into our sistems, including the superheated kind, through our nasal passages, and any jury of throat specialists will bare me out, he said.

You can go on talking till the cows jump over the moon, but you'll never see my point till you take that vest off, ma said.

The result being they compromised by pop sitting nearer the windows and ma sitting nearer the radiator.

CHAPTER 12

"I just told you. My smaller baby." Loveday could laugh with joy at this; questions flew back and forth in the old happy way. She went over all the news, trying to elicit details that had been omitted. Then it was their turn. By this time Loveday had Owen sleepy and suspicious and handsome, in her lap, and Laura St. George could tell her honestly that she had never seen three more beautiful children.

"And the move here was a success, dear?"

"Oo-o-oh, we feel as if we were living for the first time!"

"The only sensible thing to do," Warren St. George said.

"But you haven't told me about Marc. Where is he and what's he doing," Loveday said.

"He's with us today and he ought to be here any minute," Aunt Laura said. "Marc's been offered a post in the station Hospital at Camp Gurney. Isn't it nice to have your family remembered in this way!"

"Marc's going to be right here near Indian Hill!" Loveday exclaimed, her face radiant. "What wonderful things can happen, Larry, she added eagerly as her husband, warm and tired from a walk uphill on the enervating spring day, came up to the steps to the terrace. "Here are the St. Georges-I think you all know Larry. Fan, you remember meeting my husband. Mrs. Fox, Larry, my adored Fanny. And what do you think? Dr. Villard, you remember, who sent Toots his coach? Well, he may be here at the camp in the medical corps."

"Grand." Larry said the word heavily, unenthusiastically, as he sat down with his small son on his knees.

In another minute Marc Villard drove up in his car.

"I have something to tell you!" Marc said, comfortable in an old basket chair now enjoying a long glass of clear well water. "This is the first time I have ever seen your house, Loveday, in the flesh. Do you know why I say 'in the flesh'?"

"Except that people do when they've heard about a thing," Loveday answered, laughing.

"Yes, but I say 'in the flesh,' Marc pursued, with his little touch of French accent and the smile that was so pleasant on his dark face, "because I have dreamed myself here many, many times! But I mean it! I have come up these old brick steps with the grass growing through them, and I have gone in that door"- he pointed to the open french window that led to the dining room-" and there has been a black girl with a lamp and a basket of-yes-persimmons-on a table."

"Marc, your subconscious evidently has leanings toward Persian splendor!" Fanny said in a general laugh. But Loveday, who had turned a little pale, was looking strangely at Marc, and she did not smile.

"But, Marc-Marc," she stammered, "there is a statue of a Nubian girl there in the dining room, or there was until Larry and I put it in the attic. And in persimmon season my grandfather always had a blue bowl of our own persimmons there on a side table!"

"You're Peter Ibbetson, Marc," Warren St. George said. "You dream true!"

"Now how could that be?" Marc said in a low tone. "Will you give me a minute?" he put his hand tight over his eyes, bowed his head. Somebody spoke, but it was evident from her look that Loveday was not hearing. She sat staring at Marc in fascination. There was a moment of complete stillness on the terrace that was dappled with green light and shade. The air was warm and sweet. Somewhere in the barnyard a rooster crowed lustily, and they could hear the laughter of small girls out of sight.

"Delia!" Marc said suddenly, looking up. "In the dream, it is Delia and a horse named Peg." He got to his feet. "In the dream," he said, very low, as if speaking in a dream, "Delia would let me put my arms deep into the trough and Peg would rumple the water with his nose. Up there-beyond the dairy— My God, where am I, Loveday, where am I? Am I dreaming now?"

Loveday stood up, too, facing him, speaking as if they two were alone on the terrace together.

"Delia was Delia Dillon, my nurse," she said. "She stayed until Grandfather died. And Peg was Pegasus, grandfather's big horse. No. No, I don't think you're dreaming, Marc! I think you're awake."

The others exchanged stupefied glances. But Loveday and Marc never moved their eyes from each other.

"You couldn't dream all that!" Loveday whispered.

"But I was born in France. I did not come to this country until I was fifteen!"

Warren St. George spoke hoarsely. They were all standing now in a knot together.

"Your grandfather and I saw your brother's body, Loveday. Your mother was unable to go. We identified it. We brought her home the little suit he had been wearing."

"I-know. She always kept it. But-but he was not found for over a year!" Loveday stammered.

"But surely it would be too extraordinary a coincidence to have had another five-year-old lost in the woods!" Rodney St. George said.

Loveday was clinging with both hands to one of Marc's.

"You remember, don't you?" she said. "You remember it all, Delia and Peg and the persimmons!"

"Yes," Marc said simply. "I remember it all. I lived here." He looked into Loveday's eyes; she was a little taller; both faces were pale. "Don't be frightened," he said, "but this much I know. It was no dream. I lived here. My father and my mother lived here, and Wing Foo-and Annie Lum-"

Loveday looked about at the circle of faces. Her face twisted, and tears began to run down her cheeks. She put her head down on Warren St. George's shoulder, and he tightened an arm about her.

"I don't get it," Larry said slowly, his son in his arms, his bewildered, half-suspicious look going about the group.

"I don't think any one of us gets it!" Aunt Laura said in a flutter of nervous laughter. They all sat down again.

"What do you remember of your being in Paris and being adopted, Marc?" the older man asked.

"Why-why, that we had a house at Saint-Cloud and I went to school there, and Tante Rose told me-or I knew-or she told me part and I knew the rest-that she and Valerie-Valerie was my nurse who died-had found me after the war and that my father and mother were dead and I was to be an American boy. We went to England; we were two years in England. I was twelve then, and then back to Paris and Italy and to China, and then when I was fifteen she said I must go to college in America, and so we came to Santa Barbara and I was coached for College and took my pre-med at Stanford."

"You had no relatives in France?"

"A lot of us little fellows had no relatives in nineteen-eighteen."

"She-Mrs. Rose Weir-went over there immediately after the war?"

"In nineteen-fifteen. She had lived there before the war."

"Hugh Gurney was lost in fifteen!" Warren St. George said. "Through what bureau, by what authority did she get hold of you?" he continued.

"Ah, that I wouldn't know. Valerie, who brushed Tante Rose's clothes and took me to school, used to kiss me and cry sometimes, and, thinking it all over since I've been grown, I've sometimes wondered if perhaps I was her child or her sister's child- something like that. I've asked my aunt, but she always knows no more than I do. If Valerie knew anything of me, apparently she never told my aunt."

"But you're talking," Loveday said breathlessly, "as if you believed your knowing this place, knowing everything about it, was all a dream!"

"Oh, no," he answered with a bewildered little shake of his head, "I know now it wasn't a dream. The French part was a dream!"

"Mrs. Weir is in Santa Barbara, Marc?", Warren St. George asked.

"In a sanitarium-there very comfortable, with nurses-but an invalid. I see her whenever I go south, and she knows me, but she lives in a world of her own. They read to her and bring her fresh handkerchiefs and little trays. Everything is slipping away from her now."

"We will have to see her," the old man said. "We will arrange it at once."

Marc rose and crossed the little space that lay between his chair and Loveday's. He knelt down and took her two hands.

"Will you have me for your brother, Loveday?" he asked. Her tears came again, and she laid her forehead against his without speaking.

Rose Weir, seventy years old, received her callers with great dignity, her nurses had done their best for her in the way of curls, powder, filmy lace, and silk bedwear, and she made an imposing picture against her mountain of pillows. It was so swiftly to be observed that the old lady-in a magnificent sort of way-was feeble-minded, that Warren St. George, prepared to put her through a rather sharp cross-examination, found himself disarmed.

Yes, it was quite true, she said, smiling childishly, after apologizing in parenthesis for receiving these strangers while in bed and holding with a rather pathetic affection to Marc's hand while she talked as if he anchored her to reality, quite true that Marc was an American child, a Californian too.

"It was when I was going back to Paris-my adored Paris-before America was in the war. My little snuggery at Saint-Cloud had been locked for a year, and I'd been so homesick! I had my maid, Valerie Villard, a poor girl who'd been widowed and had lost her child, and a Filipino driver, but I didn't want to drive all the way to New York from Santa Barbara, so I went by train, and Valerie and Bonfacio brought on the car. I was taking to France.

"Valerie was, of course, going with us, and our arrangements had been to take her poor little boy, Marcel, with us. His picture was with her with hers on her passport, and that was probably what put it into her head when she and Bonfacio found this poor little fellow, half starved, feverish, almost half-witted after wandering about alone in the woods. Valerie said that he looked like her child-Bonfacio didn't interfere-and they brought him straight on to the hotel and put him to bed. It was days before he was well enough to talk, and then he had forgotten everything, poor baby! Valerie had told me he was her cousin's child who had gotten ill on the way. Wasn't that," old Mrs. Weir said in coquettish appeal, "too naughty of her? But we both adored him from the beginning, and we got him on the ship with no trouble at all; it seems to me I didn't have to have a passport then, or did I, Warren? Anyway, nobody asked any questions, and we got him to Paris without any difficulty. I always called him my 'war orphan.' When Valerie died Marc was just like my son, and I hope I gave him every advantage a son could have. But, Warren," Rose Weir went on with a pink-cheeked, reproachful smile, "I've got a bone to pick with you! You never come and see me. It takes all this silly business about Marc to get yoo as far as Santa Barbara!" And she patted Warren's hand with a fat, white, heavily ringed hand.

"It's all a beautiful vague dream to her," Hugh, getting used now to the sound of his rightful name, reporting to Loveday, said later. "But there isn't any question that she told us what happened. The Filipino chauffeur wouldn't have interfered, and Valerie evidently thought that she'd gotten her own child back."

Hugh came and went in her house familiarly. Larry liked him, enjoyed discussing farm affairs with him, and presently Hugh had his own room and was contributing to the family exchequer as if it were the most natural thing in the world. His was a joyous nature; everything was exciting to Hugh; the old house rang with laughter and chatter when he was there. The children adored him, and his manner with them was that of an equal; he talked to them seriously, brought them small gifts in his pockets. "What of this large fortune that our grandfather was supposed to have lost or given away?" Hugh asked Loveday; "Uncle Warren told me of it long before I dreamed that I would have any interest in it. I suppose they hunted for it? And asked questions as to where he might have put it or to whom he might have paid it?"

"Everywhere! Everywhere! My mother and grandmother told me that not so long before Mother died. They had detectives here poking in rafters and taking up floor boards. They went upstairs in the barn and to the top of the windmill, but nothing was found."

"I never rake out a chicken nest without taking a good look behind it," Larry said.

"Well, you know, I think we must find it!" Hugh observed with his ingenuous smile.

"I was thinking," Loveday contributed, "that if we had sold this place all those years when we needed the money so terribly, we would have thought it was great luck. But then I never would have found you, Hugh."

"But there's another thing, Loveday," her brother said, leaning forward to extend his coffee cup for a second helping; "wasn't there a reward offered for the discovery of the lost child-of me, queer as that sounds? Was that reward claimed?"

"Well, I don't know, Marc-Hugh, I mean. You see, I wasn't quite two when someone found the body-and that's the queerest thing about it," Loveday said with an awakening face. "Hugh's body was found, for they brought my mother his little blue play suit. She sent all his clothes to the hospital, but she always kept that muddy little torn suit. It's upstairs now."

"I suppose we could find out if that reward was paid. Wasn't Annie Lum here then?" Hugh jerked his head toward the kitchen, where Annie Lum was once more slowly yet thoroughly plodding through dishwashing and sweeping and baking of the children's noonday potatoes.

"Oh yes, she was here until after I left. But you'll get nothing from Annie Lum. She just isn't -alive."

"She's honest, I suppose?"

"I'd trust her and Wing Foo as I would you. The Chinese are honest. They think anything else doesn't pay."

"And it isn't likely that he'd put it where anyone could casually find it."

"Perhaps the man who got the reward might know something."

"I should imagine they'd have questioned him. But lets try to find out who he is and get his end of it."

Chris came later.

Loveday had heard from various members of the family of his travels in the past few years, to China, to Europe, to Rio, and she had heard of a play that failed and a play that was a success. But she had no very clear idea of his movements or whereabouts when on a hot July day he was suddenly at Friends Haven, stopping his car among the overgrown rosebushes and towering pampas grass of the shady front garden, and coming around the corner of the house toward the barns and the berry bushes where she and half a dozen other fruit pickers were busy spreading apricots to dry under the heavily leafed orchard trees.

"Oh, Chris, how wonderful!" Loveday said, leaving the barrel that had been her seat at the head of the table and waving blackened hands as visible excuse for no more formal greeting. "Look at us! We're saving the fruit crop, but just look at us!"

"The one thing I want to do is to look at you," Chris answered. "I've never seen such color out of a Turner sunset. Seriously, what goes on?"

"Drying 'cots. We had a bumper crop, and Larry says he can sell all we can dry. But we're just about done. No more tonight, Carmela; what do you think? These keep good for tomorrow."

British, Chinese Engulf 2 Towns In Upper Burma

New Delhi, Dec. 13. (CP)—British and Chinese Infantry, supported by artillery directed by an American officer, have engulfed Katha and Indaw, important Upper Burma towns about 155 miles north of Mandalay, in what the U.S. Command today called a "truly amazing example of Allied co-operation".

The action was disclosed with the award of the Distinguished Service Order to Lt.-Col. Trevor Dupuy, Washington, D.C., chief artillery officer for the British 36th Division. Dupuy directed Chinese artillery, the only big gun support the British 36th has had for some time.

The Chinese 50th Division, its movements up to now cloaked for security reasons, protected the 36th's flanks and rear, enabling British and Indian troops to plunge down the Myitkyina-Mandalay rail corridor on a narrow front. Naba, 10 miles above Katha, also was engulfed.

Indaw is ten miles west of the Irrawaddy river town of Katha, which itself is 52 miles west of Bhamo.

FORECAST GAME AND FUR SUPPLIES SEEN FOR FUTURE

Facts of Animal Life Cycles of North Are Being Assembled

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Ottawa, Dec. 13 (CP)—The day is coming when scientific studies and radio will make the snowy owl relatively unimportant as an indication of fur conditions in the far north—but it's still a long way off.

Resources departmental officials said today the assembling of information of the animal life cycles of the north is continuing under a plan of co-operation between the government and the Oxford University Bureau of animal population. But, after nine years of study of the fluctuations in the numbers of various species of wild life, authorities still often depend on the owl for first information on Arctic conditions. It hurries south as soon as it finds food hard to obtain.

"We believe that in years to come, with records of plenty and scarcity in the north extending over decades and recording various factors in detail, it will be possible to be as accurate in forecasting game and fur supplies as now is possible in forecasting the weather," one authority said.

Cycles of Animals and Birds.

Some cycles have been roughly established. The white fox cycle from plenty through scarcity to plenty is about four years; snowshoe rabbit, about 10; lemming, about four; snow owl, about four; grouse, about 10; ptarmigan, about four.

"The difficulty is that there evidently is more than one cycle," said an official. "These cycles may be due to different causes and cover different periods.

Our present studies are designed to establish as many as possible of these factors. In some cases we may be able to intervene to cut down losses, and, in any event, we eventually should be able to give adequate warning."

Information for the studies is obtained from hundreds of questionnaires sent annually by the Department of Traders, Trappers, Missions and Royal Mounted Police posts throughout the far north.

Ottawa Mountie Completes Hazardous Trip in the Arctic

By ELIZABETH SERSON
(of The Ottawa Journal Staff)

On March 10, 1943, Constable Louis DeLisle of Ottawa, set out from Pond Inlet, northernmost post of the R.C.M.P. Eastern Arctic Patrol, with two dog teams and a couple of Eskimo guides. He was on his way to Fort Ross, 300 miles by sea ice, to investigate a murder and make a routine check-up.

R.M.S. "Nascopie," the Hudson Bay Company ice-breaker, which was to take him back, failed to reach Fort Ross on its yearly trip that Summer. He got back to Pond Inlet a year and one week after he set out, having travelled more than 4,000 miles, all of it above the Arctic Circle.

"The trip was made under difficulties," was what Constable DeLisle told his superior officers. Foremost was the fact that when he reached Fort Ross he sent home his guides, a lot of equipment—and all his Winter clothing. When the Nascopie did not turn up that season he had to face the 2,300-mile roundabout journey back in a climate that frequently drops to 30 below zero with no more than his Summer clothes. "I just had to keep moving around that much more to stay warm," he says.

Lived Off the Land

It was hard to get guides at that time of year in the country he was travelling through and they had to be hired in relays. As for food and shelter, he "lived off the land," eating whatever meat was the staple for the Eskimos in the district he was passing through, and building a new igloo of snow each night to sleep in.

When he started out from Pond Inlet, on the northeast tip of Baffin Island, in March, 1943, he had two big komoticks (dog sleighs) loaded with equipment and two dog teams of 13 dogs each. Travelling north of Baffin Island, mostly on the sea ice, he crossed Bellot Strait, the famed Northwest Passage, in a small boat, and arrived at Fort Ross in the district of Franklin, on the map just north of the North Magnetic Pole.

At Fort Ross he made his investigation of the murder—an R.C.M.P. secret—and recorded births and deaths, checked on the game supply and welfare of the natives. He made two short trips south to other settlements to check on conditions there.

It was the second Summer that the Nascopie hadn't made Fort Ross, and the Hudson Bay factor and his wife were getting pretty short of food. Constable DeLisle figured he couldn't keep hanging around as a paying guest. But he couldn't go back to Fort Ross the way he came because Prince Regent Inlet was open and would not be frozen over for five or six months.

Starts Journey South

On October 19, 1943, he started south, to reach Pond Inlet by the round-about way of going south by land to Repulse Bay, at the entrance to Hudson Bay, then north by land and by sea ice to Pond Inlet, a distance of 2,300 miles. The route formed a loop about the big gulf that cuts into the District of Franklin.

It took 150 days, about 100 of them spent travelling. He had his two long, tightly-packed sleighs, the dogs, and whatever Eskimo guides he had with him at the time. They averaged a speed of 20 miles a day, but which might be anything from five miles to 70, depending on the weather. When they came to them, they stopped at Eskimo settlements along the way.

Sometimes they ate frozen fish, uncooked, sometimes walrus meat, sometimes seal. For water they chipped off a piece of iceberg, frozen fast in the sea ice, and melted it over their primus stove. In the course of a day they would drink a gallon of tea, stopping in mid-morning and afternoon to make it.

They would get up at 5.30 in the morning, when it was still dark. Breakfast, packing the sleighs and breaking camp took until eight o'clock. Once they started travelling they would keep on all day without stopping for meals other than their "mug-up" of tea. They would munch on a bit of chocolate or a piece of dried fish as they ran along.

Before dark they would stop to build the snow house for the night, from blocks cut out of drifted snow with a snow-knife, like a big butcher knife. The igloo would be big enough to stand up in, but it might be smaller if there was little drifted snow near, or if the darkness came quickly.

Inside they would have their primus stove, sleeping bags and all the leather harness, which the dogs would eat if given a chance. Light came from a blue candle flame. It can be a warm and comfortable house—if you have the snow and time to make it, says Constable DeLisle. He remembers an igloo big enough to hold 40 or 50 Eskimos who were having a square dance to the tune of a wheezing accordion and the calling-off of one of their number who had been as far south as Churchill.

Sunsets and Stars

North of the Arctic Circle at this time of year it is pitch dark all day, and stays that way until February. Three months of Constable DeLisle's five-month journey was made during this season. He travelled a night by starlight. That far north the constellations are extremely vivid. His favorite was the "Christmas Tree star," which blinks red and green. There were gorgeous sunsets too, and nothing on the wide white earth to detract from them.

"You get to notice those things a lot," remarked Constable DeLisle. "Them and the dogs. There's nothing much else, you see."

In his diary each day starts with a careful noting of the weather. The worst days were the "grey days" with drifting snow. While it is always cold and a man has to take off his mitts frequently to thaw out his cheeks, the worst of it is the sharp, penetrating wind and the snow drifting into the equipment he says.

On grey days the land would be full of deceiving little rises you would step into, and hollows you would trip over. And in drift storms when you would be floundering in the soft snow which the wind would pack into drifts 20 feet high, there would be the danger of wandering off and getting lost within a few yards of the camp. One drift storm held them up ten days, and then there was the danger of getting snowed into the igloo and suffocating.

In the Spring there were big cracks in the ice, five or six feet wide with the cold Arctic Ocean in between, that had to be crossed. The driver stands on the sleigh while the dogs leap or swim the gap. "On rough ice it keeps you jumping to see that you don't get the sleigh or your feet caught in the cracks," says the constable.

Once he woke from a day-dream to find himself being dragged through the icy water. He had not noticed the crack in time to jump on to the sleigh. Luckily, he didn't let go. Luckily also, in the below-zero weather, his waterproof sealskin pants and boots kept him perfectly dry.

Louis DeLisle loves to talk about the northland and show the collection of striking snapshots he has taken. Dark, a little shy, 29 years old, he takes his trip and his three years to Pond Inlet as a matter of course—to him, writing up the report was an "awful job." When he got back to Pond Inlet, he made another short trip south along the east coast of Baffin Island to Clyde River, on which he caught pneumonia and pleurisy.

He boarded the Nascopie on its homeward voyage and on his arrival in Ottawa, in early October, went into the Civic Hospital, which he left only recently. Now he is on holiday until January 3. Then again it will be wherever the R.C.M.P. sends him.

EMPEY HILL

W.A. Sponsors Bazaar and Concert

Empey Hill — On Wednesday evening, a bazaar and concert, sponsored by the Women's Association was held in the Sunday School rooms. There was a fairly good attendance and the proceeds amounted to over $90. The apron and fancy work table was in charge of Miss Marjorie Price and Mrs. Ralph Abbott and the miscellaneous table on which were plants, apples, candy, dolls, etc., was in charge of Mrs. Chas. Akey. The toilet articles were sold by Miss Bernice Akey. The touch and take tables were convened by Mrs. Morley Schermerhorn and Mrs. Durward Waddingham.

A play, presented by several of the young people, and entitled "While the Toast Burned," created much amusement.

Following this all partook of a cafeteria lunch, the cashiers being Mrs. Harold Winter, Mrs. Cameron Russell and Mrs. Frank Hutchinson, Mrs. Fred Kimmerly was tea convener.

Rev. W. R. Merrick, on behalf of Mrs. C. Abbott, the W.A. President, thanked everyone who had helped to make the evening such a success.

Among the articles sold was an autograph quilt made by the W.A. and Red Cross workers, and two lovely braided rugs, the work of Mrs. Fred Husband.

Restaurants Offer Food for Thought

You see many different types of people in a busy restaurant during the noon-hour rush. And it's not hard to classify most of them under various categories, V. V. M. writes in The Winnipeg Tribune.

You can even make a pretty fair guess as to what some of them are talking about.

For instance the two prosperous looking gents, with the comfortable girthlines and hard-to-get cigars, are obviously talking business.

If it was politics or last night's bridge game, they were discussing, both of them would do about the same amount of talking.

Skeptical Look

But one of them is listening with a skeptical look on his face, while the other is trying to prove his point with the aid of figures pencilled on the tablecloth.

Then there are the two girls who stop talking abruptly whenever the waitress is at their table and resume with a rush as soon as she has departed.

Evidently they're exchanging some pretty hot gossip that is not for other ears.

The young mother with a slightly harassed appearance, and two small children, keeps talking to them alternately and it doesn't require a lip-reader to figure out what she is saying.

Table Manners

"Johnny, don't wave your knife around. Elizabeth, quit staring at people and eat your meal. Johnny, don't drink your milk so fast. Elizabeth, sit up properly. Not such large pieces, Johnny, and for goodness sakes wipe your mouth off. No, you don't use a spoon for potatoes, Elizabeth, you know better than that. Keep your lips closed when you're chewing your food, Johnny! I declare I'll never take you children to another restaurant until you learn to behave."

Two lovers, seated on opposite sides of a table, lean toward each other, forgetting all thought of food in the magic of the spell they are under.

He says something, and she impulsively reaches a hand in his direction. His fingers close on hers and their faces radiate romance.

Middle-aged Couple

Behind them sits a middle-aged married couple.

Both of them are plump and they have the settled-down look of people who don't dream any more.

In between bites she keeps a sharp eye on the other diners, and on the customers that come and go.

As for her husband, he occasionally glances at his watch with his mind apparently on some appointment he has to keep.

One of the waitresses, a heavily built woman, balances herself with the aid of a clothes-rack while she stands on one foot to take her weight off the other.

Two girls in their late 'teens giggle and look around as if to see whether anyone is watching them.

Accepts Cigarette

One is offering the other a cigarette the other shakes her head at first but finally accepts it.

Then they both light up and sit back taking tiny puffs and trying to look as if they had been smoking for years.

A well-dressed old man remains sitting at his table long after the waitress has removed the remnants of his meal.

He looks as if he's just killing time.

Probably he's retired and has nothing to do—with the rest of his life to do it in.

A soldier, tall and erect, walks in with a good-looking young woman at his side.

One of the soldier's sleeves is empty and is tucked into a pocket of his overcoat.

They find a vacant booth and the young woman sits down.

Shrugs Off Coat

The soldier unbuttons his overcoat and starts to shrug it off the shoulder from which his arm is missing.

The girl starts up, to come to his assistance, but he shakes his head and she sits down again and watches anxiously until the coat slides down his good arm and is caught with a quick movement.

The soldier hangs up his coat, straightens his tie, and sits down with a smile.

The girl smiles back with a world of pride in her eyes.

Yes, you can get more than meals in a restaurant.

You can get a lot of food for thought.

Woking, Surrey, England (CP) — Only two persons have been killed in air raids on Woking although 434 bombs have been dropped.

London (CP)—There are 9,800,000 radio licences in force in Britain—350,000 more than at this time last year.

99 Decorations Presented By Earl of Athlone

Ottawa, Dec. 13 (CP)—Outstanding members of the three services and the Canadian Merchant Navy were honored today when the Governor-General, the Earl of Athlone, presented 99 decorations to award winners of their next-of-kin at an investiture at Government House.

Most important decoration presented at the ceremony in the cream and gold ballroom of Government House was the Victoria Cross given to Mrs. David E. Hornell, Toronto, widow of Flt. Lt. D. E. Hornell, who won the Empire's highest award for gallantry last June in pressing home a successful attack on a German submarine.

The Distinguished Service Order and Bar, won by the late Wing Cmdr. L. V. Chadburn of Toronto and Aurora, Ont, were received by his mother, Mrs. F. G. Allen of Aurora. Wing Cmdr. Chadburn, first Canadian to win two D.S.O.'s in this war, was killed in action last June.

Many of the decorations given today were announced last June in the King's Birthday Honors List.

Cmdr. Isabel J. Macneill, W.R.C.N.S., Halifax, was invested with the Order of the British Empire (Military Division). She is the first and only woman in the Canadian Navy to be in command of a ship—H.M.C.S. Conestoga, Wrens' Basic Training Station at Galt, Ont.

Among other women to be decorated was Capt. Marie T. G. St. Georges, R.C.A.M.C., St. Eugene, Ont., who received the Associate Royal Red Cross.

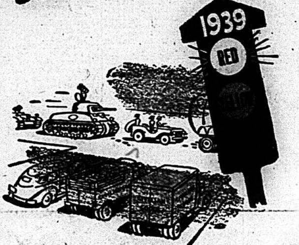
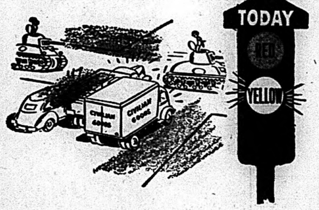
DON'T CONFUSE THE SIGNALS



War came. The manufacture of most civilian goods had to be cut down or stopped to make way for war production. That caused shortages of civilian goods—that was the RED LIGHT.

don't jump the YELLOW light



Some restrictions are now being lifted, but it does not mean lots of goods right away. War's demands are still huge and must come first. We can't neglect them just so that some of us here at home can get a little more.

Don't confuse the signals—(This is the YELLOW LIGHT ONLY).

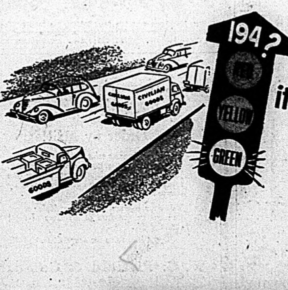
It means a little more of some things and it helps business men get ready for the time when there will be more materials and workers available.

It does not mean the end of shortages!

Getting back to peacetime production will necessarily be piecemeal and gradual.

"Patience" is the word.



it's NOT the green light yet

Only after Victory over both enemies can the Green Light be switched on, and the road cleared for enough production to meet all our civilian needs.

YANKS PUNCH OUT MILE GAIN NEAR THE ROER
RUSSIAN SIEGE GUNS SHELL BUDAPEST SUBURBS

9th Army Troops Take Inde River Town of Vichhofen

7th Army Group Plunges Thru Maginot Line Section

By EDWARD KENNEDY
(AP Staff Writer)

Paris, Dec. 14. (AP)—The southern wing of the U.S. 1st Army seeking conquest of the rolling Cologne plain advanced another mile today and overran a fourth hamlet near the upper Roer, where two divisions were fighting along both banks.

The village was Kesternich, 1 1-2 miles west of the river and 20 miles from the Rhineland traffic centre of Euskirchen. Nearly all Germans had been cleared before noon. The town lies east of previously-captured Rollesbroich, Bickerath and Simmerath

U.S. 9th Army troops 20 miles to the north sprang into action and seized the Inde River town of Vichhofen, two miles south of Julich.

For once, the 1st Army had bright sunny weather which promised help from the air in budging the stubborn Germans from their trenches and bunkers. The 1st Army was on the enemy's side of the Roer headwaters in the area four miles southeast of Monschau, and moving between the Hurtgen and Monschau Forests.

Before besieged Duren, the 83rd Division advanced to the western outskirts of Gurzenich, a suburb of the city of 39,000, only a few hundred yards from the flooded river.

The U.S. 7th Army plunged clear through another section of the old Maginot Line northwest of Bitche to Kapelenhof, 3 1-2 miles from the southeast corner of the Saarland and 12 miles south of the shelled Palatinate City of Zweibrucken.

The 7th Army at points was two miles or so from the frontier and was still fighting around the blown bridge at Seltz, 14 miles southwest of the Rhine City of Karlsruhe.

Mop Up Hun West of Roer.

All along the front before Cologne, 21 miles from the nearest Americans, Germans west of the Roer were being mopped up. The bulk of the Germans are behind the river in hastily-dug trenches, started when the Americans shattered the Siegfried Line in October in the Aachen area.

The 7th army closing upon the Palatinate through the rolling country, studded with fortifications, of northern Alace, advanced up to three miles. Captured were Baerenthal and Reyerswiller, the latter only 1 1-2 miles from Bitche, one of the strongest forts in the Maginot Line.

Seventh army units advancing up the Sauer Valley north of Haguenau are scarcely two miles from the Palatinate and closing hard upon the fortress town of Wissembourg in a valley leading to the Rhenish plain.

(A London broadcast said the 7th army had reached the Rhine beyond Seltz and was shelling Germany across the river.)

Field Marshal Montgomery's British and Canadian armies in Holland and the northwestern tip of Germany remained inactive in one of the most prolonged lulls of the entire campaign on the western front, a dispatch from the Marshal's headquarters said.

The Waal (Rhine) river receded slightly in the Nijmegen area, where breached dikes have inundated more than 30 square miles, some under four feet of water.

ESCAPE ASPHYXIATION

Hamilton, Dec. 14 — (CP) — Mr. and Mrs. Bert Crewson and their 2½-year-old son, Kenneth, escaped possible asphyxiation early today when Mr. Crewson was awakened by the barking of their dog to find the house filled with gas fumes.

Crewson made his way to the home of a neighbor where he collapsed. Neighbors called a fire squad who used inhalators to revive both Mrs. Crewson and her husband. The baby revived without artificial respiration.

REMANDED FOR SENTENCE

Windsor, Dec. 14. (CP)—Burning of $00,500 in negotiable Victory Bonds, along with six airmail letters, was admitted in court here today by Alphonse F. Parent, 24, of Belle River, Ont., when he pleaded guilty to theft of a postal letter bag. He told the court he spent the $600 in cash he also found in the bag. He was remanded a week for sentence.

British Policy In Greece Fails Says London Times

London, Dec. 14 —(CP Reuters)—The Times said today that British policy in Greece had failed.

In a leading editorial The Times said: "The attempt to establish law and order by means of the Papandreou government, backed by British arms, but with a writ that runs scarcely anywhere outside the centre of Athens, has been a failure."

The paper added: "As was made clear by the proceedings at the Labor Party conference, British public opinion broadly agrees on two essential points:

"First, the exclusive goal of British policy must be 'the establishment of a strong democratic system which will bring peace, happiness, and reconciliation, to the Greeks.

"Secondly, it is inconceivable that the British liberation armies, in the event of a lasting deadlock, should be asked to coerce or conquer a section of a liberated and Allied people, which only a few weeks ago, was engaged in active and gallant resistance to the Germans."

Thus, according to The Times, it will be Field Marshal Sir Alexander's responsibility "to put a stop to the fighting by devising a formula of armistice and negotiation which will be acceptable to the National Liberation Front."

The Manchester Guardian, Liberal newspaper, suggested that "Britain and America at least should confer again quickly, even if the meeting with Stalin is still to be delayed.

"A new Roosevelt-Churchill declaration reaffirming—if they can still reaffirm—the Atlantic Charter is badly needed for the sake not only of the British and American peoples, whose faith has been shaken but of the European peoples who are watching the Greek struggle with dismay."

$1,319 STOLEN BY THUGS

Toronto, Dec. 14 (CP)—A total of $1,319 was taken in three separate break-ins here early today.

Thieves who entered Chambers cigar store on Queen Street East, took $1,200 in cash and $9 worth of postage stamps. A cash register stolen from Barclay's barber shop on Yonge Street in Central Toronto was smashed open in a rear lane and $10 was taken from it. Safecrackers broke into the Monarch Brass Co. In the western part of the city and removed $100 from the safe

CHURCHILL MAY SPEAK TO BRITAIN ON GREEK CRISIS

Indicates to House He Stands Firm On Britain's Policy Regarding Greece

London, Dec. 14. (CP) — Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today that British casualties in Greece "since our landing this year" were about 460.

In breaking down these figures, Mr. Churchill said casualties sustained by the Royal Navy, R.A.F. and military forces in Greece up to the end of November were fewer than 300 and "about 160 additional military casualties, of whom 35 were killed, must be added since that date".

Thirty-two planes and eight minor vessels had been lost during this period, he said.

The Prime Minister indicated he might deliver a national address on the Greek situation. When Daniel Kirkwood, Labor, said that he had been flooded with telegrams from workers threatening a work-stoppage protesting the government's policy in Greece, Mr. Churchill said:

"I could quite believe that Mr. Kirkwood would receive many telegrams from many parts of the country over a matter which causes so much heart searching. I gave a long account of this matter to the House the other day, and I may take occasion to give some further account to the country.

"But we have laid our case very fully before the House. It was also discussed very fully and freely at the parliamentary conference yesterday and I have nothing at this moment to add to what has been said".

Dissent Voiced by Dominion

He said the British government had received no indication from any of the Dominion government that they dissented from actions taken in Greece.

A flurry was caused when Seymour Cocks, Labor, asked the Prime Minister "how long this government intends to go on with this policy of murdering our Greek comrades?"

Other members cried "Shame" and "Withdraw", and Mr. Cocks shouted back at them. Mr. Churchill made no reference to the uproar.

The Prime Minister later was drawn into a discussion of Count Carlo Sforza's assertions that he had urged the retention of King Emmanuel in Italy

Ivor Thomas, Labor, repeated Sforza's statement and asked how this conformed "with the Prime Minister's oft-repeated assurance that His Majesty's Government had no desire to interfere in constitutional matters affecting Italy."

Mr. Churchill replied:

"That is not so at all. I gave a full account to the House when I explained that we thought it better to go on with the King Victor-Marshal Badoglio regime until the military situation had got into a better condition, and we did go on for some considerable time; the result not being unsatisfactory as far as our armies were concerned.

About Conversation With Sforza.

"I said nothing in my conversation with Count Sforza which I had not already made clear as being the policy of His Majesty's Government at that time."

PO. Keith Fox of Sidney, Has Been Awarded D.F.C.

Veteran of 36 operational trips over enemy territory as rear turret gunner with the famous Moose Squadron of the R.C.A.F. bomber command, Pilot Officer Keith C. Fox, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fox, 5th concession Sidney township, has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross, it has been announced from Air Force Headquarters in Ottawa.

Pilot Officer Fox was returned to Canada two weeks ago following completion of his operational tour.

Jointly credited with the mid-gunner of his bomber in downing a German plane during a sweep over enemy targets, the Sidney flier completed his 36 operations without receiving a scratch. Fate intervened to disrupt the smooth sailing, however, and while passenger in a taxi during leave he crashed through the windshield when the auto struck a parked truck during a blackout. The mishap lost him his regular place in the bomber of which he was a crew member.

Following recovery from his taxi mishap PO. Fox was listed as spare gunner for his squadron and from then until the completion of his operational tour served under several different pilots. He started with Halifaxes and ended up with the pride of the R.A.F. night bombers, the Lancasters.

Born in Sidney township, Keith attended public school at the "little red schoolhouse" only next door to his homestead, and completed his education at the Western Technical School in Toronto. He enlisted in the R.C.A.F. three years ago and after training as an air gunner proceeded overseas in May 1943. A brother, Grant Fox, is a mechanic with an ordnance corps unit in Montreal.

LEFTISTS SEND TERMS TO END BITTER FIGHTING

Want Premier Removed From Office and No Prosecution of Party

By STEPHEN BARBER
(AP Staff Writer)

Athens, Dec. 14 — (AP) — The drive of E.L.A.S. forces — the militia of the Leftist E.A.M. party — on the centre of Athens appeared today to have been halted and British leaders said the most dangerous phase in the 12-day turmoil apparently had passed.

Heavy firing which shook the city earlier this week gave way to sporadic machine-gun bursts and the last 24 hours were the quietest of any like period since the fighting broke out between the Leftists on the one hand and Greek forces and British troops on the other.

Military authorities, however, banned civilians from the streets except between noon and 2 p.m.

British and Greek mountain brigade forces held an area approximately three miles square in the centre of Athens, and extended their holdings in Piraeus to about 5 square miles despite local E.L.A.S. attacks. Reinforcements made the British position more secure.

Rumors Persist

Rumors persisted that E. L. A. S. leaders would attempt to reach an agreement with Maj.-Gen. R. M. Scobie, British commander, and would send a representative with counter-proposals, but it was understood the British terms remained unchanged. The British demands included evacuation of Attica by the E.L.A.S., surrender of their arms and the disbandment of private armies.

British authorities expressed belief the E.L.A.S. had planned to take the centre of the city with a two-pronged drive from the northwest and southwest, and now that this had failed the Leftists leaders might have decided to seek terms.

Confers with Premier

Gen. Nicolas Placteras, who returned from abroad at the invitation of Premier George Papandreou, conferred for two hours with Papandreou.

These reports said the E.L.A.S.—militia of the Leftist E.A.M. party—were ready to accept British terms on condition that they would not be prosecuted as a party and that Scobie would agree to formation of a new National government headed by someone other than Premier George Papandreou. It was said the E.L.A.S. proposals would be carried to Scobie by Alexander Svolos, former Leftist Finance Minister in Papandreou's cabinet.

(The Paris radio reported today that the Athens transmitter, now in the hands of the E.L.A.S., had broadcast a call to arms. "Greeks, defend your Fatherland in the towns and ports," the call said. "To the barricades. Everyone is to take up arms.")

British troops yesterday succeeded in clearing the Kallipolis peninsula and most of Piraeus, the port of Athens, where the British-Greek naval headquarters had been isolated.

Penetrate Compound

Sharp fighting, however, centred around the British barracks northeast of the centre of Athens, which E.L.A.S. forces stormed early in the day. Some of the attackers penetrated the walls of the compound before they were driven back with considerable losses.

PREMIER DREW SAYS PAYMENTS START NEXT YEAR

Based on Operating Costs of School Boards During the 1944 Calendar Year

Toronto, Dec. 14 —(CP)— The Ontario government, in keeping with a pre-election pledge to assume 50 percent of the gross cost of education in Ontario, will begin payments in 1945 on a graded percentage, Premier Drew announced over an Ontario network of the CBO last night.

Payments will be based on operating costs of school boards during the 1944 calendar year.

Giving for the first time some details of the plan worked out by educational experts, the Premier, who also is Minister of Education, said that cities, towns and villages will receive a percentage ranging from 30 per cent in the case of the larger cities to 60 per cent in the urban communities.

In the case of rural schools, the boards will receive government aid from a minimum of 50 per cent up to a maximum of 90 per cent, depending upon the equalized assessment per classroom.

Full details of the plan will be mailed tomorrow to the 5,827 school boards in the Province and also to all inspectors and secondary school principals.

Secondary schools will receive graded allowances upon a basis which will amount to 50 per cent of the total cost of secondary schools in Ontario, Mr. Drew stated.

4,000 Men's Shirts Destroyed in Laundry, Church is Damaged

Toronto, Dec. 14 — (CP)—Toronto fire fighters fought two second-alarm fires here early today, one which caused $15,000 damage to a central Toronto laundry, destroying 4,000 men's shirts, and the other seriously damaging a church in west Toronto.

Officials of the Sanitary Laundry, Bulwer St., said the loss would have been much greater if the storm had not prevented them from receiving their usual [illegible] supply of 10,000 shirts.

Police said they had asked the arson squad to investigate the fire which broke out at the Church of Christ Disciples, Fern Ave. near Sorauren. Fred Hammond, caretaker of the church, said he believed it had been set. The back of the church and the auditorium were badly damaged, the total reaching $10,000.

U.S. ARMY PAPER PRAISES BRITAIN FOR ROLE IN WAR

Answers Criticism on Greek Policy by Recital of British War Record

Paris, Dec. 14 (AP)—The United States army newspaper Stars and Stripes talked back editorially yesterday to the army and navy journal's criticism of British war policy with a recital of Britain's war record, summing up:

"We'll say the record so far is on the side of Winnie Churchill and the British.

"We are fighting this war beside them. We would like to fight the peace beside them, too."

The service paper referred to a recent army and navy journal editorial which accused Britain of showing "greater preoccupation" with preserving Empire lifelines than with the defeat of Germany.

Should Review Facts.

Recalling Prime Minister Churchill's Thanksgiving Day speech, Stars and Stripes said the public should review the facts.

Under a photo of Mr. Churchill the paper recalled his accession to the Prime Ministry.

"For almost two years thereafter Britain fought the Germans almost alone. One out of every three houses in England, Scotland and Wales has felt the blast of German bombs. One out of every three Britishers... —4,500,000 of them—are in the armed services...

"The ratio of Britishers in the services is higher than ours. Battle casualties were recently reported at 563,000—12 per cent of her strength as against five per cent of ours. In addition, Britain has suffered 57,298 civilian dead and 78,918 wounded."

The editorial added that Britain had lost two-thirds of the shipping she had at the beginning of the war and recounted British achievements in turning out planes, tanks and guns "on reduced rations in blacked-out cities, in homes and factories never far from the sick smell of death."

These facts, said Stars and stripes, "don't quite gee up with the arm and navy journal's slant on Britain's war role."

Smuts Supports Churchill

Port Elizabeth, South Africa—(CP-Reuter)—Prime Minister Smuts in a speech here yesterday indicated the British action in Greece had his full support.

The veteran South African soldier-statesman said the British government was perfectly right in establishing law and order in Greece. The iron hand of the German conqueror had been replaced by private guerilla armies.

Field Marshal Smuts said he was profoundly concerned about the state of Europe; about the people of Europe, and their future.

"I had hoped that the end of the war in Europe would have come this year, but it seems now that it will not come until the European spring or summer," he said.

"The Russian steamroller rolls on, and it will become a race between the eastern and western armies for Berlin — if there is still a Berlin."

Soviet Armored Columns Fight Yard By Yard for City

Pest May Soon Be Under Fire of Reds Heavy Artillery

Moscow, Dec. 14 — (AP)—Russian siege guns laid down a heavy barrage on Budapest's closest suburbs today as Soviet armored columns fought forward yard by yard, seven miles north and 10 miles east of the Hungarian capital.

Shells plastered Ujpest and Rakospalota, north of the city, and the big suburb of Kispet, east of Budapest, from positions gained with the capture of two strongholds on the heavily-fortified approaches to Pest, sector of the capital on the east banks of the Danube.

The midnight Soviet communique announced the capture of these strong points — Kisalag, seven miles northeast of Budapest, and Isaszeg, 10 miles due east, in the stepped-up drive by Marshal Rodion Malinovsky's 2nd Ukraine Army.

It was still not clear whether an all-out frontal assault on Budapest had begun, but at the rate the Russians were going it appeared that Pest itself might soon be under fire.

Front dispatches have indicated the Germans have an unusually strong ring of anti-tank defences about the capital, built largely by forced labor working around the clock under Gestapo orders. Between main points the Nazis have studded the territory with machine-guns and smaller anti-tank weapons.

Many Mine Fields

Red Army sappers today were reported grappling with the problem of mine fields laid ahead of the anti-tank belt by the German and Hungarian defenders.

Some of the sharpest air clashes since the siege of Sevastopol were reported taking place as the Luftwaffe sought to check the Red Army big guns with constant bombings.

The Soviet communique also announced the capture of seven towns in the fighting are around the captured rail junction of Hatvan, one town, Szurdokpuspako, 12 miles north of that city and on the rail line leading north to Losonc in Slovakia.

The communique listed capture of 12 towns along the Slovakia frontier, north of Miskolc, in the drive aimed at the east Slovak communications stronghold of Kassa (Kisice).

With the capture of Abod in this sector the Russians were only 17 miles south of Szepsi (Moldava), a three-way road junction on the Bodva river 13 miles southwest of Kassa.

Will Farm Out German Prisoners Without Guard In Rural England

London, Dec. 14—(CP)—German prisoners of war are to be farmed out for work in rural England without guards.

"If prisoners of war are employed in small parties with a military guard the requirements in manpower will render such labor uneconomical," the Ministry of Information said today. "They will not be allowed any freedom or privileges and will be confined to their wired camps when not at work."

Suffer Gas Effects For Second Time

St. Thomas, Dec. 14 — (CP)—For the second time in little more than a year Mrs. Lillian Previl and her two sons, George Hoffman, 20, and Charles Hoffman, 16, are in hospital recovering from the effects of gas poisoning.

The three were found unconscious yesterday in their home 10 miles northwest of St. Thomas by Eal Previl a relative and neighbor. Previl had called to deliver a message. The fumes came from a gas range and an open heater. Fumes from the same stove overcame the trio little more than a year ago.

Hope Leigh-Mallory Still Alive Abandoned

London, Dec. 14 (CP Cable) — Hope that Air Chief Marshal Sir Trafford Leigh-Mallory and Lady Leigh-Mallory are still alive has been officially abandoned, it was announced today nearly a month after they were reported missing on a flight to southeast Asia where Sir Trafford was to become Allied Air Commander.

An announcement was published today by Sir Trafford's mother, presuming their death Nov. 14.

The Air Ministry announced Nov. 17 that the aircraft taking them to southeast Asia had not reached its destination.

466,441,728 Bushels Of Grain Shipped in '44

Fort William, Dec. 14 (CP)—James A. Speers, General Manager of the Lake Shippers' Clearance Association, said yesterday a record total of 466,441,728 bushels of grain were shipped out of the lakehead by vessel during the 1944 season. Wheat constituted about 304,000,000 bushels of the total.

Mr. Speers also disclosed that the Canadian Government Transportation Committee headed by T. C. Lockwood of Montreal has a program to move 45,000,000 bushels of grain by rail over the eastern division between now and the opening of navigation next year.

Peterborough Airman Has Adventures Equalled by Few Canadians in RCAF

With the R.C.A.F. Overseas, Dec. 14—(CP)—When FO. Bruce (Bunny) Armstrong reaches his Peterboro, Ont., home one day soon he'll bring with him, to relate to his parents, wife and young daughter a story of adventure equalled by few Canadians in the R.C.A.F.

Among his recollections:

A parachute descent to safety from a blazing bomber; guerilla warfare with the French Maquis; a shoulder-to-shoulder evening with German soldiers in a Belgium public house; the brutal shooting by a member of the Gestapo of a French peasant who merely had waved at a low-flying American aircraft.

Armstrong, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Armstrong, live at (111 Farnham Ave.) Toronto, was navigator of a four-engined bomber which was "jumped" by two German night fighters as it was on a softening-up job at a German airdrome in France last May.

In the running fight which followed, one German plane was shot down, but the second fighter raked the Lancaster's fuselage with seven cannon shells, killing the mid-upper gunner and causing the bomber to burst into flames.

The bomber's pilot, WO. Tip O'Neill of Windsor, Ont., struggled with the aircraft to maintain altitude so his crew could bail out, stayed at his position until he was unable to free himself, and went down with his craft.

Armstrong recalls strapping on his parachute and struggling toward the escape hatch. His next recollection is of being moved from the branches of a tree in which he had landed to a farmer's house, where a French doctor diagnosed his injuries as concussion, severe lacerations, a sprained back and a badly injured eye.

He met the local leader and joined the Maquis band when his physical condition improved.

Germany's Sixth Successive Wartime Christmas To Be Dreariest of All

By EDWIN SHANKE
(AP Staff Writer)

Stockholm, Dec. 14 —(AP)—Germany's sixth successive wartime Christmas promises to be the dreariest of them all.

"The Christmas spirit can't be found in Germany," says the German-controlled Scandinavian Telegraph Bureau in a dispatch from Berlin. "One doesn't see any Christmas trees as in other years, no Christmas decorations in the stores. All Germans know that 1944 will be the gloomiest Christmas."

This statement is largely borne out by dispatches from Swedish correspondents, which indicate that military reverses, wartime shortages and distress caused by Allied air raids have combined to present a depressing picture.

For the first time since the start of the war, children evacuated from bombed areas must spend Christmas away from their parents by a government order which has destroyed the whole meaning of the day as a family festival in Germany. Instead the children will be comforted by an autographed gift picture of Adolf Hitler and a bankbook with a few reichsmarks.

In former years children were permitted to visit their parents or vice versa during the holidays. That is out of the question this year, the government has explained, because of the strain placed upon transportation facilities by Allied air attacks and "the serious military situation."

There are no toys in the stores, say Swedish correspondents. Instead parents are told how to make trinkets for children out of scraps of wood and paper. In fact, the German press declares, everything which belongs to Christmas in the way of decorations and playthings must be made at home.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS LAID OVER MONTH

Inability of district members to get into the city because of heavy road conditions resulted in a very slim attendance at the regular monthly meeting of the Hastings and Prince Edward Garage Operators on Wednesday evening with result that business was cancelled and laid over until the January meeting. Election of officers and directors for 1945 was scheduled for the meeting but because of the slim attendance it was decided to wait until the first meeting of the new year to appoint officers for the new year.

FARMERS INVITED TO ATTEND MEETING

Annual meeting and election of officers for the Hastings County Crop Improvement Association is scheduled for next Monday at the Department of Agriculture office in Stirling, county farmers are reminded by H. Lynn Fair, secretary of the association.

Besides election of officers for the coming year, members will be privileged to hear John D. MacLeod, director of crops, seeds and weeds branch, Toronto, in a discussion of permanent pasture projects, and also W. B. George, Kemptville Agricultural School in a discussion of soil and fertilizer problems. Reports for the past year will be given and delegates appointed to attend the annual crop improvement meeting scheduled for February in Toronto.

All farmers in the county are invited to attend the meeting.

Charge of Assault Follows Fracas

When R.C.A.F. personnel from the, Mountain View air station attempted to gain entrance to a private party at the Conservative Club rooms late Wednesday night Mr. Roy Doherty of this city, sustained physical injuries and had to be taken to hospital, while Mr. Don Carruthers, of Belleville, and also a guest at the party, was, also, allegedly beaten badly about the face by five members of the air force.

Today in police court, held at the Court House before Magistrate T. Y. Wills, PO. W. S. Clarkson and PO. G. J. Ritchie, of Mountain View, appeared on charges of assaulting and causing actual bodily harm to Mr. Doherty. The pair was not asked to plead to the charges and were later turned over to the security of the R.C.A.F. service police on a week's remand. Chief Probert later announced that three other members of the R.C.A.F. would also be charged in connection with the assault. Charges of assaulting Mr. Carruthers are also pending. Crown Attorney Donnan asked that Clarkson and Ritchie be held in close arrest at their station on remand.

Police stated that Clarkson and Ritchie, accompanied by three other members of the air force, had attempted to "crash" a private party at the Conservative Club rooms and when informed by Mr. Doherty the gathering was of a private nature the quintet had attempted to force their way inside, during which time Mr. Doherty was attacked and assaulted. Although police arrived in time to apprehend Clarkson and Ritchie, the other members of the quintet attempting to barge into the proceedings escaped. Mr. Doherty was badly injured about the face and hands and was still confined to the hospital today.

Presentation Made To Police Officer Before Departure

Friends and contemporaries of Provincial Constable Donald Carruthers gathered at the Conservative Club rooms Wednesday evening upon the eve of his departure to assume official duties at Perth, O.P.P. district No. 9 headquarters, to bid fond farewell to a fellow officer and friend. During the course of the evening's program Crown Attorney Donnan read a testimonial and presented Mr. and Mrs. Carruthers with a coffee table and silver tray as a token of esteem. Mr. Carruthers has been connected with the Provincial Police here for a number of years, having also been associated with the Belleville Police Department for a short period. He was notified of a transfer to Perth only recently. During the evening dancing was the order of the night while refreshments concluded a delightful evening during which time those present wished the guests of the evening every success in their new home.

The late Mr. Brennan was born fifty two years ago at Read, Tyendinaga Township, and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Brennan. Trusty Horses Come to Rescue Of Motor Vehicles

Trusty farm horses were forced to come to the rescue of snowed-under motorized transportation in the Belleville district this week as result of the fourteen-inch snowfall which threatened the city with a milk shortage and the country with a partial bread famine.

Country roads were so plugged with high drifts as to be completely impassable by wheeled vehicles and milk for city distributors was either taken by team and sleigh to main travelled highways where it could be picked up by trucks, or delivered directly to the distributing centre.

Conversely bread companies dependent upon motor trucks for rural delivery were stumped and farmers were forced to pull out sleighs or cutters for the drive to country stores to augment supplies.

"We just had to have the milk and to make delivery by team and sleigh was the only thing the farmer could do," stated two of Belleville's distributors after the record snowstorm had abated. "We did not even attempt to go off the main travelled highways to make pickups."

One local dairy reported missing only one farmer's milk on Tuesday, while another stated all deliveries of milk to the distributor had been made. Little interruption was seen in house to house deliveries as result of the storm and although deliverymen were considerably delayed by the heavy going only the occasional customer failed to get his usual morning bottle of milk, it was stated.

Pick-ups of cream from the farmers had been discontinued, however, it was reported by creamery proprietors. The cream will be left with the farmers until rural roads have been cleared for traffic, it was stated.

Cost Accountants Hear J. B. Boyce

Suspension of business matters, a presentation and a highly informative address given by Mr. J. B. Boyce, featured the Christmas meeting of the Bay of Quinte Chapter of the Society of Industrial and Cost Accountants at the Hotel Quinte Wednesday night.

Thirty members and guests heard the speaker, who chose as his subject "This One Pays Dividends" verbally, portray the fifteen powers given to man, which are absolutely and universally necessary in the attainment of success.

Some of these were, he said, desire, clear thinking, enthusiasm, imagination, the Golden Rule, the ability to do more than the job called for, self control and others. The signal key to success, he stated, was "to do to others as you would have them do to you."

Mr. Boyce was introduced by Mr. Bert Houston and the chapter appreciation voiced by B. B. Puddy, C.A.

Billfold Presented.

Tangible appreciation of the chapter of the work done for them by Mr. Nelson Allan was shown in the presentation to him of a handsome billfold. Mr. Allan leaves Belleville shortly to assume the secretarial duties of the Ontario Society of Industrial Cost Accountants with headquarters at Hamilton. The presentation was made by Mr. Ray Lennox.

Among the guests present were Mr. E. L. Loiselle, LCMI, Montreal, Dominion president of the Canadian Society of Cost Accountants and Industrial Engineers. Mr. Loiselle briefly addressed the chapter bringing greetings from Montreal. Mayor Harry Rollins and C. A. Brooks, C.A., also spoke.

The musical part of the meeting included instrumental numbers by Messrs. Ray and Leslie Lennox, piano and violin and vocal selections by Dorland Houston.

Mr. Mark Vanner presided.

Deliver Judgment In Two Will Cases

DONOVAN WILL

In a judgment handed down by Mr. Justice Plaxton at Osgoode Hall, Toronto the Will of the late John J. Donovan, well-known contractor of Thurlow Township, was interpreted as authorizing an immediate distribution of the residue of the estate equally among the five children of the deceased. Mr. J. M. Simpson, K.C., of Napanee the Administrator of the estate found it necessary to have answered by the Court certain questions arising upon the construction of the Will. Mr. E. E. Follwell who appeared for one group of the children of the deceased contended that words used respecting distribution of income governed the division of capital. Mr. F. G. Cushing, counsel for the remaining children argued that the Will did not provide for the distribution of the capital and that same would pass equally to the five children of the deceased as in the case of an intestacy. His Lordship agreed with this latter view and the estate will be administered accordingly.

THOMAS HENRY MARSHALL WILL

Mr. Justice Henderson has delivered judgment reserved at the last sittings of the Supreme Court of Ontario at Belleville on the interpretation of the will of the late Thomas Henry Marshall respecting the devise to St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Belleville of a residential property in this estate. By his Will the deceased indicated that the property was to be used as a manse and objection to conveyance by the executors of the Church was raised by some of the beneficiaries because St. Andrew's already had a manse and would not require the property in question immediately for such purposes. On behalf of the executors questions were submitted to the Court by Mr. F. G. Cushing, their counsel, which were answered favourably for the Church, and authority given to the executors to convey in fee simple to the Church Trustees the lands devised to them. Mr. S. G. Robertson appeared on behalf of St. Andrew's Church.

Trenton and District

Policeman Assists Nurse in Delivering Fine Baby Boy During Storm

Trenton —(Special)— Late Wednesday Trenton was still digging out from one of the worst snowstorms in the history of this part of the province. Traffic was completely paralyzed both on highways leading east, west north and south, and on the town streets.

Dundas Street, the main thoroughfare of town, was almost completely impassable all day Tuesday and though an R.C.A.F. snowplow worked diligently most of the day the street was only barely passable by night. Trenton's plow went out of commission early in the day due to the heavy snow. Trucks and motors of all types were stuck in every conceivable way and place all day Tuesday and Wednesday. In fact more seemed at a standstill Wednesday than on Tuesday, undoubtely due to the fact that more ventured out. However hundreds of citizens, including many school boys, after hours of shovelling were able to clear many of the streets leading into the heart of the town, while street gangs worked furiously carrying snow from the main streets.

Schools all remained open with most teachers and pupils taking lunch in the building. A limited amount of milk and bread was delivered, both to stores and residences, with the result that there were very few who were actually inconvenienced to any great extent.

At least one Trenton merchant resorted to deliveries by team and sleigh, and, while taxis were stranded, one enterprising citizen made use of an old-fashioned high covered cutter to carry passengers into town from outlying districts.

When a V.O.N. nurse was unable to reach her patient, where the stork was expected momentarily, police were called and one of the local stalwarts took the nurse in the cruiser as far as possible, then walked ahead and cleared a path through snow piled four or five feet deep and assisted the nurse in her work of delivering a fine baby boy.

Several minor accidents resulted from congested traffic and the impassable streets but no person was injured and no major damage reported.

Storm Cuts Down Attendance.

Only a bare half dozen braved the unusual storm to attend Red Cross on Tuesday but at least one shipment was forwarded to headquarters.

The regular monthly meeting was held with President R. F. Joyce presiding. Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved and several accounts passed for payment. Reports were read from various committees. The date of the annual meeting was set for Thursday, December 28th, at 8 p.m., in the work rooms over Shurie's Drug Store. Election of work room officers will take place on January 9th.

Shipping reports for the month of November showed 157 articles had been shipped at a total value of $133.35.

A request was made that all citizens save used postage stamps (with at least an eighth of an inch margin around each stamp) and turn them in to the Red Cross work rooms. These are sent to headquarters for salvaging the dye.

The work rooms will re-open on January 9th when it is hoped a large number of ladies will make a point of being present to assist in preparing new quotas which are urgently needed.

Arrives Safely.

Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Armstrong, 126 King Street, have received word that their youngest son, Pte. Norman Armstrong, has arrived safely overseas. He enlisted in the infantry a year and a half ago and trained at Cornwall, Ipperwash and Woodstock, Ont., later going to Debert, N.S.

Two brothers are also in the service, FO. Donald Armstrong is with the R.C.A.F. at an east coast point and Petty Officer Robert Armstrong is serving on H.M.C.S. "Haida."

Nursing Sister Shirley Bonter of Toronto is spending her leave at the home of her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Gershom Bonter, Marmora Street.

PETERBOROUGH

"Our job consisted principally of sabotaging German supply lines," Armstrong said. "We would go out in small groups at night and hide in the bushes alongside a road over which German convoys travelled. When the Hun came along we would toss a few grenades, blaze away with our guns and then fade into the darkness."

After D-Day the Maquis moved him to Belgium, where he was put in touch with Patriots who were making life unpleasant for the Jerries. It was while he was quartered at a private house in a small town that he met German soldiers in the local pub.

"The average German soldier has not much on the ball, mentally," Armstrong said, "but we developed a healthy respect for the Gestapo, the SS. boys and the Hitler youth. These young fellows are fanatics — that's the only way you can describe them. They're full of Hitler and to them, killing is part of living." The cold-blooded shooting he witnessed shook him. "All that peasant did was wave at an American plane, and the Gestapo man shot him the way we'd kill a fly — and with less compunction."

Armstrong's most amusing experience was his presence at a meeting between three German soldiers and some Maquis. After a long and excited discussion the Germans surrendered their arms and deserted, convinced that their position was hopeless in view of the swift American Army advance.

Banks of Snow Nearly all Taken From Front Street

Front Street began to take on a semblance of normal appearance today with the high banks of snow lying at the curbside as result of the recent heavy snowstorm gradually disappearing before the combined efforts of approximately 20 shovellers and eight or ten motor trucks.

Eary Wednesday morning department of public works put men to work cleaning the main street from Bridge Street north, blocking the thoroughfare off in sections to keep motorized traffic to a minimum. Yesterday the street was cleared of snow as far north as Victoria Ave., while this morning shovellers were working south of the Bridge Street intersection.

The city bulldozer worked steadily all day Wednesday making traffic lanes along streets most widely used, while this equipment was augmented by the services of a snowplow from out of town which is working to clear city thoroughfares.

GARBAGE COLLECTION SCHEDULE DISRUPTED

Collection schedule for city garbage has been considerably disrupted as result of the recent 14-inch snowfall which blocked city streets and prevented the garage collection truck from making its regular round, it was stated this morning by City Engineer Charles Mott. It was advised, however, that plows would soon clear streets in the residential area to permit resumption of garbage collection. Residents were asked to bear with collection personnel and if garbage was not picked up on the regular day of collection it should be taken back from the street to await the next regular collection date.

Britain's Artistic Heritage

Britain's artistic heritage has suffered more damage on the whole from the war than has that of France or Italy, Francis H. Taylor, director of the New York Metropolitan Museum of Art, has reported. Mr. Taylor is a member of the American Commission for the Protection and Salvage of Artistic and Historic Monuments in War Areas and Chairman of its subcommittee on the restitution of looted works of art.

In England, 4,000 historic churches have been damaged; 2,800 have been destroyed. Damage to other public monuments has been widespread.

Of Britain's famed cathedrals, Exeter, one of the finest examples of Middle Gothic architecture, was the most badly damaged, Mr. Taylor reported. Reports indicate, he added, that only at Rouen and Benevento have any of the great cathedrals of France and Italy been damaged to such an extent. Three high explosives dropped near by rocked Canterbury Cathedral, but did not damage it too severely. However, British historians are concerned lest blast damage has threatened its life expectancy. Wells Cathedral received a direct hit, but damage was not as great as might be expected.

All the great Christopher Wren churches in London have been seriously damaged—St. Brides, St. Giles Cripple Gate, St. Mary le Bow among them—and many have been destroyed. St. James Piccadilly was virtually destroyed by a bomb and nearly all of the Grinling Gibbons Seventeenth Century woodcarvings were lost. Most of the London Museum buildings have been hit at some time or another during the last four years, although there has been no loss of the collections.

While collections of rare editions from London's libraries were stored safely away against enemy attack, some working libraries are a total loss. Serious damage was done to the Eighteenth and Nineteenth Century newspaper files and the working libraries of art and archeology. With the almost total destruction of Holland House, many great collections were ruined, including invaluable manuscripts.

Weather Conditions

Fall of rain and snow for the five winter months of November, December, January, February and March in Ontario as reported in the annual report of the Statistics Branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture reached a total for the two months of last year and the first three months of the present year of 3.57 inches of rain and 56.1 inches of snow. This fall of snow was much less than it was in the previous year when it reached 87 inches or 7 feet, three inches. In the year 1941 the snowfall was 60.6 inches, in 1940, 78.6 inches and in 1939 61.9 inches. The average for these five years was 68.8 inches, whereas the sixty-three year record from 1882 to 1944 was 68.3 inches of snow.

The greatest rainfall in these five months was in 1942 when it was 6.77 and the lowest rainfall in 1939 at 2.70 inches. Average for the five years was 4.60 inches and for the sixty-three year period 5.90.

In December 1943 snowfall in Ontario averaged 11.5 inches and rainfall was .26 inches. December 1944 in two storms has already had 27 inches. December average for rain in the past five years has been 1.08 inches and for the 63 years the average was 1.16 inches.

According to the report 10 inches of snow is equal to one inch of rain.

Last winter rain and snow were both below normal.

In the six months April to September the rainfall last year was 18.06 inches or .31 over the preceding year and in comparison with the sixty-two years 2.34 inches above.

Mean temperature in the year 1943 was 42.1 degrees or 2 degrees below the preceding year and 1.4 inches below the normal of the sixty-two years, 1882-1943.

December mean temperature was 21.5 degrees in 1943 as compared with the sixty-two year mean of 23.5 degrees.

In the amount of sunshine December last year recorded the sun as shining for 85 hours—by far the brightest December of the five years which averaged 68.9 hours and the sixty-two year period of 62.1 hours average. January last year had the least sunlight of the months with June competing very closely with July for the most sunlight. July had 265 hours.

The year 1943 had 1,903 hours of sunshine or 33.7 hours lower than the average for the sixty-two years. The six growing months April to September had 1,268.8 or 67.7 hours below normal. Four months were above normal and eight below. December had the greatest departure above with 29 hours and May the greatest below with 49.8 hours.

Summary of fall of rain and snow in Hastings county as given at Belleville and Trenton shows that in 1943 there fell 28.47 inches at Belleville station in 105 days and 78.1 inches of snow on 61 days while at Trenton station 27.24 inches of rain fell on 86 days and 55 inches of snow on 28 days. The average for the province in 1943 was 24.40 inches of rain on 82 days and 85.3 inches of snow on 49 days.

Cellar Song, 1944

(Lucio in the Manchester Guardian)

From cellar cool no Fuehrer's voice
In this dark year has sounded
With strains to make the Boche rejoice
In visions quite unfounded.
Victorious dreams must now abscond
While Lebensraum is shrinking,
A fact that is by now beyond
All blinking, blinking, blinking.

A year ago that Fuehrer vowed
That if invaders landed
Ten hours would see a routed crowd
Defeated, drowned, or stranded.
They came, they stayed, and here they are
On Jerry's doorstep linking;
There's moaning at the Munich bar
Instead of drinking, drinking.

And, O, that Fuehrer, where is he,
The former gloom-dispeller?
From Munich he has sought, maybe,
Some Berchtesgaden cellar
November sees that chastened chief
Far from all beer-mug clinking;
Into the sere—and silent—leaf
He's sinking, sinking, sinking.

Compare French and Nazi Youth

(New York Times)

Prime Minister Churchill came back from France with the story, mentioned in his address to Parliament, of the French troops he had seen moving up to attack the Belfort Gap. All the men in the ranks were between 18 and 22. Their average age was 20. What a fine thing, thought Mr. Churchill, looking at these boys through a whirl of snowflakes, "to be a Frenchman 20 years of age, well armed, well equipped, and with your native land to avenge and have!" Certainly a far finer thing than to have been a young German coming into France in 1940 or going into Russia in 1941, with their tough, athletic bodies, their fresh, cruel faces, and their eyes from which the soul had departed or in which it had never had a chance to be born, were one of the most horrifying spectacles the modern world has seen. Their needs spoke for them, to their everlasting infamy. It is better to be a young Frenchman today, a young Belgian, Dane, Norwegian, Yugoslav, Greek. The problem of the youth of occupied or newly liberated Europe remains.

"Dying in Our Cause"

(New York Times)

Safe here at home, drying our shoes and overcoats and gloves in front of an open fire or over a radiator, suffering between one dry place and another only the momentary discomfort of a cold and rainy day, what can we do, or hope to say to those brave men, fighting and dying in our cause along the Siegfried Line? We can do each his appointed task, no matter how small, to speed the final victory. We can hope that success will be swift, and the losses small. We can say only, God bless you!

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

JUST MEDIUM

I was never a chap to win prizes.
There is nothing outstanding in me.
"Just medium," they tell me my size is.
"Just medium" I'm happy to be.
Some fellows have luck that's exciting,
But no such good fortune is mine.
However the fish may be biting,
I never catch two on a line!

"Just medium" my luck is in all things.
My golf score is that at the best.
I wear neither large nor the small things.
"Just medium" my hat and my vest.
Some conquer with little endeavor.
To others luck's favors are thrown,
I've nothing to boast of! I never
Bring two birds to earth with a stone.

I never meet strangers in places
Who know what the great have in mind.
I don't win the double at races,
And never lost purses I find.
My luck isn't such that it baffles
My friends or my foes to explain.
All the tickets they've sold me for raffles
So far I have purchased in vain.

Only 5 of 34 Ships Got Through

(British Information Service)

A British convoy carrying supplies to Russia has reached Murmansk without having lost a single ship. This news reflects the complete collapse of German air and seapower, for the Arctic route over which British supplies have poured to Russia throughout the last three years has been until recently the most perilous sea passage in the world. One man run in 1942 only five ships out of thirty-four got through.

Ships on this route have to sail within 15 degrees of the North Pole. During the long winter months they are for many days in almost total darkness, with a temperature of 10 degrees below zero, and ice forming an inch thick on the inside of the cabin walls. During the short summer months they have been exposed to attack from land based German bombers in the north of Norway, and always the sea was thick with U-boats. Occasionally German battleships put out from Norwegian ports to attack them—it was on one of these operations the Scharnhorst was sent to the bottom.

But these hardships and perils never deterred the Royal Navy or the British merchant ships. Within two months of the German invasion of Russia in June 1941, 19 large convoys had arrived at Murmansk, 90 per cent of the ships being provided by Britain. During that time of Russia's greatest need Britain sent 3,000 aircraft, enough tanks to equip nearly fifteen armored divisions, and vast quantities of other war materials. By March 1944 Britain's supplies to Russia included:—5,031 tanks (of which 1,223 came from Canada), 6,778 aircraft, and oven £90,000,000 worth of raw materials, foodstuffs, machinery, industrial plant and medical supplies.

Whitehall Notebook

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(CP Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 14—(CP)—The fate of the National Labor Party headed by Rt. Hon. Malcolm MacDonald, United Kingdom High Commissioner to Canada, has been getting attention in the newspapers and most political writers say that its future isn't bright.

The party was created in 1931 by the late Ramsay MacDonald, the present leader's father, to accommodate those Labor members of parliament who supported the National Government of the day. It is a separate party from the Labor Party now in annual conference.

In the 1931 election National Labor contested 21 seats against Labor candidates and won 13; in 1935 it contested 20 seats and won eight. But since then two members have become Independents—Kenneth Lindsay of Kilmarnock and Cmdr. Stephen King—all of Ormskirk; and Lichfield was lost to Labor in a by-election.

Of the five seats National Labor now holds, Mr. MacDonald holds one and he has been absent in Canada several years. While it seems definite he will return to the United Kingdom political scene before long, the move is not expected for several months.

One writer has predicted that unless Mr. MacDonald gets back on the political job promptly, National Labor "will disband and will not again appear before the electors as an organized force."

The Conservative Party has called a conference for the end of January and it has been announced Prime Minister Churchill, as party leader, will be the main speaker.

Recently Mr. Churchill indicated in parliament that a general election—first since 1935—will be held late next year, providing of course that Germany is defeated as expected by early summer. His January speech to the Conservatives is expected to deal primarily with political matters.

It comes amid growing feeling by politicians generally that the wartime coalition has about outlived its usefulness and that a return to party politics is imminent. Election campaigning on party lines is expected to begin shortly.

Talks between Sir Archibald Sinclair, leader of the Liberal Party, and Ernest Brown, leader of the Liberal National Party, have broken down and there seems no prospect of an early reunion of the two Liberal factions.

Accordingly, the Liberals will contest the coming election as an Independent party while the Liberal Nationals will support Mr. Churchill's Conservatives, as announced some time ago.

FAVORS GENERAL ELECTION

London, Dec. 14 — (CP-Reuter)—Sir Archibald Sinclair, Secretary of State for Air and leader of the Liberal party, told the Liberal Council yesterday he favored a general election after the defeat of Germany but before defeat of Japan. "If our democracy is not to degenerate into a sham, parliament must be refreshed by contact with the people," he said.

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

EARLY UP AND KEEP FIT

Le'me see, how many days must a woman remain in bed after the birth of a baby—nine, isn't it? I wonder why not the mystic seven?

In some cases it is necessary and advisable that the woman remain in bed for that length of time or even longer.

But now that we are gradually freeing our minds from traditional fancies and superstitions, we doctors and you young people, it appears that it is better in every way for the puerpera (woman who has just borne a child) to resume activity a few days after childbirth. Not abruptly, but gradually, as indicated in the following discussion.

Old timers were not all agreed about this. In a treatise on Puerperal Fever (septic infection or "blood poisoning," as it was called later) Dr. Charles White in England about the middle of the eighteenth century, maintained that "the patient should be allowed up within a few hours after delivery. The sooner the patient gets out of bed the better, and this should not be deferred beyond the second or third day at the furtherest." Early in the nineteenth century Dr. Robert Gootch, professor of obstetrics at St. Bartholomew's Hospital, London, cautioned his students that "for three weeks after delivery the patient should be kept chiefly in the recumbent position, the consequence of getting up soon after delivery with the heavy uterus suspended in the flaccid abdomen will be a prolapse of this organ."

In Modern Hospital, Feb. '43, Dr. B. W. Black reports the experience of the obstetric department of Alameda County Hospitals in Oakland, Calif. In a series of 3,400 cases, about one-third of the patients were discharged four days after childbirth, 30 per cent. from four to seven days after childbirth and 35 per cent, after the eighth day. The obstetricians found that no complications occurred that were attributable to early discharge of the patient from the hospital.

In the Jour. A.M.A., July 22, '44, Dr. Morris Rotstein reports his experience with getting patients up early after childbirth. One hundred fifty patients were allowed up on the third or fourth day after childbirth. These patients allowed to get out of bed early feel stronger and are better equipped to carry on their routine duties at home than patients who are kept in bed nine days or longer. Involution of the uterus was accelerated and prolapse was not encountered. Healing of episiotomy wounds was not affected by early rising. No cases of thrombophlebitis (clotting and inflammation in a vein) occurred, and early activity after childbirth probably lessens the hazard of such a complication.

I call attention again to what Ol' Doc Gootch said, particularly his remark about flaccid abdomen (of course that means belly, the wall of the abdomen, not the abdomen which is a cavity). Perhaps women in those days were as flaccid as they were frail. A woman today really should know better than to let herself go flaccid.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Digestibility of Milk

How to make milk more easily digestible. (B.M.)

Answer—Some persons believe they digest milk better if they stir a tablespoonful or so of lime water in each glassful just before drinking it. To make lime water put a lump of unslaked (live) lime size of walnut in quart of water in crock. Let it stand a few hours. Pour off clear upper water—that is lime water.

What! No Pipe?

I am 65, never sick in my life, but seem to be slowing down in the past year. Have smoked a pipe since I was 20. Friends say my present condition is due to smoking. I hate like.... (C. S. R.)

Answer—In other words you were able to stand it for only 44 years. I am sending you the pamphlet "The Tobacco habit", as you requested, but also one about "Young Folks and Old Folks"—without implying which you are. That you must decide for yourself.

Given Up

Doctor told me I have arthritis, but he has given me up. A friend told me she cured herself of it by following advice you gave in a pamphlet about calcium and vitamin D. (Mrs. W. H.)

Answer—Now, now let's amend that to read the doctor frankly admitted he knows no cure. I don't either. But if you will supply a pre-addressed stamped envelope I'll mail you the pamphlet "Calcium and Rheumatis"—it can do you no harm to try out the calcium and vitamin D.

WHERE GOLDFISH COME FROM

Goldfish as we know them do not exist anywhere in the wild state.

They are a product of long years of selective breeding. The wild fish from which goldfish were developed belong to the carp family and are still numerous in the streams of China. They do not naturally have the golden hue, but are dark in color like ordinary carp, although the species tends toward albinism.

Centuries ago the Chinese fish culturists interbred light-colored specimens and produced many beautiful varieties. Fanciers further induced and strengthened the golden and silvery colors by regulating the quantity of minerals in the water.

When goldfish are restored to a natural environment they often revert to the original dark color after a few generations.

Goldfish change color readily. Often scarlet specimens become silver, silver ones black, and black ones gold, etc.

A goldfish kept in darkness for several years will turn white and become totally blind.

Ordinary goldfish may live as long as 25 or 30 years. In the Orient specimens are known to have lived 70 years. Their longevity is accounted for by the fact that they are members of the carp family, which is noted for its long-lived species.

The size to which a goldfish will grow is determined to some extent by the size of the bowl in which it is kept.

During the First World War it was discovered that goldfish had a practical use in determining what kind of gas the enemy had used in chemical warfare attacks. The little fish are very sensitive to the condition of water.

It is supposed that goldfish were first introduced into England in 1691. Some of the first specimens sent to France were presented to Mme. de Pompadour, mistress of Louis XV.

Goldfish are now produced in large commercial aquariums. An 130-acre hatchery near Frederick, Maryland, normally produces 5,000,000 goldfish a year.

Shortly before the outbreak of the present war eating goldfish alive was a fad among American college students.

U.S. Coastguards Smash Nazi Ships Trying to Set Up Fortified Bases In Greenland, U.S. Navy Reports

Salvo After Salvo of Shells Flash Across Ice-Packs Before German Craft Cornered

Washington, Dec. 14 — (AP) — Four United States coastguard cutters, operating in ice-packed Arctic waters, smashed a "determined Nazi effort" to establish fortified bases in Greenland, the Navy reported today.

One German armed trawler was sunk, another captured, a third was found abandoned; 60 prisoners were taken and a radio station was captured and destroyed, the Navy said.

In addition a German bomber attack was beaten off in the series of actions which lasted from July to late October.

Three of the coast guard cutters were damaged by crushing icepacks; one, the Northland, had to be towed 3,000 miles for repairs.

The climax of the battle through ice floes and along frozen shores came Oct. 16 when the cutters Eastwind and Southwind captured the German armed trawler Externsteine and its 20-man crew.

Salvo after salvo of shells flashed across the icepacks before the German craft was cornered in a pocket formed by ice floes and forced to surrender.

German Radio Station Captured

Twelve days before that engagement, the Eastwind, skippered by Capt. Charles W. Thomas of Long Beach, Calif., task force commander, had landed two platoons of sailors on Little Koldewey Island, 800 miles from the north pole.

These landing parties, in a predawn attack, captured a German radio and weather station with its three officers and nine men and large quantities of scientific and weather equipment.

Apparently, the Navy said, three separate expeditions had been sent to Greenland by the Germans. One was captured Sept. 1, after a 70-mile chase through the ice floes. The chase ended in the scuttling of a German armed trawler. The crew of eight officers, headed by a full commander, and 20 men were taken prisoner.

The cutter Storis beat off a German bombing attack while the Northland was pursuing the enemy trawler.

Coastguard and army planes, the Navy said, also participated in providing aircover for the cutters and aiding in reconnaissance.

Several land actions came during the series of engagements. Among them was the landing of a party of army and coastguardsmen on Shannon Island.

Food and Ammunition Found in Ice Caves

But the Germans had fled when the party reached the fortified German base. Instruments were smashed, but a large stock of gasoline, food and ammunition was found in ice caves.

The abandoned trawler was located by the Northland while moving through heavily packed ice. A 155-foot armed vessel, she had been crushed in the ice. An explosion had ripped out her hull and she had been afire. It was evident, the Navy said, that the German crew had lived on the ice packs for some time after abandoning ship.

Simultaneously with the Navy announcement, the coast guard at Boston disclosed the arrival there of the Externsteine, saying it had been taken before the crew had a chance to set off demolition charges placed in the engine room.

Labor Member Predicts Victory At Next Election

London, Dec. 14 — (CP Reuter) — Emanuel Shinwell, prominent Labor member of parliament, predicted today at the Labor Party conference that the party would be in power with a clear majority after the next general election in Britain and he said Labor's socialist policy remained unchanged.

Mr. Shinwell spoke in introducing the executive report on full employment and financial policy, which demanded principal wartime controls be maintained during the transition from war to peace.

"We stand for the abolition of the vicious competitive system and the ownership of indispensable national industries and services," Mr. Shinwell said. "The notion that Labor will assume full power in this country is apparently unpalatable to our political opponents.

"We intend to abolish that specious and spurious free enterprise which infringes on the liberty of the working class and makes profits for the few."

The party adopted a special executive resolution calling for control by a Labor government of the Bank of England and the lending of the joint stock banks and of the location of industry.

This resolution also urged international agreements with the United States, Russia, the Dominions and other friendly countries.

Another approved resolution demanded the party program at the next election include transfer to public ownership of land, large-scale building, heavy industry, banking, transport, fuel and power.

Demented Man Stabs Waitress

New York, Dec. 14 (AP) — Crying "I love her, I love her", a man plunged into a smart Fifth Avenue restaurant during the luncheon rush hour yesterday, and stabbed pretty, 20-year-old waitress Mary Raeber through the jaw and throat with a hunting knife.

The 500 astounded diners then viewed spectacular chase through the three floors of Stouffer's restaurant as Sgt. Henry Krumwiede of Mt. Vernon, N.Y., pursued the attacker.

The man fled out onto Fifth Avenue but finally was cornered by police.

"I don't know why did it; I loved her so; poor Mary", he sobbed to police, who identified him as Michael J. Fusco, a 36-year-old unemployed bartender. He was arrested on charges of felonious assault and violation of the Sullivan law relating to weapons.

Police said Fusco was enraged when he learned Miss Raeber had been associating with other men.

The knife was removed from Miss Raeber's jaw at Roosevelt hospital where her condition was described as not serious.

PLANES STILL GROUNDED

London, Dec. 14 (CP) — Poor bombing weather today gave the Germans another day to patch up their battered rail network in the west.

Absence of warnings from Nazi radio stations apparently meant the R.A.F. and American heavy bombers in Britain and Italy were still grounded.

Political Problem Must Be Faced

Somewhere in France, Dec. 14 — (AP) — Maj.-Gen. Harry J. Malony, whose infantry and artillery have 50,000 Germans bottled in the French ports of Lorient and St. Nazaire, must deal quickly with the political problem of what to do with thousands of French civilians locked in with the Germans and clamoring to come out.

Under Geneva conventions an occupying army is responsible for the welfare of the civilian population within an occupied area, but the desperate food shortage in Lorient and St. Nazaire has placed civilian health in peril. At the same time French civilians are being killed by artillery fire.

Committees representing every faction of French civil life are pleading for leniency.

Removal of the civilians would help the Germans, who therefore have taken advantage of the situation by making repeated overtures to the Americans, promising cessation of hostilities until the civilians are taken out.

Until a decision is reached the current order is "nothing goes in and nothing goes out."

A wedding of interest locally was solemnized on Saturday afternoon, December 9, in Trinity Anglican Church, Simcoe, at three-thirty o'clock, when Rev. C. C. Mixon united in the holy bonds of matrimony Elizabeth Adeline, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. C. Skelcher, of Simcoe, formerly of Belleville, and Arthur Joseph Fort, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Fort.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was very attractively attired in a street length dress of pale pink crepe with dark brown accessories and corsage of Talisman dier blue accessories and corsage of Johanna Hill roses.

Cpl. Douglas E. Fort, R.C.E.M.E., Barriefield, acted as his brother's groomsman.

For the reception at the home of the bride's parents following the ceremony, the bride's mother chose an ensemble in old rose crepe, with black accessories and corsage of roses.

Miss Marianne Skelcher, her sister's only attendant, wore a sheer wool dress of pale blue with sol-yellow roses. The groom's mother was wearing soldier blue crepe with matching accessories and corsage of deep red roses.

For travelling to Toronto and points east, the bride selected a rose wool dress with dark brown topcoat and accessories.

Voices, How to Train Them

Jinx Falkenburg has a beautifully modulated voice.

By HELEN FOLLETT

No matter how lovely a woman may be, if she has a strident, harsh, grating voice she cannot be numbered among those who are charming. She sets your teeth on edge. She starts your nervous system rampaging. You want to put your hands over your ears, and that's not a nice thing to do.

Vocal teachers claim that pleasant voices can be cultivated; that disagreeable ones are the result of pitching the tones too high or using too much volume.

Humdrum Voices

Some voices have a flat unmusical quality a monotonous range of tones. They're humdrum and droning. That is purely habit. There is no need of a voice being without charm or character. Usually, individuals of this type are careless in enunciation, which makes speech even less attractive.

To correct this condition one should give all vowels an open sound, pronounce each word with precision, endeavor to get a more expressive quality in the voice.

In contrast to the droner is the woman who uses too much emphasis, especially on adjectives. She is the kind of a woman who is always trying to dramatize herself, and frequently goes a bit too far with the effort to put over an engaging personality.

The Shouters.

Then we have the shouters, who are a sore trial on ear drums.

Men are extremely susceptible to a sweet voice. To them a shout-woman just isn't in the picture. There are whole families of shouters. Spend an evening with them and you are ready to be hospitalized, your nervous system going completely haywire.

Test your voice by reading aloud. Read poetry that has a pleasing swing. Enunciate clearly. Time your words, to make speech expressive.

We judge character by the voice. You realize that well enough when a stranger speaks to you over the telephone.

BEAUTY By HELEN JAMESON

Take a Good-Looks Inventory

There never was a time when beauty was less standardized. We have personal views as to what type of girl makes the grade. So varied are our tastes that it is a dull-witted woman who cannot create for herself a certain number of pulchritude attributes. Also many defects can easily be corrected by home treatment or professional services.

Suppose you take inventory of your points—good and bad—just for fun. Figure up your average, see what your rating amounts to. If you fall short, then get busy. Trot to the beauty shop, do your home chores. And keep cheerful. Keeping cheerful is an undeniable help; it aids digestion, brightens the eyes, steadies the nervous system.

Your hair, has it life and lustre? If not, then either your shampoo is not thorough, or you are not doing enough grooming with the brush. Is the mode of arrangement becoming? It should be. There are many modes from which to choose.

Your skin: If you eat wisely, get plenty of sleep, massage your face every night with a heavy cream, bathe it in cold water every morning, your complexion should be of fine texture and good coloring.

Your mouth: do you attend to oral hygiene, brushing your teeth morning and night, using a mouth lotion? Are you fastidious in the choice of a lipstick, don't smear it on too thickly? What about expression? A down-in-the-mouth look would put a Helen of Troy out of running.

Your eyes: don't judge by shape, size or color. The charm of the eyes is in the messages they send. If they are dull or sullen they are no beauty asset; they are a deficit.

Eyebrows; are you still among the misguided girls who are tweezing and teasing forehead lambrequins down to a line of single hairs that isn't as wide as a whisp of darning cotton? Then let them come back to normal; keep them tidy at the edges, brushed with brilliantine to give them gloss.

Figure: here we have a subject worthy of an entire beauty preachment. Correct diet and proper exercise will normalize the fat and the thin, so no figure is hopeless. Don't worry about weight if proportions are good, movements light and graceful.

Hands: they've had a rough, tough row to hoe since the war started. Lotion them twice a day, massage with a cream twice a week, and don't go out without your gloves if you don't want to have your hands chapped.

Feet: you have foot troubles? Many do. Get properly fitted shoes and your worries on this score will evaporate. Easy!

E. Shortt Speaks On What Job Should Mean

The Christian Culture Group, under the convenership of Rosslyn Robertson, had charge of the meeting of Holloway Street Y.P.U. held on Monday evening.

The business period was presided over by Norlene Frederick with Maude Burke acting as secretary.

The Worship Service was led by Rosslyn Robertson, who gave the Call to Worship.

Betty Keeble read the Scripture, which was the Parable of the Talents and Ana English gave the commentary on it. The devotional period was closed with a hymn and prayer. Marjorie Dilts then sang 'Bless This House' accompanied by Lois Harper.

The speaker of the evening was Mr. Ed. Shortt, personnel manager at the Stewart-Warner Alemite, who spoke on the subject, 'What Our Job Should Mean to Us'. Mr. Shortt outlined five main factors young people should consider in choosing an occupation.

(1) That the job will be not only a means of earning a living, but that it will also furnish enough money for cultural development and some to help less fortunate persons;

(2) That it will furnish a means of self expression;

(3) That it will present an ever expanding horizon;

(4) That through the job an opportunity may be given to serve our generation and make a contribution to the common good;

(5) That the job will give a depth of satisfaction and happiness.

A vote of thanks to Mr. Shortt and to Marjorie Dilts was moved by Kay Beattie.

The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction.

Fashion Flashes

CAPES AND MORE CAPES is the word for Spring, judging from the recent showings. Something new is the long cape lined with scarf prints, worn over matching two-piece scarf print frocks. The cloth cape, with collarless neckline and rich fur border, is a Spring dress item.

MAKE A MATCH with hat and gilet or hat and bag. Selling like mad are beautiful accessory sets. Green and gold lame as used for a high drape turban and for an enormous bag, while brilliant brown satin is used for another intricately draped turban with matching long gloves.

THE FORMULA for bags seems to consist of a small bag and a large frame. This theme is carried out in a small pouch of black antelope with an enormous frame of hand-carved lucite made with scalloped edges that swirl outward.

COME SPRING and you'll find the high turban still atop some of the smartest heads. A recent showing included several finely made turbans in straw cloth trimmed with bandings of jewel-tone stones and square mirror plaques.

BIG DETAIL of new Spring clothes is the capelet sleeve—featured on both dresses and coats. It is used for a pretty pink crepe frock with a black flower-and-leaf design print. Cape sleeves are strongly rippled, and the skirt has fullness released from self bows either side of the hipline towards the entire front.

FESTIVE FROCKS give color to evening festivities. Taffeta plaid—striped in green, lavender and white—makes a lovely dance frock, the plain lines worked to point up a small waistline that has a big bow peppered with colored sequins and fringed with white. Soft bodice, short sleeves and V neckline.

"All's Well That Ends Well", as Shakespeare Has Said

Personally I like home-brewed sermons. Words of wisdom distilled from intimate personal experience. Much more to the point are these than the pontifications of some columnist writing from long distance sources. This woman's letter needs no introduction:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"My husband was one of those good men who never wanted to hear two nickels knock together in his wife's pocket. I was given just enough money which to run the house and my budgets were edited by the Good Man as if I were trying to cheat him.

"I wore out dollars' worth of shoe leather tramping from chain store to chain store to buy a bunch of carrots or a pound of onions for a few pennies less than were sold at a nearby chain store. But he never realised the folly of this.

"So, when the chance came for me to take a defence job in a factory, I signed up without consulting him. In a way the job was a good thing for every member of my family. It taught my husband that I had economic value outside of the home. My son and daughter had more respect for me as a person who earned her own money instead of having to wangle quarters out of their father.

"But in spite of my $40 a week, my home had gone to blazes. I worked an hour longer than my husband at his job as an accountant and I got my dinner before I went home. When I arrived my husband was usually sawing open cans in a kitchen which looked as if it had been blitzed.

"My daughter wasn't there very often. She had made friends of her own with whom she went to dine and dance. My resentful young son belonged to a club known as the 'Invincible Six'. They played pranks, stole trifles to prove their sleight of hand, but weren't utter hoodlums.

"I really enjoyed the confusion worse confounded in my home because my family never had appreciated me until I proved my economic value. However, why my husband said 'Old girl, if you'll give up that blamed job of yours, I'll double your allowance and no questions asked'.

"So I agreed to do just that thing. Not only was I fed up with seeing my family apparently going to the dogs, but I also heard there would be a tremendous reduction in staff at the factory, following election. I didn't feel obliged to confide this to my husband.

"Everything has worked out O.K. The family has seen I can do more than drudge among the pots and pans. The children feel that, in going back to my housekeeping, I'm giving up something for them, and they are accordingly grateful. My Old Man is so reformed I hardly know him.

(Signed) Mother Knows Best."

Christmas Cards to Business Acquaintances

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

When Christmas cards are to be sent to married persons, is it proper to address them to both the husband and the wife, even though you know only one of them? Will you please also explain this question as it applies to business friends or acquaintances?

C. T. B.

Socially, yes, it is proper to address a card to both the husband and the wife even though you know only one of them. In other words you apply the same rule you would if you were sending formal invitations or announcements. And, if you are married, the card should be signed with your name and your husband's (or wife's) name.

And this rule of the social world may properly and courteously be followed in most cases in the business world. Let's say, for example, that you would like to send a Christmas card to Mr. Brown, who is a business friends of yours, and whom you would very much like to have your husband (or wife) meet. This friendly relationship suggests that the natural and gracious thing to do is to send your card addressed to "Mr. and Mrs. John Brown" at their home address, and to sign it with your name and your husband's (or wife's) name.

However, if your relationship with Mr. Brown is merely that of a casual business acquaintance you may correctly send a greeting card to him only, and to his business address. Then, of course, you would sign only your own name.

Gift To Employer.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

What do you advise about my giving my employer a Christmas present? I am one of three girls who work in the office with him, and the other two girls have not told me what they intend to do about giving him a present. I have been employed here since last February, and although our employer is very kind, he is very impersonal with all of us. His wife sometimes comes into the office, and always is most friendly with us.

Marion.

Under the usual circumstances . . . and the circumstances in your office come under that category, as you describe them. . . it is best taste for you not to give your employer a gift. As a matter of fact, it isn't sensible for you to do this, since it is apt to cause embarrassment to your employer. However, since you know your employer's wife, it would be proper for you to send a carefully-chosen Christmas card addressed to your employer and his wife at their home. This is enough of a seasonal bow for you to make and indicates your good will and your good taste.

Groom's Mother is Guest of Honor.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman.

I am engaged to a man serving in the Navy. We are planning to marry soon and I would like to have his mother, who is a talented singer, be the soloist at our wedding. Would this be correct?

E. N. C.

If you are having a home wedding or even perhaps a small, informal church wedding, this might perhaps be gracefully arranged. But for a church wedding of any degree of formality or even semi-formality, I think this would be an awkward procedure. You see, your bridegroom's mother is the woman guest of honor at your wedding, and she really should be seated in the honor-place reserved for her, in the first pew at the right of the aisle down which the procession walks.

B.C. Army Officers 'Never in Revolt' Says Gen. Pearkes

Vancouver, Dec. 14—(CP)—Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, General Officer Commanding-in-Chief, Pacific Command, Tuesday night issued a statement in which he said that officers of his command "have never been in revolt but on the contrary have loyally supported the government policy of producing reinforcements for overseas."

Gen. Pearkes said his statement was issued in connection with an Ottawa article he said was published "across Canada by certain sections of the press" Nov. 24 in which reference was made to "the open revolt of B. C. army officers." He did not identify the source of the article, which was not carried by The Canadian Press.

His statement follows:

On Nov. 24 an article originating in Ottawa was published across Canada by certain sections of the press. Reference was made in this article to "the open revolt of B. C. army officers." A number of officers referred to at that time are now leaving this command with their units and proceeding to assembly points in Eastern Canada in preparation for their dispatch overseas.

It is desirable that their names should be cleared before they leave this command. I therefore take this opportunity to state that officers of this command have never been in open revolt, but on the contrary have loyally supported the government policy of producing reinforcements for overseas.

Surgical Miracles Performed Daily On Wounded Men of Western Front

By DON WHITEHEAD
(AP War Correspondent)

A Field Hospital in Germany, Dec. 14 —(AP)— Medical theories on what the human body can endure are being revised as Allied doctors perform surgical miracles with men wounded in the battle of Germany.

When heavy fighting rages the doctors and nurses often work 18 to 20 hours daily, sometimes even longer.

This hospital is an old school house. Brought in from the field, the wounded sometimes arrive within two hours after they are injured. At home many of these cases would require the services of two doctors and two private nurses each. Here a small group of doctors and nurses must handle them all.

"We've had to throw out many of the concepts of civilian surgery," said Maj. D. S. Meyers of Kingston, N. Y.

"For example, we thought if we had to cut out more than three feet of bowel we might as well give up, because the patient didn't have a chance to recover.

"But there have been (war) cases where I have removed six, nine and even 18 feet of intestines and a few days later the patients have been begging for something to eat."

As civilians most of these surgeons would have thought it impossible to operate successfully under present conditions and operations which would have been considered sensational are accepted as every-day work.

Meyers does as high as 20 operations a day, most of them on serious abdominal or chest injuries. He is only one of many.

Maj. Robert Sinclair of Wilmington, N.C., said:

"Tell them not to quit donating blood. We need it badly. As soon as there is good news from the front, people stop donating, but now is no time to quit."

Mess Room Chatter Of Canada's Airmen

With the R.C.A.F. Overseas, Dec. 14 —(CP)— The R.A.F.'s "Flying Circus" is going to have a Messerschmitt 109, thanks to Sqdn. Ldr. Guy (Plum) Plamondon of Limoilou, Quebec.

The commander of a Typhoon bomber squadron has been spending all his spare time building one from components collected in various German assembly plants which have been overrun. Working with him are members of the squadron's ground crew. They have one engine completed and tested, and the whole aircraft is about ready to fly.

A 22-year-old pilot from Ontario—his name was not available for security reasons—was among the Canadians who helped attack Gestapo headquarters at the University of Aarhus.

"The raid was so perfectly organized that it took the Hun entirely by surprise," he said later.

The raiding force flew in four echelons of six aircraft but moved into double formation approaching the target. The navigation was superb.

"When we arrived over the target the first formation had already done its damage," said the Canadian. "The left-hand building was in ruins; the right-hand building had tremendous big cracks in its walls."

The trip was "easy all the way," he said, because "we simply were led to the target, it was pointed out to us and all we had to do was bomb it."

Appointments to three important training posts have been announced by headquarters of the R.C.A.F. bomber group in Britain.

Group Captain H. H. C. Rutledge of (6 Inglewood Place) Ottawa and Winnipeg has been given command of a station housing an aircrew battle school, succeeding Group Capt. D. D. Findlay of Carleton Place, Ont., who is proceeding back to Canada.

Wing Cmdr. R. P. Miller of Lashburn, Sask., formerly in charge of the battle school, become director of training at group headquarters.

Succeeding Miller is Wing Cmdr. J. F. Clark, D.F.C., of (800 York St.) London, Ont., who has completed two operational tours and formerly was gunnery leader at group headquarters. He was an original member of the first Canadian bomber squadron to be formed.

The Bluenose Squadron's song-writing pilot—F.O. Jock Spence of Windsor and Flower Station, Ont.—has completed his first tour of operations, and his last flight was more perilous than any other.

"The target was Bremen and the way they shovelled the flak up you'd wonder who was attacking, us or them," he grinned. Flak put one engine of his Halifax out of commission, damaged another and wounded a gunner. An oil leak developed but he managed to get home.

One of Spence's songs, "Only Yours," is on sale in Britain and doing well; another will be heard in a British film; and his publishers have others under consideration. Spence used to be pianist with George Wenuta's Windsor orchestra.

Indicates Germans Plan 5-Year War From Underground

By WES GALLAGHER
(AP War Correspondent)

Alsdorf, Germany, Dec. 13—(AP)—Information from inside Germany indicates Adolf Hitler's close followers have prepared for five years of underground warfare against the Allies after the German Army collapses.

This is the picture of Gestapo chieftain Heinrich Himmler's master plan for the struggle, as pieced together from information now available from various sources.

Himmler started laying the plans for underground warfare in the last two months of 1943 and these plans now are being carried out inside Germany.

The plans are threefold, embracing:

1. Open warfare directed from Hitler's mountain headquarters.

2. Sabotage and guerilla activity conducted by Partisan bands organized by districts.

3. Propaganda warfare to be carried on by some 300,000 Nazi followers in Europe and elsewhere.

Already picked S. S. troops have been established in underground strongholds and hospitals in the Austrian, Bavarian and Italian Alpine area, and it is the plan of Nazi leaders to flee to that region when the German military machine collapse comes. Only true and tried party members will be allowed to enter the strongholds.

The Nazi party already has concentrated food and munitions in the Alpine area sufficient to carry on for a long period.

Chaplin's Lawyers Fail To Get Court Delay

Los Angeles, Dec. 14, (AP)—Charlie Chaplin's lawyers failed today to get a two months' continuance in Joan Berry's suit to establish him as the father of her 14-months-old daughtre, Carol Ann, after submitting an affidavit contending Miss Berry had been intimate with another man.

Charles E. Millikan, one of the screen comic's attorneys, told Judge Ruben Schmidt he had subpoenaed Hans Reusch, a writer, whom he termed "a vital and important witness". He asked for the continuance on the ground Reusch, in New York, had refused to come here to testify.

The court denied the motion for continuance. Miss Berry's paternity suit has not yet been assigned a court, however. It was to proceed in some superior court later today.

The affidavit in support of the continuance motion was signed by Millikan, who read two letters purportedly written by Miss Berry to Reusch.

"The fact that Miss Berry had relations with another man or men is vital and important in this case", argued Millikan.

Soldier in Stalled Bus Taken by Toboggan And Horse to Ambulance

Hamilton, December 14 —(CP)— A mission of mercy was effected here Tuesday, at the height of the history-making snow storm with the team-work of the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps and the Ontario Highways Department.

A soldier travelling on a bus from Niagara Falls to this city suffered an appendix attack after the bus was stalled by huge drifts.

A Highway's Department snowplow followed by an R.C.A.S.C. ambulance with eight men found the stricken soldier but were unable to get their ambulance near enough. The army men obtained a toboggan and horse and fought heavy drifts to get their comrade back to the ambulance.

The patient was reported resting comfortably after his operation.

Little Danger of Communism In France as Long as DeGaulle Rules

By GLADWIN HILL
(AP Staff Writer)

Paris, Dec. 14 —(AP)— More than six months after the invasion of Europe and the subsequent liberation of virtually all France, half the French people are muttering that the Communists are gaining too much headway while the other half declares trends are too reactionary and that "the trusts" are taking hold.

Most indications are that while there is a strong Left-Wing current, it is far from dominant—although it has extensive possibilities for growth.

Gen. DeGaulle—who is accepted virtually without question as the present National leader—is a devote Roman Catholic, a professional soldier and certainly no Communist. There are many indications he has no party.

Gen. DeGaulle speaks in one breath of "nationalizing"—a term never precisely defined—key French enterprises and in the next of preserving private initiative. This is not mere equivocation, since Gen DeGaulle, a sincere and courageous man, has not hesitated to take an unpleasant bull by the horns when the need is urgent.

Some people think it represents moderation between conflicting views; others that he has in mind some compromise between collectivism and individualism.

There are only two Communists among his cabinet of 20 which is running France today—and those two are in the secondary posts of health and air.

In policy, the government has shown a few leftist inclinations but not an inordinate number. Postal service, telegraph, telephones and railroads already were government activities, and government now seeks "nationalization" of such fields as power, banking, and insurance, although these still are in an exploratory stage.

The Renault Motor Works, with 12,600 employees, was seized because they produced for the Germans, and the northern coal mines were "requisitioned" to get coal moving.

If the DeGaulle regime keeps up national recovery apace it seems there will be little real occasion—amid France's innate reverence for private property—for the Communists to peddle their collectivist wares. If the DeGaulle regime falls, look out for trouble.

Eleven Years in China Canada's Plenty Amazes

(By Rena Shaw)

Three thousand dollars for a pair of shoes. For a suit, $20,000. A package of cigarettes, $4.50. These are but samples of what wartime inflation has done in China. Only, says William Woo, Canadian-born Chinese, "inflation" is such a frightening word that the people simply say, "prices have gone up".

Mr. Woo returned to Montreal recently after spending eleven years in China, where he saw war come, bringing hunger and misery to a valiant people, driving millions of refugees into the interior, and learned something he never knew before "what it is to be desperate for enough to eat—just enough to exist on".

The pattern was like this, he said. Japanese bombers would come over, raining down death and destruction. People rushed to the banks to draw out what money they had. Then they ran to the food stores and bought up whatever was obtainable. Prices went skyrocketing. Once supplies were consumed, no more could be secured. Then began the long trek to the interior and millions of people from the coastal regions streamed into the picturesque little villages where ordinarily the farmers eked out a brae livelihood farmers eked out a bare livelihood. That brought hunger in the villages as well. In the interior where the Japanese have not penetrated, the average Chinese may have one meal a day, sometimes two, of the simpliest fare. In areas near the war zones, the farmers fear to plant crops because the Japanese may take them. Hunger is so constant everywhere that the idea of food is an obsession, the main topic of conversation.

"Since I have been back in Canada I just revel in being able to buy a package of biscuits or a piece of cheese any time I wish to", said Mr. Woo. "It gives me a funny feeling to go into a store in Canada and see such huge quantities of food. It's like heavens to be here again. People have plenty to eat, there is no inflation to drive food prices beyond their reach. There are even cars galore.

"I don't think Canadians half the desperate hunger, the fantastic reality what it is like in China, prices that make it impossible for the average person to obtain what he needs. No one who is well fed can have any idea of what it is to be hungry all the time, day after day, month after month.

"Just to give you an idea; I had lost a lot of weight in China. After being back in Canada two months I have bained nearly forty pounds".

Incendiary Bombs At Big Rand Fair

Cape Town, Dec. 14. (CP)— The first day of Johannesburg's great "Speed the Victory" fair provided a sensation when police found several incendiary bombs in the Russian pavilion.

The incident occurred on the night of Nov. 25, while hundreds were sheltering from the rain in the entrance hall of the pavilion. Suddenly flames shot up at the back of the hall towards the overhanging tapestry.

The curator of the pavilion J. Millan, saw the flames were coming from an object on the ground and quickly stamped them out before they could reach the tapestry. Police found six other incendiary bombs concealed among flowers in the entrance hall. Like all other buildings at the fair, the pavilian was made of wood and fire might have caused a national disaster.

J. H. Hofmeyr, minister of finance, believes the post-war financial problems of the Union of South Africa to be no more insoluble than those of the war have been.

"The task of the post-war minister of finance", he told a meeting of the Witwatersrand general council of the United Party, "will be to balance the demands of those who want increased state services against those who demand relief from taxation. In any case such war time taxation as excess profits duty cannot be justified in normal times".

The minister of economic development, S. F. Waterson, told the Johannesburg Chamber of Commerce recently that import control will be abolished after are war.

"It was never visualized by the government as an instrument for the protection of industries", the minister said. "But its removal must be gradual and the post-war situation will demand all the good will of which the commercial community is capable".

Toronto's New Bylaws Are Included in Consolidation

Toronto, Dec. 14 —(CP)—Ontario Highways Minister Doucett, announced yesterday he has approved asked by the city of Toronto. The new bylaws call for among other things, pedestrians putting out their hand when turning, walking on the right side of the sidewalk and not running for street cars.

Another provision disallows horses pulling wagons from being unattended at any time while in motion.

HELP THE COAL DEALER TO Help you

Consult your dealer regarding your needs:
Your dealer has many pressing problems. Let him know how much fuel you will need to last until May 1, in addition to the amount you have in your bin. He can then organize his deliveries so that you will receive your share of fuel as it may become available.

Have your bins ready for the delivery man
He is a busy man these days. Do everything possible to speed up his job. If you're getting both soft and hard coal separately have the necessary spaces ready and cleared for each.

Clear all approaches to your bins:
Be sure that driveway, walk and outside steps are cleared of snow, and sanded if necessary; also clear walk and driveway. Use nearest windows. Keep inside steps cleared and free of boxes, pails, etc.

Accept whatever kind of usable fuel the dealer can supply:
Some types of coal are scarce and you can't afford to insist on specific grades or sizes as you would in normal times. Don't take a chance. Any kind of coal is preferable to none.

Take delivery when dealer can make it:
Your dealer is working with limited delivery facilities which must be used continuously throughout the winter, if every householder is to receive his share of available supplies. Don't wait, therefore, until you are almost out of fuel before permitting your dealer to replenish your bin. Let him make delivery when he can.

SAVE 1 SHOVELFUL IN 5
Ask your dealer for a copy of the Free Government Booklet "33 Ways To Save 1 Ton in 5"
It contains many helpful suggestions that will enable you to save coal by properly firing your furnace and keeping the heating system efficient. It also points to heat-stealing leaks in your house and how to prevent them.

Cunningham's Big Job To Beat Japan

By CARL OLSSON

(In the Magazine London Calling)

At a huge ornate desk in a cream panelled room at the Admiralty there sits a little tight-lipped man thinking out bad news for the Japs.

Above his head a portrait of Nelson stares reflectively across at a print of one of England's ancient sea battles. It is a silent room. As he sits brooding there the noise of traffic in nearby Whitehall reaches him only as a muted murmur like the far-off beat of surf on shore. Fit background for his thoughts. "Home is the sailor home from the sea . . ."

The little man is Admiral of the Fleet Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham, Bart., First Sea Lord and Chief of Naval Staff.

A.B.C., as the Navy calls him, has spent 46 out of his 60 years at sea. (There is a story that once he received some wartime official form by mistake. Opposite the clause asking him what he had been in civil life he wrote the word "child.") For 35 of those years he has held commands, known the loneliness of full responsibility.

His first command was a destroyer, Scorpion, which he got at the early age of 25 and held for seven years (a record). His last was that of the Mediterranean Fleet in which he created another record as holding a longer tenure of office than any other fighting chief in this war.

• •

In all his long years of service he has held a shore job—a desk job—only twice; a few months at the Admiralty as Deputy Chief of Naval Staff in 1938-39, and a short spell of duty in Washington while the North African campaign was being planned. When he was in command in the Mediterranean his H.Q. was Navy House in Alexandria where the Admiralty wanted him to be. His staff was there, but not Cunningham.

He was in his cabin on his flagship where he wanted to be, and where he did most of the business of his high command. The Admiralty had misgivings about this arrangement. The Mediterranean zone of operations was so vast and so complicated that the Lords Commissioners preferred a C.-in-C. to be sitting ashore, not liable to go charging into battle at any moment. But that was how Cunningham liked it, and he won his point. And proved it.

For on one day while he was at sea he had 16 separate British naval operations (apart from anti-U-boat patrols) going on at the same time, and divided by many hundreds of miles of sea. Yet all were closely interlocked in the general scheme, and Cunningham from his sea cabin kept control of them all.

It is his own expressed opinion that he is no good at a desk job. Actually, in the opinion of those best fitted to know, he is one of the best administrative brains the Navy has ever had, as well as its most legendary fighter since Nelson. He has held sea-going commands from too early an age ever to become a specialist (that cramping influence on all-round administrative ability) in any branch of naval art. But in his job as First Sea Lord and Chief of Naval Staff he has all the specialist assistance he needs.

• •

And now this sailor who loves the sea, this great fighter and leader, is up against the toughest proposition of his life. The Jap fleet has got to be defeated within the next two years, and it is going to be no easy matter. It is going to need the whole of British naval power as well as the American to do it.

Do not be deceived by the undoubted numerical superiority of the American over the Jap fleet. Numbers, alone, do not decide sea actions. Remember Cunningham himself . . .

The day after Mussolini declared war Cunningham put to sea to challenge the Italian fleet with a force consisting of two battleships, one carrier, five cruisers and a few destroyers, which was about his entire fleet. For long years during the greatest sea campaign in history his numerical inferiority verged on the ludicrous. At one time his entire battle-worthy force in the Mediterranean consisted of three cruisers. At another time his entire air support consisted of one fighter pilot. (When they gave Cunningham a K.C.B. he is reported to have said, "I wish they had given me three squadrons of Hurricanes instead.")

He knows what can be done with very little, what can be done by bluff and fighting whenever opportunity offers. In his sea-going cabin there has always hung his favorite piece of verse by his hero, a 17th. Century Scot, the Marquess of Montrose:

He either fears his fate too much
Or his deserts are small
That dares not put it to the touch
To win, or lose it all.

How often, during the grim days of Malta, and Crete and Libya, he must have looked wryly at that verse. But, in the end, after those terribly poverty-stricken years, he was able to receive the surrender of the whole Italian fleet, to sit down and write that famous despatch beginning: "Be pleased to inform their Lordships that the Italian Battle Fleet is now anchored under the guns of Malta."

• •

Yes, Cunningham knows what can be done with very little. And the Japs have still a lot, and perhaps, some things we do not know about yet. (How many 16-inch "battlewagons" have they built, for instance? We know they have built some under the blanket of secrecy dropped over Japan's warbuilding of the last 8 years.)

After Admiral Nimitz' recent successful action some naval commentators cheerfully said that the Japanese fleet is now "unbalanced" owing to cruiser and destroyer losses, and is no longer an offensive force seeking battle. But it still has powerful battleships whose very existence means that vastly superior numbers of American ships must be detached to watch them. It still is a tremendously powerful defensive force covering Japan and aided by the vast ship-absorbing spaces of the Pacific.

And Japan holds many sea bases along the thousands of leagues of the Pacific, bases from which it can harry the many new seaborne landings which we must attempt very soon. All those hydra-headed sections of the Japan fleet will have to be lopped off, one by one, before we properly get to grips with the Japanese armies.

It may need almost the whole of the Royal Navy to finish that job. It is Cunningham's last and biggest task to plan how that job may best, and most speedily, be done. It will need all his sea cunning, his vast experience as a naval strategist. And if no man need envy him that task, yet we know that there is none more fitted to carry it out.

Multiply by Three

(Christian Science Monitor)

If you are an American, and can grasp the meaning of figures after they go into millions and billions, then read the British White Paper, released recently in Britain and the United States—and multiply by three.

This White Paper is the story of the war effort of a nation with 47,-000,000 people. The 563,000 casualties reported here for Britain's fighting forces—a figure somewhat larger than that for the United States—hits the British nation with an impact equal to that of a casualty list of 1,700,000 for the United States.

• •

The introduction of this White Paper, "Statistics Relating to the War Effort of the United Kingdom"—as cool and modest a title, by the way, as ever capped so Homeric an epic—makes this observation: "Until now it has not been possible, for reasons of security, to publish statistics showing the extent to which the resources of the United Kingdom have been mobilized for war during the last five years." The unprejudiced reader of this White Paper may note that phrase, "for reasons of security." He is likely to reflect that for these same reasons of security Britain could not much longer delay the publication of this tabulation of sacrifices in our common war against world despotism.

Frankly, the British effort is not fully appreciated abroad, at any rate in the United States.

How, can it be, in a country where swollen purchasing power is one of the most pressing problems of the war while in Britain war has meant patched clothing instead of new fur coats?

How can it be, where the post-war building of houses is looked upon as a means of maintaining employment and prosperity, and not mainly as a means of housing people whose homes—one-third of all their homes—have been damaged by mobs, and 450,000 destroyed or made uninhabitable?

How can it be, in a country which has achieved new heights of military, naval, air and industrial power as a result of a war that has cut into the British position to the point of making a creditor nation into a people heavily saddled with debt?

How can it be, in a country looking forward to new opportunities in world markets while the British are confronted by a grave reduction in their merchant fleet, a cut of 50 per cent in imports and of two-thirds in exports?

• •

It is time someone began to tell the whole story of Britain's war effort. It is time that countries, the basis of whose present security was to a considerable extent completed while the British held out against the world enemy, learn what that stand has cost in "blood, toil, tears and sweat." It is time Britain's allies understood not only what Britain has already paid on this world account for the general freedom and security and civilization, but what sort of future Britain faces because she has made that payment so wholeheartedly.

The White Paper on the war effort needs to be read with an understanding that, because of the figures which it contains, the British must look forward to victory not as to a hump which, when surmounted, will mark the beginning of a fair plain to plow and plant for future prosperity. No. Victory to the British is a welcome but fairly grim opening from which they can see only a steep and formidable ascent ahead. This ascent, when achieved, will only bring them back to where they were when they made their great decision to put freedom first.

• •

In the meaning of this war to the British — its meaning in costs as well as ideals—is comprehended, the rest of us will better understand the efforts of the British to hold their own in a tolerable post-war world which they have contributed so much to guarantee.

Triumphal March in Roman Style

(From the New Book, "Caesar and Christ," by Will Durant)

One of the great spectacles of ancient Rome was the official triumph of a returning general. Only those were eligible for it who had won a campaign in which 5,000 of the enemy had been slain; the unfortunate commander who had won with less slaughter received merely an ovation—for him no ox was sacrificed, but only a sheep (ovis.) The procession formed outside the city, at whose borders the general and his troops were required to lay down their arms; thence it entered through a triumphal arch that set a fashion for a thousand monuments.

The trumpeteers led the march; after them came towers or floats representing the captured cities, and pictures showing the exploits of the victors; then wagons rumbled by, heavy with gold, silver, works of art and other spoils. Marcellus' triumph was memorable for the stolen statuary of Syracuse (212); Scipio Africanus in 207 displayed 14,000 and in 202, 123,000 pounds of silver, taken from Spain and Carthage.

Seventy white oxen followed, walking philosophically to their death; then captured chiefs of the enemy; then lictors, harpers, pipers and incense-bearers, then in a flamboyant chariot, the general himself, wearing a purple toga and a crown of gold, and bearing an ivory sceptre and a laurel branch as emblem of victory and the insignia of Jove. In the chariot with him might be his children; beside it rode his relatives; behind them his secretaries and aides.

Last came the soldiers, some carrying the prizes awarded them, everyone wearing a crown; some praising their leaders, others deriding them; for it was an inviolable tradition that on these brief occasions the speech of the army should be free and unpunished, to remind the proud victors of their fallible mortality.

The general mounted the capitol to the temple of Jupiter, Juno and Minerva, laid his loot at the feet of the gods, presented an animal in sacrifice, and usually ordered the captive chieftains to be slain as an additional thank offering. It was a ceremony well designed to stir military ambition and reward military effort; for man's vanity yields only to hunger and love.

CASUAL COMMENT

by K.J.C.

A tramp was one day strolling through the wood that belonged to the Duke of Norfolk. The Duke happened to meet him, and said:

Duke—Do you know you are walking on my land?

Tramp—Your land? Well, I've got no land of my own, so I'm obliged to walk on somebody's. Where, though, did you get this land?

Duke—I got it from my ancestors.

Tramp—And where did they get it from?

Duke—From their ancestors.

Tramp—And where did their ancestors get it from?

Duke—They fought for it.

Tramp (fiercely, as he pulled off his coat)—Come on, then, and I'll fight you for it.

But the Duke, retreating hastily, declined to accept this fair offer.

Why Not Here?

Up in St. Catharines they have introduced a system of booster tickets for their hockey games. In St. Kitts the good people pay a buck for their tickets and at each home game there is a draw for $25.00. The "booster" has to be present to collect the prize money, otherwise it is added to the following week's prize bringing the pot up to half a "C" note. This procedure continues until a booster wins. Non-boosters are not eligible for the draw, which of course interests more hockey fans to become "boosters" in the interest of junior hockey.

Here in Belleville the same plan could be adopted only on a smaller scale. Reserve seat prices for Junior O.H.A. matches at the Hume Arena usually are staple at 50c. Prexy Bill Dennis and his associates could well afford to organize a "boosters' club" in Belleville, drawing for ten or fifteen bucks each night. At least they would be assured of increased sale of reserved seats in advance, which is money in the bank.

Remember When.

Bill Cook played for the Saskatoon "Shieks" in the old Western Canada Hockey League. It was just 20 years ago tonight that Bill, who later became famous with the New York Rangers in the N.H.L., scored three goals to help Saskatoon retain an unbeaten record and down Victoria 4-1. Prior to turning professional Bill Cook played hockey for Capt. Jim Sutherland's Kingston Frontenacs and many a tough struggle he engaged in at the old Turnbull Street arena. Recently Liberty magazine published a story on the life of Bill Cook, who was quoted as saying—"the toughest game of hockey I ever played was in Belleville Ontario, directly after the First Great War". And that was after he had campaigned in the N.H.L. for many seasons.

It Does, eh.

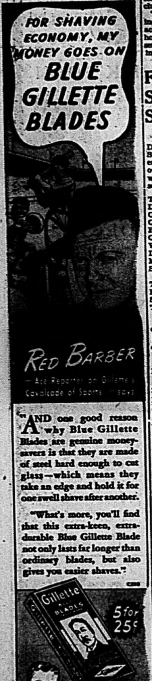
Ripper Collins, the former Cardinal first-baseman who this past season, at the ripe old age of 40, was still good enough to be the top minor league hitter as playing manager of the Albany club of the Eastern League with a .396 average, has long been considered a brilliant after-dinner speaker . . . But now the Ripper is not so sure. . . Recently he was asked to address an assemblage of high school boys. . . During the course of his speech, Collins said: "Education is a great thing. I've always regretted that I didn't get an education myself". . After his talk the editor of the school paper came up to Collins and asked if he might reprint his remarks in his paper. . . Rip was fittingly flattered and gave his permission . . . He received one of the first copies of the paper off the press . . . There wasn't anything wrong with the story, but the head over it was a little disconcerting: "Ripper Collins' Speech Shows Lack of Education".

Page Larry McPhail

Yesterday the American and National Baseball Leagues voted to prohibit the renting of major league ball parks for football games before the close of the regular baseball season. Lieut.-Col. Larry McPhail, who headed Cincinnati and Brooklyn and made a good job of it financially, says professional baseball and pro football should go hand-in-hand. Now the big football moguls will doubtless build stadiums of their own and the ball parks will be left abandoned in the Autumn.

Both major league voted for unlimited night baseball in 1945, giving the players additional worries. They also rejected a move to increase the draft price to $10,000, leaving the draft price from AA clubs to the majors at $7,500.

The big league player limits were increased from 40 to 46 and the active lists from 25 to 30, providing, however, the additions are returned servicemen who had previously been in pro-ball.



FOR SHAVING ECONOMY, MY MONEY GOES ON BLUE GILLETTE BLADES

RED BARBER —Ace Reporter on Gillette's Cavalcade of Sports —says

"AND one good reason why Blue Gillette Blades are genuine money-savers is that they are made of steel hard enough to cut glass—which means they take an edge and hold it for one swell shave after another.

"What's more, you'll find that this extra-keen, extra-durable Blue Gillette Blade not only lasts far longer than ordinary blades, but also gives you easier shaves."

N. COLVILLE GRADUATES

Winnipeg, Dec. 14 (CP)—RCAF officials here Tuesday said that Neil Colville, star centre of the Winnipeg RCAF Bombers' hockey team and formerly of New York Rangers of the National Hockey League, is scheduled to graduate Thursday in a class of trained navigators at No. 5 Air Observers' School here.

The officials said that, like other aircrew graduates who have no basic air force trade, he will be placed in the air force reserve.

LEAFS ONLY TAKE ELEVEN PLAYERS TO MONTREAL

Gus Bodnar Sick and McLean and Johnstone Are at School

Working on a ski-patrol basis, Hap Day managed to arrange a satisfactory tram service for Wednesday morning's workout of the Leafs at the Gardens.

"Despite the heavy storm," Day reported, "we didn't lose a single man through traffic jams. But we weren't so fortunate from other directions."

Bodnar Has Flu

Day took only eleven players to Montreal Wednesday night for another Forum session Thursday with Canadiens. Jackie McLean and Ross Johnstone had to stay at home because of scholastic chores. Gus Bodnar also missed the trip because of sickness. Bodnar has had the flu since last Saturday night.

Reduction of Toronto's playing forces may not be as alarming as suggested. The Leafs have played some of their best games this season while operating with only two forward lines. They've played some of their most disappointing hockey when presenting a 14-man lineup and leaving a couple of extras on the sidelines.

For tonight's Montreal event with the league-leading Habitants, Day will use Tommy O'Neill as right wing companion for Teeter Kennedy and Bob Davidson. Mel Hill, Nick Metz and Lorne Carr will form the other combination. If pressure becomes too great, Day can ring in Elwin Morris or Pete Backor as a forward.

Does McCreedy Return?

One piece of news from the Toronto strategy board was on the possible early return of P.O. Johnny McCreedy to civilian life. Graduated last spring from Dunnville RCAF School with high marks as a pilot, McCreedy was directed to service in Canada as a flying instructor. According to RCAF officials, the clever right winger of Toronto's last Stanley Cup team, was one of the best students at his school.

Coach Day, however, refused to indulge in any premature rooting on McCreedy. "We've been fooled before," he said. "We thought we had Stanowski, but didn't. And I'm saving any welcome for Johnny until he's actually sitting on our bench and in good standing with the proper authorities."

What's Doing in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Two soldiers from Guelph defeated opponents from Windsor in a boxing card at Petawawa last night. Pte. K. L. Garcia of the Royal City won the camp middleweight championship by out-pointing Gnr. E. Hogan of Windsor, the latter being floored three times in the three rounder. In the welterweight class, Gnr. O. Sanvido earned the title by knocking out Gnr. S. J. Stanko of Windsor.

The city council of St. Thomas yesterday granted permission to the Elgin County Horse Breeders Association to use an old city-owned race track for a revival of harness racing. The horsemen may use the plant until the site is required for residential purposes, it was stipulated.

The Silver Ball basketball tournament at Kitchener Y.M.C.A. during Christmas week has attracted 15 team entries including Sarnia, Windsor, London, Owen Sound, Simcoe, Brampton, Hamilton, Guelph, Galt and Stratford. Kitchener officials announced last night a second memorial trophy has been presented for competition as a tribute to FO. Robert S. Anderson who was killed in action in 1942 over Holland. The previous trophy was in memory of Capt. Vince Stark.

Following his discharge from the RCAF for which he played hockey at Arnprior during the past two seasons, Allan Shields is slated to join Hull Volants in the Quebec senior hockey league. Shields was formerly with Ottawa, New York Americans and Montreal Maroons in the NHL.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Dec. 14 —(CP)— Hockey talent hunters are fair game in Winnipeg these days, it seems, as the managers of local teams keep an eagle eye on any interloper who might want to snatch some promising young player out of the 'Peg. Though a closed season has been declared on the juniors, there are still some players in other categories who might listen to the lure of the East if they aren't watched . . . When he heard that "Squibbs" Walker, Toronto Maple Leaf scout, was under surveillance in the Manitoba capital, Joe O'Neill of the Owen Sound Sun-Times suggested his town might offer better hunting. "We didn't dog him around when he (Walker) was here," said Joe.

Grid Glances:

Football is still a major topic of conversation in Alberta. Prof. A. W. Matthews of University of Alberta has sent out a questionnaire to see how the fans like the American game, as compared with Canadian rules. United States servicemen stationed in the West gave the fans a taste of their type of play this fall, so the result of the poll should be interesting.

Salute to the Meaner.

Baz (Montreal Star) O'Meara pays a well-deserved tribute to Ted Reeve, former Toronto Telegram sports writer and famed athlete who has been invalided home from service in France. Ted has the saving grace of easy humor, so lacking in most sport writing of the present day and "has the priceless gift of being able to laugh at himself and his own misfortunes," says Baz.

Incidentally:

When Joe Primeau's Toronto St. Mikes downed old team-mate Charlie Conacher's Oshawa Generals, Chuck wanted to know if Joe was trying to ruin his reputation. Quoth Joe: "Not at all, Chas. just trying to get one of my own" . . . The Jenkins sisters of Schumacher in the Timmins, Ont., area, expect to get first call when there is a pairs vacancy in the professional Ice-Capades cast . . . Edmonton is another part of the West where they don't worry about future shortages of hockey talent. The junior and minor leagues have produced so many players the last few years, the professional scouts would do well to keep an eye on that sector of the country . . . George Smith, veteran coach and developer of many athletes at Westmount High School in the Greater Montreal area, has finally retired from active master-minding . . .

BUFFALO BISONS STRENGTHENHOLD

(By The Canadian Press)

While Buffalo Bisons last night strengthened their hold on first place in the eastern division of the American hockey league by defeating Providence Reds 7-4, Hershey Bears, eastern division runners up, edged out Pittsburgh Hornets, western division second place holders, 4-3.

At Buffalo, they had reached the sixth minute of the final frame tied 4-4 when Pargeter, followed by Lewis and Kilrea, successively scored the three winning goals for Bisons.

The game was only 26 seconds old, when Paul Courteau of Providence, League leading scorer, scored. However, Halderson, Jimmy Russell and Don Webster came back for Bisons before Courteau made his second goal. Ken Kilrea and Roger Gagne traded goals in the second period and Manny Cotlow tied for the Reds early in the third stanza.

After Rossignol and Prentice scored for Pittsburgh in the first period on their home ice, Gooden, Pozzo, Cooper and O'Neil scored Hershey's four goals in the second stanza. Campeau also scored an additional point for Pittsburgh in the same period. The last frame went scoreless for all.

Sport Shorts From Britain

By ALLAN NICKLESON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 14 —(CP)— Down in Wiltshire, at the historic Manton racing stable, there lives a chestnut colt that exemplifies patience and good manners. So far as the colt, Court Martial, knows life is mainly a round of eating, growing and being groomed.

But the two-year-old, who stands 16 hands, 3½ inches, has had an ambitious future mapped out by his owner, Lord Astor. He will be entered in the 1945 Derby, St. Leger and 2,000 Guineas, three of Britain's five yearly classics, in the strong hope he will break Lord Astor's string of non-successes in important races.

So far, Court Martial has run only twice. Each time he won without being pressed. He didn't see a racecourse until last August and then won by two lengths from 10 opponents, despite his amateurish touch of staring about as he ran.

In his second race a month later he was bumped on the stretch and nearly fell, but recovered enough to win by half a length. Now, in the winter books, he is quoted at 7-1 for the Guineas and 8-1 for the Derby.

Joe Lawson, veteran trainer who has turned out nine classic winners, admits that stamina in Court Martial is a question mark.

"His sire, Fair Trial, has yet to produce a stayer, and the dam, Instantaneous, hasn't produced a first-class stayer either," said Lawson. "But there are always exceptions to the rule."

To own a stud for the breeding of racehorses is the dream of most turf-lovers, but only a few realize that all Britain's taxpayers have a stake in the National Stud, run by the Agriculture Ministry "to maintain the breed of the British Thoroughbred Horse at the highest possible standard."

Every penny earned by the National Stud is handed over to the exchequer thereby, in a sense, helping to reduce income taxes.

In an endeavor to educate the public as to the functions of the National Stud, a leaflet just issued tells how nominations to their stallion, Big Game, are allotted.

Big Game was the first outstanding horse to run in the colors of the King. Two years ago as a three-year-old he won the Classic 2,000 Guineas but failed in the Derby, over a longer distance because he wasn't a stayer.

Nominations to Big Game are limited to 40 mares. Twenty of them will be the property of the National Stud, five will be outside mares selected by the Stud directors, and 15 will be ballotted for approved outside mares.

As a two-year-old Big Game won all the five races he ran, including the Champagne Stakes and the Coventry Stakes, and proved himself best at not more than 1¼ miles.

Book Law, winner of the St. Leger for Lord Astor in 1927 and second-place finisher in the 1,000 Guineas and the Oaks, died at the Cliveden Stud following a paddock accident. She was carrying a foal to crack sire Colombo and was to have visited the same sire next year. During her racing days Book Law won more than $125,000.

Seek New Sponsors For Guelph Hockey

Guelph, Dec. 14 (Special) — The junior hockey picture was very much up in the air in Guelph Tuesday following decision of the Guelph Maple Leaf Athletic Association not to operate any teams this winter.

President Bill Stephenson of the Maple Leafs stated definitely that his organization was not only through with junior hockey but would not sponsor bantam, midget or juvenile clubs.

In an effort to keep Guelph in the junior O.H.A. the civic commission operating the Guelph arena will endeavor to get other sponsors for a team. Efforts will also be made to have Kitchener and Waterloo junior clubs play their home games on Guelph ice.

Willie Hoppe Loses Crown

New York, Dec. 14 —(AP)— Welker Cochran, the San Francisco veteran, swept to the national three-cushion billiard championship Tuesday night by defeating defending titleholder Willie Hoppe of White Plains, 50-44 in 31 innings.

Cochran, undefeated in the 10-day tournament, made the former "boy wonder" his ninth successive victim. Hoppe won seven and lost two. The round-robin tourney had ten entrants.

Cochran's victory earned him first place money of $2,500.

Hoppe had a chance to tie Cochran for first place, but after the defending champion led for two innings the match was all Cochran's.

Sox Trade Webb To Detroit Tigers

New York, Dec. 14—(AP)—Shortstop James (Skeeter) Webb of Chicago White Sox was traded Tuesday to Detroit for utility infielder Joe Orengo.

Webb played 139 games and hit .211 last year. Orengo hit .201 in 46 games. He played shortstop and filled in at first base when Rudy York was injured late in the season.

Negotiations still were hanging between White Sox and Cleveland with the conversation centering on an outfielder, Oris Hockett, for outfielder Guy Curtright deal. It was understood pitcher Jim Bagby and Bill Dietrich no longer were involved.

B.T.C. OPERATORS SLEEP DOWNTOWN NEAR JOBS

Toronto, Dec. 14 —(CP)— More than 200 long-distance operators of the Bell Telephone Company who made it possible for Toronto's telephone service to be maintained despite the storm, slept downtown Tuesday night with all necessities—such as toothbrushes, nightgowns and cold cream—provided by the army.

Army trucks hauled 135 double tier army beds and 40 single beds to the company's downtown office building.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 557
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

When experts use only inferences to determine their bids, they remind me of a certain lady's perfume. She thinks it makes the hall smell so good. But confidently, it stinks.

Direct information is better than inferences. When you have two suits to show your partner, tell him their lengths. Don't let him infer how long is each. Tell him straight out.

With two suits of different lengths, bid the longer suit first. If the longer has two cards more than the other, bid it again before showing the shorter. That will tell partner the long and short of it.

Come back to this pair of partnership hands:

SOUTH
♠A K Q J 10 6
♥K Q 9 8
♦7 4 2
♣None
NORTH
♠9 3
♥A 10 4 2
♦A 8 5 3
♣K 6 4

South opens with one spade. North responds with one no-trump. South's second bid is three spades, a one-jump rebid. The one-jump is a signal to keep the bidding alive until game is reached.

The rebid in spades shows that suit is rebiddable. And a suit that is rebiddable may be only five cards long. So, up to this point, partner does not yet know that south has six spades.

But north is forced to bid again and he has no biddable suit for a takeout. Nor has he adequate support for a rebiddabe spade suit. So, port for a rebiddable spade suit. So, no-trump.

This does not yet give south any indication as to which suit, if any, should become the final trump. So now, south steps in with a bid of four hearts to show his other biddable suit.

Having bid spades twice before bidding hearts, south says that he has six spades and four hearts. At the same time, it is a request for north to help decide the best final trump suit for the pair.

How does north know? He merely adds his own hearts and spades to the number of each announced by south. It is as direct as that.

Would it be better to infer? What "fer"?

This Week's Storm Only Forerunner Of Others to Come Say Weather Seers

Toronto—"Yes, it's a lot of snow, but I don't believe that we have seen half yet what we are likely to see before the winter ends." So said George Hebden Corsan, Islington weather prophet and naturalist, who months ago sized up the outdoor signs and said: "Watch out for lots of snow this winter."

"All of nature's signs point to very heavy snow this winter," said Mr. Corsan. "There isn't the least chance that this storm is all in one big lump. I expect to see this snow disappear and more heavy storms like it to follow."

If you happen to be one of those proverbial guys who hail from Missouri, Mr. Corsan has a bag full of nature signs which he brings out one by one as proof of heavy snow yet to come.

"The squirrels usually come out quite a bit this time of year, but they have been staying in recently because they know there is much snow ahead of us and they are not taking any chances of getting snowbound away from home," the Islington outdoorsman pointed out. "There are a score of similar signs. The squirrels have built nests high up in the trees—that is always a sure sign of big snows. And the muskrats are remaining in their burrows—another sign of heavy snow."

Pheasants Congregate

Still doubtful? Mr. Corsan has plenty more proofs.

"If you are still questioning nature's snow signs, there are more to add to the doings of squirrels and muskrats," Mr. Corsan continued. "The pheasants are congregating in larger groups that I have ever seen before. Usually they remain in twos and threes for the winter, but when heavy snow is in the air they form big flocks for protection and for seeking out food. The pheasants will be having a tough time locating food and I hope farmers are helping them by putting out food where they can find it.

"Moss on the north sides of trees is heavier this year than it has been for years. Usually this denotes deep snow."

Mr. Corsan said that in a lifetime of closely observing the weather he had not seen a snowstorm as bad as the present storm since 1872

Big Falls to Come

From the official weatherman comes a statement which corroborates Mr. Corsan's predictions. "There is no reason to assume that this big fall of snow means that we have received the whole winter's supply in one great fall," an official of the Dominion meteorological office said. "It is more logical to expect that since we have one big snowfall there will be a tendency for big falls again. It happened that way in 1872. There was a storm as bad as this in December that year and it was followed in January by another one equally bad."

The meteorological office reported that more snow fell on Monday and Tuesday than half of the total last winter snowfall. The average winter's snowfall for Toronto is 62.1 inches. Yesterday's total was about 24 inches.

"We'll have another storm or two almost as bad before the end of the year," predicted J. M. Wallace, Oakville weather prognosticator. "And we'll have heavy snow running right into April. The North American Weather Book predicts very heavy snow for this winter and it is always very accurate. Its predictions are based on the transit of moon relative to the position of the earth. As a rule when we get a heavy snow like this on unfrozen ground it stays with us, whereas snow on hard frozen ground seems to disappear more easily. Another sign that points to heavy snow is the big crop of beech nuts on the trees this fall."

Point Traverse

Athol Twp. Hunter Bags Dozen Foxes

Point Traverse, Dec. 14 — A local Athol township hunter, who has already bagged more than a dozen foxes this winter, reports that while out hunting he saw what appeared to be a wolf. Hunters in South Marysburgh township are keeping a sharp lookout for the animal. Three wolves were killed in Prince Edward County last winter, after several hundred dollars loss was sustained by farmers in the destruction of flocks of sheep.

Continue Operating

If favorable weather should prevail, some commercial fishermen operating out of this harbor, will continue to carry on their work much later than usual. Some boats have been readied for the winter, while other crafts remain at their wharfs and will continue in service until the elements cease all fishing activities in local waters.

Beacons Close

False Duck and Main Duck island lighthouses are expected to close this week. The Main Duck radio beacon will also close with the arrival of the Canadian lighthouse tender Grenville at the island.

Return Home

Several Salmon Point commercial fishermen who have been operating from Indian Point this past fall returned to the Salmon Point harbor last week and are readying their boats for the winter.

Duck hunting season in this area ends Dec. 15th. Hunters have taken advantage of the late season, owing to the many inlets and open waters being free of ice.

The War Today—

Bevin's Opinion on Question Of Spheres of Influence in Europe

By DeWITT MacKENZIE
(AP War Analyst)

Ernest Bevin, England's square-jawed labor leader, likely has served an anxious world well by his argumentative outburst which is widely interpreted as confirming in effect that Britain and Russia are indeed in process of establishing separate spheres of influence in liberated Europe.

To get the full significance of this explosion you must know that Mr. Bevin not only heads Britain's powerful labor party but also is Minister of Labor in Mr. Churchill's coalition cabinet. Yesterday at a stormy session of the annual labor conference, which challenged the government's military intervention in the Greek imbroglio, Mr. Bevin was forced into his role of cabinet minister to defend his political chief against the contention that Britain's action has been at cross purposes with her Allies.

Mr. Bevin took the lid off. He accepted his share of responsibility for the government policy and declared that "long before this we had an agreement with Russia whereby Russia undertook the main problem of Romania and we undertook the main problem of Greece." Then he added:

"This agreement was taken to Quebec, submitted to President Roosevelt and agreed to and initialed by him."

Authoritative quarters in Washington immediately declared flatly that the United States maintains a firm stand opposed to the development of spheres of influence in Europe. They denied that the President had sanctioned any Anglo-Russian agreement dividing up political interests in the Balkans.

Of course it long has appeared to many observers that Britain and Russia are manoeuvring to establish spheres of influence.

Labor Leader's View

As I see it, there's nothing which can prevent the formation of spheres of influence in Europe. It may be argued they aren't necessarily bad—that they may be beneficient and satisfactory to the small nations in them. However, none can gainsay that if and when one sphere of influence encroaches on another, then the sparks are bound to fly between the dominant powers.

Such a situation certainly doesn't guarantee that the European waters won't be troubled after war's end. However, the fact that the major powers recognize the delicacy of the position, and are bent on avoiding clashes, perhaps affords the best security available.

RENTS LOW AT PARKHILL

London, Ont., Dec. 14 — (CP) — Londoners, accustomed to paying fairly high rents, were surprised yesterday to learn that the highest dent for a house in the town of Parkhill, 25 miles northwest of here, is $12 a month and that some rent for as little as $4 monthly. The information came out at yesterday's hearings at the courthouse of appeals against equalized assessment of Middlesex County.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was doing my lessons and feeling against it, and I said, Aw G, pop, I dont know whether to finish this darn homework now or get up early in the morning and finish it.

Just saying it for kind of an experiment, and pop said, Well, like all fair questions, I suppose there are arguments on both sides.

Sure, pop, G, and a good argument on the side of waiting till tomorrow morning is because my mind will be fresher because my brain wont be all stopped up, I said, and pop said, Well, perhaps. I've heard of people whose heads are as clear as a bell the first thing in the morning, although I believe the majority of heads at that hour are as unclear as a fog, which is an obvious argument in favor of doing your lessons now and then putting your mind to your usual 9 hours sleep, he said.

But jimminy, pop, I always do my homework at night, so it would be a change if I did it in the morning just for once, I said, and pop said, I see your point, and yet the desire for change just for the sake of change has been known to lead to ineffectual and costly reclutions. Furthermore, as a wise man once said, never put off till after breakfast what you can do after supper, and it may of been the same wise man who remarked that a stitch in the evening saves 9 in the morning, and then went on to remark that only a dope will give a hot iron an even break.

But G roozalem, pop, gosh, holey smokes, I said, and pop said, Quite so and yes indeed. And now that all the arguments on both sides have been heard, I strongly advise you to get that homework finished and no more nonsense about it.

Which I did, feeling lucky afterwards.

Storm Responsible For Death of 24 Persons in Ontario

Toronto, Dec. 14 (CP)—In an effort to return to normal conditions quickly, snow-cleaning operations continued unabated today over a wide section of southern Ontario which was buried under a heavy blanket of snow in one of the worst storms in history last Tuesday.

In Toronto, where more than 22 inches of snow fell between 5:15 a.m. Monday and 8:30 p.m. Tuesday completely tying up transportation systems, authorities announced it would be two or three days before normal service could be restored.

The storm was responsible for the death of 24 persons, 17 of them in Toronto, and generally tied up business and industry. Many meetings and other functions were cancelled. There were three deaths in Hamilton and one each in Richmond Hill, Campbellford, Brantford and Woodstock. Three others are missing, two in Toronto and one in Kingston.

In the general dislocation of daily life which the storm wrought the chief sufferers were the transportation systems, which only now are beginning to resume schedules.

In Toronto street cars generally had resumed operations on all lines but bus routes in some districts still were not being served.

Only Essential Traffic Out.

All but essential vehicular traffic has been banned from Toronto streets. Trains and inter-city buses were operating, although officials said a number were off schedule.

A total of 1,400 men worked yesterday attempting to clear huge piles of snow from Toronto's main streets. The clearing is costing more than $12,000 a day and it has been estimated total cost will range from $100,000 to $150,000.

Only a few milk and bread trucks are operating in Toronto, delivering goods to fire halls and retail stores, and ambulances will not venture into side streets accept for emergencies.

Fresh Fruit Shortage.

Some Toronto hospitals last night reported shortages of fresh fruit, but there was no acute condition. Most major war plants resumed full production today.

Reports from Hamilton, and St. Catharines, where 24 inches of snow blanketed the cities and district, stated transportation was gradually returning to normal.

Highway department officials said most main arteries now are open although driving was difficult. District highways still are blocked.

Toronto schools, closed Tuesday and Wednesday, opened as usual this morning and schools in many other centres also re-opened today.

Research Council Trying To Find Gas Substitute

Ottawa, Dec. 14 — (CP) — The National Research Council announced Wednesday that 37 producer gas units are being purchased for tests in the use of a substitute for gasoline motor fuel as a wartime emergency measure.

The decision followed extensive study of available fuels other than gasoline which might be used to power motor vehicles, the research committee reporting that producer gas, alcohol and methane or propane (in some localities) offered the greatest promise. A sub-committee on producer has carried out studies in the use of producer gas made from wood waste or charcoal, in a variety of portable generators.

Manufacturing costs for the preferred producer gas type selected by the research council are estimated at $500 a unit.

The council said it was estimated that the installation of gas producers on 10,000 trucks in Canada would give an annual saving of 20,000,000 gallons of gasoline and the provision of charcoal fuel for the producers could form part of a post-war industry.

The production of 10,000 units would require 2,500 tons of steel plate, 115 tons of copper, and 75 tons of brass, the council said. Assuming that one pound of charcoal was derived from five pounds of air-dry hardwood, the fuel for 10,000 units would require 775,000 tons of hardwood to be cut and carbonised annually.

INTRODUCES NEW ENGINE

Miami Beach, Fla., Dec. 14—(AP)—Dennis Kendall, British member of Parliament, operator of what he calls "the most frequently bombed factories in England," soon will be on the way to Detroit with a model of a three-cylander automobile engine which he claims will "revolutionize the automotive industry." The motor, he says, gets 30 per cent more efficiency from gasoline than present engines, and will operate a rear-engine drive car which will travel 50 miles on a gallon at 60 miles an hour.

Great Numbers Of Japs Killed In Mountains

General MacArthur's Headquarters, Philippines, Dec. 14 (AP)—Great numbers of Japanese were being killed in the mountains east of captured Ormoc as the Americans on Leyte put the pressure on the south end of a trap in the bloody Ormoc corridor, headquarters reported today.

Other enemy troops drowned Tuesday night in a strange attempt to send three small freighters, loaded with soldiers, into Ormoc. The Japanese evidently were unaware the west Leyte port was in American hands when shore fire sent all three to the bottom.

Gen. MacArthur said enemy losses on the ground were "extraordinarily heavy" as the U.S. 7th division, which helped take the important port Sunday, pursued scattered Japanese "fighting desperately to free themselves, over the mountain trails."

77th Division Regrouped.

The 77th division regrouped at Ormoc and sent patrols north to probe enemy strength to the rear of the Yamashita line, while 32nd division forces, which have been battling the weather as well as stubborn Japanese for weeks, maintained frontal pressure from the north.

Thousands of crack Imperial troops are in the corridor, deprived of their principal reinforcement port of Ormoc. Their supplies now must come by a treacherous road from Palompon, a secondary seaport at Best.

Hit Refineries.

For the third successive day American planes stuck at oil installations on Borneo. Refinery buildings, six large oil tanks and two reservoirs were set ablaze by fighters at Tarakan. Waterfront installations at Sandakan were effectively bombed by patrol planes, and five coastal vessels were sunk or damaged. Fighters strafed a troop-laden barge, inflicting considerable casualties.

A 3,000-ton freighter-transport was sunk east of Mindoro in the central Philippines by night air patrols.

HARRY RICHMAN MARRIED

Miami, Fla., Dec. 14—(AP)—Singer Harry Richman, star attraction at a new night club opening here last night, slipped quietly into Miami's courthouse at noon and walked out a married man. His bride is Yvonne Day, 22-year-old dancer.

NO DAMAGE REPORTED

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 14—(CP)—An earth tremor which lasted approximately six seconds at 11:10 o'clock last night was felt throughout Connecticut. Buildings were shaken and street lights flickered, but no property damage was reported.

Allies To Take Over Concentration Camps In Conquered Germany

New York, Dec. 14 (AP) — The Allied military government in conquered German territory will take over all Nazi concentration camps and use them for the detention of arrested Nazis after the innocent victims in the camps have been released, a proclamation broadcast in the name of Gen. Eisenhower said.

The proclamation was the 10th in a series outlining plans of the Allied authorities, and was reported by the office of War Information.

The broadcast said the Allied military government would "take over control of all prisons and remove all Nazi and other undesirable prison officials," and that the Gestapo and S. S. police would be "liquidated at once."

BOARD CENSURED

Toronto, Dec. 14 —(CP)— The Toronto Transportation Commission in two letters to Board of Control has complained of the "pitifully inadequate" snow clearing equipment of the city. One letter said:

"Were it not for the heavy, modern equipment of your commission, traffic today over the streets would be at a complete standstill, with resultant serious consequences to the lives and property of the citizens."

CHADBURN MEDALS

Advise German Troops How to Surrender

London, Dec. 14 — (CP)—Allied spokesmen broadcast instructions to German troops on how to go about surrendering to Allied forces.

Pointing out that 700,000 German soldiers, including 39 generals, have surrended to the Allies since the landings in Normandy June 6, the broadcast said all prisoners of war were under full protection of the Geneva convention, would receive good treatment and the same food as the Allies.

"It is better to be a prisoner of war than to die uselessly and senselessly," Germans were told.

PRISONERS BLAMED

Tiverton, England — (CP) — Italian prisoners of war were blamed for posters of Hitler, Mussolini and Oswald Mosley pasted on buildings of two Tiverton streets. Fascist symbols were marked on store windows.

22nd Chinese Div. Only 120 Miles From Mandalay

With Chinese Troops in North Burma, Dec. 14 (AP)—Leading elements of the veteran 22nd Chinese division, marching south through Burma, have occupied the village of Tonkwa, 120 air miles northeast of Mandalay and 70 miles from Lashio, where the railway from Rangoon connects with the Burma Road.

The 22nd's drive—which now has covered 210 miles—represents the deepest Allied penetration into Burma. The unit—which left Kamaing the middle of October—now is 50 miles in front of the most advanced British and Chinese forces approaching along the Mandalay railway.

Fleeing in front of the Chinese for 50 miles without pausing the Japanese finally made a stand at Shwegu on the Irrawaddy river. After a day-long battle the Japanese broke off the engagement and the chase was resumed for another 50 miles until the Chinese caught up with the enemy again at Tonkwa, which they stormed and captured.

The 22nd, part of the Chinese 6th army, is under the command of Gen. Lee Tao.

This force now is in position to do one of four things:

1. Cut the Burma Road between Lashio and Muse.
2. Cut off the Japanese retreating before the British and Chinese along the Mandalay railway, corridor.
3. Storm the Japanese stronghold on Namkham .
4. Push on toward Mandalay.

RIGHTFUL OWNERS WILL GET BACK LOOTED ART WORKS

Steps to be Taken for Restoration of Works Stolen by Germans From Allied Lands

New York, Dec. 14 — (AP) — The Allied military government in Germany will restore to the rightful owners all works of art and objects of scientific or historical value which have been looted by Germany from Allied countries, a broadcast proclamation issued in the name of Gen. Eisenhower said today.

The proclamation was the 11th in a series outlining to the German people the plans of Allied authorities for ruling their country. The broadcast was reported by the Office of War Information.

All Germans who "wish to make restitution for the wrongs" done by Germany were called upon to assist Allied authorities in locating stolen objects. The people were warned that "all sales and movements of such objects will be forbidden and the destruction or concealment of them will be severely punished."

The proclamation also pledged that the Allies would, so far as possible, refrain from damaging "any building, monument, document or other object of cultural, artistic, archaeological or historical value which rightfully belongs to the Germans" and said that "steps will be taken to preserve in safe keeping all German records, documents and archives of value."

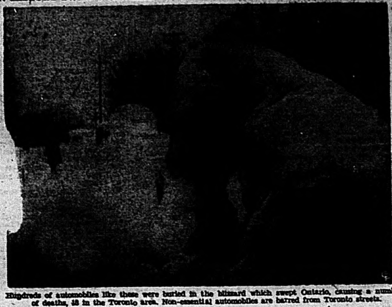
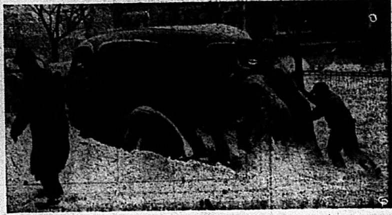
TOLL OF DEAD 18 AS WORST STORM IN HISTORY SWEEPS ONTARIO

This street car was overturned during Toronto's heavy snowstorm with 170 passengers trapped inside. One was killed and 43 injured, some seriously.



Hundreds of automobiles like these were buried in the blizzard which swept Ontario, causing a number of deaths, 18 in the Toronto area. Non-essential automobiles are barred from Toronto streets.



Good-natured citizens help push a small delivery truck out of a snow bank as record blizzard hits Ontario, tieing up local traffic, trains and planes.

PICTON

Returned Veteran Had Privilege Of Meeting Pope

Picton, Dec. 14—Among the Canadian casualties which returned to Canada this week on the new hospital ship Letitia, were Pte. Lawrence Shannon and Pte. Harold Heffernan of Picton. Both had been overseas since December 1939. Pte. Shannon is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Shannon and was wounded in action in France. He was originally a member of Hastings and Prince Edward regiment but was in hospital when they went to Sicily and Italy and was posted to an Ottawa unit. His wife and children reside in Toronto.

Pte. Heffernan is the son of Mrs. Andrew Heffernan of Picton. He leaves two brothers still serving overseas. He was with H. and P. E. Regiment in Italy where he was wounded. While in Rome, he was privileged to meet Pope Pius, and being a member of the Roman Catholic Church, it was a particular thrill for him.

Both men report a splendid trip home on the maiden voyage as a hospital ship of the Letitia. Two local persons serve on this ship, Pte. A. C. Bongard and Nursing Sister Mary Wager.

Elected as Member.

Harry Bowers was elected member of the Older Boys' Parliament of Ontario, at an election held over the weekend. Other candidates were Earl Holt and Robert Walmsley. Son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bowers, the member-elect has been a member of the Boy Scout movement for nine years. He is a King's Scout and at present cubmaster of First Picton Pack. He is a fourth year student at Picton Collegiate and prominent in athletics. Sessions of the Boys' Parliament will be held at MacMaster University, Hamilton, during Christmas week.

Main Roads Passable.

Prince Edward County is digging itself out after the worst storm in many years, and it will be some days before things are back to normal. The main roads are passable but heavy and motorists are venturing out in very small numbers. There was no mail service in any part of Prince Edward County and 15,550 persons went without mail. The truck from Trenton could not leave that town and this serves the greater part of the county. There was no bus service until the evening, when the Belleville bus pulled out. The bus to Trenton did not operate. Many travellers and others were marooned in town.

Picton public schools had a third of their usual attendance yesterday and were closed in the afternoon. It was not expected that they would be reopened today. Few rural schools were open yesterday.

County Councillors were unable to reach town yesterday for their sessions but hope to be able to do so today as snow plows are operating night and day.

On both sides of the town's main street snow is piled six feet high and there is just room for cars to pass in the cleared section. Cars left at the curb overnight Monday were completely buried under drifts.

Rural deliveries of bread were impossible yesterday but most housewives are prepared for such an emergency.

Injured in Action.

Sgt. Albert Carr has been injured in action in Belgium his wife was advised yesterday. Details of the nature or extent of his injuries was not given. He has been overseas since December 1939. He had taken part in the invasion since D-Day.

APPOINTED DIRECTOR

Toronto, Dec. 14 —(CP)— Harold L. Garner, general manager of the Peterborough Examiner, has been appointed a Dominion director of the Air Cadet League of Canada, it was announced today. Mr. Garner, who is chairman of the league's provincial committee, said in an address to officers commanding that the Air Cadets will carry on after the war.

Recreation Alley Bowlers Donate $50 to Fag Fund

Realising the importance of sending smokes to boys overseas, the Recreation Alley bowlers contributed $50.00 to the Kinsmen Club "fag fund" recently. Other personal donations have been received by the Kinsmen to keep the regular flow of tobacco and cigarettes to Belleville boys serving overseas. "We just can't send too many cigarettes to our Belleville boys," commented Kin Buster LaBarr, chairman of the Kinsmen Fund.

"Cigarettes are the greatest comfort our boys can receive over here" wrote Captain Adams. "Cigarettes are just out of the question here in France, so you can readily see how much we appreciate our shipments of Kinsmen fags," added C. C. Lathangue. From Belgium C. O. Bush wrote to say—"I can think of nothing that is more welcome and reminds a person of home more than a Canadian cigarette."

The list of Belleville boys serving overseas who were sent individual shipments of three hundred cigarettes each through the Kinsmen "fag fund" this week included:

Norm Adams, S. L. Allison, C. A. Anderson, W. J. Anderson, Gerald Archer, Harry Artis, Roy Ashmore, J. J. Barrett, E. F. Bassett, M. C. Bassett, D. Beaumont, J. T. Beckwith, J. F. D. Bell, D. C. MAYOR RE-ELECTED

Vancouver, Dec. 14 —(CP)— Mayor J. W. Cornett was re-elected as Vancouver's chief magistrate for a third term last night at the end of a close contest in which he defeated A. T. Alsbury, C.C.F. candidate, by 479 votes.

PREMIER DREW

Not Final Solution

In outlining the plan, the Premier emphasized that this is not the final solution of the educational problem, but "is a scientific approach to a solution of the problem and it will be reviewed by the Hope committee, which will proceed with the broad examination of the whole field of education now that this initial step has been taken."

The Premier also spoke of the other points in the 22-point platform of the Progressive Conservative party and said he will make further broadcasts dealing more fully with these. He told also of other accomplishments of the government since coming into a power a year ago last August.

Explains Position

Since he last addressed electors, Mr. Drew said, "A vigorous effort has been made to misrepresent my own position and the position of the Ontario Government with regard to family allowances and other legislation passed by the Dominion Government."

". . . Our position is that if the Dominion Government is to deal with any subjects which fall within Provincial jurisdiction, there must be consultation between the Dominion and Provincial Governments.

LEFTISTS SEND

Tension continued in the Salonika and Patras areas and considerable movement of guerilla formations was reported throughout the country.

In London, the labor party called for immediate armistice with the E.L.A.S. and establishment of a representative government in Athens. While adopting a resolution avoiding criticism of the government policy to date in the Greek crisis, the annual labor party conference heard James Griffiths, spokesman for the party's executive council, declare, "We want an armistice with the E.L.A.S., not unconditional surrender."

"This means an agreement between the parties concerned," he added, "not an ultimatum. Labor will insist upon a representative government, and no government which excludes E.A.M. can be representative."

AN APPLE FOR EVE

By Kathleen Norris

CHAPTER 12.

"Tomorrow early, early, early," the big Portuguese woman addressed as Carmela agreed, dropping her knife, rolling down her sleeves, and smiling broadly. The other women and the children likewise stopped their work, stretched luxuriously, helped themselves to dipperfuls of water from a bucket.

"I'm stopping you," apologized Chris.

"Indeed you're not! It's time for my girls' dinner. Look Chris, this is Owen, just walking and perfectly wild over the idea, and this is Betsey, and here's Martha. Girls, you are sights!"

She drew them about her, her flushed, tumbled daughters, with their sun-browned, handsome little faces and shining hair, and the sober, dark little boy, and smiled at him above their heads.

"Aren't they nice?" she asked.

His little second of hesitation, his thoughtful glance were the same as they had been years ago, and as always they had made her heart beat faster.

"Yes," Chris agreed, "They're terribly nice, and you-you're simply grand with that gypsy thing on your head and your Chinese regalia." His laugh was full of surprise and admiration. "You're simply grand. But then you were always that."

"Come on down to the house it's suppertime."

It was a full hour after his arrival that Chris could have a word alone with her. In that time she had bathed the children, fed the smallest one, carried him upstairs, returned to see that the twins had their supper, made a dozen trips to and fro between the kitchen and terrace in the process of superintending certain details of the dinner and setting the table under the great oak that shadowed the southwest corner of the house.

Meanwhile Larry had come home, somewhat tired and silent, and Hugh, still "Marc," as Chris greeted him, had come up for a few minutes' visit before we go to camp.

Hugh was gone and Larry had gone upstairs to freshen himself for dinner. Then Loveday came out with a great bowl of fruit and stood with it in her hands, looking critically at the table.

"I wish you would stand like that for a couple of centuries," Chris said. "The goddess of plenty-of fruition-the eternal mother of the world."

"How nice, Chris!" she said absently, putting the fruit down in the center of the plates and glasses. "Water -butter-and then we're through," she murmured. "I think I'll wait for those until Larry comes down."

And she dropped into a chair, a little breathless, and turned her smiling eyes on her companion.

"Well, so you're really here! After China and coming home by Clipper and going to Rio, and writing The Odd Chance! How you've been living, Chris!"

"You've been doing the living, my dear. I've been wasting my time. You've lived every minute of it."

"They told you all about Hugh, of course; Marc-you know. Wasn't that an extraordinary thing?" Loveday went away to the house again. When she returned Larry had come down, and the conversation and the meal began together.

"Rio, Chris, is it fascinating? Did you get material for a new play there?" Loveday asked.

"I didn't go for that. I went for the thrill of the Clipper trip and the places we'd stop at on the way," Chris said; "but all Rio is a succession of theatrical sets, only too dramatic to be real. Yes, I got a sort of a play started, to be called Gloria Hill."

"A girl who has been practicing Chopin and an American naval officer," she said smiling.

"Exactly. The immortal plot."

Loveday served the peaches from the big Canton Bowl into smaller Canton bowls.

"Your own peaches?" the guest asked.

"Our own peaches. Our own corn. And practically our own milk, for Bettancourt pays his rent that way. We had a plan," she continued, "of buying a calf or two and starting a dairy of our own. But Bettancourt has been here forty years-was born here, in fact-and he and his son have everything organized."

"It's the way to live it seems to me," Chris said. "Near to the things you need. Eggs not coming in crates and milk in bottles. I was at one of the big hotels in New York last year," he went on with a glance at Larry that was so discouraged by the latter's uninterested aspect that he turned to Loveday again, "and I ordered hot cakes and syrup for breakfast. After a long wait they brought them to me under a silver cover, showed them to me as if they had been breast of pheasant and served me two, reserving the other two for some future moment."

Loveday laughed gaily. Larry might have laughed, too, she reflected, if only briefly. But Larry was not listening, apparently.

"That," she said, "would drive me mad. If there's one thing that ought to be served in a hot, buttered, damp stack it's pancakes! . . . Another peach, Larry?"

"No, thanks." The meal was over. Loveday gathered the dishes on a tray; Annie Lum stumped out. The Women's voices could be heard in the kitchen; there was silence on the terrace. Loveday came to the dining-room and called out; "Chris, are you staying overnight?"

"Can't possibly!" Chris called back. I'm dated in Burlingame at about ten. I've got to get going very shortly!"

"Ah," Loveday said regretfully, disappearing again.

When she came out Chris was pulling on his pipe, comfortably stretched in a long chair, and Larry was sitting on the railing, his back half turned to his guest.

"What's happening in Burlingame?" Loveday lay back in a second shabby steamer chair with a long tired sigh. "It's hot," she said.

"Nothing. Except that Joe Stubbs will be there. He wrote me he had to go to a dinner, but he'd come round to the club as soon as he could."

"And with Larry acting this way the sooner you get going the better." Loveday said in her soul. "Was it hot in Redwood City, Larry?" she asked.

"No, cool and comfortable," Larry answered sarcastically. But his tone was so quiet that Chris saw nothing amiss and commented cheerfully:

"Then Redwood City for me on a day like this. It was frying, coming up the valley."

"I should think you'd take the coast road," Larry said briefly, "shorter and better."

"Ah, but I wanted to see your wife, and all of you." Chris added the last phrase after a perceptible halt. Loveday noticed it; she could only hope Larry did not.

"You can come by the coast road and cut over the ridge—

"What on earth are we talking about?" Loveday said, the question framed only in her thoughts.

"I think I'll turn in," Larry muttered abruptly, rising.

"And I've got five minutes," Chris said with a nod for good night. "I must be on my way."

"Being out in the open all day, I get so slee-ee-py!" Loveday contributed with an apologetic laugh. But when Larry had gone and a pale square of light from his upstairs bedroom fell upon the dark mass of a pine she and Chris sat on in a comfortable silence without moving.

Quite suddenly there was no constraint. Chris opened the talk his own easy yet hesitant fashion, not hurrying his words, pausing now and then to choose one carefully. And immediately she was transported to that world that was his world. She saw the decks of a great ocean liner tipping gently in glorious spring weather and the laughing and talking men and women who walked on the decks. She saw smoky London in the days of peace only a few years ago; the smart bright restaurants where the sweets were wheeled about on little trucks, the yellow fog that curled softly about the lions in Trafalgar Square. Chris talked of first nights in Broadway theatres and the great folk who attended them and the Long Island estates where these same great folk idled away their Sundays discussing the plays and the players.

It was so easy to talk to Chris!

"What a life you've had-are having, I mean!"

"Nothing," he said, "as vital as this. Children, home, drying apricots."

"Exactly what five million other women are doing in America at this moment with the exception of the apricots."

"Well, perhaps." He did not dispute it. He said that he must go, and Loveday walked with him to his car and asked him when she would see him again.

"But of course you don't know: you never know where you are going to be, do you? I don't wonder people think they would like to be writers, because wherever you can carry your typewriter you can have your whole business." She looked up at him in the shadows of the dark tall trees with a glint of star-shine catching her eyes. "It's been great fun having you here, Chris," she said, her heart beating fast.

"I saw what I came to see," he answered her, getting into his car. There was no other farewell except his casual call of "Good Night!" as the car started.

At noontime, after Owen had been fed and put down for his nap, she was superintending the small girls' midday meal when Chris came up to the terrace. The world thrilled for her as if a resonant note had been struck on some great cosmic harp.

"Oh, listen now, weren't you supposed to be in San Francisco this morning?"

"It wasn't important," Chris answered. "Hello, ladies! I asked the man in the candy store what sort of sweets you could eat, and he said molasses taffy. So here it is."

"And what do you say?" Loveday broke a bar of the candy in two, wrapped the segments in cuffs of oiled paper. "Sit here nicely and eat these," she directed the twins, "for I don't want you to get your beds all sticky."

"Do they go to bed now?"

"Naps. That's the general idea," Loveday said, gathering mugs and bowls and fragments of bread neatly on a tray.

"THANKS TO SYNTONA I FEEL BETTER THAN IN MANY YEARS"

Was Formerly Rundown. Back Ached; Stomach Out of Order. Had Many Boils. Says the Herb Medicine Gave Her Grand Results.

"I really haven't felt so well in years as I do right now, and I give Syntona all the credit for my improvement in health," said Mrs. Gladys Moore, 110 Edward Street, London, Ontario, in a recent statement.

"A few weeks ago I was miserable and in a very bad rundown condition. My stomach was badly out of order and my appetite was poor. What little food I did eat gave me heartburn and sour acid risings. I felt tired and so nervous I couldn't get my proper sleep at night. Sometimes I had rheumatic pains all through my joints and muscles and my back felt lame and sore. Then, I began to have boils, one right on top of another — terribly sore and painful. Nobody will know how I suffered with them.

"I often read what people all around here said about Syntona, so I decided to get some. Truly, it seemed this medicine was made for me alone. In a matter of days it relieved the sour condition and distress in my stomach. Then, as I kept taking it, I could almost feel the improvement that was taking place from day to day. I was eating better; the aches and pains gradually went away; I could feel my strength and energy coming back to me. Now my nerves are relaxed. I am getting sound sleep at night and, best of all, I am entirely free from boils. I am certainly happy to recommend Syntona to all others who suffer as I did."

Syntona is made from 12 of Nature's Finest Herbs and Roots. It acts on the stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels, aids in the elimination of excess acids and poisonous waste matter and promotes better assimilation of food for increased strength and energy.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

Tokyo Broadcast Not Confirmed

San Francisco, Dec. 14 — (AP)—Eleven American Superfortresses raided the port of Rangoon in Southwest Burma about 1 p. m. (Japanese time) today and five of them were shot down, the Tokyo radio said.

The unconfirmed broadcast was recorded by the Federal Communications Commission.

It is possible the B29s were part of the force which Washington announced early today had raided Japanese-dominated Thailand, adjoining Burma.

Scattered Snowflurries Weatherman's Report

Toronto, Dec. 14. (CP)—Snow began to fall at noon in Toronto just as the city was beginning to dig itself out after Tuesday's storm which left 22.5 inches of snow. However the Dominion Meteorological Bureau said the fall which began today is not likely to be heavy.

"The forecast is for scattered snowflurries", said the weatherman who had been plagued for an hour or more with telephone calls from people inquiring about a rumor that another heavy storm is on the way.

Chinese Troops In Close Pursuit Of Jap Invaders

By SPENCER MOOSA
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

Chungking, Dec. 14 (AP)—Chinese troops were reported approaching the Kwangsi Province city of Hochih today in close pursuit of the Japanese invaders they chased from Kweichow Province.

The high command said Chebo, 15 miles northwest of Hochih, fell last night to the Chinese advancing southeast along the Kweichow-Kwangsi railway. Chebo, about 20 miles inside the Kwangsi border, lies 125 miles southeast of once-menaced Kweiyang.

While the continuing Chinese success have removed any immediate Japanese threat to Kweiyang, a latent danger to the important base of Kunming still exists, Maj.-Gen. Robert McClure told correspondents today.

McClure, Chief of Staff to Maj.-Gen. Wedemeyer, United States commander in China, said if the Chinese had sufficient forces they could retake Lichow, although this undoubtedly would involve large-scale fighting.

The Chief of Staff said delivery of supplies by air from India was increasing every month. Co-ordination and co-operation with the Chinese are improving, he said, and "things are moving faster."

H. G. Wells Says Winston Churchill Should 'Get Out'

London, Dec. 14 (CP-Reuter)—H. G. Wells, in an article on Prime Minister Churchill in this week's Tribune, Left-Wing weekly, wrote "the present would-be British Fuehrer has served his purpose and it is high time he retired upon his laurels before we forget the debt we owe him."

The article by the internationally-known author, was entitled "Churchill Must Go."

Mr. Churchill's last associations with the various European Royalties, Mr. Wells said, were "his final farewell to human confidence."

"We want him to go—now—before he discredits us further for his own sake as well as ours, and if he take all the Royalite in the world with him—so much the better for human hope," Mr. Wells declared.

Describing the matter as urgent, Mr. Wells said Mr. Churchill's recent moves were grave attacks on Britain's national morale.

"There can be no doubt of the feelings of the common people of England and of the rank and file about this ugly business in Greece and other countries under the heel of slap-dash British Toryism.

"In the midst of a still uncertain war, this ineffable Prime Minister of ours precipitated us into the class war—and on the wrong side. If we do not end Winston, Winston will end us."

Offensive Places Germany Under Terrific Strain

Washington, Dec. 14 —(AP)—Allied armies on the Western Front, War Secretary Stimson said today, are now in position to "jump off upon most important German industrial regions."

He qualified this statement, however, with the comment that "these gains should be assessed cautiously."

At a news conference Mr. Stimson summarized the results of the general offensive which began last month as follows:

"It has placed Germany under a terrific strain.

"German casualties for a three-week period are estimated as having been almost 7,000 a day in men killed, seriously wounded or taken prisoner. The figure is no doubt smaller now, but it is obvious that a considerable number of German divisions were badly mauled. . . .

"The Siegfried Line has been partly breached to the Ruhr valley. We are at grips with the German frontier defences as we cross the Saar river and press upon the Saar valley some of whose lesser industrial plants have already fallen to us."

Mr. Stimson said, in discussing the front line strength of the Nazis, that "we too, have sustained many casualties."

Private Vehicles Allowed Back On Streets Friday

Toronto, Dec. 14 (CP)—Private motor vehicles will be allowed back on Toronto streets starting tomorrow morning at 6 a.m., Norman W. Fowler regional Director of Transit Control announced today. The ban on private cars being used was put into effect on Tuesday afternoon at the height of a traffic-paralyzing storm that struck at the western end of Lake Ontario.

The order forbade use of streets with car tracks to all but doctor's cars, ambulances and fire trucks, milk, meat and food wagons, electric, telephone and gas emergency vehicles, army, air force and navy trucks and newspaper trucks. Toronto was back to about 50 per cent normal conditions.

Spheres of Influence In Europe Opposed By U.S. Officials

By FLORA LEWIS
(Associate Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Dec. 14 —(AP)—Authoritative United States officials declared flatly today that the United States maintains a firm stand opposed to the development of spheres of influence in Europe, and denied unqualifiedly that President Roosevelt sanctioned any Anglo-Russian agreement dividing up political interests in the Balkans.

Spokesmen for the Labor ministers in the British coalition cabinet had said Russia and Mr. Roosevelt had agreed that Britain undertake the "main problem of Greece."

The United States government has cautioned both British and Russia several times against allowing military agreements on zones of operations to "draw boundaries of political influence, the U. S. officials asserted.

The danger that military arrangements would turn into spheres of influence is well recognized, they said.

Prime Minister Churchill, according to these highly placed officials, has assured the United States that Britain does not seek special areas of political privilege.

While Russia has not given such flat promises, it was said, Premier Stalin has given no signs of disagreement with the American position.

Despite all this, there has lately been outspoken discussion by members of Congress of what some of them call improper activity by both Britain and Russia. Senator Brooks (Rep. Ill.) said yesterday that there two are "in a race for the future balance of power on the European continent".

Britain, Russia, China and the United States all committed themselves against exclusive spheres by the Moscow declaration, in the eyes of American diplomats.

The Dumbarton Oaks Document, they said, paved the way for implementation of the policy of the joint action. The world security plan does provide for regional organizations, but these come under the supervision of the International Council.

Britain's attempt at forming a western European bloc died unborn when France concluded a treaty with Russia, they said. The terms of the Franco-Soviet pact are unknown here, but Moscow dispatches said it parallels the British-Soviet treaty which states that military alliance clauses are to be subordinated to an effective world peace agency when one is established.

Undeclared Truce Ends in Athens

New York, Dec. 14 — The "undeclared truce" in Athens ended in midafternoon there today and E.L.A.S. forces began shelling British Headquarters in the Grand Bretagne Hotel, Guthrie Janssen, of NBC, broadcast from the Greek capital.

Janssen said that heavy street fighting had broken out and "it is now clear that what E.L.A.S. forces are trying to do is squeeze the British out of the centre of Athens by a push from both ends of University Street."

"This morning I saw housewives of Athens lining up to get water from British tank trucks. In one very wealthy part of the city people lined up at a pump under machine-gun fire from E.L.A.S. One woman got a bullet in the leg."

Congressman Gavin Expresses View

By C. R. BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Dec. 14 — (CP) — Leon Harry Gavin, 51-year-old Republican Congressman from Pennsylvania and veteran of the First Great War, today declared that Canada, in fact all the British countries, had done "a magnificent job" of fighting the common enemy.

But he still thinks Canada is a British "colony," he told The Canadian Press, when questioned on his outburst in the House yesterday in which he protested that British "colonies" were only now starting to conscript men for service overseas.

Mr. Gavin was severely taken to task yesterday by a number of his House colleagues when he criticized the British government for allegedly concerning itself more with preserving the Empire than winning the war.

"We are not alone furnishing the tools but we are furnishing the manpower to win this war," he declared. "Yet we are witnessing right up in Canada, riots because they conscripted 16,000 men for overseas service."

He said the United States needed "somebody with the courage to tell the Prime Minister (Churchill) and the Foreign Secretary (Eden) to get going with a conscription program in the British colonies to furnish manpower for overseas duty to bring the war to a rapid and early conclusion."

He put in the Congressional record an editorial from the Washington Times-Herald describing the election of Camillien Houde as mayor of Montreal and pointing out the difference between draft laws in the United States, Canada, Australia and New Zealand.

"Of course," Mr. Gavin replied, when asked if he thought Canada was a British "colony." When reminded of the changed status effective for many years, Mr. Gavin insisted that for his purposes Canada was a "colony."

Nevertheless he was glad, he said, Commonwealth countries had done pretty well in the way of providing men to hold back the Axis from the very start of the war.

"But let us stop this rioting against conscription while our 18-year-olds are being killed, and do to learn that Canada and other a better job," he said.

Lupe Velez, Actress, Found Dead in Home

Los Angeles, Dec. 14—(AP)—The coroner's office said today that Lupe Velez, Mexican motion picture actress, was found dead early today in her home in Beverly Hills. Coroner Frank Nance quoted Beverly Hills police as saying that the actress apparently took an overdose of sleeping powder.

Officers said they found a note beside the body but they would not immediately disclose the content.

Miss Velez was 34 years old, she formerly was married to Johnny (Tarzan) Weissmuller.

Coroner Frank Nance immediately ordered an autopsy to determine positively the cause of death.

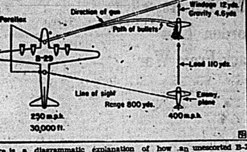
Police and physicians said that when they arrived at Lupe's opulently-furnished home they found her clothed only in blue silk pajamas. She lay on a silk-sheeted bed, her long black hair tumbled loosely over the satin pillow slip. Her features were composed and she appeared as though in a deep sleep.

Some of the sleeping pills officers said, were scattered over the bed. Her note lay on the pillow.

MOTION IS DENIED

Los Angeles, Dec. 14 —(AP)—Judge Henry Willis today denied a motion by Charlie Chaplin's counsel to dismiss Joan Berry's suit to have him named the father of her 14-months-old daughter, Carol Ann, on the defence contention that a stipulation when blood tests were made had outlawed further litigation.

HOW B-29 GUN CONTROLS WORK



Here is a diagrammatic explanation of how an unescorted B-29 bomber can hit a Tokyo target and handle fighters by use of its central control gunnery system. First public demonstration by the American Air Forces, made at the New York convention of the National Manufacturers Association, showed that the system functioned in combat, as follows: A gunner gets the enemy fighter in his sight and presses the trigger. In a turret several feet from the sight, guns are fired. The line of fire, however, is both ahead of and above the enemy plane, which, flying at 400 miles an hour, would have moved forward 110 miles at a 30,000-foot altitude while the bullets would be travelling 800 yards. Electronic and mechanical computers take care of the windage, gravity and parallax corrections; the bullets follow these corrections, ripping apart the enemy plane. Parallax corrections are something new in aerial gunnery, constituting the distance between the gunner's sight and remotely located guns on the plane that is firing.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 14 (CP)—Industrial stocks posted a small index gain and prices were narrowly lower at noon today on the Toronto stock exchange for the mining groups and the western oils. WALL ST.

New York, Dec. 14 — (AP) — Selectivity persisted in today's stock market with recovery power centring on liquors, preferred utilities and scattered rails.

While gains of fractions to two points or more were well distributed near the fourth hour, numerous losers were in evidence.

At tops for 1944 were Distillers Corp., Schenley, American Power Preferreds, Engineers Public Service and Atlantic Coast Line. American Distilling jumped several points.

Canadian issues, quiet, remained generally firm.

Police Decline Any Comment

Vancouver, Dec. 14 — (CP) — Inquest into the deaths Tuesday night of a man and a woman at Yale, B.C., described by Provincial Police as murder and suicide, was adjourned yesterday until Saturday after it was learned that the woman had met her death in her home while her 13-year-old son stood by.

The bullet-torn bodies of Mrs. Margaret Creighton and Clarence Kokulniak, both middle-aged, were found in the woman's home and police believed the man had shot the woman to death with a rifle and then committed suicide in the bathroom of her home.

Thirteen-year-old Francis Creighton told police he saw his mother shot and a few seconds later heard a shot from the bathroom and found the body of Kokulniak there.

Kokulniak was a section worker at Yale, 80 air miles from here, where Mrs. Creighton's husband also lived.

Police at Yale and Vancouver declined to indicate any motive for the alleged crime pending completion of the inquest.

BRITAIN ABANDONS LONDON POLISH GOVT.

U.S. SEVENTH ARMY DRIVES INTO GERMANY

Churchill Supports Reds' Territorial Demands on Poles

Territorial Compensation To Be at Germany's Expense

London, Dec. 15 —(CP)— Britain today virtually abandoned the London Polish government, with Prime Minister Churchill supporting as reasonable the Russian demands for territory in pre-war Poland—territory the London regime has refused to release.

Critical of the United States failure to be as precise as Britain on the "Polish problem," Mr. Churchill said President Roosevelt had been informed of Russian-British decisions on Poland but "I find great difficulty in discussing these matters because the attitude of the United States has not been defined" with precision. However, he said, "the President is aware of everything that has passed."

Mr. Churchill said Poland would be compensated for her sacrifice of Lwow and territory near the Ukraine by tracts of East Prussia and Danzig, to be wrested from Germany. As for the battle with Germany, he warned bluntly that the "largest and fiercest battles fought in this war," will occupy the spring and summer and he reported that 6,000,000 to 7,000,000 Germans already had been killed.

In one of the most significant Commons addresses of the war—a speech which drew from Henry Raikes, Conservative, the comment that the Atlantic Charter has become a ghost—the Prime Minister appealed to President Roosevelt and Marshal Stalin to meet with him "at the earliest possible moment."

Mr. Churchill confessed disappointment that it had "been found impossible to arrange any meeting of the three great powers."

Three Points Made.

(This coincided with a copyright Associated Press dispatch from Washington forecasting no such meeting could take place before the end of January).

1. The Poles have no alternative but to meet Russia's demands for a western frontier along the Curzon line.

2. In return, Poland would be compensated with territory "at Germany's expense," including Danzig and all of East Prussia south and west of Konigsberg.

3. Mass transfers of population would be made to prevent minority disputes from troubling the future peace.

From Mr. Raikes, one of the first members to rise after Mr. Churchill concluded—Henry Raikes, Conservative barrister who once served in the RAF—came the sharp retort that "the Atlantic Charter has become a ghost."

Mr. Churchill gave the House a stern review of "the grim, bare bones of the Polish problem."

Attitude Not Defined.

Mr. Churchill said he had no doubt "that the great powers, if they agree, can effect" the transfer of population implicit in the assignment of part of East Prussia to Poland. It was here he added that he found "great difficulty in discussing these matters because the attitude of the United States has not been defined with the precision which the British government have thought it wise to use."

"We know, however," he said, "that the government and the people of the United States have set their hearts upon a world organization to prevent the outbreak of future wars, and this world organization will be fatally ruptured by a quarrel between any of the three most powerful empires which compose the grand alliance of the United Nations. The President is aware of everything that has passed..."

Mr. Churchill took Poland's London government to task for what he called its delaying tactics.

Grew More Intimate.

As a result, he contended the authority of the rival, Soviet-sponsored, Polish National Liberation Committee will "grow and its contacts with the Soviet government will become more intimate and strong."

Although he said "we still recognize the Polish (London) government," Mr. Churchill made it clear that he held no confidence in its administration since it was reconstituted "in a form which in some respects I certainly am not able to applaud."

In an apparent last desperate effort to obtain a compromise between the Lublin and London Poles, he heaped tributes upon Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, who stepped out as Premier of the London group recently. It was clearly a bid to persuade Mikolajczyk and his peasant party to return to the coalition government in the leading role.

In words which seemed to constitute a stern rejection of the present cabinet of the Polish government, he declared that since former Premier Mikolajczyk's withdrawal it had been almost entirely reconstructed "in a form which in some respects I certainly am not able to applaud."

He asserted that "Anything like a prolonged delay in the settlement can only have the effect of increasing the division of the Poles in Poland . . . I hope no time will be lost in pressing these discussions to a successful conclusion."

He implied strongly that President Roosevelt had agreed to this solution to the tangled Russo-Polish knot.

"The President is aware of everything that has passed," he said, "as well as what is in the minds both of Russia and the British . . . All I can say is that I have received no formal disagreement during all these long months upon the way in which the future of Poland seems to be shaping itself, or is being shaped. No doubt, when the time comes, the United States will make their own pronouncement upon these matters."

NAZIS ENGAGED IN SAVAGE BATTLE ALONG IPOLY RIVER

4th Ukraine Army Seeking to Cut Off Nazis in E. Slovakia From Escape

Moscow, Dec. 15. (AP)—Russian flying columns of tanks and motorized infantry have engaged a German elite force in savage battle along the Ipoly river north of the Danube bend and little more than 85 miles east of the Slovakian capital of Bratislava, field dispatches said today.

This powerful thrust by elements of Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's 2nd Ukraine army was closely coordinated with joint operations by his right wing and Gen. Ivan Petrov's 4th Ukraine army seeking to cut off the Germans in eastern Slovakia from a chance of escape.

(Although this dispatch did not make clear whether Malinovsky's forces had invaded western Slovakia a Berlin broadcast said they had attempted to storm Ipolysag, half a mile north of the border.)

These Russian attacks against the strongest natural defences still guarding the shortest invasion route to Vienna, 115 miles to the west, came while Budapest, the outflanked Hungarian capital, quivered under siege.

Aimed at Plain.

It is expected that if Malinovsky is able to consolidate and reinforce his position along the Ipoly his next great lunge forward would be aimed at reaching the immediate approaches of Bratislava and the Vienna plain.

A Russian communique said Red army troops yesterday drove forward six miles to within two miles of the rich iron and coal centre of Szendro, 96 miles northeast of Budapest. The gains carried the Russians to within nine miles of the central Slovakian frontier at two points.

The Moscow communique did not mention the Budapest battle, but a German broadcast said "the next few days will decide whether concentrated German and Hungarian forces will be able to stop the Russians."

LATIN AMERICANS DISAPPOINTED SNOWFLAKES FAR TOO SMALL

Toronto, Dec. 15 (CP)— At least one aspect of the great blizzard which struck Southern Ontario Tuesday was disappointing in scope of Latin American students at local private schools for whom it was the first heavy snowfall. They all expressed surprise at the small size of the snowflakes—movies had given them the impression they would be as large as baseballs or at least table tennis balls.

Weather Forecast

Lake Superior: Strong winds and moderate gales with light snow; somewhat colder tonight, Saturday, strong winds and colder with snowflurries.

Kenora and Rainy River: Strong winds and somewhat colder with light snowfalls or flurries. Saturday, generally fair and cold; scattered snowflurries.

Manitoba: Fair and a little colder tonight and Saturday.

Seaside Resorts in England Returning To Normal After Enemy Bombardment

(Editor's Note: The war has meant prosperity for some parts of Britain, but it has brought poverty in other places. Among the hardest hit, apart from enemy action, were the south coast resort towns. This story, based on the experience of one borough, is a cross-section of what has happened to the zone nearest the enemy.)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Margate, Kent, England, Dec. 15 —(CP)—Major F. J. Cornford pointed to the string of boarded-up hotels along the shore, the blitzed amusement centres, the vacant shops and houses, the empty streets.

"That's what the war has done to us," he said. "For years we've had that melancholy air. But we'll come back . . . "

Margate is coming back already, the first few steps on a long journey.

"We're typical of holiday towns from here to Land's End," said Mr. Cornford. From his files he produced these facts:—

1. Before the war his borough, which includes adjoining Westgate-on-Sea and Birchington, had a winter population of 40,000 and a summer population of 140,000.

2. When France fell the government urged evacuation of all who need not stay in these towns where Dunkirk survivors landed. The borough's population dropped to only 10,000 by August, 1940. And until last Aug. 26 Margate was barred to visitors.

3. Seventy-five per cent of hotels and shops were closed. Many sold their furniture and fittings or lost them by government requisition. "Even pubs closed," said the mayor. Four thousand homes were empty.

4. Borough tax collections in 1938-39 were £295,464 (about $1,330,000). In 1940-41 they were £84,737—just more than one-quarter. Margate has had to accept £348,000 in government grants to carry on.

5. There have been no serious air attacks since June, 1943, but 238 buildings have been destroyed and 8,932 damaged out of a total of 14,380. Bathing facilities were blitzed and the borough-owned winter gardens alone will cost Margate £25,000 to repair.

Margate and its neighbors are dingy to the point of dilapidation. The pier where steamers used to land with thousands of pleasure-bent Londoners is unusable.

But the borough of Margate is on the up-grade.

The population has risen to 20,000—half the pre-war normal for this time of year. Borough revenues are a little better. Concrete and barbed wire military obstructions are being removed. Almost all the pubs are open. Work is being done on some of the hotels and stores will be reopening in earnest next season.

With all its immediate restoration problems, Margate is looking ahead. Its "post-war committee" has plans for a big hostel camp to house 800 visitors; a trailer camp for motorists; additional swimming pools (there are now three) to make bathing easier at low tide; new seafront facilities; tearooms, restaurants and pavilions.

Victoria Cross Winners Thrilled To Be Home For Christmas Season

Toronto, Dec. 15 — (CP)—Canada's two newest Victoria Cross winners — Maj. David V. Currie of Moose Jaw, Sask., and Owen Sound, Ont., and Maj. John K. (Jack) Mahony of New Westminster, B.C. — arrived in Toronto early today by plane, held a press conference after two hours sleep and began planning Christmas at home with their families.

Maj. Currie, 32-year-old former automobile mechanic, planned to meet his wife and nine-year-old son David in Toronto today, shop for two or three days and go to Owen Sound for Christmas. Later he will visit his parents in Moose Jaw and Saskatoon, his birthplace.

Maj. Mahony, 33-year-old former newspaper employee, planned to leave today for Vancouver by airplane, and spend three days with his parents in nearby New Westminster before facing a public reception.

Both Wore Battledress

The two heroes, almost as thrilled to be home for Christmas as they were when told they had won the Empire's highest medal for valor, held the interview with reporters and photographers in their hotel room a few minutes after they had arisen from their short rest. They both wore new battledress they had picked up in England.

Obviously old hands at interviews now, they spoke modestly of their actions that won them their decorations and proudly of the fighting their comrades are doing in Holland and Italy. Major Currie, whose unit is in Holland, guessed the war in Europe would be over in June. Maj. Mahony, whose outfit is in Italy, that it would be late summer or early fall. Both stressed that majors were not consulted by the high command about strategy.

Surprised at Winning

For both of them the high spot of their experiences has been the moment when they were told they had won the V.C. Maj. Mahony said that he could not imagine what his divisional commander wanted of him when he was summoned "because generals don't usually send for majors just to chat." His colonel told him he turned white and he admitted to a fluttery feeling in his stomach. He had been told previously he might get a D.S.O. "and a D.S.O. would have been perfectly swell with me."

Maj. Currie said he still couldn't quite believe it had happened. His really big moment was when the King decorated him at Buckingham Palace. "He looked tired," the V.C. winner recalled, "but he was very pleasant to me. He had stood during three hours of the investiture and I was the last man in."

Wants to Remain in Army

Maj. Mahony received his V. C. ribbon from the King in Italy and later was decorated at an unprecedented private investiture on Sunday in Buckingham Palace. The Sunday investiture was necessary to allow him to catch his transportation to Canada. "Otherwise I would have had to receive the cross by mail."

After a three-week holiday at the west coast Maj. Mahony will go to Kingston for a course at the staff college. Maj. Currie hopes he will be sent back to his unit and that he will be allowed to remain in the army after the war.

MORE THAN 80,000 JAPANESE DEAD IN LEYTE FIGHTING

Campaign Presses Ahead Despite Bitter Resistance by the Japs

General McArthur's Headquarters, Philippines, Dec. 15 (AP)—The first 55 days of American invasion of the central Philippines cost Japan 82,554 casualties—1,500 a day — Gen. MacArthur estimated today as the campaign on Leyte pressed ahead despite bitter resistance.

An American carrier raid on Luzon Island, which wiped out 91 enemy planes, and three fresh attacks on Iwo Jima in the Volcano Islands, were reported simultaneously by Admiral Nimitz at Pearl Harbor.

MacArthur gave American casualties for the Philippines invasion up to the middle of the week as 10,409—2,177 killed, 7,976 wounded and 257 missing. The Japanese thus are losing eight men for every American.

MacArthur's figures, covering the Leyte and Samar Island fighting, listed 33,801 abandoned Japanese dead, some 30,000 drowned in the smashing of 10 reinforcement convoys, 253 prisoners and an estimated 18,500 dead inside enemy lines.

Seize Supply Depots.

The 77th division driving north from Ormoc, seaport on western Leyte captured last Sunday, seized the enemy's main supply depots one mile from the city after severe fighting, the Friday communique said. The 32nd division maintained pressure at the north of the Ormoc corridor, where thousands of crack enemy troops are bottled up.

In the navy raid on Luzon, 77 Japanese planes were destroyed on the ground and 14 in combat as the carrier aircraft raked airdromes and shipping in the Manila area and elsewhere.

Iwo Jima was raided Sunday, Monday and Tuesday by land-based heavy bombers and fighters, all of which returned despite heavy anti-aircraft fire. Iwo Jima is an important base on the B29 route between Saipan and Tokyo.

Haha Jima, 650 miles south of Tokyo, was bombed Sunday, and other bombers hit tiny Marcus Island, 1,000 miles southeast of Tokyo, Monday.

Petroleum installations on Borneo were set aflame for the fourth straight day. Two coastal vessels were sunk there.

'BIG-THREE' MEET URGED IN BRITAIN BY CHURCHILL

Washington View is That Conference Unlikely Before January's End

London, Dec. 15 — (CP) — Prime Minister Churchill today appealed directly to President Roosevelt and Premier Stalin to come to Britain "for a meeting at the earliest possible moment."

He agreed, however, to "proceed to any place" if such a meeting could be arranged.

"There ought to be a meeting of the three great powers at the earliest moment," he asserted during his address to the House of Commons in today's Polish debate.

"So far as I and the foreign secretary are concerned we will proceed to any place at any time under any conditions where we can meet the heads of our two chief allies," he said.

"We should welcome above all a meeting in this island — a meeting in Great Britain which has waged the war from the outset and risked without flinching national annihilation in the cause of freedom." The House rang with cheers.

View in Washington

Washington, Dec. 15 — (AP) — There will be no Churchill-Roosevelt-Stalin conference before the end of January, it was learned today.

Despite reports to the contrary and problems in need of adjustment, February probably is the earliest that the Big Three of the United Nations can assemble.

That is the present judgment, not only of United States State Department and British spokesmen in Washington, but also of a high-ranking official who would have a hand in advance arrangements.

It contrasts sharply with London talk of an imminent meeting. Supporting it are these facts:

President Roosevelt had arranged for his customary Christmas-eve broadcast to his countrymen. He must submit his annual and budget messages to Congress the first week in January. He must be on hand Jan. 20 for his fourth-term inauguration.

Although it, too, may be unlikely, another meeting between Messrs. Churchill and Roosevelt somewhere between these dates is not precluded. The Prime Minister spent his 1941 Christmas in the United States and could get here easily in time for another.

GREEK PREMIER CALLS UP 3 MORE CLASSES TROOPS

Further Progress Is Reported by British Reinforcements In Port of Piraeus

By STEPHEN BARBER
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

Athens, Dec. 15 (AP)—Left-Wing E.L.A.S.—the militia of the E.A.M. party—hammered British defensive positions with fresh artillery and rifle today in fluctuating, rain-soaked fighting.

Unofficial reports persisted that word was awaited from King George of Greece of proposals that the Archbishop of Athens become temporary Regent.

The Archbishop was believed ready to attempt formation of a government acceptable to all parties, pending a plebiscite to decide whether the country is to remain a Monarchy or became a Republic. However, in Athens there was no indication that King George would agree to the plan. The King is in London.

Infiltrating E.L.A.S. entered Omonia square during the night, laid Teller mines and engaged in a brief skirmish with British parachute troops before withdrawing. British headquarters said they restored before the mines were properly laid, and the explosives were later cleared.

Further progress was reported by British reinforcements in Piraeus, the port of Athens, where the neck of the main peninsula has been secured.

British reinforcements including tanks and artillery, continued to reach the Athens area, and Maj.-Gen. Ronald Scobie was believed to consider the military situation improving.

Three additional classes of Greek militiamen were caled to the colors today by Premier George Papandreau as Athens remained a battleground despite attempts to negotiate an end to the strife.

V-Bombs Hit Southern England for 30th Night

London, Dec. 15 (CP)—For the 30th night in a row, the eGrmans V-bombs last night.

The Air Ministry's announcement today was confined to the routine "damage and casualties have been reported." But London newspapers played up scenes of recent devastatio wnith pictures of labor corps already beginninng the preliminary job of patching up the battered capital to relieve a serious housing shortage.

Meanwhile the German radio defended use of the flying bomb as a "strictly military weapon."

"It is not a terror weapon as is shown by the comparatively small number of fatal casualties caused by it," the broadcast said.

RESTRICTIONS REMOVED

Ottawa, Dec. 15. (CP)—The munitions department in a two-line statement announced today that all restrictions on the sale of machine tools have been removed

Karlsruhe Seven Miles Away Under Heavy Shell Fire

Mannheim, Ludwigshafen Only 35 Miles From Front

By EDWARD KENNEDY
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Paris, Dec. 15 —(AP)— The U.S. 7th Army invaded Germany today, driving across the northeast tip of Alsace into the old Bavarian Palatinate less than seven miles from Karlsruhe and 35 from Mannheim and Ludwigshafen, all great industrial cities of the Rhineland.

The 7th was the fourth American army to trample German soil. It crossed the frontier exactly four months after wading ashore on the French Riviera, 435 airline miles to the south, but much farther as it wound through the mountains of southern and eastern France.

The 1st and 9th armies, first to break into Germany, were drawn up along the Roer river 13 miles beyond Aachen where the Siegfried Line was first broken in September. The bitter fighting appeared to be subsiding.

The 3rd Army, which crashed into the industrial Saarland last month, was hacking its way slowly forward in the first works of the Siegfried fortifications on the Seventh Army's left.

Canadians Still Quiet.

A 1st Canadian Army spearhead is thrust into Germany east of Nijmegen, Holland, but no action was reported today from that sector or elsewhere British and Canadian sector in Holland.

The Siegfried Line was being shelled at perhaps its weakest points. The Germans said artillery was cratering Karlsruhe itself. American divisions charged to within two miles of Wissembourg on the border, a natural invasion gateway into the Bavarian Palatinate and key to the flat German land between the Eifel range and the Bienwald forest. That French fortress town is 18 miles west of the Rhine.

Advances ranged up to seven miles. More than dozen French towns fell.

Gen. Hermann Balck, commander of German Army Group G, rushed reinforcements to his buffeted 1st and 19th armies. He also tried to relieve pressure by reinforcing the 600-square-mile pocket around Colmar south of Strasbourg.

His Allied counterpart, Lt.-Gen. Devers, threatened envelopment of the Palatinate and the Saarland to the west from the rear. Devers' 14 or more French and American divisions stood on or near the Rhine for 105 miles from Switzerland to the border town of Lauterbourg, against which the Americans were charging.

Karlsruhe Well Fortified

The 7th Army, part of Devers' 6th Army group was immediately southwest of Lauterbourg and presumably was closest to Karlsruhe on the Rhine just east of the town.

Karlsruhe is a strongly fortified city in the Siegfried Line, six miles beyond the Rhine. Mannheim is a great chemical and munitions centre and close by the storied university city of Heidelberg. Ludwigshafen is a twin city of Mannheim lying across the Rhine in Bavaria. All three threatened places have became familiar as favored bombing targets.

Patch had alread opened his assault upon the Siegfried Line with eight-inch shels and 90-MM. Howitzers. Allied Planes bombed the west wall defences and rail lines supplying the German front and funneling in reinforcements.

500 Miles in Four Months.

His arrival at the Bavarian boundar represented an advance of more than 500 miles since his veteran 3rd, 36th and 45th divisions waded ashore in the Southern France exactly four months ago today.

In the Karlsruhe corner between Wissembourg and the Rhine, the Germans had bene forced from French soil save for sacrificial rearguards. The 7th was moving forward on Populous, industrial areas on a 35-mile front.

Once the 7th crosses the Palatinate border, it will be against the Siegfried Line. But because of the speed of the advance, the line likely will be less strongly manned than at any other place. This was the situation which precipitated the shattering of the Siegfried Line east of Aachen and led to the present battle for the Roer.

Highway, Rail, Air Transportation Back to Normal

Toronto, Dec. 15 —(CP)— The lifting of the Federal Transport Controller's ban on non-essential motor traffic at 8 a.m. today did not have the serious effect on street-car traffic that was anticipated by Toronto Transportation Commission officials, C. A. Ward, secretary of the Commission announced.

The ban on non-essential traffic went into effect on Tuesday at the height of the record-breaking snow storm, that paralyzed Toronto traffic. Even with essential cars permitted only, street-car traffic was stalled and blocked Wednesday and yesterday, even though tracks were cleared despite difficulties to maintain operations.

Mr. Ward said there were some delays in the first four hours after the lifting of the ban. However the fact that a more serious situation did not develop was due to a majority of privately owned automobiles being unable to get out of driveways on residential streets.

The storm's death toll still stands at 24, with two men missing, one in Toronto and the other in Kingston. Toronto had 16 deaths and Hamilton three. Others were in Oshawa, Campbellford, Richmond Hill, Brantford and Woodstock. Twenty-two of the deaths were from heart failure and two caused by accidents.

The Ontario Highway Department announced this morning that all highways in the province were back to normal winter driving conditions. Rail and air transportation is all reported back to normal both in and out of Toronto.

Survival of French-Canadians Depends on Answer to Enlistment

Sorel, Que., Dec. 15 — (CP) — Maj. Gen. L. R. LaFleche, National War Services Minister, yesterday told the Regiment de Chateauguay, back home from a west coast station, that on their right answer to voluntary enlistment rested the "survival of French-Canadians."

Gen. LaFleche, whose visit here was the second one in a week to a French-Canadian unit returned to Quebec from duties outside the province, and was for the purpose of asking the N.R.M.A. personnel to volunteer for overseas service, said:

"I was very surprised six weeks ago to hear about the great need for reinforcements overseas, especially for the four French-speaking regiments actually on the front lines.

"In your names and in the name of the province of Quebec, I promised to get the necessary reinforcements by voluntary enlistments from the ranks of the N.R.M.A. troops. It is up to you to give the right answer."

Telling the men that on their shoulders "lies the responsibility for survival of French-Canadians," Gen. LaFleche added: "I recommend to you that you volunteer in your own interest and we of French-Canada ask you to give the last blow to the enemy. I do not want people after the war pointing at any French-Canadian as a draftee.

"French-Canada asksk you to go overseas to protect the interests of 3,500,000 Canadians of your race."

Soldiers were allowed to put questions to Gen. LeFleche. As a soldier asked if those going overseas would be given further training. Gen. LaFleche answered "You may never see the firing line, but before you do yiu will be fully trained and fully equipped."

When questioned about Quebec public opinion against conscription, which apparently all the troops took for granted as being in effect, Gen. LeFleche said "It still remains that our French-Canadian regiments overseas are desperately in need of reinforcements, especially volunteers."

150 Carloads of Fruits, Grapes, Are Threatened With Spoilage by Tie-up

Toronto, Dec. 15. (CP)—One hundred and fifty carloads of imported fruits and vegetables, worth nearly $250,000, are threatened with spoilage after being snowbound in local railway yards for four days. R.C.A.F. bulldozers began a rescue attempt yesterday and managed to break through enough snowbanks to open twenty cars, containing mostly bananas ad grapes but it is feared much of the remaining produce will be lost.

2 MINOR ACCIDENTS ARE REPORTED

Two minor accidents occurred on Belleville streets on Thursday with but little damage resulting in either case.

On Pinnacle St. early in the day a truck driven by Murney Reynolds of Foxboro was proceeding in a southerly direction when it was in collision with another truck, driven by P. C. Lebenthol, 34 Yeomans St. The latter vehicle was being driven out of the Direct Winters transport depot onto Pinnacle St. when the collision occurred.

Early in the evening a Richmond Bus Line vehicle was parked on Front St. However, when the driver, Forest McBride of Richmond, was about to move away from the curb his bus struck the front of a motor car owned by Harry Green of this city. The grill and fog light on the automobile were both damaged. McBride assured police he did not observe the parked car as he backed his bus up to clear from the curb.

NOT ONE ENTRY IN POLICE BLOTTER

Something new in the annals of police circles in Belleville was seen this morning when not a single entry had been made in the police occurrence book for the past 24 hours.

"It has been some considerable time since it wasn't necessary to make some minor entry in the daily occurrence book," admitted police officials today.

YULETIDE HOSPITALITY WANTED FOR TWO BRITISH CHILDREN

An appeal for the true exemplification of the Christmas spirit was issued by T. D. Ruston, inspector of the Children's Aid Society, today. Under his supervision Inspector Ruston has two teen-aged British child guests, who are attending school here and who he would like to place in responsible homes for the holiday period during the coming school vacation period. The child guests are of school age being 12 and 14 years of age respectively.

Persons interested in enjoying the companionship of one or two teen-aged English boys for the Christmas period should contact Inspector Ruston far from home and with Christmas season rapidly approaching no doubt these two child guests also would appreciate the warmth of a private home surroundings during the Yuletide season, that is so widely celebrated in England.

HOUSEHOLDERS ASKED TO SHOVEL OFF SNOW

With the current labor shortage a few householders in the city are having a difficult time securing the services of workers to shovel sidewalks following the heavy snow, it is reported by City Engineer Charles Mott.

However, it was pointed out that walks must be shovelled and unless owners have the work done city employees will make their rounds over the weekend to clean off any walks that remain unshovelled.

"We are going to give until the weekend to give householders every opportunity to get their walks shovelled, but after that date city employees will clean off unshovelled walks," stated the engineer. "We appreciate the current labor shortage but until Saturday evening should afford ample time for householders to have their shovelling done."

DESERONTO MAN HELD FOR OBSERVATION

Wilfred Thompson, Deseronto, was committed to the Ontario Hospital at Kingston for a 60-day period of observation by Magistrate T. Y. Wills in city police court today.

Thompson, who alleges he is deaf and unable to talk, was arrested recently after accosting a woman at the intersection of Bridge and Front Streets. He was arraigned on charges of being mentally ill and also of assault. Crown Attorney Donnan introduced a report submitted by a provincial psychiatrist on the strength of which he sought to have Thompson committed to hospital for an observation period.

Otherwise the names of three were called, all of whom had paid fines for intoxication prior to the opening of court and therefore did not have to appear.

CITY HALL ENTRANCE BEING REDECORATED

Entrance hall of the local city hall, both down and upstairs, is in the course of undergoing a face-lifting these days with walls and ceiling receiving a new coat of paint to brighten the former dingy appearance caused through elements of nature. City hall janitor, Mr. George Crocker, is doing the work in his spare time aside from his general duties of cleaning, firing and snow shovelling.

Trenton Man Wins $50 Bond

To a Trenton winner again went the first prize of a $50 war bond at the annual Army and Navy Veterans' in Canada, Unit 201, Belleville, "fag fund" draw last evening when the name of Colin Bain R. R. 6 Trenton, was announced. Last year the first prize also went to a Trenton winner, President James Lazenby announced.

To prove there was no partiality shown in the "Vets" "fag fund" draw the second prize of $25 in war certificates also was won by a Trenton man, Mr. A. Shoniker. The remaining three prizes went to Belleville winners, being Ray Cornell, 48 South John St.; J. Jackson, 80 South John St., and W. Waldon, R. R. No. 5 Belleville.

Last evening the final meeting of the year for the Army and Navy Veterans here was held in Memorial Hall when routine business to conclude the year's financial and policy programs was completed.

TWO GOOD CHOICES

Chatham, Dec. 15. (CP)—C. H. Buck of Copper Cliff, has two choices for an unexpected Christmas present—a $8,000 model home in this city or a $5,000 Victory Bond. He was holder of the lucky ticket in a Chatham Service Club raffle which had purchasers of more than 29,000 tickets at $1 each.

TRAFFIC BLITZED BY PITTSBURG BLIZZARD

Here is a view of a lineup of stalled trolley cars, 22 in all, that were casualties of the blizzard that hit Pittsburgh, Pa. There were scores of others in other parts of the city. The motormen in this group made the best of a bad job by gathering in one car for a "tea party."

BRITISH NURSES GET AUTOGRAPH

Leaving a British military hospital on the Western Front after chatting with the patients, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Supreme Allied Commander, cheerfully gives his autograph to a group of British nurses. The nurses are (L. to R.) Mary Marrinan of Kilkee, Eire; Elizabeth Jackson, Peebles, Scotland, and Milly Sheppard, Wrexham, Wales.

Latchford Families of Six Children Set Unique Record

Little did the late William Latchford, great-grandfather of Mr. R. A. Latchford, of Cannifton, think, when he was but "a broth of a bhoy, and a bit of a spalpeen runnin' around Maguire's Corners," near Enniskillen, Ireland, that he would, some day, be the originator of a strange sequence of family coincidences.

The father of six children himself, six members of four succeeding generations have in turn given birth to six offspring.

The late Mr. John T. Latchford, grandfather of the Cannifton resident, emulated his father in family production and was the first of the generation sequence. One of his sons, Joseph T., who was the father of Robert A., also did likewise.

Along came Robert A. with six lusty children, as did a brother, John J., of Prince Edward County, and a sister, Mrs. G. W. Thompson of Tweed.

Mr. Jordan L. Latchford, oldest son of Robert who also resides in Cannifton, has continued the family record and is the proud father of six boys and girls.

While it is impossible to forecast how much longer this record will continue, the Latchford "half-dozens" have already attained a unique record in family life of the district.

Shoplifters Cause Merchants Much Worry During the Christmas Rush

The ancient art of shoplifting, that blossoms into usually a ripe harvest at this time of the year, still goes on apace, with practically the same amount of merchandise loss this year as in others, merchants stated today.

The light-fingered fraternity, of late, have taken advantage of the reticence of merchants to lay any charges and the remunerative opportunity of seeking financial redress through the courts if false accusations are made.

For instance there recently happened in a neighboring city the case of the two shoplifters working hand-in-hand. Literally speaking they were not shoplifters, but used the gullibility of a store official as a means of obtaining a handsome sum of money as a salve to injured feelings.

Two Work Together.

In this case, a stranger, who had been standing near a counter in a large store, approached the floorwalker. He reported that a man standing nearby had his pockets full of "lifted merchandise." The official promptly called a house detective and as the man stepped outside he was detained. Naturally he had nothing in his pockets. The "informer" pal had disappeared. The "injured one" sued the store and the two worthies "split" the proceeds.

In a local shop this week a young lad was caught "lifting" a small trinklet. He was taken to the manager's office and here, with tears in his eyes, he pleaded for leniency on the grounds that he had never stolen before. So insistent was he on this defence, that the manager with a warning let him go. A minute or two later, the manager noticed a new wallet lying on the floor near where the young culprit had sat. Investigation revealed it had been stolen from another store.

"Indignant" Customer.

On another occasion, a lady with two or three children in tow had made a small purchase. The saleslady quickly turning from making change, saw her place three pairs of gloves in her handbag. Demanding to know if she wanted to buy the gloves, the saleslady stated the woman sheepishly took the gloves out of her bag and replaced them. Then turning to a man, apparently her husband, she indignantly said: "Why, the very idea, she thinks I was trying to steal something!"

Another store received a telephone call to the effect that the speaker had found only one earring in the box she had purchased that afternoon, and could something be done about it. As the earrings were fairly expensive, and of a small stock, an investigation was ordered. No sale had been made, and one box was missing from the counter supply.

Small Girls Involved.

One of two small girls had innocently or otherwise picked up a small article and had been noticed by the store proprietor. He took the girls in a corner and gently told the younger of the error of her ways. "I won't tell your mother because I would not want to hurt her," he said. Whereupon the youngster began to cry, and her girl-friend immediately put her arm around her shoulder with the cheering remark: "Never mind, it may not be as bad as you think."

There is definitely petty shoplifting going on, but not any more than merchants write off any other year.

Obituary

LATE GILBERT H. FRENCH

The funeral of Gilbert Hall French took place Thursday afternoon from his late residence 40 West Bridge Street. The service in the home and at Albury Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. Dr. A. J. William Myers of the Tabernacle United Church.

MRS. MARIA MERRY

Resident of Belleville for the past 25 years and formerly showing active interest in bringing English children to Canada, Mrs. Maria Merry, widow of William Henry Merry, 183 Ann Street, died early this morning at her residence following a brief illness.

Born 89 years ago in England, Mrs. Merry was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Granger. Showing a life interest in the work of the Marchmont Home, Mrs. Merry with her husband was associated with this organization in London, England, prior to their coming to Canada, where they operated the Annie McPherson Home in Stratford.

As result of her untiring work in the Marchmont Home organization, Mrs. Merry will be remembered by hundreds of English children as the first influence for good they ever knew, and the example of her loving, rich, humorous and Christian personality will ever be with them.

Member of the Victoria Ave. Baptist Church, Mrs. Merry was during her more active years an active worker in many branches of the church organization. Besides conducting a Sunday School class, Mrs. Merry for many years told a Bible story to the children each Sunday. She had a superb gift for vivid story telling, and for both children and adults, made these stories live.

Surviving are three daughters, Miss Nellie Merry, at home; Mrs. Percy Rutledge, 83 Remsen Ave. Wappingers Falls, N.Y., and Mrs. J. C. Church, 41 Glencairn Ave. Toronto.

Resting at the Martin Funeral Home, the funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

READY TO STRIKE

London, Dec. 15. (CP-Reuter)—Alex Schmalfuss, German D.N.B. agency correspondent, declarded last night it was estimated that four infantry and two armored divisions of the United States 9th Army were massed on a narrow front along the Roer River, "ready to strike across the Roer and the marshy country beyond". Schmalfuss asserted that the divisions were well equipped with bridging material.

Captured U-Boat Officers Still Believe Strongly in Nazi Victory

CPO. Wm. Hirst of City Tells of Sinking of Sub in Bay of Biscay

Arrogant Nazi submarine officers, Hitler fanatics, are still sure that the der Fuehrer is supreme and that this war cannot end in anything but a German victory.

That is the opinion of Chief Petty Officer William Hirst, just returned home on furlough here after four years in many parts of the naval world, and who was a member of the corvette HMS "Snowberry" when that gallant little corvette sank a super-submarine in the Bay of Biscay.

The big undersea craft surfaced by neatly laid patterns of depth charges broke water like a miniature ocean liner. On her foredeck was a six-inch gun. Nazi sailors pouring out of the conning tower to give battle were mowed down by the Snowberry's Oerliken guns, and her lighter armament poured shells into the stricken "pigboat".

A few minutes later the U-boat called enough and officers gave the order to abandon ship. The submarine made her death plunge and the sea was dotted with Hun survivors who later were taken aboard the corvette.

"They ranged between the ages of 17 to 20 and appeared to be glad to get out of it. The officers, however, were different. They were arrogant proud fellows who looked disdainfully on their captors".

They were taken to a south of England port, where the officers and men were interrogated before being taken to prison camps.

CPO Hirst was also a member of the flotilla of striking force ships that met and emerged from the first attacks of Naziglider bombs. Their position pinpointed by a German reconnaissance plane, the ships were attacked by squadrons of enemy aircraft who kept out of anti-aircraft range and let go their gliders.

"It was a strange sight", PO. Hirst related. "They came out of the sun, and as we watched and waited for what we thought was a dive-bomber attack, large puffs of smoke appeared to come from the belly of the planes. Then what looked like a big ball of fire shot out, and the planes veered off. On came the flaming substance and as it neared us, it resolved itself into a miniature plane with a twelve-foot wing-span. The thing zigzagged crazily, rising and falling and then suddenly dived for the sea. One struck the water a few yards away and exploded."

Horace, the Monk.

A mascot on one of the ships that CPO Hirst sailed on, was "Horace" a large African monkey. "Horace" was the ship's pet and was beloved by all until one day he absorbed without the owner's knowledge, three or four tots of rum, ran berserk, bit the officers, nipped several of the crew, and finally getting homesick, leaped overboard, and last seen was headed for the African coast four hundred miles away.

"Horace" was a chatty little cuss, not to careful of his habits, and made more monkeys out of the crew than they did a human being out of him.

He ate cabbage, vegetables, and one day accepted the bosum's cap as dessert. That was the beginning of his downfall. He accepted a tot of rum one night, and the monkeyshines began. He became an addict to the demon rum, and availing himself of the opportunity to purloin a carelessly left amount of the fiery liquid, went wild and tried to tear the ship and crew apart. He did not wait for the formal discharge papers, but decided to go back to the folks at home and went over the side.

Income-Tax Deduction For Student Nurses' Parents of Twenty P.C.

"Parents of student nurses may now secure an income-tax deduction of 20 percent of the amount contributed (but not exceeding $400.00) to the support of a daughter under twenty-one years of age training as a nurse at a public or provincially-licensed private hospital." This announcement is made by Miss Fanny Munroe, President of the Canadian Nurses Association, following the passing of a clause in the Bill on national finance at the last session of the House of Commons.

"This income-tax deduction is applicable also to the sister or brother of a dependent sister under twenty-one training at such a hospital," added Miss Munroe.

U.S. Headquarters Likely to Be Moved From Pearl Harbor

Pearl Harbor, Dec. 15 — (AP) — The Pacific war has moved so far west from Pearl Harbor, its starting point, that Admiral Nimitz has announced he soon will set up advanced headquarters in a forward area to control more effectively ground, sea and air forces "as their operations converge on Japan."

Whether Guam and Saipan were uppermost among possible sites, as unofficially reported, Admiral Nimitz — who commands the Pacific fleet and Pacific Ocean areas — would not say.

Significantly, his announcement last night followed conferences embracing China and the Aleutians — conferences suggesting new strategic moves impending against Japan.

Main headquarters will remain at Pearl Harbor.

American warships in Leyte Gulf, supporting Gen. MacArthur's campaign in the Philippines, are more than 5,000 miles from Pearl Harbor. The big naval base which has been under construction at Guam since the recapture of that island last August is 3,800 miles southwest of Pearl Harbor.

Earlier this week, Admiral Nimitz disclosed he had held a strategy conference with army and navy commanders of the Central Pacific and Aleutian theatres.

C.G.I.T. Vesper Services To Be Held Dec. 17th

The Christmas Vesper Service in which approximately 45,000 Canadian Girls in Training participate will be held this year in the Protestant Churches across Canada on December 17th. Plans are already under way for this event which with its beauty, dignity and national character forms the closest link the local group has with the whole C.G.I.T. movement. In our towns and cities the vesper service is rapidly becoming a part of the Christmas program of the churches. Sponsored by The National Girls' Work Board of the Religious Education Council of Canada, the Vesper Service as a two fold purpose; (a) to provide an opportunity for girls to share in a worship experience using a candle-lighting service especially prepared for the occasion (b) to support the Canadian Girls in Training Movement through making possible the work of a National Secretary. Offerings taken at the service are the only source of support for the National Girls' Work Board. This board which came into being during the last World War to provide a church centred program for teen age girls and which has achieved numbers and influence through its work in Christian education and its camping program, has recently provided "The Senior Quiz" to fill the demand of the teen age girls of today for something to think about, something to talk about, something to do.

A Vesper Service in every community as part of the planned Christmas program of the Protestant churches conducted by the C.G.I.T. groups and participated in by all congregations is the aim of the Ontario Girls' Work Board.

Strange Signs Guide Fighters in Battle Area

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

With the 1st Canadian Army, Dec. 15 —(CP)— The "sign language" on the Canadian and British sectors on the Western Front has put a lot of English words into battle-dress and given them some weird twists.

This is the language on the hundreds of signs nailed to trees or stuck in the ground along the roads, giving directions, telling about mines and bridges, marking convoy routes and giving just about any information a driver needs to get from one place to another.

Most prevalent and one which makes you breathe easier when you see it reads: "Road and verges cleared to eight feet." It simply means that the sappers have been along this road and that they have swept the road of enemy mines and also cleared the shoulders for eight feet. "Bailey steep ramp" is another. The translation is "Bailey bridge ahead; the ramp leading to it is steep so take it easy."

"Diversion" used to mean a pleasant pastime but here it means "detour", generally over a rough road. There are all kinds of abbreviations for which you almost need a code guide. For instance "POL" means "petrol, oil and lubricants;" "Sups" means supplies;" POW" is "prisoner of war cage."

Directions to units are given by signs with numbers and combinations of colors and once you learn the system you are all right. But it can take years. The army cannot mark the way to units, however, for security reasons, so they have to follow the number-color method.

Convoy routes are marked with a variety of names and you get them "Kangaroo up" or "Pipe down." That simply means you can follow the "kangaroo" signs up to the front or the "pipe" back to the rear areas. The latter has nothing to do with keeping quiet.

The Canadians are the most prolific sign painters in the whole Allied force. You see more signs in this area than anywhere — direction signs, traffic control and traffic caution signs, tactical signs showing the way to units and when the Victory Loan campaign was on there were signs like "bonds not blondes."

Most effective sign by a long shot are ones like "dust draws shellfire;" "highway under enemy observation for one mile;" "keep ducking and keep going—enemy fire ahead."

A member of the staff of "The Maple Leaf," the Canadian Army newspaper published here, Sgt. John Carlova, will serve for a month as special press representative of Gen. D. D. Eisenhower, Allied supreme commander.

Several weeks ago the general decided he wanted a soldier to act as his press representative. A reporter from the American newspaper "Stars and Stripes" was appointed and now this "Maple Leaf" reporter is going to Eisenhower's headquarters as the honor is rotated.

Carlova is an American by birth and worked on several American papers before joining the Canadian army in 1941. He came overseas with the 2nd Division and joined the "Maple Leaf" when it was published in Caen. His stories from Eisenhower's headquarters will be pooled by SHAEF for Canadian, British and American papers.

Canuck Performs Big Salvage Job

Kandy, Ceylon, Dec. 15 —(CP) — Major Roy Greggs of Vancouver, working knee-deep in water under torrential monsoon rains has recovered valuable equipment used by the late Maj.-Gen. Orde Wingate's Chindits at Blackpool, jungle airstrip in north Burma.

When the Chindits made their daring airborne assault last March Blackpool was miles behind the Japanese lines but now it is behind ours. The Chindits, in abandoning the airstrip after inflicting heavy Japanese casualties and wrecking communications, left behind their heavy equipment.

Later Major Greggs, who served in France in the First Great War with the Royal Artillery and was recalled for emergency duty in this war, went to Blackpool to see what could be salvaged. He now is attached to the Indian Electrical and Mechanical Engineers.

He found broken gliders, burned out Dakota aircraft, destroyed by the Chindits before they pulled out, and other equipment in the underbrush. So he flew out to Calcutta and picked up some British and Indian fitters and a guard detachment.

For two weeks they lived in the fuselage of a wrecked plane and worked under a glider wing. Despite such difficulties as cylinders rusting in, he was able to lead a proud procession over a causeway they built across a 60-foot river. It consisted of one bulldozer, one tractor, two graders, one mechanical scoop, jeep trailers, water pumps, and lighting sets. Now all this equipment is again in use against the Japanese.

Madame Stokowski Pianist-Lecturer Plans New Career

New York, Dec. 15 —(CP)— A gentleman once said about Olga Samaroff-Stokowski, "every time I've seen her for 30 years, I've thought she was just then at the zenith of her powers."

He meant that Madame Stokowski has been going from success to success (and from new career to new career) all her life, and never lets down. She just has begun a sixth career, she thinks, and perhaps this really will be most important.

In September this pianist, educator, writer and lecturer made her debut in television on a Schenectady station. This was no performance as ingenue in a cute skit—Madame long ago forswore such ambitions. She sees television as perhaps the greatest educational force the world has produced.

Her first career, as a pianist, began in Carnegie Hall, New York, Jan. 18, 1905. When she first went to Henry Wolfsohn, the concert manager, he told her flatly that he could not sell anybody with a name like hers. (She had resumed her maiden name—Hickenlooper—after the Pope annulled her marriage to Boris Loutzky, a Russian engineer.)

There was a Samaroff in the Hickenlooper connection. So the young pianist became, legally as well as for the stage, Olga Samaroff. Under that name, she became the great American woman pianist.

She remained that until her marriage with Leopold Stokowski, after which she retired to comparative domesticity — until 1923, and then came the second career.

This began after her parting from Stokowski, when Dr. Eugene Noble asked her to teach at the newly-formed Juilliard graduate school in New York. She still teaches advanced pupils at Juilliard, and there is probably no other teacher in America more successful. William Kapell, Eugene List and Joseph Battista are among her pupils.

Her Third Career

Madame's third career was as music critic — for the New York Evening Post. That came about because she fell over a trunk. The doctor ordered her to keep her arm in a sling for a year.

Ernest Newman, the great English critic, had just left the Post, and he asked what she would need for salary and she made a guess. It was $1,000 a year more than Newman got, but the Post paid her.

The fourth career was as a lecturer and educator, and her first taste of that came through her former husband. She was playing two Beethoven Sonatas, Opus 106 and 111, and he was scheduled to speak on them. Unfortunately, he was detained, so she did the whole job. In a way, this led to the layman's music courses, perhaps Madame's greatest contribution to the general public, since these have proved miraculously effective at teaching people to make use of music, as listeners.

The fifth career was on the air. It seemed very casual, but really came from her long life as musician. Then came the chance to try television. You'd expect a woman like Madame to give out a pungent opinion on these last two matters, and she does.

"I think," says she, "that radio, and particularly television, can do for music what printing did for the written word."

British Railways in War

War throws a heavy burden upon railways and railway workers. This is true in Canada as it has been in Britain. Canadians know something of what the Canadian railway systems have achieved. What British railways have been doing in Britain's total war effort is interesting to Canadians.

Normal activities of British lines showed ten per cent increase in number of passengers, sixty per cent increase in passenger mileage, 125 per cent increase in passenger train loads, partly due to the 30 per cent reduction in train miles, and 40 per cent increase in freight ton miles. But even this is not the full measure of British railway effort. The general shabbiness in the carriages, stations and buildings is noticed by all travellers and this is largely explained by the fact that railway workers have been engaged on important "backroom" work.

On the L.M.S., 44,000 workers in seven of this company's shops have been working 20,000,000 man hours yearly above pre-war and devoting one third of their total time to munitions work, leaving two-thirds for the "everyday" task of maintaining some 8,000 locomotives, 22,400 passenger coaches and 295,000 goods wagons, used much more heavily since war started.

Some of this work is the manufacture of tanks, aircraft wings, guns, shells, sets of bridges, ambulance trains, mobile guns for airfield protection, naval materiel, assault craft, bullet proof shields, catapult trolleys and so on.

Similar stories can be told of the three other great British railways. Especial interest is attached to the enterprise of the London Transport, operating in the London underground railways, buses and trams, which in 1940 associated itself with four motor and motorbody firms to build Halifax bombers.

British railways had in 1943 the busiest year on record and there was only one train accident involving fatal casualties to passengers, the figure of four being the lowest for seven years. This can be attributed to the excellence of the permanent way and rolling stock in 1939, £170,000,000 and £100,000,000 having been spent on these two items in the years 1923 to 1938, as renewals during wartime have fallen far behind peace time schedules.

Although 85 per cent of the work in railway shops is on repairs, some 1,200 locomotives will have been built between the outbreak of the war and the end of 1944. These include two new "austerity" types of electric locomotives that can haul passenger and freight trains at a speed up to 75 miles an hour.

Every week there have been thousands of trains for workers for government factories, special trains for troops and military stores in five years. Special achievements were the number of trains for the Dunkerque evacuation, special and extra wagons by ordinary services for the North African landings, and thousands of specials between March 26, 1944, and completion by D-Day moves.

113,000 of the staff, one sixth of the normal personnel, are in the forces or full time civil defence. Nearly 100,000 of those remaining have been in the Home Guard. On the achievement of British railways during the war, the words of a news letter of the L.M.S. "are suggestive and manufacturing skill so ably demonstrated in the war foreshadow 'par excellence' railway service for the peacetime traveller and trader."

Gloomy Yuletide for Huns

They report that Germany is to have a dreary Christmas. That is not to be wondered at for Germany's spirit of aggression and savagery is the enemy of Christmas and the lessons of human brotherhood which this season teaches. So much of the trouble in the world is due to Germany today and it is only natural that Germany should feel the reaction of the struggle at Christmastime.

A land under the heel of Hitler or Himmler as Germany is cannot know Christmas and really takes away whatever of Christmas there was in Germany.

Everyone knows that despite the war and the guns of the enemy, there will be Christmas in every British, Canadian and American camp in the world for the soldiers' homelands and their own hearts will be celebrating. But with the Hun the sinister influence of all the ugly passions of German Nazism and Prussian militarism must frighten away the spirit and the mood of Christmas.

At this time of Christmas the Allies are at the gates or within the gates of Hitler's citadel of the Reich. Whatever evidence of Christmas will be found in Germany will be on the scantiest scale. Grim and brutal Mars whom the Germans worship uses all the metal and the supplies that Germany can assemble and leaves none for fashioning Christmas toys, but wood and bits of paper, according to Stockholm stories.

It should be a Christmas of gloom for in the months ahead will be staged the last act of Hitler's criminal attack upon Europe. Travel is impossible for the children of Germany because the railways are too busily engaged in war transportation, not in carrying boys and girls to see their parents. This is all because that evil genius Hitler and his crew have control and dominate the German scene or did dominate until lately (for there are rumors that Himmler is now first Nazi.) Christmas cannot be where there is a Hitler or a Himmler.

The ruthless hands of Hitler and of Himmler are against the Christmas spirit. These gangster Huns are not thinking of the noble lessons of Christmas, of childhood, brotherhood and love of family life and the dedication of the home. These Huns are lusting for power and criminal-like try to dodge the crimes for which the world would get rid of them.

Battleship and Airplane

(New York Herald Tribune)

The battleship man no longer denies that he can, under appropriate conditions, be sunk from the air and the air man no longer denies that there are conditions under which he is exceedingly glad to have battleships at hand—or bitterly regrets their absence, as did our escort carriers off Samar. Air power finally got the Tirpitz, but it was never a substitute for the surface power which had to be kept on guard against her in case she should sortie in weather which would render aviation inoperable. The real problem is now seen to lie in the correct proportioning and employment of the two weapons, as of all other weapons of air, sea and land warfare under the circumstances involved. The experience of our own navy in the Pacific has tended to make the carrier the major combat weapon, with the battleship in support and land-based planes for later exploitation. Other conditions might alter the equation. It is the business of strategy to be so alert that it does not have to undergo radical revisions, but can continuously fit all available means to the desired ends with maximum effect.

Halifax Clock

(Edmonton Journal)

The bell of the historic Halifax clock is ringing the hours again, after being silent since the mechanism was wrecked in the explosion of 1917. The dispatch does not explain the delay in the repair work until another war was in progress. The clock is a unique one, so far as this continent is concerned, and for its installation Queen Victoria's father, the Duke of Kent, when in command of the military establishment there about 140 years ago, was responsible. He adopted this means of rousing the citizens who stayed too long in bed in his opinion. But he was not disturbed himself, as he lived out in the country.

The Christmas tree for her and him
And keep the day as full of cheer
As if their soldier-dad were here.

But as I passed a neckwear shop
A bow-tie blue I chanced to see,

'Tis strange it often now occurs
To women folk to talk of furs
And jewels in a casual way!
Or are we nearing Christmas Day?

Washington Spotlight

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Washington, Dec. 15 — (CP) — Fear of a swing toward isolationism in the United States is gripping many observers here in the face of American apprehension over the trend of events in Europe.

The discordant note struck by the public reproof of Russia and Britain contained in the statement of the new secretary of state, Edward Stettinius, declaring the American stand against interference with domestic policies of liberated countries, was welcome material for the isolationists.

This was seized upon generally as applying primarily to Britain and her handling of the Greek and Belgian situations, but applied no less to the Russian treatment of the Baltic countries and Poland, and her possible intentions elsewhere in Europe.

The incident has brought into sharp focus the whole question of Anglo-Russian influence in Europe and the extent to which it will be harmonized with United States ideals of world co-operation.

Retiring Senator Guy Gillette (Dem-Iowa) has demanded a restatement and a restoration of the declarations of the Atlantic charter, and adherence to those declarations by the big powers as the price of further American co-operation in world peace organization.

The situation emphasizes the necessity for an early meeting between President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin—a meeting which no doubt is being arranged.

At this conference it is expected that the leaders will, in addition to planning further war strategy which has been the dominant purpose of previous meetings, spend considerable time on the diplomatic and post-war problems which will require the same degree of co-operation, and give and take, as have the demands of the war emergency.

VETERANS: Some idea of the extent of the soldier problem, with something over 1,000,000 already discharged, is seen in the U. S. employment office figures for October showing that of 83,000 war veterans placed in that month 10,000 were veterans of the First Great War.

NATURE RULES: While great plans for the future of civil aviation were being discussed at the Chicago air conference the elements proved that flight problems were still more technical than economic. Fog and stormbound airports constantly reminded the delegates that nature still has the last say about schedules and flight frequencies and many air-minded experts left Chicago by train.

FRIENDLY GESTURE: A War Production Board order has placed production of farm machinery attachments manufactured for export to Canada on a non-quota basis as from Dec. 9, although production for export to all other countries remain subject to quota.

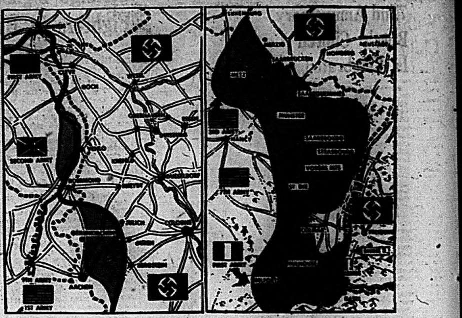
ALLIED LAND GAIN IN A MONTH



During the past month, when the present Allied offensive along the Western Front rolled into full momentum, our armies have succeeded in biting goodly chunks of territory from the Nazi forces before them. These maps, depicting the northern (left) and southern sections of the long battlefront, show in shaded areas the Allied land gains in that period. The heavy black line indicates the fighting line. The scene of the most successful action today is in the area around the Saar basin, strategic Nazi mining and industrial centre.

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

WHERE DID YOU GET THAT MORBID NOTION?

Typical Wiseacre in a letter to the editor of a popular magazine utters half a column of what purports to be sarcasm on the subject of the President's ride around New York in the rain, deliberately running the risk of catching cold, the Wiseacre explains, in order to prove that his health was good. It irked that letter writer, evidently, to observe that the President was applauded for doing what little boys get spanked for, and so on.

It would not yet occur to this person or a hundred million others who think they know all there is to know, that the President may not share the notion that getting wet affects the health or immunity to disease.

Getting soaked in the rain is unpleasant, perhaps, but it has nothing to do with health or susceptibility to illness.

This fact applies to standing, walking, sitting, working or playing outdoors in the coldest weather with your head bare or with insufficient clothing. The experience has no effect upon health or susceptibility to disease or illness of any kind —except frostbite or freezing.

You could hardly be expected to know any better, considering the source of education in physiology, hygiene, pathology, sanitation and all that nasty business. You learned what you think you know about such things from the almanac, from the old woman of the neighborhood, from the testimonials (genuine and fake) published by the nostrum mongers, from the screaming, illustrated announcements of the manufacturers of overshoes and underwear and insulating material and heating equipment, and from such ponderous utterances as that letter to the editor cited above. In short you picked up your fund of knowledge about these subjects wherever you happened upon it, like a street urchin collecting snipes. You had to get it that way if at all, for such things are simply not taught in school, not if the commercial interests concerned are aware of it.

This harangue will make no impression whatever upon the minds of readers whose minds have set like plaster of Paris and can no longer take a new impression. I have no illusions about that. But who knows. It may interest a few younger folks, and they're my meat. Catch 'em young and get 'em thinking for themselves, before the cold phobia becomes fixed and incurable, that's my purpose.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Courage

Please give the address of the magazine "Courage" which you recommended so highly for people who have lost a limb.

(Mrs. R. L. M.)

Answer— Courage, a buck a year, published by Paul J. Campbell, 240 Arcade Bldg., East St. Louis, Illinois. Mr. Campbell founded The Fraternity of the Wooden Leg. This little monthly magazine is well named. Every one who has lost a limb should read it. In Canada, it is $1.20 a year.

The Hypochondriac

I will be grateful for any suggestion you may give me to stop or prevent premature graying of my hair. Our doctor pooh-poohed when I asked him—he said it is a vain idea, hypochondriac.

(Mrs. C. L.)

Answer — Send pre-addressed stamped envelope, ask for pamphlet "Care of the Hair and Scalp". It contains information on prevention of premature graying. Too few physicians practice preventive medicine. Formerly they neglected it because they didn't know enough about it. At present they neglect it because they haven't time for it—perhaps when the war is over and the best doctors get back home more attention will be paid to preventive medicine, geriatrics and personal hygiene.

Problem Child

Daughter 23, allergic to citrus fruits, prunes, spinach, potatoes and chocolate. She can eat celery, but no carrots, olives, onions, tomatoes peas, navy beans—gets severe itching back of ears and in throat when she takes even a wee bit of any of these, then has an intense coryza and a prolonged incessant sneezing. Her diet is a problem, yet she passes physical tests with high standard. (Mrs. G. L.)

Answer—You say she was brought up on 'citrus fruits, vegetables, milk eggs and meat". Yet you say she is allergic to citrus fruits. Add wheat to what she was brought up on, and she'll get along oke. Send ten cents and pre-addressed stamped envelope for pamphlets "Relief for Allergy" and "The Calcium Shortage".

COW SUCKING SNAKES

Reports from northern Virginia say that farmers are complaining because blacksnakes are milking their cows.

The story is that the blacksnakes coil themselves around the udders of dairy cows when the animals are lying down and squeeze the milk out.

Apparently this odd belief is based on the notion that the blacksnake is a constrictor. Contrary to a popular belief, which is supported by the scientific name of the species, Coluber constrictor, no variety of blacksnake constricts or winds itself around its prey.

This story is related to another namely, that certain snakes sometimes suck the teats of cows.

Blacksnakes and milk or house snakes are most commonly accused of this practice. Thousands of country people throughout the United States are willing to swear upon oath that cases of snakes sucking cows have come under their personal observation.

Herptologists, however, frown upon the notion and put it in the same class as the hoopsnake myth. Scientific proof or disproof is difficult to obtain, but no reputable naturalist believes that any snake ever sucked a cow.

Milk snakes get their name from the fact that they frequently hang around dairy barns to catch the mice attracted by milk.

Some years ago the U. S. Biological Survey, which had given considerable study to snake myths, said on this subject:

"Anyone who has ever milked a cow knows that the suction required to obtain a flow of milk is much greater than could be exerted by any snake. Furthermore, a snake has two rows of sharp recurved teeth in the upper jaw. If the mouth of the milk snake were closed to permit suction, the teeth would sink into the teat and the snake would find itself fully occupied in efforts to avoid injury by the cow."

It should be remembered that the mouth of a snake is without cheeks or closable lips. The only way a snake could suck a cow would be to get the teat at least part way down the throat. It is not likely any cow would stand for the tooth pricks incident to such a performance.

That turtles sometimes milk cows is another common belief that is, in all probability, equally unfounded.

Court Concerned With Parentage Of Child Says Judge

Los Angeles, Dec. 15 — (CP) — Efforts by the defence to terminate without formal trial the suit which seeks to establish Charlie Chaplin as father of Joan Berry's child failed in court here yesterday.

A motion to dismiss the action was denied by Superior Judge Henry M. Willis. The motion was based on a stipulation that no further legal proceeding would follow blood tests made last February when three physicians reported the tests indicated Chaplin was not the father of Carol Ann Berry, now 14 months old.

A motion for a trial without jury also was denied. Miss Berry's counsel, Joseph Scott, had demanded a jury, selection of which now becomes the next step in the trial.

The dapper Chaplin took the witness stand to testify in support of his attorney's motion. He remained long enough to give his name, but was then displaced upon Scott's objection to proceeding without a daily transcript.

Long Argument.

There followed a morning-long argument of Charles E. Millikan, Chaplin attorney, in support of his special defence motion. Chaplin sat quietly. Neither Miss Berry, Chaplin's former protegee, nor her child was in court.

Millikan reviewed at length a stipulation in which both parties agreed to the blood tests and in which Miss Berry's counsel agreed not to continue with the paternity action should the tests fail to indicate Chaplin's parenthood. He said Chaplin had paid $16,300 for the child's care prior to the blood tests and $1,100 thereafter under the stipulation.

Scott, opposing the motion, cited the Supreme Court's refusal to interfere when, last March, the Superior court denied a dismissal motion by Chaplin's attorneys. The court at that time held that the blood tests were not conclusive and that the child was entitled to its day in court.

Judge Gives Reason

Said Judge Willis in denying the special defence motion:

"I have never agreed that a guardian could stipulate or give away the rights of an infant. Approval of this stipulation by a court did not add one bit to its virtue. It is still an agreement between parties, not a ruling of the court, whereas the child in this case is a ward of the court and its claims are not compromised by any such agreement.

"All we are concerned here is parentage of the child. Attempts by parties to withdraw this question from the court and submit it to three doctors do not constitute a bar to further court action on behalf of the infant."

Call-up Summons Touches off Riots

Rome, Dec. 15 (AP)—A government decree summoning the classes of 1921 and 1922 to the Italian colors touched off a series of riots yesterday in Catania, Sicily, during which guards were reported to have fired upon a crowd attempting to storm recruiting headquarters.

Dispatches from Sicily said a number of university students had taken part in the demonstration and one had been killed.

The independent daily Il Tiempo said rioters succeeded in setting fire to the city hall, conscription headquarters, the court house, bank of Sicily building and the tax collection offices. They attempted to storm the jail but were driven off.

The government said necessary measures had been taken to restore order and a large number of arrests were reported. Italian press dispatches said Sicilian Separatists leaflets had been distributed among the rioters.

It was the second such outbreak in Sicily in two months. Nineteen persons were killed and more than 100 wounded at Palermo in October in a street battle between Italian troops and a mob demonstrating against poor living conditions.

Germany Drops Special Plan of Allowances To Prisoners in Britain

London, Dec. 15 —(AP)— The German government has stopped sending special monthly allowances to war prisoners in Britain, it was learned today.

With the end of this novel Nazi "bonus" plan, thousands who maintained their defiant arrogance long after their capture now have agreed to work on the land for cigaret money. Some are so meek they are allowed out without military guards.

Under the Geneva Convention of rules for war, commissioned officers are paid by their captors and this is charged against their own country. There is no provision for paying other soldiers, however.

The enemy instituted a "bonus plan" whereby non-commissioned officers were sent $5 a month and others $3 monthly, shortly after D-Day. The funds estimated at about $4,000,000 a month were transmitted through Switzerland.

With the number of German prisoners growing rapidly, the German government recently stopped sending the allowances, apparently because it had run out of foreign currency.

Canadians Hold Bridgehead Over Naviglio Canal

By SID FEDER
(Associated Press Staff Writer),

Rome, Dec. 15—(AP)—Canadian troops of the British 8th Army have established a bridgehead west of the steeply-banked Naviglio canal in a night attack northeast of Bagnacavallo and are holding it against strong opposition, Allied Headquarters announced today.

(A delayed front dispatch from William Boss, Canadian Press war correspondent, reported last night a furious battle was raging Wednesday night as the Germans sought to drive the Canadians back from their foothold which had been gained 24 hours earlier.)

Allied Headquarters said the Canadians turned back a number of German counter-attacks but heavy fighting continued.

The advance was made by the same forces who smashed their way through stiff German defences in crossing the Lamone river due west of Ravenna Sunday night. The attack threatened the road centre of Bagnacavallo, 10 miles northeast of Faenza in the Po valley.

Overcoming crumbling German defences in this area, the Canadians had expanded their bridgehead to 1,500 yards along the western side of the canal—which lies more than two miles west of the Lamone, running north and south between Faenza and Lake Comacchio.

On the Allied 5th Army front, British troops were cleaning the last Germans from the villages of Tossignano and Borgo Tossignano, southwest of Imola.

Forced Back 300 Yards.

For the Naviglio canal crossing, sappers constructed a ford under cover of darkness, enabling tanks and anti-tank guns, infantry and infantry reinforcements to smash across and bolster the initial bridgehead force.

Field Marshal Kesselring threw into the combat a special Guards battalion, made up of picked men from other divisions. A daylight battle followed and the Canadians were forced back 300 yards before they stiffened and took about 300 prisoners.

The town of Bagnacavallo, a mile away from the Canadians, was believed strongly defended and the Germans used church towers as observation posts.

Since the initial crossing of the Lamone Sunday night, the Canadians have expanded their bridgehead to a width of 10 miles and a depth of two. Five hundred prisoners have been taken.

As the widening bridgehead brought pressure on the enemy-held road junction of Faenza to the south, the Germans rushed up reinforcements. Latest of their troops was the 98th Infantry Division which was battered at Stalingrad and again by the Allies during the Gothic Line fighting in Italy last spring. This division, recently reformed, was re-employed southeast of Bologna before being switched here.

Churchill Highlights

Six main points were made by Prime Minister Churchill today in his House of Commons speech on the Polish question. They were:

1. Virtual abandonment of support of the Polish government in London. Mr. Churchill indicated he had little hope the reconstituted government could reach an accord with Russia.

2. A new map of Central Europe to which he said Britain and Russia had agreed. Poland would give a large section of her former eastern territory up to the Curzon Line, but within that part of East Prussia southwest of Konigsberg and a section of eastern Germany. Russia presumably would win the part of East Prussia northeast of Konigsberg.

3. Proposed a shift of several millions of the populations to match the changes in frontiers.

4. Declared President Roosevelt had been kept informed of these policies but "the attitude of the United States has not been defined with precision" toward them.

5. Appealed for a meeting of President Roosevelt, Premier Marshal Stalin and himself "at the earliest possible moment," in Britain or elsewhere.

6. Warned that "the fiercest and largest battles fought in this war" will occupy the spring and summer" and reported that 6,000,000 or 7,000,000 Germans already have been killed.

GIVEN BEER PUMP

But he did object when the property settlement included all the furniture. "Judge, there is one thing I would like to have," Charles said. "And what is that?" asked the judge. "Our beer pump," said Charles. "You can have it," chuckled the judge.

HAMMER WESTERN GERMANY

London, Dec. 15 (CP)—Six hundred and fifty United States heavy bombers hammered the Western Germany rail and industrial centres of Hannover and Kassel today with more than 2,000 tons of bombs.

The bomber fleet from the Britain-based U.S. 8th Air Force was accompanied by 550 fighters. The raid was timed simultaneosuly with another by the U.S. 15th air force based in Italy, according to German radio reports.

The War Today— Believes Questions of Political Blocs Must Be Threshed Out Quickly

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press War Analyst)

The Greek contretemps, as constituting one of the moves in the formation of spheres of influence by major European powers, continues to be the gravest danger of the moment—a danger which grows hourly as fighting continues in Athens.

It's widely recognized in both hemispheres that the questions of political blocs and self-determination must be threshed out — fast. Two world-threats are growing out of this situation:

1. There has been created a widespread fear that the Atlantic charter has been challenged, or repudiated in part—and this charter represents aims for which men are dying in battle.

2. Any formation of power blocs in Europe most certainly will create a potential threat to the peace organization which we hope to see established to maintain global order, by force if necessary.

The East and West.

Take first the matter of the Atlantic charter. Not so long ago I made a trip covering 20 countries—clear through to Chungking. Everywhere in the Middle and Far East I found the peoples pinning their hopes to that charter, which stands for independence and national well-being. To both China and India—representing almost half the population of the whole world—the charter has represented not only those vital things, but it has been the guarantee of fellowship between the East and the West.

I believe it isn't going too far to say that failure of the western powers to substantiate the charter might easily alienate the Orient from us and cause the creation of a hostile Oriental bloc. That raises visions of a great and terrible struggle ultimately between East and West—long one of the nightmares of mankind.

Allied Security Organization

And what of the threat to the new United Nations security organization? The league will be the focus of so many dangers that it will be like a body of nations banded together under the influence of a major power, will represent a solid unit. It will act in all international matters as a unit. It will vote in the peace organization as a unit. Thus when the dominant power of a bloc casts its vote it won't be handing in one ballot but just as many as there are nations in the bloc

The possible complications of such a situation are obvious. A major power which didn't have a sufficiently large bloc of small nations behind it might find itself voted into an impossible position. There would be times when several blocks would unite against a single bloc and outvote it.

That may seem far-fetched, but the League of Nations was the victim of power politics. That's one of the main causes of the league's failure.

Pte. John Hansey Killed in Action

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hansey, Cannifton, received an official cablegram that their eldest son, John William, age 24, had been killed while serving with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in Italy.

Pte. Hansey enlisted in the army the first year of the war in Oct., 1939. By Christmas of the same year he was overseas in England where he took all his training. He was amongst the few men that were picked to train for Commandos, which he completed in six weeks of training. He was also in the evacuation of Dunkerque later being sent to Italy in the summer of 1942. Twice wounded he had just recently rejoined his regiment after his last injury.

Relatives besides his parents are: two sisters, Wren Elsie Clugston, W.R.C.N.S., Halifax, whose husband is with the R.C.A.F. overseas; Dorothy, with C.W.A.C. in Ottawa, and one brother, Ernest, with the R.C.A.S.C. in Belgium.

WEDDINGS

NOLDNER—CAMERON

The United Church, Tichborne, beautifully decorated with evergreens and chrysanthemums, was the scene of an interesting wedding at seven p.m., Saturday evening, December ninth, when the Rev. Wright of Sharbot Lake, united in marriage, Doris Shirley, daughter of Mr. L. A. Cameron, and the late Mrs. Cameron, of Tichborne, and Pte. William Miloch, Noldner, RCOC, of Deven, Bohemea, Czechoslovakia, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Noldner, Deven, Bohemea, CZU. The double ring ceremony was performed by candelight and Mrs. R. J. Hawkins, of Valois, Que., played the wedding music, playing the "Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin; Mendelssohn's "Wedding March", and "From the Heart", by William Carl Kern. During the signing of the register, Miss Winnifred Brock, cousin of the bride, sang "Because" very delightfully.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was a lovely figure in her mother's wedding gown, a floor length model of ivory taffeta with a short train and full three-quarter length sleeves with deep frills of antique lace. She wore a long heirloom veil and carried a cascade bouquet of Sweetheart roses.

The bride was attended by Miss Mary Howes of Parham as bridesmaid; little Miss Audrey Dermott as flower girl and her young six-year-old nephew, Larry Cameron, as ring-bearer. The bridesmaid wore a period gown of heavy taffeta with matching veil and carried a bouquet of Johanna Hill roses; the flower girl was in a pale pink floor length taffeta frock and the ring-bearer wore a complete Highland Kilt in the family tartan, sent direct from Scotland.

Mr. Norman Cronk, of Wagarville, was best man and Mr. J. E. Bowick, of Smiths Falls, was the usher.

Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Cameron for thirty guests, followed by a reception for friends of the family at the Orange Hall, Tichborne.

The honeymoon was spent at their winter cottage at Eagle Lake, Tichborne, after which the bride will return to Belleville to continue her training at the Belleville Hospital and the groom will return to his regiment, stationed at Barriefield Camp.

The out of town guests included: Miss Sally Cameron, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Cameron, P.O. V. D. Cameron, Mr. T. J. Cameron, Mrs. Carl Bush, Belleville; the Misses Jean Sills, Margaret Kilpatrick and Jean Anderson, nurses-in-training at Belleville General Hospital; Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Bowick, Smiths Falls, and Mrs. R. J. Hawkins, Valois, Quebec.

Hospital Auxiliary Discusses Plans For Fashion Show

The regular monthly meeting of the Hospital Auxiliary was held in the Nurses' Recreation room on Thursday afternoon with the President, Mrs. H. Wray, in the chair. Fourteen members were present with several new names being added to the auxiliary. A pleasing report of the tea held on November 23rd was given. Several extra donations received since then made a sizeable total. It was decided not to hold the Christmas dance as planned, owing to unforeseen difficulties. The organization issued a cheque to the hospital for $388, paying for the oxygen tent. Fashion Show plans for early Spring were discussed. The meeting adjourned, after which members were taken to see the Blood Bank which has been recently installed.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Exclusive Message

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

My husband is in the Army, serving overseas. During the time he was in this country, I was with him at the various camps where he was stationed and met quite a few charming people who became friends of ours and with whom I correspond. I am planning to send Christmas cards to all these people. I would like to know if it is proper to address the envelopes to the husband and wife (even though all the husbands are out of the country), or if I should address them only to the wife. Both my husband's name and mine are on the cards I am sending.

H. K.

I suggest as the best plan that you address the card to the wife, and then on the card itself write an "inclusive" message to be relayed to the husband. For example, something like this "Christmas wishes to you. And please, in your next letter to Joe, send him Bill's and my friendliest greetings, every good wish to him, and the high hope of his return soon. What happiness it will be when we can all meet again in joyous reunion! My last letter from Bill was from England. . . . I believe you have his address and he'd love to hear from you". Such a friendly note will serve two purposes: a Christmas message to your friend and a greeting-card that the wife can enclose with her next letter to her husband.

Endangers Friendship

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

My best girl friend has been going steady with a boy for several years. During this time I've naturally seen him a great deal, in foursomes and in large groups, and I like him, but since he "belonged" to her, I never thought seriously about him. Now, out of a clear sky, he has started asking me for dates. Do you think I should accept and go out with him?

Peggy

Not unless you are willing to endanger breaking your friendship with this girl . . . and stealing a girl's beau is naturally the quickest way to break a friendship with her. Since she is your "best girl friend" you will know whether or not they are still "going steady" and if her eyes, like his, are wandering to new pastures. Don't accept a date with him until you are absolutely certain about the girl's feelings about this boy. Otherwise you'll lose her friendship, for she will have reason to consider you as "wolfish" as the boy is.

Send Gift to Bride's Home

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

I have just been invited to a wedding and I would like to know which is proper . . . to take the wedding present with me or have it sent to the place where the reception is to be held.

O.H.

Neither is proper. You should, as soon as possible, send the wedding present addressed to the bride-to-be at her home. This is the customary and courteous thing to do and gives her the opportunity of writing you the thank-you note that she will want to write to you before the wedding. To take or send your gift to the reception suggests that you didn't do your gift-buying soon enough and means a definite inconvenience for someone who will have to take charge of the gift and transport it to the bride's home. (Most stores now make a special feature of packaging wedding presents very attractively and sending them with the card enclosed to the bride's home.)

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Which Are More Sentimental—Men or Women?

Two letters in the morning's mail ask the same question: Which, as a class, are more sentimental—men or women?

It's pretty difficult to decide such a question, by and large. But men as sentimentalists seem to have it all over women. One doesn't have to read more widely than the daily papers to see that men commit suicide, suffer capital punishment, go to jail, and throw discretion to the winds for some women. Their headlong pursuit recalls the title of that old English play "All for Love and the World Well Lost."

Within the memory of everyone old enough to read, we have the case of the young man who threw away a crown and an empire for the love of a lady. And while history doesn't record so many dramatic cases, there's always at hand a titled gentleman willing to play the role of King Cophetua. (Read Tennyson's Poem "The Beggar Maid.")

Of course, women jump off bridges and drown themselves. They take poison, and exit life in more horrible ways. They desert families for worthless men and commit innumerable follies under the spur of what they call love. But whether it's because their love tragedies have less publicity than those of men, their score of folly is less, statistically.

Women oftener than men clutch at matrimony as a face-saver. As a whole they marry for less romantic reasons than their brothers. Some of them have a morbid horror of continuing on as old maids, or as the back-country adage has it "she would hate to see spinster on her tombstone." Other women imagine that the title of "Mrs." gives them more authority.

Other women marry to have a home of their own, especially when their families fail to realize that they have grown up. In rarer instances women marry unattractive widowers to take care of friends' or relatives' children.

You never catch a man doing this, unless the widow is young and attractive. That women are more practical than men doubtless goes back to the days of our cave ancestresses. They had to be practical and foreseeing, or out they went from the cave, they and their children. Doubtless this is the reason that women are accused of being adept in the arts of cajolery not to say duplicity.

Fashion Flashes

STILL THE BEST way to get the utmost out of that ration coupon is to buy a really fine pump of suede and dress it up with a series of detachable ornaments. These come in amber, tortoise shell, fabric, suede and other leather — with jet or nailhead trim, and in various shapes.

COMING ALONG for Spring are good clothes, well styled—rather on the functional side—and with trimming that is detachable. A wrap around coat with cape sleeves, fashioned of pale pink woolen, teams up with a simply cut, high throated dress of navy blue sheer woolen trimmed with a belt of iridescent blue sequins.

THE YOUNG CROWD goes for the street-length black frock with glitter, rather than for regular dinner dresses for its after-dark doings. A smart frock in black crepe has a tunic top, with short sleeves and scooped-out oval neckline embroidered all over with black sequins.

STILL STEPPING OUT in the shoe parade is the open-back, open-toed model with the ankle-strap sandal first favorite. Blue suede on a small platform is used for this type of shoe, the anklet in shaped, bracelet-style with borders of triangular perforations at toe, collar and bracelet strap.

GLITTER DROPS to the feet, judging by some fireside bootees being snapped up by shoppers. These are in crocheted yarn with drawstring top, all aglitter with multi-colored sequins.

Christmas Program Tabernacle W.M.S.

On Tuesday afternoon, in spite of inclement weather and snow-drifted streets, fifteen ladies met in the parlor of Tabernacle United Church for the annual Christmas program of the Woman's Missionary Society.

With Mrs. H. W. Frosts presiding the opening hymn, "It Came upon the Midnight Clear", was followed by the Lord's Prayer.

A short business period included the presentation of a slate of officers for 1945 by Mrs. M. C. Burgess, convener of the Nominating Committee, the slate being accepted in full.

The President welcomed the visitors introducing Mrs. G. E. Harron, formerly of Central United Church, Stratford, and Mrs. E. Hickey, of Christ Church, W.A.

An offering of "White Gifts" was received during the singing of "Joy to the World" after which Mrs. A. J. W. Myers read the Scripture Lesson.

A solo was pleasingly rendered by Mrs. Harron, and Mrs. Hickey read a timely Christmas story entitled "A Pint of Judgment". Mrs. Myers expressed the grateful appreciation of the W.M.S. members to the visiting ladies for their kindly assistance and splendid contributions to the Christmas spirit of the afternoon's program.

A candle lighting ceremony was introduced with quiet piano music by Mrs. M. P. Duff. Silent meditation and "A Christmas Prayer" read by the President was the call to worship for the service which was divided into four sections. Mesdames W. Harrison, P. Cornell, R. Irwin and J. Buchanan led in the responsive readings, assisted by Mesdames Burgess, May and Frosts. These readings were interspersed with the singing of Christmas carols.

The meeting closed with the hymn "Gentle Mary Laid her Child Lowly in a Manger", and the Hebrew benediction of peace, after which refreshments and a social half-hour were enjoyed by all.

The Experts Say

By The Canadian Press

Ottawa, Dec. 15—(CP)— GOLDEN CHOPS: Stuffed pork chops, golden with crackle, is a dish to make every pair of eyes around the dining table brighter.

Laura Pepper, chief of the Agriculture Department Consumer Section, suggests the following recipe. Prepare a stuffing from one cup soft, stale bread crumbs, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon paprika and enough milk to moisten.

Wipe six rib pork chops, one inch thick, with a damp cloth. Trim off excess fat and cut a deep slit in the side of each chop. Fill the slits with stuffing and sew up. Brown chops on both sides in a hot frying pan. Cover and bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees fahrenheit until thoroughly cooked . . . 3-4 to one hour. Thicken drippings to make gravy. This makes six servings.

CARROTS: May not live up to the saying about making one's hair curl but they do affect growth, and vision and resistance to infection. That's because carrots are an especially good source of vitamin A, says the Nutrition Division. It's vitamin A too that keeps complexions soft and smooth for it works from the inside.

ACID TOUCH: That's what keeps aluminum pots and pans all aglitter inside as well as out. Give them a going over with boiling water plus a little vinegar, and let it bubble on the stove a few minutes. And enamel saucepans that have been burned take well to a pinch of soda in the water.

SLICK CHICKEN: Chicken meat is a source of protein which builds and repairs body tissues, the Nutrition Division says. They say too that it is a good source of the B-complex vitamins so important for good health and looks. In digestibility they give chicken the edge on meats and this makes it a particularly good food for invalids, convalescents, young children and others who require easily digested food.

The Marry Go Round

Wishful Thinking.

It's almost Christmas, and all of us are entitled to do a little wishing. What do YOU wish Santa Claus would bring you besides victory, world-peace and the safe return of all our boys?

In other words, which of our old, familiar luxuries will the average woman welcome back most joyfully after the war?

"Gasoline!" cries one woman who lives in the country. "Every night I dream of Santa Claus coming down the chimney with a tank full of gas on his back, and a C-ration card in his hand!"

"Cooks!" exclaims another, "If only somebody would put a good cook or even a housemaid in my stocking for Christmas! That's all I want!"

"Nylons" is probably the most popular wish of all. Almost any girl would settle with Santa for a dozen pairs of pre-war nylons.

And how many women (on the plump side) yearn only for a pre-war GIRDLE once again! Just one long, slim pink-satin elastic girdle!

Personally, I would settle for a couple of hair-nets and a nice box of long wire hairpins. Oh yes, and a lot of new movies and screen-plays without a hint of war in them! Pleasant screen plays, like "Good-bye, Mr. Chips!" and "Going My Way" and "Jeanie" and "Ninotchka".

Most men, of course, will welcome most enthusiastically the return of their favorite smokes, with plenty of Scotch and beefsteak!

Funny how little we appreciated all of these things when we had them in unlimited quantities. We never realized what a pampered and luxurious nation we were. We will treasure every comfort and luxury twice as much when we get them all back again.

Or will we? Will we throw away a pair of silk stockings the first time one of them gets a run? Will we take three puffs of a cigarette and lay it down to burn itself out? Will we get the usual number of new hats and shoes every season and fling the old ones in the attic?

No honey, I don't think we shall ever be so prodigal, again. We have had our lesson. But because things are more plentiful here than anywhere else in the world, we shall always be the most prodigal nation.

This Christmas there is one thing of which we have plenty. We have plenty of things to wish for—with the prospect of getting most of them soon. And any kid will tell you that "wishing" is half the fun of Christmas!

Women Demand Better Homes

London, Dec. 15 —(CP— Women have been called upon to play a big part in the war and intend to insist on a big part in the coming peace, especially in regard to planning of homes, spokesmen for women's organizations indicated at the fifth session of the London Women's Parliament.

"The government has called us out at all hours of the day and night to clean railway carriages, to cook grub in the canteens and to work in aircraft factories," said Mrs. E. E. Langford.

"And after the war we intend to have some say in the kind of Britain we want. One thing we want is better housing. We don't want the kind of homes where, if you open the front door, you get blown out the back door."

Mrs. Jean Cannon, mother of two, who works in the same aircraft factory as her husband, said space should be the first consideration in new homes. The kitchen should be a real "workplace" with at least two drain boards, adequate refrigerator space, and finished with damp-and-heat-resisting paint.

All the women at the conference represented women's associations.

Bandsman Up For Preliminary Trial at Cobourg

Cobourg, Dec. 15 — (CP)—Evidence was taken yesterday in a manslaughter charge against bandsman Frederick Poole of No. 11 Machine Gun Training Centre Band, Camp Borden.

The charge arose from the death Oct. 29 of bandsman Herbert R. Johnson of Toronto, member of the same unit as the accused, after a fight between the two men at the Armories Oct. 18.

Cpl. William Arrowsmith, also a member of the band, testified that before band rehearsal Oct. 18 when bandsman Gordon Lang began to practice on the cornet, Poole told him "to save his lip until the rehearsal."

"Johnson told Poole to mind his own business and there followed an exchange of words between the two," witness said. After practice the argument was resumed and Poole and Johnson began fighting.

Later on parade Johnson complained of feeling ill and was permitted to break off, Arrowsmith testified, and that night was taken to Christie Street hospital in Toronto, where he died.

Bandsman Lang corroborated Cpl. Arrowsmith's account of the incident, adding that he believed Johnson had struck his head on a table in the scuffle.

Bandsman George Thicket testified that both Poole and Johnson had been drinking beer before the fight.

Preliminary hearing in the case was adjourned until Monday when the coroner who performed Johnson's post-mortem could be present.

Makes Fortune From 13th Book

Westerland, Devon, Dec. 15 — (CP)— Elizabeth Goudge is a superstitious author who made a fortune on her 13th book. "Green Dolphin Country," written after she wrote 12 children's stories and novels which had only mediocre success, brought $125,000 from the Louis B. Mayer film company.

Miss Goudge, 44, said she had never intended to write for "the flicks" and never went to the movies — "but I'll go to see this one!"

Daughter of a theology professor, she wrote a child's tale, "The Fairy's Baby," at 18 and has written steadily since then. "But I was always superstitious and never thought my 13th book would be my best."

Background for "Green Dolphin Country" was taken from stories her mother told her about the Channel Islands of 100 years ago.

Libel with Malice Jury's Finding In Damage Suit

Toronto, Dec. 15 —(CP)— A special Assize Court jury hearing a libel suit for unstated damages filed by 16 C.C.F. candidates in the last Toronto civic elections against the Toronto Evening Telegram, M. A. Sanderson and Reliable Exterminators, early today returned a verdict of "libel with malice."

Damages of $1 each were awarded the 16 candidates.

The jury had retired for deliberations at 6:15 and returned at 1 a.m.

In bringing in the verdict the foreman of the jury announced: "The jury has unanimously agreed that there is defamation of character, with malice and libel and assessed contemptuous damages of $1 to each of the 16 plaintiffs."

J. R. Cartwright, counsel for the plaintiffs, moved for a judgment with costs, but Mr. Justice J. K. Mackay said he was reserving his decision on the motion and would on a later occasion hear arguments as to cost.

The action arose as a result of an advertisement inserted by Sanderson, manager of Reliable Exterminators, who often published political ads, in the Telegram of Dec. 31, 1943.

Plaintiffs in the case were: William Dennison, Professor Geo. Grube, Herbert Orliffe, Eva Sanderson, Murray Cotterill, Russell Gee, Nina L. Dean, John V. McGuigan, Barbara Cass-Beggs, Eva Carr, Patrick O'Donovan, Harry L. McKinstry, Robert E. Jones, Maxwell Armstrong, Charles Negraych and Pattie Tanner.

The jury had to decide whether the plaintiffs had been libelled when they were referred to as "Communists," "Communist-controlled rubber stamps" or associates of Communists as stated in the advertisement.

Two V.C. Winners Arrive by Plane In Toronto Today

Toronto, Dec. 15 (CP)—Two of Canada's Victoria Cross winners—Maj. John K. (Jack) Mahony, 33, of New Westminster, B.C., and David V. Currie, 32 of Moose Jaw, Sask., and Owen Sound, Ont. —arrived in Toronto by plane early today.

For Maj. Mahony, it was his first plane ride and he admitted being "a bit nervous." Maj. Currie was wearing the same greasy overalls he wore when making a dash from the European battlefront recently to Buckingham Palace to be decorated by the King.

They were greeted by Maj.-Gen. A. E. Potts, officer commanding Military District No. 2 (Toronto). Both will spend part of the day here. Maj. Currie will leave tonight by train for Owen Sound where his wife and son, David, are at her home. It is expected they will go to Moose Jaw next week.

Maj. Mahony will take a plane late today for Vancouver.

Their arrival was not announced previously and whereabouts of the two men was not made known.

Maj. Mahony, slim quiet-mannered young man and former newspaper carrier in New Westminster, won the Victoria Cross, the highest award for valor in the British Empire, for heroism at the Melfa river beachhead in Italy. Announcement of his award was made last July 13. Won V.C. in France.

Maj. Currie, tall former mechanic and welder for the city of Moose Jaw, won the highest award in the British Empire for gallantry at Saint Lambert-Sur-Dives last Aug. 24 in the heavy-fighting days of the Palaise Gap when his small reconnaissance force chopped down some 3,000 Germans in three sleepless days and nights of battle.

An officer of the South Alberta reconnaissance regiment, he became the seventh and latest Canadian to win the V.C. in this war. Announcement of the award was made Nov. 27.

His citation said that all the officers under his command were either killed or wounded and "when his force was finally relieved, and he was satisfied that the turnover was complete, he fell asleep on his feet and collapsed"

He is the third fighting man to bring the V.C. to Owen Sound. In the First Great War, Pte. Tommy Holmes was one of the youngest winners of the award and Air Marshal W. A. (Billy) Bishop, famous air ace, was the other Owen Sounder to win the V.C.

Legislative Curbs Decried by Banker

Toronto, December 15 — (CP)— Canada will solve her post-war problems if her people are not hampered by restrictive and class legislation, said C. H. Carlisle, president of the Dominion Bank at the bank's annual meeting on Wednesday.

It would be necessary, the president said, to avoid undue increase of the national debt, to allow free and competitive enterprise in industry, compulsory incorporation of all organized groups with equal rights and responsibilities, simplification of the Canadian tax system and restriction of personal and corporate activity. He said he deplored "socialistic and communistic propaganda (was) now rife throughout Canada."

The rights and responsibilities of each province are set forth in the B.N.A. Act and the assumption of any greater rights by a province leads to discord and disunity, Carlisle declared.

Analyzing the bank's financial statement, Robert Rae, general manager, noted profits of $825,000 for the fiscal year ended October 31, 1944, an increase of $11,000 from the previous year. The balance at credit and loss increased by $106,000 to a total of $1,071,000 after dividends of $680,000 Dominion Government taxes of $894,508 and other expenses. Deposits totalled $247,839,000, an increase of $60,121,000. Quick assets of $196,754,000 were equal to 77.45 per cent. of all liabilities to the public. Commercial loans increased to $65,750,000.

Caterers Praise English Cooking

London, Dec. 15 —(CP)— English country hotels will drop their continental male chefs after the war and employ English women cooks to give their guests honest-to-goodness English food if a report prepared by British catering experts finds favor among hotel proprietors.

"The highly-flavored continental sauces are right for continental meat and fish, which lack flavor and would otherwise be tasteless," says the report. "This island produces the finest cooking material in the world, and needs no sauces to camouflage its quality. Our roast and grill is the envy of European countries. We produce vegetables and fruit of better quality . . . The post-war aim of our country hotels should be to foster the individuality of good old-fashioned English cooking before it becomes a lost art."

DeGAULLE IN CAIRO

New York, Dec. 15 — Gen DeGaulle has arrived by plane in Cairo on his return trip from Moscow, the American Broadcasting station in Europe reported last night in a broadcast.

ALLEGED REVOLVER USED

Hamilton, Dec. 15 — (CP)—Dominic Legato, 38, yesterday was fined $20 for selling a revolver without permission to Victor Freeman, one of several men questioned in connection with the shooting Dec. 2 of Arthur Sutherland of Hamilton at a nearby Stoney Creek tourist camp. The revolver allegedly was used in the incident.

London — (CP) — Maj.Gen. Eric V. H. Fairtlough, D.S.O., awarded the Order of the Redeemer of Greece and the White Eagle of Serbia during the First Great War, has died, aged 57.

THREE SAVED FROM FUMES

Toronto, Dec. 15 — (CP) — Mrs. John Horton of suburban Weston, and her daughters, Mary, 22, and Rebecca, 18, narrowly escaped death from coal gas fumes in their home yesterday, police said. A neighbor who saw Mrs. Horton help one daughter out the front door, carried out the second girl. Both daughters were unconscious.

Maldon, Essex — (CP) — Ten cottages for disabled men and two for widows who have lost sons in the war are proposed as a war memorial at Maldon.

Frank McCool, Toronto Goalie, Gives Finished Display as Leafs Earn 2-2 Draw With Canadiens

Hill and Davidson Score for Leafs With Only 12 Men in Uniform

By The Canadian Press

The blame for Montreal Canadiens' failure to make the National Hockey League race a repeat of last year's runaway can be laid at the door of one team — Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Torontonians again last night proved themselves the champions' premier stumbling-block by fighting to a 2-2 draw at Montreal with only 12 men in uniform.

The impasse gave Leafs sole possession of second place over the idle Detroit Red Wings and left the Frenchmen with only one victory in five games against Hap Day's crew this year.

The undermanned Leafs, playing with two makeshift forward lines, showed remarkable vitality in throttling the powerful Montreal attack, and goalie Frank McCool helped out by having one of his good nights. He was particularly effective during a blistering Canadien assault in the dying minutes of the game.

Mel Hill shot Leafs into a one-goal lead nearly halfway through the initial period when he collared a pass by Lorne Carr to beat Bill Durnan cleanly. Canadien comet Maurice Richard got it back four minutes later.

Centre Elmer Lach shifted the pressure to the visitors midway thru the second by beating McCool on a ganging play, but dependable Bob Davidson equalized three minutes later by converting Ted Kennedy's neat passout. Toe Blake and Emile (Dutch) Bouchard drew assists on both Montreal goals.

BRAVES ROUT LACHINE

Valleyfield, Que., Dec. 15. (CP)—Valleyfield Braves routed Lachine Rapids 11-4 in an inter-provincial hockey league game here last night.

Joannette and Gibbon each scored three goals for the league's leaders while Poissant earned two points for his team. The other Braves points were registered by Boyer, Anderson and Connolly.

Armand was responsible for two of Lachine's goals. The other two were scored by Morrow and Champagne.

Southhampton, England — (CP)—From D-Day to Sept. 23, 1,002,965 tons of cargo were handled by the Southern Railway's docks here. Train ferries from here to Cherbourg completed 65 return trips in the same period.

Sport Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
(AP Sport Writer)

New York, Dec. 15 — (AP) — When the boxing champions who marched off to war come back to defend their "frozen" titles, they likely will find a new generation of fighters ready to challenge . . . Since the ranks of "name" fighters were thinned out a couple of years ago, such guys as Beau Jack and Ike Williams have come to the top—and maybe reached their limit . . . Then there's Johnny Greco, the walloping Montreal Welterweight who meets Bobby Ruffin in a re-match at the Garden tonight . . . Boxing men figure Johnny, who has been released from the Canadian Army, would be at least a contender any year . . . Farther down the line but still showing distinct signs of class are Tony Janiro, the Youngstown, O., youngster, Billy Arnold and Billy Fox, a pair of Philadelphia punchers (Fox has 35 straight knockouts); Danny Bartfield who soon will fight his first Garden main event, Freddie Schott, Jimmy Doyle and Harold Green . . . Some of them may also enter the services, some may not live up to their promise, but its a cinch the returning servicemen will find some good, tough boys waiting.

PROVIDENCE REDS SUFFER SHUTOUT

(By The Canadian Press)

Indianapolis Capitals strengthened their grip on the leadership of the Western Division of the American Hockey League by shutting out Providence Reds 5-0 last night.

It was the first victory registered by the Capitals over the Reds in four attempts.

Goalie Connie Dion who joined the Caps a week ago gave a sensational performance in net-minding.

Hewson with the assistance of Thibault and M. Skinner succeeded in breaching the Providence fortress after more than 15 minutes of play in the second period. From then on the Caps found the going easier. A second goal was scored in the second period by Leswick.

Howcinak, Skinner and Thomson were the Indianapolis scorers in the third frame during which Cotlow of Reds drew a major penalty for misconduct.

What's Doing in Sport

To raise funds to promote baseball in the smaller centres within its jurisdiction, the Western Counties Baseball Association at its annual meeting yesterday at Chatham decided to oraganize three all-star games to be played at London, Sarnia and Tilbury next summer. Secretary Bill Farquharson of London declared that the intercounty league had raised $590 through an all-star attraction in the forest city last season. In moving that the special games be staged, E. J. Marnell of Tilbury urged members of the Western Counties executive to do promotional work in places where interest had died down.

Because of heavy snow, harness racing at Dufferin Park, Toronto, has been called off until Christmas Day, it was announced at the track last night. Due to conditions, trainers have been exercising the equines on the street near the park.

Ben Duffy, a sailor, last night administered the first knockout to Jackie Paterson, flyweight champion of Britain, in a non-title bout at Glasgow. Paterson went down in the seventh round.

Seized by Mexican government officials Wednesday in behalf of the Arguello Brothers, the $3,000,000 Agua Caliente racetrack at Tijuana, Mex., yesterday became the centre of a new dispute when another group of Arguello heirs entered claim to the property. It was stated the second group represented 96.6 per cent of the rightful heirs.

UNLIMITED NIGHT BASEBALL MAY BE BOOMERANG

Figures Show Attendance Drops as Number of Night Games Go Up

New York, Dec. 15. (AP)—The threatened epidemic of major league night baseball games for 1945, resulting from the do-as-you-please permit handed club owners at the annual convention, may be a boomerang.

For the '44 figures show the average night attendance, while a bit over the day average, drops off as the number of nocturnal tills goes up.

Headed by Washington's Clark Griffith, eight of the 11 Moguls possessing lighting facilities intend to stage more than the previously allotted 14 night attractions. Griffith said his Senators, starting May 10, would play all games at night except Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.

Brooklyn, Cincinnati and New York Giants are expected to play 14 games in their home parks, with all the others going over that figure.

Last season's attendance figures show night baseball can be overdone. Washington, playing 42 such games—tops in the majors—drew 222,896 fans as compared to 22,339 for 34 daylight contests. The Browns, second with 32 after-dark events, were next to the bottom in average night attendance with 9,125, despite having a pennant winner.

On the other hand Cleveland, with the League's low of 15 night games, led all clubs with a 15,002 average.

The Giants, playing only 14 night games, led the National in total attendance and paced the arc-light circuit with an average of 17,764 fans while the Cards and Phillies, with a host of after-dark contests, finished far behind.

BIG SEVEN

(By The Canadian Press.)

Toe Blake of Canadiens collected two points last night as Montreal tied 2-2 with Toronto Maple Leafs. Blake now is only three points behind top-scorer Bill Cowley of Boston Bruins. Elmer Lach of Canadiens who collected one point moves ahead of Clint Smith of Chicago and Gus Bodnar of Toronto. Maurice Richard of Canadiens with 16 goals to his credit holds fourth position while Bill Jennings and Herb Cain both of Boston are sharing the cellar position.

Richard, Canadiens	16	5	21

Charge For Service

A Scotsman, arrested for being drunk, put forward an unusual excuse.

"I wasna' drunk," he said to the magistrate. "It was just I found myself outside a kirk, and knowin' ma unworthiness to gang inside, I knelt down on the steps."

"I see," said the magistrate. "You were holding a little service on your own. Well, we will now take up the collection. Pay seven-and-sixpence."

Change Puck Rules.

One of these season's the hockey moguls are going to forget to make the odd change in their playing regulations and the fans won't recognize the game.

Scribe, Billy Westwick in the Ottawa Journal has been doing a little research work of his own regarding the most recent changes in hockey playing rules. Interesting on the subject, Bill's comments are as follows: "Last season if a player on the attacking team preceded the puck carrier over the opposing blue line, there was no whistle if it seemed likely the defending team could make an interception and break away on their own. This season the rule calls for a whistle the moment the puck has crossed the opposing blue line if another member of the attacking team has preceded it into the defending zone. Other changes leave a great deal to the judgment of the officials. In one instance an attacking player may not shoot from his own side of the centre red line unless the shot is on the net. In that case a goal would count, but an icing whistle results if the puck passes the penalty shot line and no goal is scored."

Referee's Judgment.

Continuing on the subject the Ottawa scribe adds: "However, the puck can still be sent forward from any spot in the attacking team's territory, and drift down over the opposition's penalty shot line without a whistle, if, in the opinion of the referee, it is a well intended pass and there is reasonable chance of the receiver taking it," continues Br'er Westwick. "It is strictly up to the official to judge on such occasions whether or not it was a legitimate pass attempt and not merely dumping the puck into the opposition's territory to get rid of it. Another change requires the receiver taking a pass from his defence zone on his own side of tha centre red line. Last year the receiver could follow the rubber over the centre line and take it there, but this season he must touch it or carry it over the centre stripe except, of course, if the pass is delivered from outside the attacking side's blue line. The icing rule leaves a great deal to the judgment of the referees. If, on such an occasion, a member of the defending side has a chance to play the puck and doesn't, the play is not stopped. This is another instance where it is left strictly to the officials' discretion."

Good Old Dit.

During a fanning bee with the boys in the back room the other p.m. the name of Aubrey (Dit) Clapper, Hastings' gift to the N.H.L., came up. Some of the boys were wondering just how long the Hastings campaigner had been negotiating the ice lanes under the big tent and how his long service record compared with other old-timers.

The records show that Clapper, currently playing his 18th season of major league hockey, has only to finish out this campaign to join Reginald (Hooley) Smith as the only player ever to play that long.

Smith's career, during the course of which he scored exactly 100 goals, began in 1924-25 with Ottawa and ended in 1941-42 with New York Americans. In the interim he played with Montreal Maroons and Boston Bruins.

However, Clapper, who has been a member of the Bruins throughout, his National League career, has already eclipsed one mark—that for service with a single club. The old mark was held by Aurel Joliat who served 16 consecutive seasons with the Montreal Canadiens.

Next to Clapper the oldest player currently active in the N.H.L. is that doughty warrior of the Chicago Black Hawks, Harold (Mush) March.

March joined the Hawks in the season of 1928-29 and has been with them ever since which means that he is playing his 17th season.

Remember When.

Winnipeg's Billy Marquart was removed as a contender for the lightweight boxing championship five years ago tonight when he was knocked out in New York's Madison Square Gardens by Lew Jenkins who later went on to beat Lou Ambers and take the title.

JOHNNY GRECO TO MEET RUFFIN

New York, Dec. 15 — (CP)—Promoter Mike Jacobs said today he expects a crowd of 17,000 or more to pay around $100,000 to see Johnny Greco, Montreal lightweight, and Bobby Ruffin of Long Island tangle for 10 rounds or less tonight in Madison Square Garden.

They met in a sizzling 10-round scrap Nov. 17, with hard-hitting Greco, recently discharged from the Canadian Army, winning by a close margin.

Ruffin has never been kayoed, but he came close to spoiling that record against the Canadian when he elected to slug it out instead of boxing.

Greco is a slight favorite to repeat his victory. The Canadian, at 143½ pounds, is expected to have about a three-pound edge.

Toronto, Dec. 15 — (CP) — That recurring problem that always bothers Montreal Canadiens fans is perplexing Dink (Montreal Gazette) Carroll again, namely, why do Toronto Leafs always put up such a fight when they meet the Habitants? That, says Dink, is one of the "mysteries of a league full of mysteries." It must be those extra doses of blood and iron the Leafs were promised before the season started . . .

Migration South:

Reports from the west say that New Westminster Lodestars, last season's western Allan Cup finalists who were edged out by Port Arthur, have moved in a body to Seattle south of the border to carry on their activities. It's also rumored the boys may try for the Allan Cup again next spring, coming back to New Westminster and playing from that base if the rules permit it.

Long Walk:

George Redding of Hamilton, Ont. who spent some little time on the hockey front in Britain before the war, told Red Burnet of the Toronto Star how he quelled a threatened strike of players on the other side. Redding quickly brought the boys, all transplanted Canadians, into line when he told them if they didn't do as he said their contracts would be broken and they would have to walk home.

Here to There:

It makes the next-to-the-younger-generation feel like old-timers to learn that Hap Day of Toronto Leafs has been around the professional hockey ranks for 20 years now . . . Leafs are expecting Johnny McCreedy back any day now. He has applied for his discharge from the R.C.A.F. . . . Neil Colville, former New York Ranger, is well on the way back to the big league also. He will soon graduate as aircrew member and go into the R.C.A.F. reserve . . . The youngster who starts now to learn the goaltending trade will have far more chance of success than any incipient forward or defenceman, says Al (Montreal Herald) Parsley, looking over the current sparse crop of netminders.

THE BRIGHT STAR OF PEACE

In 1778, Port Hope was a trading-post, and was called Toronto. Four years later, United Empire Loyalists came to settle there. The name was changed to Port Hope in 1817, in honor of Colonel Henry Hope, then Lieutenant-Governor of Upper Canada. From an engraving by W. H. Bartlett in 1840, and now in the John Ross Robertson collection, Toronto Public Libraries.

TODAY, the name "Port Hope" is just that . . . a port of hope for a suffering humanity.

In lead shields in the great refinery at Port Hope glow tiny crystals, radium wrought with infinite patience from the pitchblendes of Eldorado in Canada's North.

Port Hope's was the first radium refinery on the continent. Established in 1933, it completed production of its first ounce of radium in 1936. Since that time, its precious product has gone forth like the bright star of Bethlehem to bring peace and relief from pain. Canada now leads the world in the production of radium.

From tiny trading-post in the wilderness to thriving, bustling town known the world over for its contribution to civilization . . . that is the history of Port Hope.

And that, too, is the history of Canada . . . proof of what we can do in the years to come, when all the horrors of war are over, and the bright star of Peace shines upon a good earth.

Let us have faith in this Canada Unlimited of ours. For Christmas, give Victory Bonds and War Savings Certificates and Stamps. They, too, are bright stars of Peace, weapons of Victory, shining upon a fearless future in a Canada Unlimited.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 538.
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Slambitious players should approach a slam, gathering needed information on the way. Because they must first know what will be trump and whether they have enough tricks.

Stick with this pair of partnership hands:

SOUTH
♠A K Q J 10 6
♥K Q 9 5
♦7 4 2
♣None
NORTH
♠9 3
♥A 10 4 2
♦A 8 5 3
♣K 6 4

The bidding has progressed this far:

SOUTH	NORTH
1 S	1 NT
3 S	3 NT
4 H	?

By bidding spades twice before showing hearts, south shows six spades and four hearts. With two spades and four hearts, north knows their pair holds eight cards in each major suit.

There is a maxim for a pair of bridge partners with the same number of cards in each of two suits. It is: Prefer the trumps to be in the suit most evenly divided in the two hands.

Therefore, north knows their final trump suit should be hearts. But how can he announce that to south? If he is not interested in a slam he need only pass the four heart bid.

But the south one-jump to three spades promised eight tricks. With his own four, north sees 12 tricks; possibly enough for slam in hearts. So, a pass of four hearts is too tame.

However, to know if a slam is safe, north must know about the aces and kings. So, instead of passing four hearts or hopping to six, north bids four no-trump; the ace and king asker.

South replies with five spades; The Kibitzer's convention for showing only one ace and two kings. With that information, north goes to six hearts.

Now, all south has to do is to make it.

Believe Overdose Of Sleeping Drug Taken Purposely

Beverly Hills, Calif., Dec. 15—(AP)—Lively Lupe Velez, whose gay and excitable spirit made her one of filmdom's most colorful figures, is dead.

Her suicide, while four months pregnant, was as spectacular as her meteoric rise from a 15-year-old shopgirl in Mexico to a famous movie actress.

The 34-year-old actress was found dead in her lavishly-furnished home yesterday. An overdose of a hypnotic drug was ascribed by the examining physician as the probable cause of death. Police said they believed the overdose was deliberate.

Tucked into the pillow case of Lupe's silk-sheeted bed were two notes, in her handwriting, that indicated premeditation and the motive for her death.

One, addressed only to Harald but which police said was for Harald Ramond-Maresch, French actor known in Hollywood as Harold Ramond, said:

"May God forgive you and forgive me, too, but I prefer to take my own life away and our baby's before I bring him with shame, or killing (sic) him. How could you, Harald, fake such great love for me and our baby when all the time you didn't want us? I see no other way out for me, so goodbye and good luck to you. Love, Lupe."

Police Agree on Suicide

Capt. W. W. White of the Beverly Hills police department reported to the coroner's office that Miss Velez apparently had taken her own life.

To Capt. White Ramond said:

"I told Lupe I would marry her if she was expecting an infant. I told her of my great love for her and begged her to marry me. She laughed and said she wasn't expecting a baby at all, that the whole thing was only a joke."

A short time ago Lupe gaily told reporters she was going to marry Ramond, formerly in the French army, because "He's the only man who knows how to handle Lupe."

Then Lupe and Harald were said to have quarrelled over politics and she announced they were through and added that she was going on to New York and forget about romance.

An autopsy showed Lupe would have become a mother in 5 months.

Left Note to Secretary

To Lupe's secretary, Mrs. Beulah Kinder, whom she addressed as "My dear friend", she left a note saying: "You and only you know the facts for the reason I am taking my life. May God forgive me and don't think bad of me . . . So goodbye and try to forgive me . . ."

The former sweetheart of many of filmdom's great, including the late John Gilbert, Arturo de Cordoya, producer Winfield Sheehan and Gary Cooper, had said she was tired of everything. Her only marriage, to Johnny (Tarzan) Weismuller, one-time Olympic swimming star, ended with divorce.

CHURCHILL

Russia's Terms Just.

"The liberation of Poland", said Mr. Churchill, "may presently be achieved by the Russian armies after those armies have suffered millions of casualties in breaking the German military machine.

"I cannot feel that the Russian demands for reassurance about her western frontiers go beyond the limit of what is reasonable or just. Marshal Stalin and I also spoke and agreed upon the need for Poland to obtain compensation at the expense of Germany both in the north and in the west".

This was perhaps the first chief-of-state declaration that Germany would be sliced up after victory.

"Our British principle", he said, "has been enunciated that all territorial changes must await the conference at the peace table after victory has been won but to that there is an exception in principle. That exception is changes mutually agreed. That must not be forgotten".

Of Poland's loss in land in the east, he said flatly "this is a great gift they have to give to Russia".

He said he saw little hope of reconciliation between the London Poles and Soviet-sponsored Lublin group

"Already" he said solemnly, "I imagine the prospects of reconciliation between the Polish government and the Lublin committee with the Soviet Government behind them have definitely receded, though they might perhaps advance again were Mr. Mikolajczyk able to speak with authority for the fortunes of the Polish nation".

In opening a full-dress review of the Polish problem—one of the grimmest confronting the United Nations—the Prime Minister reminded the House he had cautioned Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, recently-resigned Polish prime minister, of the danger of delaying efforts to reach a solution.

He maintained that if Mikolajczyk had returned to Moscow "after the very friendly conversations which passed between him and Marshal Stalin" and with members of the rival Soviet-sponsored National Liberation Committee, "the difficulties inherent in the formation of a Polish government in harmony with the Lublin committee might well have been overcome."

Intimating strongly that Britain seriously regretted Mikolajczyk's withdrawal from the London Polish government, Mr. Churchill said the former premier "and his colleagues were more qualified to fill the place" of the late Gen. Sikorski "than any other of the Polish leaders."

He told the House that if Mikolajczyk had returned to Moscow "he would be at this moment at the head of a Polish government on Polish soil, recognized by all the United Nations and awaiting the advance of the Russian army moving into Poland as the country was delivered from the Germans."

Draws New Map.

Speaking of this suggestion that Russia be granted parts of pre-war Poland, Mr. Churchill said:

"I cannot believe such an offer could be rejected by Poland," and added that it would have to be accompanied "by a disentanglement of populations in the west and the north and the transfer of several millions of people from the east to the west and north and the total expulsion of the Germans."

Standing before a tensely-attentive House, Mr. Churchill verbally drew a new map of central Europe.

"If Poland gives Lvov and the surrounding area on the south known as the Curzon Line—if Poland makes this concession and these lands are joined to the Ukraine—Poland will gain the north all of East Prussia south and west to Koenigsberg, including Danzig, one of the most magnificent cities in the world, famous for centuries and a great gathering place for the trade of the Baltic, and indeed, of the world."

He said that "instead of the threatened and artificial corridor built up so laboriously after the last war, Poland would stretch broadly across the Baltic along 200 miles. The Poles are free so far as Russia and Britain are concerned to extend their territory at the expense of Germany to the west."

He scoffed at Opposition protests made previously by Poles here that a plan along this line would mean sacrifice of one third of Poland.

"That," he said, "includes vast tracts of the Pripet Marshes, a most desolate region which, though it swells the acreage, does not add to the wealth of those who own it."

Must be Clean Sweep

He emphasized that there must be a clean sweep — a transfer to prevent a "mixture of population to cause endless struggle as in Alsace-Lorraine." He maintained that such "transferences" are "more possible than they ever were before through modern conditions."

"Nor do I see," he said, "that there should not be room in Germany for the German population of East Prussia and of the other territories I have mentioned. After all, 6,000,000 or 7,000,000 Germans have been killed already in this dreadful war into which they did not hesitate for a second time in a generation to plunge all Europe and the world.

"At present we are told that there are 10,000,000 or 12,000,000 prisoners or foreigners used as slaves in Germany who will, we hope, be restored to their own homes when victory is gained. Moreover, we may expect that many more Germans will be killed in the fighting which will occupy the spring and summer and which will involve the fiercest and largest battles fought in this war."

Contrasting Reaction.

Significantly, Mr. Churchill's speech drew a reaction sharply contrasting to that which followed his address just a week ago on Britain's policy in Greece, Italy, and Belgium.

This time, it was members of his own Conservative party who arose to criticize, and those who lean to the left who gave him support.

From Morgan Philips Price, Labor, came the assertion:

"Some Poles . . . live in the land of make-believe. They still think that Russia can be kept back as a weak power. The time has come to speak plainly. Our patience is not inexhaustible. The Polish government is fast losing its appeal."

Conservative Alan Graham sharply inquired: "Is it any wonder that Mikolajczyk and the Polish government refuse to set their hands to what would be nothing less but the suicide warrant for their nation."

Independent Heard.

On the other hand, Miss Eleanor Rathbone, an Independent, struck out at what she called a "growing disposition to treat Russia as a nerve doctor treats a highly hysterical patient."

"If we are to look forward to years of post-war co-operation with Russia—let us put it plainly—Russians have to get accustomed, whether they like it or not, to our habit of speaking our minds," she said.

Conservative K. W. Pickthorn jibed at Mr. Churchill with the suggestion that the Prime Minister did not appear to have read the Atlantic Charter.

"I do not know who composed it," he said, "and I do not suppose Mr. Churchill has read it. Mr. Churchill has told the House that there was a special proviso in the Atlantic Charter about mutual agreement for territorial changes. There was nothing of the sort."

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was looking at pop drinking his 2nd cup of coffee this morning and she said, There you sit, as snug as a bug in a proverbial rug, poring cream into your coffee without a thought of the time and trouble it may of meant for others.

You wrong me, my dear, pop said. I fully realize that this cream, even at its thin wartime strength, is a simbol of great herds of patient cows loyally standing in line waiting to be milked under relaxed sanitery condition, he said, and ma said, Never mind all the cows. Just think of one patient woman trying a dozen different markets just to find a bottle of Victory cream for your breakfast. I knew if you didn't have cream for your coffee this morning you'd be wearing an expression like a lost egg without salt. Yet there you sit, like a tipical man, enjoying it like one of the manner born, she said.

My dear I still insist it's a woman's world, pop said. Only yesterday, as a matter of fact, I tramped from one shop to another just to make your life a little more worth living. I must of tried 9 drugstores before I found one with Queen Billy cigars, I realize that I'm a Frankenstein monster if I have to smoke anything but Queen Billies, and it seems that practically all the Queen Billies have marched off to war. But I plodded on an on, haunted by the thought of your having to put up with the baser side of my nature, til at last my patience was rewarded. I'm sure you remember how sweet tempered I was last evening, and how tenderly I got up to close the door the 3rd time you complained of feeling a draft, he said.

Oh hush up and keep quiet, such a man, ma said.

Meaning him.

AN APPLE FOR EVE

By Kathleen Norris

CHAPTER 16

"How about a sandwich and a glass of milk for me?" Chris asked.

"Oh-well, of course!" Loveday answered, a little confused. "I'll take these children upstairs and settle them down and see what I can find."

"I suppose it would be completely useless to expect you to run off with me somewhere for lunch?"

"Completely. . . . Oh, what sticky hands!" Loveday said to the little girls. "Come along, sweets. I'll be back in ten minutes, Chris."

She had changed her dress when she reappeared carrying a tray. She wore a thin tennis frock of striped blue and darker blue, with a red leather belt and a bunch of red shining cherries on her shoulder. In her ears she had put red cherry earrings; she laughed ingenuously as she saw his pleasure in her appearance.

"This is my new outfit, and I thought that if ever there was an occasion for it this was the occasion. When I bought it-in Indian Hill, by the way, and for three ninety-five-I didn't dream I'd have a distinguished New York playwright for luncheon!"

"It's charming," Chris said, "and I don't believe that three-ninety-five stuff for one minute!"

"What do you know about dresses?"

"Not much. But something of women. I've known women to pay more than a hundred dollars for a dress like that-at one of the Avenue stores."

"Those shops! Oh, it must be so exciting," Loveday said, half-serious, half yearning, "to have the saleswomen come out and show you dresses and hats and furs and lovely thin silk coats and shawls, and to have everything new-a touch of this and a twist of that to show every woman who meets you that you belong, that you know what you're wearing! Just once."

"I've been wondering why you couldn't take a little holiday and see New York. In October, say. That's the best month of the year. We could take a run up to Connecticut, and you'd go out of your senses over the red leaves, and I'd take you to whatever first nights there were. Don't look so scared!" Chris interrupted himself, laughing. "I mean only for two or three weeks. It would be a break for you."

"A break!" she echoed, mildly scornful.

"Mother's going on with Nini for trousseau shopping," he reminded her. "My name doesn't have to come into it at all. I'd only have to say to Mother, 'why not bring Loveday? She needs a holiday,' and I bet she'd fall for it like a ton of CoosBay coal. I'd tell her that I might be there and might not, which is quite true."

"It all sounds too utterly open and frank and simple!" Loveday commented, and they both laughed. "A holiday like that would be dazzling beyond my wildest dreams," she went on seriously, "for I've never been anywhere, except to the convent, and while educational that wasn't exciting. But to go on with your mother and Nini and see Fifth Avenue and Rockfeller Center and Central Park! Larry and Annie Lum could run things here. I haven't the right clothes, of course—"

She stopped, quite breathless. Then the light died from her eyes and she shook her head.

"But of course it's quite impossible," she said, spacing and stressing her words slowly.

"Nonsense!" Chris said. "We aren't travelling by covered wagon these days. You get on a plane here at five o'clock in the afternoon and you lunch with me the next day-let me see where? I like the Chambord because it's Paris. But you might like-yes, we'd go to the Waldorf, just for the sound of it. Then we'd walk up to the park, looking in all the windows---"

"Ah stop, Chris! No fair! But someday I will-with Martha and Betsey to do the shopping. When Grandfather Gurney's money is found!"

She had turned the conversation deliberately; they fell to talking of the lost fortune and of the extraordinary chance of Hugh's discovery of his own identity. Loveday's eyes shone where she mentioned her brother.

"You can't think how thrilling it is to have this clever young Doctor suddenly with a room in our house, quite free to come and go here and to kiss me!"

"I might be able to have some ideas on that subject," Chris said dryly. He saw her bright color come up.

"Oh well!" She dismissed the question cheerfully. "But Hugh is an absolute darling," she went on. "He's working much too hard at camp. Now it's all the draftees and shots for typhoid and tetanus, and they keep sending new men in-and they had eleven cases of mumps!"

"And how much is this money, Loveday?"

"We don't know, of course. We don't know how much Grandfather spent or lost or wasted or what happened. Thre may be no money," Loveday conceded. "But all that piled-up granite stuff you saw yesterday below the orchard is for the foundations of a hospital, and of course if we find enough we'll build that hospital."

"Did you ever," he asked dreamily, looking toward the west, "climb to the balcony of that windmill?"

"Did I ever? I used to fairly live up there when I was quite a small girl."

"How do you get to the ladder?"

"Stairs inside, two flights, smelling of grain and mice and with no railings."

"Lets climb up there now?"

"Oh, Chris, I'd love to!" Loveday's eyes danced. "Wait until I speak to Annie Lum," she said.

A minute later they crossed the padlock and took the eucelyptus-scented lane to the old barn behind which the windmill stood. Loveday led the way up the dark stairways inside, stairways slippery with long polishing from sacks and straw. Sometimes she turned and extended to Chris her strong brown hand.

The air was aromatic and sweet. Loveday leaned her arms on the railing; Chris was silent; they fell into a moment of dreams.

"My daughters will be waking up," Loveday presently said, rousing herself. "I must go down."

"Oh, but this is so perfect!" Chris pleaded. "Hold it just a moment longer! I have been so happy and proud in my life, but I've never felt like this, up here between the earth and sky with you!"

"I've always loved the mill." Her elbows were on the rail, her back half turned toward him, when she felt his arms about her and felt him turning her about to kiss her on the lips.

For a moment she surrendered to the sheer breathless joy of it. Then quickly, with an abrupt manner and averted eyes, she started down the ladder again. When she reached the stairs below Chris was with her, and they descended the two flights in silence. But in the lane outside he took her hand, and their fingers were locked as they went toward the house. Neither spoke.

"What time would it be?" she asked suddenly when they were almost at the house. "Owen's awake; I can hear him."

"It's only quarter past three."

"Quarter past three!" She made the three words three separate exclamations. Her face flushed and her manner came hurried and uneasy. It was as if she sensed that she would find what she did when hey had crossed the paddock again and were in sight of the terrace. It was as if she had known that by some strange mischance her brother would be there and that Larry, with the crying Owen in his arms, would have by a second mischance have come home. His face a thundercloud; he was trying to fasten the dress of one twin while the other, undressed, crowded up against him, fretfully attempting to gain his attention.

The shining, nebulous glamour of the afternoon burst like some great soap bubble that had held too crystal a beauty in its trembling heart. Loveday felt an actual physical jar throughout her whole being as she crossed the terrace, smiling courageously, and took possession of the weeping Martha.

"Here, Mother'll button!" she said. "But you must get out of your nightie first. Did you have a nice sleep?"

"Stand still!" Larry said sharply to Betsey, who would also have gone to her mother's knee. With Owen in his lap he was clumsily trying to reach about the big baby boy to button the garment of the older child.

"I'll do them both, Larry!" Loveday was scarlet with shame.

"Stand still, Betsey, I tell you!" Larry growled. Betsey looked astonished for a second, then outraged, then burst into wild howling. Martha, bewildered, began to cry too, without knowing why. "Do you want to go upstairs and get a good whipping?" Larry said harshly.

"They're half asleep, Larry!" Loveday pleaded.

"Yes; well I'm not," Larry muttered sourly.

"Stay there, Betsey, and let Dad finish you," Loveday said.

Larry, his face dark without a glance for Loveday, raised the writhing and roaring Betsey by a firm grip on an arm and a leg, and muttering that he was not going to stand for any kid acting this way, and he carried her into the house.

Loveday and Chris were left alone on the terrace except for the scared small girl whose sandals and socks she was putting on.

"I presume I should be tactfully disappearing," Chris said after a silence in a tone of steel.

Loveday, trembling, made no answer.

"You didn't expect him?" Chris said briefly.

"Please, Chris," she muttered, suffocating.

Betsey came out of the house and announced:

"Daddy said he was goin to lie down and not to disturb him."

The simple statement indicated to Loveday that Larry was in a rage, and even when unprovoked and unreasonable, his anger always distressed her.

Hugh opened his small black bag and selected from a bottle three pills which he put in an envelope.

"Take those up to him; tell him to take one every hour until his head is all right again," he said; "but wait just a minute, my dear, because I can't stay. I've been trying to tell you that I think I've found the man who claimed the reward for finding me-or finding the baby who was supposed to be me. Your Grandfather--"

"Your grandfather too," Loveday put in smilingly.

"Mine too, of course! Our grandfather offered one thousand dollars for the discovery for anything throwing light on the baby's disappearance, and there was a police reward too. But I believe that was only for a conviction of kidnapping. Anyway, the family reward was the only one claimed."

"Oh, and who claimed it?"

"Some man named Al Harris."

"Oh? Al Harris! Goodness, how well I remember him. Where is he now?" Loveday asked, trying to sound interested.

"You remember him? You knew him?" Hugh gasped.

"Certainly I did. He was an orderly at the hospital, used to help Grandfather with operations—that sort of thing. I mean carrying stretchers and trays and so on. He was a miserable little rat," Loveday added thoughtfully. "I haven't seen him or thought of him for years."

"He left the hospital some years ago, and nobody seems to know where he is."

"I remember this of him," Loveday contributed, beginning to be interested, "that he came to my grandmother and asked if he could search around here for the missing money. Grandmother said she had no objection, and for weeks—months, maybe—he was gliding around the place, poking the earth with sticks and pulling dead leaves out of oak boles."

Ah-h-h!" Hugh exclaimed, taking out a small red notebook. Loveday laughed.

"You and your sleuthing!"

"We'd better get fingerprints off something at this point," Chris suggested lazily.

"Just answer me a few questions," Hugh said. "When did Harris stop his detective work?"

"Presumably when he found the money. He probably has a suite in the Ritz Tower," Chris contributed.

"He stopped when Grandmother told him to stop. It got everyone nervous," Loveday answered; "she finally told him she thought he had opportunity enough. 'If thee'd been going to find it, thee'd have found it, friend,' she said. I remember the morning. Grandmother's orders didn't satisfy him. Every little while he'd be here again on one pretext or another."

"Our task now is to find him," Hugh declared definitely, making another note in his book before putting it in his pocket.

"The point is this. He finds a child dressed in your brother's clothing. But your brother has been found and saved and is being brought up in France. How did that little suit get onto the wrong child?"

"It couldn't," Loveday said simply.

"Ah, but it did."

"He mightn't know anything about that."

"On the other hand, he might, and it might be something damn sinister," Hugh said darkly and then he left.

"I've got to go too," Chris said then, "after a happy day." Apparently, she thought thankfully, he was entirely unconscious of the existence of any cloud. "Will you walk with me to my car? Seriously," he added, as with a scrambling small girl on either side of her Loveday accompanied him to the front garden, "isn't there a chance that you might come on to New York with Mother? You'd be back after two weeks feeling set up for a long time."

"Oh, I know that!" she agreed, frowning faintly, looking away.

"I hate," he said, getting into his car, "to see a splendid race horse hitched to a plow. No, no, I didn't mean Larry," he interrupted himself hurriedly, laughing guiltily as she gave him a quick, suspicious half-smile. "I meant—all this."

"All this is my job."

"I suppose so. And you make it beautiful and worth while."

The house was hot and dark and smelled close when she turned and went in. She went slowly upstairs and looked into her room. Larry was there; the rumpled pillows showed that he had been lying down, but now an old suitcase was open on the bed and he was packing.

"Larry, what are you doing?"

"Oh, hello!" he said unsmiling. He looked thoughtfully at a folded pair of pajamas, put them in, took them out again.

"Larry, where are you going?"

"I am going away, my dear wife," Larry said with a sort of savage pleasantness.

"You are not," she said beginning to breathe hard.

"Oh yes, I am!"

Jury to Report For Hearing Of Libel Action

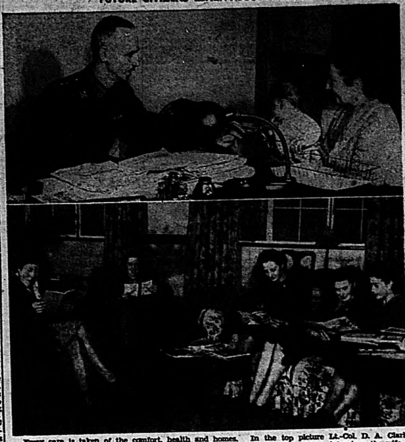
Toronto, Dec. 15 — (CP) — An assize court jury was to report today for hearing of a libel action brought against the Toronto Globe and Mail, M. A. Sanderson and Reliable Exterminators, Ltd., by 16 persons who were C.C.F. candidates in Toronto's municipal election.

"The case was similar to one which concluded early today in which the Toronto Evening Telegram, Sanderson and his firm were sued for unstated damages by the same 16 plaintiffs. The jury in this case returned a verdict of libel with malice and assessed "contemptuous damages" of $1 to each of the plaintiffs.

Earlier Mr. Justice Keiller MacKay had told the jury they could award contemptuous, nominal or substantial damages. He said contemptuous damages are assessed when a jury finds that the case should never have been brought to trial.

The suit which concluded this morning resulted from an advertisement Sanderson, who often published political advertisements over the name of his firm, inserted in the Telegram describing the plaintiffs as Communists or Communist-controlled. The suit against the Globe and Mail results from a similar advertisement.

FUTURE CITIZENS LEARN ABOUT CANADA.



Every care is taken of the comfort, health and welfare of British wives who have married Canadian service personnel overseas and are in London, a Canadian Wives' Bureau has been established, so that the future citizens of Canada may have a place in which to meet and get acquainted and be interviewed by Service authorities before their trip to their new homes. In the top picture Lt.-Col. D. A. Clarke, O.B.E., director of the bureau interviews the wife of a Canadian soldier. She is Mrs. E. Jackson, wife of Pte. E. Jackson, RCASC, with their son John. They will make their home in Toronto. Below is shown the interior of the spacious lounge at the Bureau, with wives reading literature about Canada.

The Salvation Army arranges Christmas parties where servicemen entertain the children of bombed and orphaned families, as part of its program for the Armed Forces. Here airmen, from one of the occupied countries now fighting in Britain entertain some of these small guests. Commissioner Orames, the Territorial Commander, urges this method of sharing the good things, and it has become very popular with servicemen because it helps bridge the gap of miles between his own family on Christmas Day, when he mad not have seen his children for a number of years.

Defence Minister Visits Owen Sound

By JACK BRAYLEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Owen Sound, Dec. 15 —(CP)—Defence Minister McNaughton arrived here today to launch his first political campaign with public appearances and discussions with Liberal Party organizers in preparation for the Grey North riding by-election scheduled for Feb. 5.

He was accompanied by Mrs. McNaughton and Revenue Minister Gibson.

A tentative itinerary calls for a brief speech by the General before party executives here tonight and a longer address before a political rally. He will speak extemporaneously.

He will return to Ottawa tomorrow night.

While here it is expected Gen. McNaughton will take part in welcoming ceremonies being planned for Maj. David Vivian Currie, Canada's seventh and most recent Victoria Cross winner, scheduled to be formally received in this, his wife's hometown, tomorrow.

Mayor Garfield Case of Owen Sound, has been nominated as the Progressive Conservative standard bearer and his party announced he will run against the new federal minister.

It will be the first time since the outbreak of the war, apart from the 1940 general election, that official opposition and government candidates have opposed one another at the polls. It will also be the first time a federal Progressive Conservative candidate has gone to the polls under the new name of the party and its leader, John Bracken.

Gen. McNaughton is going to meet the party executive later today when it will be decided if the press will be invited to tonight's executive dinner when the General may outline his policy on reinforcements.

ON ROMANTIC MISSION, FREED OF SMUGGLING CHARGE

Windsor, Dec. 15 —(CP)— Reginald Miles, Detroit machinist who came to Windsor on a romantic mission with engagement and wedding rings in the glove compartment of his car, yesterday was freed of a smuggling charge. However, Reg hasn't either the jewellery or his car—both seized by Customs—and admits ruefully that his proposed marriage to a Windsor girl is off, anyway. The judge recommended that the rings be returned.

PRIME MINISTER WOUNDED

London, Dec. 15 — (CP) — The Paris radio said today Hungarian Prime Minister Ferenc Szalasi has been seriously wounded in an attempted assassination. A week ago Szalasi was reported to have visited Adolf Hitler at the Fuehrer's secret headquarters.

PROMISES FRANK STATEMENT

Washington, Dec. 15 — (AP) — Staff Secretary Stettinius promised today to give a frank statement soon on United States policy with respect to British and Russian moves in Europe.

Mr. Stettinius avoided answering any news conference questions on Poland saying he had only fragmentary reports of Prime Minister Churchill's speech this morning and had not had time to analyze it.

QUASHES BY-LAW

St. Catharines, Dec. 15 — (CP)— In a one-hour written judgment delivered yesterday in city court, Magistrate J. H. Campbell quashed the city's 7 p. m. fruit store closing by-law. The Magistrate held the By-law "was bad and of no effect."

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 15 —(CP)— Base metals posted gains this afternoon on Toronto Exchange. Other groups were lower. Volume was 320,000 shares.

MacLeod-Cockshutt sold down to 2.15 and was holding at 2.20 for a net loss of 26 cents. Other soft spots in golds were Little Long Lac, Chesterville, Pioneer, Madsen, and Hard Rock. Giant, Frobisher and Conwest were higher Yellowknife issues.

Strength was showing in the base metals for Waite-Amulet and Smelters.

Food and utility issues worked higher, the steels were down a bit and senior oils and liquors had gains and losses. The new Canadian Locomotive stock, representing 25 per cent of the old stock, traded at 18.

WALL STREET

New York, Dec. 15 (AP)—Rails and selected industrials overrode considerable selling in today's stock market, one of the liveliest of past months, and new seven-year highs were widespread with gains running to a point or more.

While the pace generally was at a 2,000,000-share rate, top marks were reduced in the majority of cases near the fourth hour.

Huge amounts of idle investment funds gave a supporting influence to virtually all share divisions.

Prominent in the plus column were Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Great Northern, Sinclair Oil, U.S. Steel, Chrysler, U.S. Rubber, Douglas Aircraft, Johns-manville, Kennecott, Eastman Kodak, Sears Roebuck and Du Pont.

Canadian issues were mixed, Canadian Pacific, Dome Mines and Distiller Seagram posting fractional gains, while Hiram Walker and Canada 4s were unchanged. Lake Shore dropped 1-8.

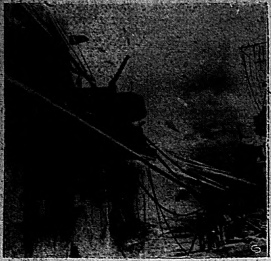
FIGHT TO SAVE THE PRINCETON



This photo, released by the U. S. Navy, shows part of the desperate battle waged to save the U.S.S. Princeton, light aircraft carrier, when she was set afire by enemy action in the second battle of the Philippines. Men of the Princeton and men of other warships joined to fight the flames. Eventually the order to abandon ship was given and the Princeton was sent to the bottom by guns of Allied warships. The great majority of her personnel was saved.

It can now be disclosed that many Belgian civilians were killed and others severely injured when a V-bomb exploded in the main crossroad of a Belgian city, resulting in scenes of indescribable horror. Canadian Farmers Set Production Records During the Past Year

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Dec. 15 — (CP) — As far as the agriculture department is concerned, Canada and her Allies can call the Canadian farmer the best Santa Claus that ever filled a bulging stocking.

For, officials said today, 1944 in many ways has been the kind of year they always want and seldom get, a year of pleasant surprises after hard uncertainties. For instance, they were anxious about drought conditions in some eastern sections, but the rain came when it was needed in most areas. They were concerned about feed reserves, but now there are sufficient.

Authorities said that the Canadian farmer in 1944 often did not mean a stalwart man with corded muscles. With 400,000 men and 100,000 women gone from the farm to the armed services or war industries, the Canadian farmer frequently was a man whose years had earned him rest or a child who should have more time to play.

Triumphant Figures

The triumphant figures showed what the farmers, young and old, strong and tired, had achieved in 1944 in piling new records of production on top of those established in past years: 448,000,000 bushels of wheat against 285,000,000 in 1943; 526,000,000 bushels of oats against 482,000,000; 204,000,000 bushels of barley from 1,000,000 fewer acres than were planted last year when production was 216,000,000; 53,000,000 bushels of mixed grains against 36,000,000; an estimated 8,925,000 hogs to be marketed against 7,150,000 in 1943. Average marketings in the five-year period 1936-40 were 4,038,000 head.

Other records: 1,320,000 beef cattle to be marketed against 1,044,000; 1,100,000 sheep and lambs to be marketed against 887,000; egg production 374,772,000 dozen against 332,527,000 dozen in 1943 and an annual average of 237,000,000 dozen in 1936-40. Some 75,000,000 dozen of this year's production will go to the United Kingdom.

New Poultry Record

Poultry meat produced in 1944 amounted to 289,000,000 pounds against 263,500,000 pounds in 1943. The 1936-40 average was 202,000,000 pounds. Production of milk in 1944 —17,600,000,000 pounds, an increase of three to five per cent over 1943—is meeting vast increases in home consumption and growing demands overseas.

Red Cross parcels for prisoners of war, now going out at the rate of 190,000 a week, include a pound of whole milk powder, a pound of butter and four ounces of cheese. Cheese — 125,000,000 pounds of it—now is being sent to the United Kingdom along with 300,000 cases of evaporated milk of 48 one-pound tins each. Cheese production is estimated at 177,000,000 pounds for 1944, against 162,000,000 pounds in 1943.

Because of the enlarged cheese production, butter output for 1944 will be down, being estimated at 296,000,000 pounds against 312,000,000 pounds in 1943.

Fruit Abundant

Fruit is abundant in 1944, with apple production 16,500,000 bushels against 13,000,000.

Peach production in 1944 is placed at 1,730,000 bushels against 633,000. Limitations in sugar supplies and canning equipment still restrict the amounts on sale in stores.

Corn production is 85,380 tons against 45,500; beans 13,000 tons against 8,560; peas 40,000 tons against 21,000 and tomatoes 250,000 tons against 167,000.

Officials said that in addition to continued labor shortages, farmers had to face difficulties in obtaining machinery. But since the war began overall farm production had increased 40 per cent, and exports of agricultural products to the United Kingdom had increased 226 per cent.

British Chemist Develops Wool Fibre From Peanuts

London, Dec. 15. —The development of a new synthetic wool fibre from peanuts, readily adaptable to mixture with real wool, cotton and rayon for the manufacture of inexpensive textiles, was announced today by Imperial Chemical Industries, Ltd.

David Trail, ICI scientist, predicted that it would yield warm, mothproof clothing from peanuts for millions who could not afford real wool. The synthetic fibre, called ardil, is made from protein from the peanuts after oil for industrial uses has been extracted. The residue is usable as cattle feed.

Mr. Trail said that the cost of producing ardil was expected to be about the same as the present cost of rayon, he added: "It is unlikely it will ever be cheaper than cotton, but it should be much cheaper than pure wool". The fibre, developed after ten years of experiments, has all the cold-resisting properties of real wool, Mr. Trail said. He added that it would hold dyes and was entirely moth-proof.

Sees More Losses for Nine Nations In Europe Than in Last 825 Years

Oklahoma City, Dec. 15 — (AP)— Dr. Lee Owens, head of the Oklahoma City University history department, predicts that nine European countries will suffer more casualties in the Second Great War than they have in all the other wars they have fought in the last 825 years combined.

Dr. Owens has just completed a study of war casualties for Britain, France, Germany, Italy, Austria, Poland, Lithuania, Denmark and Spain for the period between 1101 and 1925.

His figures show that during that period the total army strength of these countries was 171,607,800 men and there were 35,416,485 casualties. This does not include those who died from epidemics or other causes indirectly associated with war.

(Dr. Owens did not include Russia, he says, because he considers it an Asiatic nation, which was not engaged in any major wars until comparatively late in its history. However, his figures cover European sections of Russia which formerly were parts of some of the 9 countries he listed.)

"Naturally," he says, "there is no way to tell how many casualties have been suffered by these nine countries so far in this war. But conservative estimates, coupled with predictions of casualties in future battles, will bring the figure close to 40,000,000."

In an interview, Dr. Owens said his comparison of fighting men and casualties for the medieval and modern periods showed that during the 12th century only slightly less than three per cent of the men engaged were casualties while for the first 25 years of this century casualties numbered more than 35 per cent.

"If man continues to invent and use these iniquitous, diabolical machines for war, another conflict will carry these figures out of sight," Dr. Owens asserted.

TO CONFER WITH NIMITZ

Power Says He Had No Intention Of Criticizing Gen. Eisenhower

Ottawa, Dec. 15 —(CP)— Hon. C. G. Power, former Air Minister, said yesterday in an interview that there was no thought in his mind of criticizing Gen. Eisenhower in a speech he made in the Commons November 27.

"All my life, in sport and politics, I have practiced the strategy of striking my opponents again and again and giving them no rest and no respite," said Maj. Power. "Thus in referring to the Eisenhower plan of attack against Germany along those lines when I spoke in Parliament on November 27 last, there was no thought in my mind of criticizing the United Nations Supreme Commander in Northwest Europe."

(Maj. Power spoke in the Commons during the recent special session and explained that he had resigned his portfolio because of his opposition to conscription for overseas service which he felt was unnecessary at this time. He resigned after the government passed an order-in-council authorizing the sending of 16,000 home defence troops overseas.

(In explaining why he felt conscription was not necessary, Maj. Power said: "The strategy of Gen. Eisenhower . . . is to strike the enemy again and again, and to give him no rest and no respite. We are informed that in order to carry out this Eisenhower plan of war, reinforcements must be available and at hand to refill battalions and units within 24 hours after the casualties occur.

("I think I should draw to the attention of the House, and to the thousands of mothers, wives, sweethearts and dependents of those now in the front line that this repeated return to battle instead of making for less casualties among the loved ones, might very easily make for more. No commander will take his experienced men out of the unit and undertake an engagement with only the newly-arrived however well trained they may be.

("It seems to me that the logical thing, the reasonable thing is to take the men out of the line temporarily to refit, to reequip, to rest, to recuperate and to refill their ranks.")

Maj. Power said that some newspapers had interpreted his remarks as criticizing Gen. Eisenhower. He had had no such thought in mind.

WILL PREVENT CRISIES

London, Dec. 14. (AP)—In an attempt to prevent crisis similar to those in Greece and Belgium, the Czecho-Slovak government in London has prepared machinery for cleansing the country's economic life "quickly and radically" of enemy parasites, traitors and collaborationists during the phase of liberation, Vaclav Majer, Czech Minister of Reconstruction, disclosed yesterday.

YANKS INVADE MINDORO, 155 MILES FROM MANILA

AMERICANS MEET FIERCE NAZI RESISTANCE

Japanese Lose 300 Planes Trying To Stop Huge Convoy

Bold Stroke Unlocks Sea Lanes to Embattled China

General MacArthur Headquarters, Philippines, Dec. 16. (AP)—A 20-mile-long American warship convoy, moving 600 miles among enemy islands of the Central Philippines while carrier planes knocked out upwards of 300 Japanese aircraft, landed mechanized troops Friday on Mindoro within 155 miles of Manila, headquarters disclosed today.

They swarmed ashore "with little loss".

This boldest amphibious stroke of the Pacific war, unlocking the sea approaches to embattled China, by crossing to the western side of the archipelago from Leyte, was completed with ease but preparations were made for violent enemy reaction.

(Tokyo radio reported today, without Allied confirmation, that a violent sea and air battle already is raging off Mindoro.)

Three strong beachheads on Southern Mindoro were overrun at dawn Friday by 6th Army troops—greeted excitedly by Filipinos. The Japanese had fled inland under bombardment of destroyers and rocket ships.

Between that beachhead and the big American base on nearby-conquered Leyte, guerillas were disclosed today to have seized strategic airfields and ports on intervening Panay, Negros, Cebu and Bohol as well as a 125-mile stretch of coast on northern Mindanao.

The guerillas, some of whom fought the losing battle of Bataan, did their work also well that the huge convoy moving south and west from Leyte was able to steam within sight of the coastlines of those islands.

Archipelago Cut in Two.

"The operation has driven a corridor from east to west through the Philippine archipelago, which is now definitely cut in two and will enable us to dominate the sea and air routes which reach to the China coast", some 900 miles away, Gen. MacArthur said.

Rocket-firing planes kept Luzon's 100 airfields, including the network around Manila, under attack night and day for more than 24 hours.

The carrier plane strikes throughout Luzon in support of the invasion devastated planes, fields and shipping.

At Pearl Harbor, Admiral Nimitz reported in a communique 224 Nipponese aircraft were knocked from the skies or wiped out aground and that ninety more which never got aloft were bombed and strafed.

MacArthur's disclosures concerning the guerillas lifted the veil on activities of Americans and Filipinos in progress since the early days of 1942.

Clear Northern Provinces.

On Mindanao, they have cleared the northern provinces of Lanao and Misamis Occidental, thus securing Iligan Bay.

On Bohol, just west of southern Leyte, they have cleared the Nipponese from all the island except the town of Tagbilarn on the southwest end.

On Cebu, they have driven the Japanese from the south end into the central sector and are playing havoc with communications there.

On Negros, all the south half is in guerilla hands except the town of Dumaguette on the southeast adn it is flanked by the capture of Subutan and Luzuriga. They also hold Bais in the southeast, San Carlos in the northeast and Isabela in the central interior.

On Panay, they have captured Estancia in the northeast, Zarraga and San Miguel in the southeast and Patnongon in the southwest. They hold several vital airfields on Panay, Negros and Mindanao.

BERLIN DENOUNCES CHURCHILL

London, Dec. 16 (CP)—The German radio last night denounced what it called Prime Minister Churchill's "shameful selling out" of Poland. It jeered that Mr. Churchill's proposal to compensate Poland with parts of East Prussia and Danzig was "astounding" in its moderation.

Liquor Ration To Be Reduced By End of March

London, Ont., Dec. 16 (CP) — Return to a 13-ounce monthly liquor ration for the province was predicted Friday night by William G. Webster, Progressive Conservative member of the Legislature from London, on his return from Toronto where he was sworn in this week as chairman of the Liquor Control Board of Ontario.

Asserting that his chairmanship will result in no further increases in liquor quotas, Mr. Webster said "that won't be good news to everybody, I know, but I might as well tell the truth.

"There won't be any more—in fact, when the government fiscal year ends in March, we will probably go back to the 13-ounce ration. I think we may still get 26 ounces for the first two or three months of the year, but that is about all I can say."

The provincial spirits ration was increased in October from 13 ounces to 26.

Conference Arranged For Late February

Washington, Dec. 16 (AP)—A second Churchill-Roosevelt-Stalin conference at last has been arranged—for late January or early February.

Dictating the need for it were new demands on both sides of the Atlantic for consultation at top levels and grave concern over divergent courses of Allied diplomacy.

The principal factor governing the time apparently is President Roosevelt's schedule. It falls for a fourth-term inauguration Jan. 20. The meeting will be held soon thereafter unless world events force a change in plans. The place is expected to be somewhere outside the United States.

British and Foreign Press Reaction To Churchill Speech on Polish Issue

London, Dec. 16 — (CP Reuters)—The London Daily Mail declared today that Prime Minister Churchill's speech yesterday on the Polish question had made "very clear" that "the United Nations have drifted a long way from that fine accord they reached at Teheran."

The newspaper said the Prime Minister's plea for a new meeting between himself, President Roosevelt and Premier Stalin was an obvious proposal to obtain a full unity of purpose once more among the Big Three.

"We still are waiting to know where the United States stands in relation to Poland," the Daily Mail said.

The Times of London observed that the changes in the map of central Europe demanded by Russia and seconded by Mr. Churchill — "might result in creating sounder political foundations, a stronger and more closely-knit Polish nation."

The Moscow radio today broadcast a long extract of the Prime Minister's speech, but added no comment.

A German foreign office spokesman, in a broadcast today, described Mr. Churchill's speech as "a priceless contribution to Germany's war effort."

"The German people are grateful to Churchill for the brutal frankness with which he announced his plans of dividing and destroying Germany," he said. "We shall see to it that these plans are taught in every school, that every German soldier will carry them and they can be read on the walls of every factory."

The Liberal Manchester Guardian in an editorial declared: "This is not a Polish crisis but a crisis of United Nations."

Noting that the decisions taken by the three powers at Teheran have been taken "in council of war without any opportunity to consult the peoples or in some cases, the governments concerned," the Guardian said:

"The fact must be faced that all these decisions have been demanded by Russia with the reluctant agreement of the British government and the tacit assent of the United States government . . .

"The most notable feature of Mr. Churchill's speech was a sense of foreboding as if he knew that his words would sound coldly in the ears of the British and American public and yet had no power to alter them. It is indeed a terrible dilemma for which Mr. Churchill cannot in fairness be blamed . . .

"On the one hand we are bound to Soviet Russia by common interest in the peace of Europe; on the other we are bound to the United States by common ideals we are loath to relinquish.

"Must we then sacrifice the one for the other? Is the price of Russian friendship the denial of the Atlantic Charter and will that in turn mean American isolation? The danger is so great that Mr. Churchill did not hesitate to warn the House of the peril of a Third Great War.

"There is only one sure remedy and that . . . is an early meeting of the Big Three, to be followed by frequent and regular meetings until the new world organization can be established."

FURLOUGH AFTER FIVE YEARS FINDS SOLDIERS HAPPY

Many To Spend Their First Christmas At Home Since The War Started

(By The Canadian Press)

Personnel of the armed forces—army men who have been overseas for more than five years, airmen who have completed tours of operations and a few members of the Royal Canadian Navy—have arrived home in Canada on furlough—a furlough that means for many of them that they will be spending their first Christmas at home since the war started.

Canadian Army Provost Corps men who were assigned to patrol crowds awaiting the first arrivals at Bonaventure Station in Montreal last night were no match for the impatient crowd of wives, children, mothers and fathers who awaited to greet their loved ones.

When the first group of army personnel paraded into the concourse of the station, the crowd broke through, jostled high-ranking army officers, and began hugging and kissing their relatives, oblivious of the fact that many were watching them. Eyes were damp as tears of gladness rose. Elderly men retired to the edge of the crowd where they could furtively wipe their eyes.

Many of the men will return to the battlelines when their 30-day furlough is completed—a furlough awarded for "long and meritorious service." Some had fought with the Canadians in Sicily, Italy and France and a few in all the major Canadian campaigns.

TANTALIZE GERMANS

Moscow, Dec. 16 —(CP Reuter)—Russian troops on the Niemen river in East Prussia found a novel way to tantalize the Germans, the army newspaper, Red Star, reported today. Into German lines 80 yards distant they catapulted sheets of paper, weighted by heavy stones, and containing the latest Soviet communique. An officer explained it was to let them know "what we are doing to them in Hungary."

DISMANTLE FACTORIES

Bern, Dec. 16—(AP)—The Basler Arbeiter Zeitung said today the Germans are hastily dismantling Vienna's armament factories and transporting them to Straubing, Regensburg and Linz. The factories have been employing about 1,800,000 persons, the paper said.

Returning Vets Would Like To See Others in Canada Take Their Place for Awhile

Doug How, CP War Correspondent, has just returned to Canada from Italy where for nearly a year he covered the Canadians fighting with the British 8th Army.

By DOUG HOW

Montreal, Dec. 16 (CP)—There are aboard this ship 300 and more Canadians going home for the first Christmas in six years. With the exception of those they have left behind, no other Canadians in history have given in such abundance of their years in the service of their country away from their country.

They are going back for a month's leave to a nation transformed in many ways from the nation they knew. They know that. They know there will be a lot of things to get used to in this new Canada. But this is no attempt to introduce Canada to them. This is an attempt to introduce them to Canada.

In five years overseas, their thoughts have changed, hardened, strengthened, reacted. Over some things they are bitter. Over some things they are proud, over others bewildered. This, then, is an attempt by one who has talked with them here and with their fellow '39ers—their name for themselves—in Italy to put the crux on some of their thoughts on paper. This is about their thoughts on:

Their leave—in the midst of a heavy, typical beefing siege, one corporal grinned "don't let this fool you. Soldiers are happiest when they're beefing. We're sitting on top of the world right now." But these men temper their happiness with this qualification:

They appreciate the opportunity to get home but they have a natural belligerence towards any suggestion that it is military charity or anything else they are not fully entitled to. Of the duration and scope of the leave plan as it now stands, they point out that at the present rate it will be literally years before some of the men who came overseas with them in 1939 get home, and they feel that one month at home is meagre in its ratio to their period of overseas service.

Many of them feel that after five years overseas they have done their share, feel they could be fitted into the war machinery back home for six months or so at least while somebody else went overseas to take their place. For one thing, they feel that from what they have seen of Canada-trained recruits for overseas that they and a lot more veterans could fill posts of value.

They say it would be only fair, in view of what they have already done, to give them the option of either returning to Italy or taking a posting in Canada.

Their army—they share an opinion you hear more than occasionally in Italy, that they would like to see their 1st. Corps in Italy reunited with the 1st. Canadian Army fighting in Western Europe.

Conscription—until the stories of Zombie disorders—they heard of them as they boarded this ship—they generally shared the viewpoint that, in conscription, the inevitable had happened. No soldiers could prize more highly than these Canada's experiment of fielding an army of volunteers.

They feel now that Canada, like the United States and Britain, should have adopted overseas conscription in 1939. When it was involved five years later they accepted with qualified approval the news that there would be draftees in their ranks. Above all, they realized, there had to be reinforcements and experience had shown that this final, disliked method was, in the last analysis, the only method of providing them in adequate number.

The news of Zombie disorders had a natural reaction, jolted the opinions they had already formed, but generally they feel primarily that they are at last nearing the opportunity to decide for themselves at first hand on the whole boiling issue.

Their country — the whole wartime transformation of Canada is something they know only at second-hand. These, the 39ers who have always had the feeling, at once both vague and strong, that they are neither appreciated for what they have done overseas nor wanted back home, know that many Canadian soldiers who have gone home and then returned overseas are glad to be back again.

And now that some of them are nearing wives they haven't seen in five years, some of them children they have never seen, all of them a nation they have only heard about and read about since December, 1939, their thoughts are strolling down a hundred lanes of wonder, doubt, anticipation, hope.

Their complaints — true soldiers, they have dozens of them, about lack of beer, about worn-out vehicles, about uniforms, about many another thing. (One wisecrack in Italy is that the Canadians get a half-pint of beer per week per man perhaps.)

CANADIANS HOLD AGAINST 14 MAJOR COUNTER-ATTACKS

Bridgehead Across Canal Has Become the Anzio of the Adriatic

By WILLIAM BOSS
(CP War Correspondent)

With the Canadian Corps on the Adriatic, Dec. 15 —(Delayed)—(CP Cable)— Having weathered 14 major armored counter-attacks Wednesday and Thursday, Canadian units of the British 8th Army still were holding firm to their Naviglio canal bridgehead Thursday night.

The bridgehead was increased 400 yards in depth Wednesday night in fighting which saw 63 German prisoners taken at a net cost of four Canadian casualties in close action.

With the flanks brought forward somewhat so that the bridgehead assumed a semi-circular shape, it did not change despite the heaviest German attack of all, Thursday afternoon.

The Canadians had air cover Thursday, considerably reducing enemy mortar fire although during the Germans' counter-attacks this averaged about 100 bombs per locality every five minutes.

Some Ground Given.

This bridgehead has become the Anzio of the Adriatic.

Men from New Brunswick and Eastern Ontario fought off 14 powerful thrusts Wednesday, some two-pronged and all supported by artillery strongly located slightly behind the enemy's left flank in the area of Bagnacavallo, two miles to the southeast.

LIKELY TO FORM GREEK REGENCY TO END STRUGGLE

Agreement in Principle Reached by Leaders on This Question

Athens, Dec. 16 — (AP)—Creation of a regency was reported likely today to be the mutually-approved step to end the bitter civic struggle that has gripped Greece for two weeks.

While fighting continued in the rain-soaked capital, Greek and British leaders met yesterday and it was said an agreement in principle had been reached on the question of a regency.

It was understood the appointment of a regency council of three was first proposed by Premier George Papandreou.

The proposed members were said to have been Archbishop Damaskinos of Athens, Undersecretary of Foreign Affairs Philip Dracoumis and Nicholas Plastiras, who led the Greek Revolution in 1922.

Discussing the issue were Reginald Leeper, the British Ambassador; Harold MacMillan, British resident minister of the Middle East and Themistokles Sophoulis, Greek Elder Statesman who has acted as an intermediary between the opposing forces.

However, it was expected the eventual agreement would call for a one-man regency, possibly under Archbishop Damaskinos.

Other armistic terms reliably reported to be acceptable to British authorities, and said to have been presented by the E.A.M. (National Liberation Front) leaders, included amnesty for leaders in the civil struggle and formation of a national government representing all parties.

REDS ATTEMPT TO SMASH OPEN ROADS TO VIENNA

Strike Into Western Slovakia for First Time and Capture Sahy Junction

London, Dec. 16. (CP)— Striking into western Slovakia for the first time, Russian troops today pressed a bold offensive from captured Ipolysag (Sahy) Junction, attempting to smash open the roads to Vienna, 115 miles to the west, and at the same time trap Ferman divisions to the east.

Ipolysag, on the Budapest-Bratislava-Vienna highway, was seized by Red Army Vanguard which bridged the Ipoly river frontier from Hungary, 34 miles northwest of beleaguered Budapest, Danube-Straddling capital already two-thirds encircled by the Soviets.

Moscow announced that Ipolysag fell Thursday after a bitter all-night fight in which 800 Germans were killed. It is half a mile inside Slovakia. In taking it the Russians skirted the 2,700-foot Borzsony Mountains between the town and the big Danube River Bend to the Soith.

German troops reeled back into Slovakia along a 125-mile front from Ipolysag eastward to Satoraljaujhely in the face of the increased tempo of the Russian drive.

Aimed at Krakow.

Berlin reported the Russians also were attacking more heavily in the Debica-Tarnow area of southern Poland, and speculated these renewed thrusts may be the beginning of a northern envelopment movement against Slovakia as well as a winter offensive aimed at Krakow.

The storage northward from Hungary by 2nd Ukraine Army troops appeared likely to aid a fighting force of 25,000 free Czechoslovak troops.

Other Red army troops skirted the northern Borzsony Mountains and reached positions leading downhill into the plains extendig westward to Bratislava.

Moscow said the combied drives toward central and eastern Slovakia had swept through 31 more localities, among them the Manganese centre of Szendro, 20 miles north of toppled Miskolc and 85 miles northeast of Budapest.

Moscow pictured the fighting along the Ipoly river front as a determined effort to break the stalemate at Budapest, where heavy rains had interfered with progress of the huge Russian pincers stringling the strife-torn city.

Canadian Fighter Pilots Facing Greater Odds Than Ever Before

By MARGARET ECKER
(CP War Correspondent)

With the RCAF in Belgium, Dec. 16 (CP).—Canadian fighter pilots now on their second tour of operations are facing greater odds than ever before, they believe, since fighter casualties have been higher during the last few months than at any time since the Battle of Britain.

"The risk will become greater as we get on into Germany," said Sqdn. Ldr. Arthur Sager of Vancouver, commanding officer of a Spitfire squadron here.

"Spitfires were not intended to stand up against the flak and the guns we have to face now," he said. "The enemy's newer planes are an unknown quantity too, as they probably don't know how to fly them yet."

At the same time the average age of fighter pilots in the RCAF squadrons appears to be rising. Where a couple of years ago the average age was 21 to 22 years, the men now appear to be around 25 years.

Although air training shortly will cease in Canada, fighter pilots who already had made an important contribution to the air war have returned to do second tours, and this is responsible for the rising average age.

In Sager's outfit, which has been escorting medium bombers based on the continent, eight of 27 pilots are on their second or third tours.

In this squadron, those on their second tour included Flt. Lt. Lloyd Hunt of Owen Sound, Ont.

A fighter pilot's tour of operational flying usually takes him from a year to 18 months to complete.

Four U.S. Columns Invade Germany On 17-Mile Front

Huns Fling New Armored Division Against 7th Army

Paris, Dec. 16.—(AP)—Heavy guns of the Siegfried line and a fresh enemy armored division brought up as reinforcement struck in savage reaction today against four U.S. 7th Army columns leading a new invasion of Germany along a 17-mile front just west of the Rhine.

Heavy fighting in the Bavarian Palatinate was reported as troops of the 45th., 79th., and 103rd U.S. infantry divisions pressed onward toward the first pill-boxes of the westwall, and American artillery answered in thundering duel with Siegfried line cannon.

A long-drawn-out lull continued on the sodden, bleak northern part of the western front where the 1st Canadian and British 2nd armies have been engaged only in routine action for weeks.

The Canadians were fighting in the De Wyler forest area in Germany, just east of Nijmegen. To their right, the Britons head the west bank of the Maas, facing The Netherlands border bastion of Venlo.

German patrols seeking information attacked a British outpost east of Venray in the southeastern corner of Holland, but were driven off.

Four Border Crossings

Four crossings of the border were forged by Lt.-Gen. Patch's veterans, with the 79th. Division entering Germany at two points near Lauterbourg, a city only two miles from the Rhine.

But the 79th. immediately ran into a stiff fight.

The German command pulled a Panzer division from another sector and flung it into battle to stop the threat to the chemical and industrial centres of Mannheim and Ludwigshafen, 35 miles to the north.

Supreme headquarters said the 1st. Army had buried 17,078 Germans since D-Day.

Allied planes spotted heavy German transport movement in the Ruhr by road and rail, presumably indicating strong efforts to reinforce that great industrial area.

Patch's 7th. Army became the sixth Allied army to break down a western door to German soil.

The 7th. Army's attack was a major peril to the Germans, since a break-through in this sector could outflank Germans facing the 3rd. Army on the Saar front.

In compelling the enemy command to move an armored division into the Palatinate, the 7th has already lightened the load of Allied armies pressing in elsewhere along a great arc.

The Germans in another counter-measure are reinforcing troops in the Alsace pocket around Colmar and counter-attacking in effort to divert 7th Army elements from northern Alsace.

In the Bitche area of the 7th's border crossings, Germans still battling on French soil continued tough resistance, using Maginot Line forts to good effect. Here they have turned about the Maginot's disappearing guns which swing on revolving turrets.

The French 1st Army scored an additional small gain near Selestat, north of Colmar.

Civilian Production Frozen Indefinitely At Present Levels

Washington, Dec. 16—(AP)—The United States war production board, in a drastic move to meet vital war needs, has ordered that all civilian production be frozen indefinitely at present levels.

The order, dated Dec. 7 and circulated within the war production Board but not announced, is designed to discourage the movement of labor from war plants into peacetime activity while heavy demand continues for some vital weapons and material.

In effect a "hold-the-line" order on production, the ruling instructs the W.P.B. staff neither to increase civilian goods production above the level of this quarter nor to relax existing orders if increased output would result.

The move was based on the theory that the volume of civilian goods now programmed is sufficient to meet "essential requirements" and avoid hardships on the home front.

School Grants Will Cost Prov. 25 Million Dollars

Toronto, Dec. 16 (CP) — The Ontario government's new system of school grants under which it assumes 50 per cent of the over-all cost of education in the province will cost $25,000,000 a year compared with $8,000,000 now being paid annually in school grants, The Globe and Mail says today.

The paper says it has learned that buoyant revenues coupled with economics in all departments will provide most of the $17,000,000 needed to bridge the gap.

"It is reported on good authority that the government has already found $13,000,000 of the needed amount," the paper said. The remaining $4,000,000 must come from further tightening of the financial belt and there was a possibility the government might revise the amusement tax which was dropped several years ago. This tax netted $800,000 in its last year of operation but it is estimated it would produce much more under present conditions.

Seventy-five per cent of provincial revenues have been frozen under Dominion-Provincial agreement but in revenue-producing fields outside the agreement the province has had close to a record year, The Globe and Mail says.

Bd. of Education Advocates Building of Community Centre As Civic Post-War Project

Move to Open Collegiate Gymnasiums for Adolescents Under Y.M.C.A. Supervision

Realizing the need of a civic auditorium in this city, the Board of Education granted temporary use of the Collegiate Institute gymnasium to a Y.M.C.A.-sponsored group for the purpose of holding weekly dances and a general gathering of the teen-aged children of Belleville at their final meeting of the year Friday night.

"In other cities on this continent we read of civic or community centres, where the adolescents may congregate for their own amusement under proper supervision and I feel we have facilities here in our Collegiate to encourage similar advancements," commented Chairman C. D. Crosby, after Secretary L. A. Kells had read a letter from the "Y" requesting the use of the Collegiate "gyms" for weekly dances.

The letter of request met with favorable response of the Board. Following lengthy discussion, during which W. S. Turner, principal of the Collegiate Institute and Vocational School, rose in response of the correspondence owing to the absence of Y.M.C.A. representatives, Mr. Turner explained the movement was purely in favor of creating a central or civic centre where the teen-aged boys and girls could congregate weekly for a dance and social evening under their own personal management with proper adult supervision.

Makes Motion

It was at this point that Trustee B. C. Sisler rose to the question to inquire why provisions for a civic auditorium had not long since been approached in Belleville. "It is something badly needed in our city and I am prepared to make a motion to be placed on record regarding the building of such a centre," stated Mr. Sisler.

Under the heading of motions Mr. Sisler later moved the following motion, which was unanimously carried: "That the Board of Education strongly urge all civic, fraternal and service organizations in this city take under serious consideration the matter of the building of a community centre in Belleville as a war memorial and that immediate steps be taken to form a central committee to raise the necessary funds for the erection of such a centre".

Other Board members pointed out that similar steps were being taken by other cities throughout Canada as post-war programs, naming Peterboro, Edmonton, Welland and Kingston as examples. "It is something that has long been needed in Belleville," concluded Trustee E. A. Geen. Later the Board let it be known the use granted the Y.M.C.A. each Friday night was of a temporary nature, realizing full well the need of a community centre at present.

General Business

Under the heading of general business Mr. F. D. Wiggins was re-appointed school attendance officer for the year 1945. The matter of the Collegiate cadet corps was referred to the incoming board as the question entailed the matter of expenditures for 1945. The reports of the Vocational and Collegiate committee were received and accepted as read in committee. The Board went on record as extending thanks and appreciation to the local service clubs for services rendered towards the advancement of health and education in Belleville throughout the 1944 term. The inaugural meeting of the Belleville Board of Education will be held in the Board Room on Friday Jan. 12th, 1945.

School Activities.

The average attendance at city public schools, for the month of November was at a satisfactory level, the average for the city being 93.48 percent of the enrolled 1711 pupils.

Secretary L. A. Kells stressed the number of classrooms where a better than average 95 percent attendance was maintained for the past month. At Queen Alexandra School six teachers reported 95 percent or better attendance being: Miss D. Osborne, Miss F. Sullivan, Miss A. Sheffield, Miss M. Lashbrook, Miss M. Lockhart and Mr. E. Bateman. At King George School the following reported over 95 percent attendance: Miss N. Wedden, Miss J. Smythe, Mrs. H. Thompson, Mr. C. Brown and Mr. M. Hackett, at Queen Mary it was the classes of Miss M. Moorcroft, Miss L. Arkils and Miss C. Wilson, while Queen Victoria School reported existing condition in the rooms of Miss A. Gilmour and Mr. A. C. Wilkin.

Mr. Kells also announced the November sales of War Savings Stamps and Certificates to the value of $812.75 that were sold in public schools last month.

The Board commented favorably upon the increased interest being shown in Home and School Clubs. For some time past successful Home and School clubs have functioned at King George and Queen Alexandra Schools, and now Mr. Kells announced a similar group had been organized at Queen Mary School. An innovation being suggested by the King George School Association is the introduction of a hot noon lunch for pupils having considerable distances to walk during the winter months. School inventory will be taken to acquire information regarding the estimated supplies needed in 1945 and a statement presented early in the year.

Nurse's Report.

The Public School Nurse's report, submitted by Mrs. Watt, disclosed that mild cases of colds and such children's ailment at this time of the year had not been as prevalent as some previous seasons. In company with Dr. G. S. Cronk, public health physician the distribution of diphtheria toxoid serum had been completed.

During November Mrs. Watt inspected 1229 public school pupils, made 56 visits of importance to the school health program into the homes of children. There were ten vision tests completed as well as four hearing tests and other sundry examinations pertaining to the general health of the pupils. The report concluded with two individual and private cases on a minor skin development.

Au Revoir.

As the Board concluded its year's operations Chairman Crosby personally thanked the members for their whole-hearted co-operation. "I wish to thank each and every member of the Board for their untiring efforts throughout 1944. Fortunately we have experienced no serious difficulties, but I can truthfully say this came about by the united effort of every member of the Board, thanks to the foresight of our capable and efficient secretary, Mr. Kells. I am sorry to see Mr. Hill and Mr. McIntosh leaving us, but I do urge the same serious consideration be given your 1945 chairman." He also added the season's greetings and praised the principals of all schools in the city for their splendid work towards the educational program in Belleville.

Members present included Chairman Crosby as well as Trustees Geen, Sisler, Fetterly, Hill, Harrison, Inspector Kells and Principal Turner.

Most of County Road System Open for Travel

With four county owned plows and graders working almost continuously since the occurrence of this week's heavy storm, and in isolated cases hired snowplows and teams, approximately 90 per cent of the 263 miles comprising the Hastings County road system could be travelled by motor vehicles as of Friday evening, it was announced today by County Engineer Larry Langlois.

It was noted, however, that much of this road has only the one snowplowed track driven through and it was advised that careful driving was necessary with chains being "must" on many of the roads. At least 200 miles of the entire system still needs widening with the high banks left by the initial "holing through" still to be winged back.

With predictions of the weatherman indicating high winds were in prospect, county officials were keeping their fingers crossed fearing drifting might again fill in roads which only have the one track through making complete clearing of the system more difficult. East-west roads would be affected the most in this respect, it was noted.

With the exception of one temporary breakdown the two county motor grader plows and the two regular hired truck plows have been working throughout daylight hours until late at night endeavouring to clear the county road system of the heavy snowfall. In some cases truckmen reported plowed drifts ten feet high. In addition to the four county plows another hired plow has been working in the south nine townships getting a track through the heavy drifts.

Many Christmas Trees Offered On Weekend Market

Although there may be a local turkey shortage in the Belleville district this year, if appearances on the Belleville produce are any criterion there will at least not be a shortage of Christmas trees for Santa to hang his presents on the evening of December 24th.

At least a dozen local farmers offered Christmas trees for sale on the local weekend market, the trip to town being made both by motor truck and by team and sleigh. Prices for the trees ranged from 50 cents up to $1 for a good sized tree.

In contrast to the tree situation, however, there was a scarcity of turkeys and the three vendors offering them for sale were practically mobbed by over-anxious customers. In all there were not over a dozen turkeys offered, mostly of the ungraded variety, and sold for 44 cents the pound. Ducks sold up to $2.50 each with a comparatively small offering of chicken bringing the usual 35 to 38 cents per pound.

Eggs sold at last week's quotations of 40 cents for first, 35 cents for mediums and down to 30 cents for pullets.

As result possibly of the heavy road conditions the outside market was practically deserted with the exception of tree vendors and those selling apples. Best grade Spy, Delicious and McIntosh sold at $3 the bushel with other grades bringing up to $2.50. Snows and Talman Sweets sold at $2 hamper with basket lots of the eating varieties fetching 50 cents.

Potatoes sold at $1.85 the bag with a small offering of winter vegetables bringing usual prices. One farmer sold pork by the quarter at 27 cents for hinds and 22 cents for fronts.

A few farmers offered young pigs at from $4 to $5 while another held his load of green birth cordwood at $12 the cord.

But gladly gave his life, his all.
He died, the helpless to defend,
A faithful soldier to the end.
"We meet in memory's garden every day."

LLOYD — In loving memory of Margaret Lloyd, who passed away December 16, 1943.

Some day, we know not when,
To clasp her hand in a better land
Never to part again.

Velez's Death To Be Probed

Beverly Hills, Calif., Dec. 15 (AP)—Coroner Frank Nance today demanded that the District Attorney begin an immediate investigation of all the circumstances surrounding the death of movie actress Lupe Velez.

Nance said he was "not satisfied with the way the case was handled by the Beverly Hills police". He said the notes in which the fiery Latin-American actress disclosed she was to become an unwed mother, were not delivered to his office for several hours after they were found.

"We also had to send out twice to get the two phials found in Miss Velez's home", said Nance, "and we are not satisfied with the questioning of the witnesses by the Beverly Hills police. We believe that these witnesses should be subjected to further questioning by the District Attorney's investigators".

District Attorney Fred Howser assigned investigator Walter J. Sullivan to conduct a full inquiry.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Rowe and Family Are Moving to Warkworth

Rawdon—The patrons of Hoards cheese and butter manufacturing plant gathered at Mount Pleasant Rawdon church hall on Wednesday evening and tendered Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Rowe and children a farewell party before their departure to Warkworth where Doug has purchased a cheese factory. Doug has served as cheesemaker at Hoards factory for the past eight years and he has turned out a large number of excellent cheese during that period. He is also well known in nearby communities where he was engaged in the cheese industry.

Over one hundred were in attendance which included guests from Stirling cheese factory on the fourth line and Central cheese factory and Menie cheese factory communities.

The president of Hoards factory, Mr. Charles Hoard, was chairman for the occasion and spoke briefly paying tribute to Doug's personality and ability as a cheesemaker.

The pupils of the Masson School at Hoards contributed a number with their teacher Mrs. Frank Potts as pianist.

Miss Florence Rannie rendered a solo. A vocal duet was given by Miss Donna Sharp and her brother Aubrey. Mrs. Percy MacMullen gave a humorous number entitled, "The Royal Bumper Degree," with local hits. Master Neil Hubble sang a selection. Mrs. Percy Hubble led in a round of community singing.

Brief addresses were given by Messrs. Ray Williams, Will Potts, Frank Heagle, Past President Earl McAdam, Vernon Spencer, cheesemaker at Menie, and Morris Rose, cheesemaker at Central.

One Mill Subsidy To Be Abolished

Toronto, Dec. 15 — (CP)—Premier Drew said last night the one-mill payment to Ontario municipalities in 1944, acounting to $3,500,000 was a temporary measure designed to remain in effect until such time as the government's plan to assume 50 per cent of the gross cost of education was ready and will be abolished in 1945.

The subsidy was put into effect by the Drew government about a year ago.

"The subsidy was the only method by which the government could make a distribution to the councils with the object of reducing the costs of education.

"It was paid to municipal councils until such time as the government was in a position to make payments direct to school boards. We are now in that position."

Four U.S. Armies in Germany

Four invading United States armies are now in Germany, the U. S. 7th, the latest to cross the border of the Reich, entering the Palatinate a few miles from Karlsruhe and not more than 35 miles from other great industrial cities of the Rhine area. The 7th Army invaded southern France just four months ago and drove through southern and eastern France.

The inevitable pressure of the powerful Allied forces is forcing the Siegfried Line and driving back the enemy in spite of his resistance.

Immense superiority of the Allied forces is having a deadly effect upon the strength of the German armies and German losses are reported very heavy. Allied pressure can be exerted in such a way that the United Nations losses are less than the Huns' whose losses which cannot be adequately replaced owing to manpower shortage in Germany. Mr. Churchill in speaking on Thursday in the British Commons said that "after all, 6,000,000 to 7,000,000 have been already killed in this dreadful war into which they did not hesitate for a second time in a generation to plunge all Europe and the world." These figures and the statement of Mr. Churchill that "at present we are told there are 10,000,000 or 12,000,000 prisoners or foreigners used as slaves in Germany "who will be restored to their homes, it was hoped, when the victory is gained," serve to show how hard pressed the enemy must be for men. Mr. Churchill added that "we must expect that many more Germans will be killed in the fighting that will occupy the spring and summer and which will involve the fiercest and largest battles fought in the war." The Allies are engaging the enemy on wide fronts, from the North Sea to the southern border of France and Germany, in south in northern Italy and in the east from the Baltic Sea down through the Balkans. So far is German manpower being stretched out. The United Nations are building up their vast strength which will have the inevitable effect of carrying on the whittling down of the German armies and saving many Allied lives. Allied progress is having that inevitable effect upon the Germans.

Scenes of Welcome

Canada is having the pleasuring of welcoming home servicemen who have gone through the ordeal of war in Sicily, Italy and on the Continent of Europe, on the sea and in the air. Many men who have been wounded have come home for treatment and there are others who've come home on leave after long years of service in the present struggle. Stories of the veterans all agree on the pictures they present of the war and they give the Canadian people a true aspect of the fighting that the present struggle has developed.

These are happy days for these men and their families and these men have the inspiration of maintaining the effort of the home front at its peak.

This week there was an unusual homecoming, a striking one, the arrival of two winners of the Victoria Cross, Major Jack Mahoney of New Westminster ,B.C., and Major David V. Currie of Moose Jaw and Owen Sound, who will spend Christmas with their families.

The return of these men was to them a newspaper story said, almost as thrilling as the notification that they had been awarded the Empire's highest decoration for valor in the face of the enemy. So it is to all the young men from the homes of city and countryside and hamlet who have fought the war for liberty and the peace of Canada, the Empire and the world. Home means so much to them. They are modest and do not exalt themselves but all their hearers know that they have the stuff of which the hero is made and that they are all heroes who have gone through suffering and ordeal for the noblest of causes.

The return of these men is a symbol of the time when the boys will come home, their wars ended to return to civil life to carry on their great role of making this nation great on the foundations of freedom, justice and faith. They will be the inspiration of the coming days of peace as they have been the inspiration and security in the days of war.

Britain's New Boarding Schools

Premises for the first of Britain's new boarding schools for working-class boys have been acquired at Ottershaw Park, Surrey.

The school, which will be opened as soon as the war ends, will be one of the new types of boarding schools advocated in the Fleming Report of July 1944. This report recommended that public schools, i.e., the celebrated historical boarding schools such as Eton and Harrow, should be made available to all suitable children irrespective of income.

The boys will be selected from elementary schools, and tuition will be free. A sliding scale of payments may, however, be introduced for board according to the means of the parents.

The new schools will have all the features of Britain's famous public schools, which have been the training ground of so many of the country's greatest leaders. While these public schools are considered to set the highest educational standards in the world, particularly important is their insistence on striking a balance between intellectual and moral training.

The number of the new boarding schools has not yet been decided, but it is anticipated that there will be at least two or three in every county in England, that is, approximately one hundred throughout the country.

Destruction of the Modern Hun

(Montreal Star)

An idea of the tremendous amount of reconstruction which must be carried out in liberated Europe is given in a report of the Allied Control Commission in Rome, covering only Central Italy. Twenty-five thousand acres of the Pontine Marshes developed were flooded by the retreating Germans. The gasworks in Rome, Catania, Palermo and Naples have had to be almost entirely rebuilt. In all those cities, and in Bari and Florence as well, aqueducts and reservoirs were destroyed. Ninety-four electric power stations were scientifically wrecked without military necessity. Copper high tension cables were shipped to Germany and more than half the high tension cable towers were blown up. So far, the Commission has restrung nearly a thousand miles of destroyed power lines and has restored 3,800 miles of road and two hundred highway bridges. The Huns of yore could hardly have done a more thorough job of destruction.

New Wheat Developed

The unusually bad summer weather has raised agricultural problems in Great Britain beginning with spring frosts that wiped out quantities of food, continuing through a sunless middle summer which harmed the milk output and the sugar beet crop. On the bright side, however, a new variety of wheat has been developed by British agriculturalists that out-yields the old varieties by 50%, particularly in a wet year. Even this summer the new wheat yielded 14 sacks to the acre compared with a national average over the ten pre-war years of about 7 sacks.

A Tip for Advertisers

(Financial Post, Toronto)

Four men with long practical experience in advertising were asked by the Industrial Advertising Association of Ontario to present their candid views on modern advertising to a special meeting of the Association recently. Boiled down, their major conclusions were:

A prominent signature is one of the most important parts of trade paper advertisements. It pops up and registers, in many cases, even when a person thumbs through a magazine quickly.

Most advertisers use too much copy, even when their products are well known.

Newsy headlines, announcing new products or improvements to old products,, catch and hold reader interest.

Catchy illustrations are "stoppers."

Too many advertisers play up the fact that they are doing war work.

The grand character of truth is its capability of enduring the test of universal experience and coming unchanged out of every possible form of fair discussion.—Sir John Herschel.

LITTLE THINGS

I sing the little things of life:
The little child with laughter sweet,
The little home of man and wife,
The little yard, the little street,
For they have naught to do with fame
Or wealth or triumph's furious flame.

Some day, when all is understood
And eyes with clearer vision see,
Perhaps of what men reckon good
The little joys life's best will be,
Since that to which the memory clings
Is made of small, familiar things.

The little room where children sleep,
The little shoes we've put away,
The little trinkets love will keep
And cherish always, come what may,
Stay glowing in the human heart
Long after greater prides depart.

The roarin' game of curling is booming here this season and many new members are joining the club. C. I. White and W. E. Gartley of the ice committee are busy every day at the rink on George Street, and expect to have a good sheet of ice for the broom wielders very soon.

The members of Queen Mary shooting team have again won the Laura Secord Cup and also the third prize for 1924. In 1922 they won the same cup. This year's competition was for all of M. D. No. 3 Cadet Corps and shows that the boys are clever marksmen. The team also won the special prize for competition in this city. The team was up against competition from Oshawa, Peterborough, Kingston, Brockville and Ottawa. The principal of Queen Mary School, Lt.-Col. D. Barragar, and all the pupils are justly proud of the team. The following composed the first team: L. R. Rusell, C. Hilton, E. Hitcheon, E. McFee and L. Ling. The following composed the second team: L. Shaw, J. Spencer, J. Fisher, H. Burke, and A. Skinner.

Athletes of the Animal World

(From Our Dumb Animals)

Records reveal that Glenn Cunningham ran a mile in a fraction over four minutes and four seconds, which is the fastest uniform stride on record for human beings.

An elephant can do a mile in three minutes; a deer can cover the mile in two minutes. Even speedier than the deer, are the 'streamlined' greyhound, race horse, whippet, fox and Mongolian wolf. A jack rabbit runs a mile in 1 minute 15 seconds. The gazelle and prong-horn antelope are in the mile a minute class, while the cheetah, with 70 miles an hour to its credit is fastest of all land creatures.

A few years ago Jesse Owens, broad jump of 26 feet 8 1-2 inches set a new record. A frog jumped 15 feet 10 inches. In proportion to his size, man would have to jump more than 50 feet to equal the record of the frog.

A kangaroo, without even a running start, can jump 39 feet, which is greater by several feet than the leaps made by either lions or tigers. The grasshopper can jump 30 times its length; the mouse can jump 15 times its length, but grand champion broad jumper of all—jumping 200 times its own length—is the despicable flea!

In weight lifting, according to size, the ant is easily champion, since it can carry several hundred times its own weight. Size considered, it can outlift the elephant.

Bees can fly with the greatest load of any insect, sometimes carrying 30 times their own weight.

The fastest flying bird is the chimney swift, which can fly 200 miles an hour. But the fastest known flier is the male deer fly, which can travel at the amazing speed of 818 miles an hour.

Her fluid movements barely cloak
Untrammeled limbs and long;
Her hair is like low lying smoke,
Where shadow vespers throng.

Her golden eyes are shuttered light,
In iv'ry lamps and jade;
Her lips are scarlet petals bright,
From some fair garden strayed.

A goddess lost from moor and fen,
Her magic spell to weave
On seeking hearts of silent men
In lovely make believe.

A vision glimpsed, tho' scarcely caught,
With haunting sense of loss;
The flitting mem'ry that I sought
Some shadow street to cross.

As if it heard a call . . .
That other self, whose dreams I lack

Capital Closeups

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Ottawa, Dec. 16 (CP)—Joint Canadian and United States planning for the development of the northwest has particular interest for a Canadian statesman, Senator Sir Allen Aylesworth, (L—Ontario) who celebrated his 90th birthday Nov. 27.

Sir Allen was one of the King's commissioners for settlement of the Alaska boundary in 1903 and at that time he demonstrated and expressed his faith in the future of Canada. He has been a Bencher of the Law Society of Upper Canada continuously since 1891.

Although he did not attend the brief special sitting which closed last week, Sir Allen seldom misses a day in the Upper House when the regular session is on.

He now is the second oldest member of the Senate, the eldest being Senator E. D. Smith (PC—Ontario), who is 91.

Smartness: A new degree of smartness has been forecast for members of the Senate and House of Commons, following the arrival on Parliament Hill of a new steam pants-dressing machine which has been installed in the tailor shop of the main block. The members will have top priority on use of the machine but it also will be used to press the pants of the protective staff and other uniformed personnel.

Home Smokes: Before 1930, 90 to 95 per cent of all Canadian imports of leaf tobacco came from the United States and in 1930 the total imports were more than 18,500,000 pounds. Since then, home tobacco production has hit its stride and imports in 1943 were less than 1,500,000 pounds, of which some 70 per cent was cigar leaf and less than 15 per cent United States flue-cured tobacco. The trouble in obtaining cigar leaf has been the main reason for the shortage of cigars, to be particularly pronounced at Christmas.

Custom: The Canadian reindeer in the northwest territories, whose fathers came from Alaska under a federal government program, are running true to type. Groups of animals in a corral always will mill in a certain direction, and the Canadian reindeer, having inherited the instinct from their ancestors, mill counter-clockwise and the corrals are constructed with this in mind. Reindeer in Lapland may mill clockwise, all depending on what their fathers did.

Good Hunting: Wild life authorities say there is every prospect that hunters coming back from war will find more birds in Canada than have been seen for many years. Wild fowl have flourished in both Canada and the United States with many hunters in the forces and limited ammunition supplies for those left behind. From the Canadian viewpoint, the increase in the game bird population has been assisted by Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act dam projects which have provided new feeding and resting places for migrating waterfowl.

Designs: The Munitions Department reports that substitutions and designs on the No. 4 army rifle have made possible an estimated saving of more than 2,200,000 pounds of critical metals, more than 176,000,000 hours of labor and released 264 machine tools, for a total cost saving of $1,360,000. The re-designing of a back-sight to make it one part instead of seven resulted in the release of 37 machine tools for other work, and savings of 319,000 hours of labor and 143,800 pounds of carbon steel.

ABANDONED WIFE

Montreal, Dec. 16 — (CP)—James Williamson of Woodstock, Ont., yesterday was sentenced to 6 months in jail for abandoning his wife when she was expecting a child. The couple were married last March and Williamson left her, obliging her to earn her own living.

NO CATTLE ARRIVING

Toronto, Dec. 16 — (CP)—Because of this week's storm and current manpower shortages in packing plants, an immediate embargo has been placed against arrivals of cattle to union stockyards by car or by truck, officials announced last night.

FIGHTS EXTRADITION

Vancouver, Dec. 16—(CP)—Habeas Corpus proceedings to prevent Joseph Emil Cuillerier from being sent to England for trial on embezzlement charges involving $15,000 will start in Supreme Court here Monday, it was disclosed yesterday by his counsel, Gordon S. Wismer. Magistrate H. S. Wood ordered Cuillerier's return to England earlier this week.

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

EXERCISE FOR THE PUERPERA

As Dr. Rotstein observed, in reference to the absence of the complication of thrombophlebitis (clotting and inflammation in a vein) in 180 patients who were allowed up on the third or fourth day after childbirth, "early postpartum activity lessens the hazard of such a complication occurring".

To that I would add that, within reasonable limitations, early resumption of activity after childbirth lessens the hazard of any complication occurring, including puerperal fever (septicemia) and displacements.

But one of the reasonable limitations to be taken into consideration in every instance is the patient's general fitness, which depends, of course, on her education, particularly her physical education. If she has not had a fair physical education the chances are she will be flabby, flaccid, and therefore more likely to develop one complication or another following childbirth.

Resumption of activity after childbirth should be early but gradual, not abrupt.

Every puerpera (woman who has recently borne a child) should begin on the first day systematic exercises in bed, and go through them on a regular time schedule at intervals of two or three hours. Including belly breathing exercise.

These bed exercises should increase gradually day by day. Of course if there is any complication such exercises should be carried on only with the approval of the attending physician.

Turning the head from side to side. Extending and flexing the feet on the ankles. Inverting and everting the soles. Flexing and extending one knee, then the other, then both. Turning the body from one side to the other. Raising and lowering one leg, then the other, and after a few days both legs together. Two or three times may be sufficient for each movement the first day. After a day or two half a dozen times.

How soon the puerpera may do the monkey walk or the dachshund crawl around the room after she gets up depends on how fit she was for childbirth. It would probably do her good to try it anyway. Some obstetricians and gynecologists prescribe these special exercises to promote involution and prevent displacement or prolapse following childbirth. The monkey walk means simply walking around the room several times every day in half crouching position with fingers touching the floor at each step. The dachshund crawl means crawling around the room several times a day on hands and knees but with arms bent and head almost down to the floor.

Then of course there are somersaults—but I do not advise rolling somersaults unless the puerpera has rolled 'em regularly before she got that way.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Nicotinic Acid

Physician giving my husband nicotinic acid for weak heart. Every time my husband takes it his skin turns very red and he complains of his heart pounding. He takes a tablet after each meal. Is nicotinic acid a coaltar product?

(Mrs. B. M.

Is it true that nicotinic acid is derived from the tobacco leaf?

(A. G. W.

Please tell us what nicotinic acid is and what it is used for.

(H. H.)

Answer—Nicotinic acid, now better known as niacin, is one of the vitamins in the B-complex, and so it grows, as thiamin does, in such foods as wheat, peas, beans, oats, corn, potato, milk. It is the vitamin of chief importance for the prevention and cure of pellagra. Aside from the temporary discomfort, as described by Mrs. B. M., from a full dose, it is not injurious in any way. It is not derived from tobacco. The disagreeable skin flushing is less likely to occur if nicotinic acid amide (niacin amide) is used instead of nicotinic acid (niacin). It may be made from nicotine, but it has none of the effects of tobacco or nicotine.

What to Eat

I'd give almost anything if I could put on a little padding. I'm so skinny people are always worrying about my health, but as a matter of fact I'm perfectly healthy . . . I inclose twenty-five cents and stamped addressed envelope, for a copy of the "red book" about foods and diet, and your pamphlet on How to Gain Weight.

(C. M. A.)

Answer—Not perfectly healthy really, but some pounds short of it. Spend a few evenings quietly studying the red book "What to Eat and Why", and hit the hay early instead of tearing around till all hours nights, and first thing you know you'll be letting things out.

NUGGETS OF KNOWLEDGE

It is surprising how many people, even educated ones, go wrong on the word "perspiration," a fancy term for "sweat." There seems to be a strong tendency to mispronounce it "press-piration." The roots of the word are Latin "per," through, and "spirare," to breathe.

Tel Aviv (pronounced "tell-u-vivv") is not only the largest city in Palestine but the largest all-Jewish city in the world. It was founded in 1909 as a residential suburb of Jaffa. Today it has a population of more than 180,000. Bahism, which had its origin just a century ago when Mirza Ali Mohammed proclaimed himself the "Bab" in Persia, now has 2,000,000 adherents in Asia, Europe, Africa and America. The largest Baha'i community is at Teheran. It numbers about 30,000.

The canopy over a dais or an altar and the canopy under which the Holy Sacrament is carried in a Roman Catholic procession is known as a baldachin (pronounced "BALD-a-kin"). This term has an interesting origin. A rich medieval fabric of silk and gold, much used in church vestaments and decorations, was originally made in Bagdad. The Italians called this fabric "baldacchino," from "Baldacco," the Italian form of "Bagdad." In process of time the canopy itself, regardless of the material of which it was made, came to be known as "baldacchino," which in English became "baldachin."

It is estimated that about 2,000 biographies of Jesus have been published.

When did Oslo become the capital of Norway? "Oslo," or "Osloe," was the ancient name of the capital of Norway. According to Norse tradition, the city was founded in 1048 by King Harald Haardraade. By the end of the 14th century it had become the chief city of the kingdom.

In 1624 Oslo was destroyed by fire. King Christian IV immediately rebuilt the city on the opposite side of the Aker River and named it Kristiniania, or Christiania as it is spelled in English.

Oslo, however, continued to be the name of a suburb on the east side of the Aker where the original city had stood. After the First World War a popular movement began in Norway to have the name of the capital changed back to its ancient form. This was done July 11th, 1924, by an act of the Norwegian legislature that provided that after January 1, 1925, "Oslo" would be the official name of the capital.

The name of the Haitian general- patriot and martyr is generally spelled "Toussaint L'Ouverture." Toussaint himself almost invariably wrote his last name "Louverture," without the apostrophe.

Baked Beans in New England

(An Editorial In the New York Times)

It ought to be understood that baked beans is not a subject for unanimity of opinion. Down East in Maine they favor a medium-sized onion in each pot. Vermonters snort at such heretical goings-on and use a little maple syrup instead of molasses as sweetening. Both Maine and Vermont outwardly agree that brown bread plentifully studded with raisins is the natural complement of a plate of beans. New Hampshiremen insist that the way to eat beans is: first, place a slice of well-buttered, crisp-crusted, freshly-baked homemade white bread on the plate; second, cover this slice of buttered bread with lots of juicy beans and pork; third, repeat the entire process. Rhode Islanders, loyal to their white-corn johnnycake, insist on corn bread as the absorbent mop for the bean juice.

Even within a State there are schisms. Some insist on a sprinkling of sugar on the heaped plateful; others use a few beans as a minor partner to huge amounts of chili sauce, chutney, piccalilli, sweet tomato pickle, sweet cucumber pickle, pickled pears, spiced crab apples, or pickled watermelon rind. There are men of experience and judgment who place a piece of butter in the centre of each heaping plateful. The golden rivulets wind their way among the mealy nuggets and blend with the rich juice from the baking.

As one would expect in a democracy, opinions differ about the merits of varieties. There are those who claim the finest eating is with Yellow Eyes; others prefer Red Kidneys; some are for White Peas; and a few know the tasty succulence of Jacob's Cattle beans. The countryman is broad-minded about the problem. All he asks is that the beans shall be soaked, Friday night, cooked all day Saturday, that they contain molasses, mustard, salt, a good sized piece of salt pork that has both fat and lean, a small onion, and plenty of juice. There is one other essential. There must be enough left over for Sunday morning breakfast.

The Wise Use of Makeup

Gloria de Haven uses her lipstick expertly to form definite outlines.

By HELEN FOLLETT

THAT the beauty parade is moving in the right direction is evident. The bedizened complexion of the past has done a discreet fadeaway. Girls are learning better methods of playing with the calcimine and synthetic blushes.

Unless a girl can acquire fairly good natural effects with make up, be neat when laying on facial decorations, she had better throw away the rouge compact and the lipstick.

Changes in Skin.

A woman must remember that the skin undergoes changes with the years, yes even from one season to another. It won't do to keep on using the same shade of powder, the same color of rouge, the same lipstick. It may happen that the selections are all wrong anyhow. If one has doubts, it is well worthwhile to seek a make-up bar, get professional help.

The red lip pencil should form a definite outline not be dabbed on, rubbed in, with lip ends left untreated. To endeavor to form a Cupid's bow is a mistake; we just aren't that type of girl any more. To change the lip pattern at all, it is necessary to use an indelible lipstick.

Indelible lipsticks are interesting items to be included in the make-up kit. You can use them with frocks of various colors, should have several of them to vary the appearance of the face.

A rich flame tint is nice with a black or wood brown dress. A deep raspberry tint, almost wine, looks well with navy blue or white. You can find lipsticks with a suggestion of violet that are lovely with evening dresses of delicate coloring. It is a luxurious idea to have a supply of lip pigment, from which to choose.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Wife's Duty Is to a Husband Rather Than to a Possessive Parent

There are parents who feel they own their children absolutely. They never seem to realize that youth is opportunity, the time for falling in love, of marrying, and establishing a future, just as the parents saw to their own fate.

Here's a typical letter from one of these victims:

"Dear Miss Fairfax: Mother has been very successful in managing a large rooming house which she now owns. A young lieutenant who was one of her lodgers and I fell in love. But Mother refused absolutely to allow us to marry, although I was 22 years of age.

"With him I grew courageous and stood up to mother and told her we were going to be married anyhow. Then, saying I had broken her heart she gave her consent. But she made a bargain with my husband that I was to stay with her 'til he was settled at a new Post. My husband doesn't love Mother.

"So I remained and helped her run the house which I had been doing since I graduated at 18. Now I'm not very well because I'm going to have a baby; still Mother won't let me go to my husband who has been promoted and is now a First Lieutenant at a Post in Texas.

"Mother cries and carries on, most of the time, and keeps on saying I broke her heart. And my husband writes that my place is with him, that he is likely to be sent overseas. Between them both and not being up to par, I feel as if I were losing my mind. I feel so puzzled, perhaps you would write me what you think of our problem.

(Signed) Soldier's Wife".

You haven't any problem at all, my dear girl. Your place is with your husband. Have you forgotten what you promised in the marriage ceremony that you'd "forsake all others and cleave only to him?" Your mother married and had her own life. She had a baby—yourself—and you've proved to be a very useful daughter. Why should she begrudge you your chance at happiness, wifehood and motherhood?

You probably have been a very able assistant in running her business, but she'll have to get used to doing without you and engage the services of someone else. Naturally as you're going to have a baby you'll certainly have to take care of your child after it's born, rather than take care of your mother's lodgers. The decision that you make now is of the utmost importance to your future happiness. Your place is with your husband.

The Marry Go Round

Signal Code For Newlyweds

A fairly new young husband tells me that he has spent most of the first year of marriage learning his wife's signal code and mastering the domestic sign manual.

It's all right, he says, once you have memorized the wife's signals. But as no two girls have the same code, a fellow is always in danger of getting the GO and STOP signals mixed.

For instance, a significant lift of the left eyebrow may mean "You are making a fool of yourself". Or "Cut out the comedy. Everyone is watching you—and I'm not missing anything".

A gentle kick under the table may imply "You're not doing your duty as a host. Talk to the old girl on your left". Or "Watch your step; you're telling too much!"

While, a veiled glance out of the corners of the eyes may signify "Let's go home; I'm tired!" or "You're drinking too much!" or "Cut out the blonde—and ask me to dance".

A loving pinch on the arm may mean, "For the Lord's sake, let them say good-night and GO!" or "It's your turn to pay; pick up the check".

A wave of the hand from the other side of the room may be an imperative S.O.S. meaning "Come and rescue me; I'm being bored to death!" Or "This man is getting too clubby. Come and show him who's paying my bills!" Or "Are you going to leave me sitting here, in this corner, all evening?"

While a faint but significant frown may mean "I'm getting nervous; let's get out of this". Or "Try to STOP me; I dare you to make a scene".

And a strained smile may mean "Go on, go on. Don't mind me. I'm only your wife!"

Or "Now you've spilled the beans!"

Or "Yes, isn't he cute? Just wait till I get him home!"

Mental telepathy may work beautifully during courtship, when a man's mind is working at high pressure to please the girl he's trying to win.

But after the honeymoon, a code system is much more reliable than any mere masculine intuition, according to this young husband. And once a man has taken time off to master his wife's signals, they can play right into each other's hands, and fool the rest of the world.

Speaking of Girls —

Women are natural-born advertisers. Dorothy Lamour made the sarong famous, Lana Turner immortalized the sweater — but Eve started it all when she caused the name of the fig-leaf to go echoing down through the ages.

Never take a man's love for granted — because it never is granted. It has to be extracted from him as Adam's rib was — when he's in a dream.

The average man's way of erasing one girl's face from his memory is by drawing another girl's face across it.

What a girl does or says doesn't matter so much. The only thing that makes it right or wrong, clever or foolish, is whether a man happens to be in or out of love with her, at the moment.

"Don'ts" for Romeos

Don't overdo the caveman stuff. A little tenderness mixed with the masterful bossing is as necessary as the oil in the salad-dressing.

Don't tell a girl that you are "not-a-marrying-man". She will take it either as an insult or a dare. HER intentions may not be serious, either.

Don't be a last-minute-man. The only men who are welcome, after a girl has wiped off her make-up and fastened up her pin-curls, are Santa Claus and the postman.

Don't agree too enthusiastically when a girl calls your attention to another girl's charms. She may be perfectly sincere, but what she wants from you is not candor, but incense.

Don't kiss a girl just once. If you can kiss her once, it is an insult or a reflection not to want to kiss her again.

The average girl would like to think of herself as every man's dream, and every woman's insomnia.

150 MEMBERS OF CLUB PRESENT, CHARTERRECEIVED

Queen Mary Home and School Organization Holds Second Meeting

The second meeting of the Queen Mary Home and School Association was held in the auditorium of Queen Mary School on Thursday evening. It was the very gratifying result of the work of the Membership Committee under the convenership of Mr. Coombs, as there were some 150 in attendance.

Mrs. H. Croll, the president was in the chair. The meeting opened with the singing of "O Canada", followed by the usual reports from the Secretary, Mrs. Elmy and the Treasurer, Mrs. Ferguson. The President called on the conveners of the various committees.

Membership Convener, Mr. Coombs appealed for membership promotion and attendance.

Program Convener, Mrs. L. Buck, reported on her progress and promised interesting meetings to come.

Social Convener, Mrs. T. Jameson, reported on her duties and introduced her very worthy assistants.

Mrs. Croll brought to the attention of the members the book "Review" giving its worth and usefulness and suggesting subscription to it. One highlight of this meeting was the presentation to Mrs. Croll as president, by Mrs. W. H. Finkle, of the Charter of the Queen Mary Home and School Association, together with her good wishes for its success.

Mrs. Croll made welcome as visitors, Mr. H. B. Fetterly of the Board of Education; Mrs. W. H. Finkle, past president of Queen Alexandra Home and School Association and Mrs M. Ward, president of King George Association.

Mr. Fetterly spoke enthusiastically of this new organization and gave his good wishes.

Mr. Russell Wotten appealed to the member for supplies to be used by the Social Committee, with very gratifying results.

Carols Are Sung.

Entertainment was provided by the 8th Grade students in the form of Christmas carols under the able leadership of Miss May.

Mr. C. I. Frederick introduced the guest speaker, Mr. L. A. Kells, inspector-administrator, who gave a very instructive and interesting talk on "Worthy Home Membership".

Community singing of Christmas carols followed, led by Miss L. Arkels and Miss May.

The meeting was closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

Games were played under the direction of Mr. Arnold Campbell, followed by delicious refreshments provided by the executive of the organization.

It's About Time

IT'S ABOUT TIME for you, who enjoy visiting antique and second-hand shops, to look for an old copper milk can. Use it for a waste basket or keep it by the fireplace for kindling. Of course, you polish it like mad.

Foxboro

Foxboro.—Ladies of the three groups of the W.A. met in the S.S. rooms on Thursday afternoon where a pleasant time was spent. The President, Mrs. W. Scott was in charge and Mrs. Wm. BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Scalp Hygiene.

Buckets of money spent on glorious tresses, never a penny on the scalp! That's not playing fair with the crown of one's head. Many a dollar goes into the cash registers of beautytoriums for shampoos, permanents, finger waves, trims, bleaching, dyeing, tinting, reconditioning: the sum total would make a hole in the national debt. But the poor scalp gets no attention other that the customary sudsings.

Find a healthy scalp free of dandruff and with a resilient cushiony underpadding, and you will find a luxuriant growth of hair that glistens and looks alive. Unless the tissues are normal, circulation brisk, the silky shafts are deprived of the nourishment that is brought to them by the tiny blood streams in the papillae.

The scalp, being without the power of movement, gets no exercise. It should be frictioned to a glow. Massage is not only a stimulating agent, but also it has curative values. The practice of giving the scalp a five-minute rush-around every night is a good one, productive of rewards. Considering the amount of time spent on complexion creaming and decorating, and in arranging the seductive coiffure, five minutes can be spared for hair gardening.

It used to be that the scalp got a certain amount of massage when the hair was dried after the shampoo. Not now. The feminine head comes out of the bowl, is covered with a setting lotion and the finger wave or pin curl follows. To offset this, there should be a five minute friction before the soapy ducking. Some conscientious operators do that little thing.

Brushing the hair is beneficial to the scalp because the bristles tug at the hair bases. Take the hair strand by strand, hold each tress away from the head, use a narrow brush with a rolling motion.

Some beauticians recommend hair pulling for scalp stimulation, meaning you should pull your own, not the locks of the other woman— a practice that is not friendly. Take a small lock, give a quick tug, repeat several times, then grab another strand. Soon the scalp will be warm and glowing.

The weekly shampoo is not too frequent a treatment. Sebaceous and sweat glands are constantly sending forth their fluids, which— combined with atmospheric dust and skin scales— form considerable debris. Sweat glands, if functioning in excess, exude chemical wastes that take the gloss from the hair, raise the dickens generally.

Sunlight is good for hirsute foliage, giving the growth vitamins to feed upon. Diet may have a good deal to do with its well-being. Eat a variety of foods, drink milk and fruit juices.

GOOD MANNERS

Gifts For the "Shut-In"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

I have several relatives and close friends who are "shut-ins" and this year I am planning to dedicate some of the hours of Christmas Day to taking them gifts, because I think this would be more thoughtful to them and more appreciated by them. Would you please be so kind as to give me some suggestions for gifts that they would especially welcome? Thank you. Anita.

What a good heart you have . . . and into what a beautiful plan it has guided you! Yes, I have several favorites for this "personal mission" which I hope will appeal to you. One is a white glass vase on the large side, filled with branches of the leaves of Chinese lilies. . . they thrive indefinitely in water. (Or you can have them planted in soil, topped with pebbles or shells, in a glass or pottery container.) Or to delight many hours to come, you may be able to find a sea-garden in a glass aquarium, or a gold fish aquarium, to "sparkle" for the shut-in. Or a lovely framed picture or print of a subject that you know is a favorite with you relative or friend. If the shut-in has a phonograph, records (perhaps one a Christmas hymn or carol) are an enchanting gift. Or take a card registering a subscription to a newspaper or magazine, or to a book-lending library or to a book club. A lingerie pillow, a bed-rest (there are several new ones procurable this year, most ingeniously designed for comfort), light-weight but warm bed-socks, a quilted bed-jacket are comforting gifts. A newspaper or book rest may be a most welcome present. Also there's the world of Christmas-y foods . . . a jar or box of homemade cookies, a box of dates or figs, a fruit cake or a Christmas pudding, a basket of fruits, or a festive box of various kinds of jams, jellies and other sweets. And there is always the lovely gift of flowers, or a generous bunch of glistening Christmas greens, or a big white or red or green long-lasting Christmas candle. And you might like to consider an attractive and sturdy bag, to be hung on a chair or bed, mighty convenient to hold book, handkerchief, reading glasses and the like.

Duties of Junior-Maid-of-Honor

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

I am fourteen years old and am to be junior maid-of-honor at my sister's wedding. The only other bridal attendant is the maid of honor. What is my position in the procession? And what are my duties?

M. S.

If there are to be ushers in the procession, you would walk where a "junior bridesmaid" would walk, after the ushers and before the maid of honor. If there are no ushers, you would lead the procession. Since your title is honorary, you would precede the maid of honor, who would be the actual witness.

Your only duties are social ones . . .to look as lovely as I know you will look, to be completely co-operative with every wish and plan of your sister and to be gracious and charming to everyone concerned with this so-important occasion.

Thank-You Note

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

I sent my boy friend's father a small birthday gift and I received a thank-you note from my friend's sister. Does that note call for a reply?

M. M.

No, not necessarily, but you may if you wish, write her to thank her for her gracious note and for telling you that her father liked your gift. Or you may wait and send her a Christmas card, perhaps writing an added message on it, thanking her for her note and sending her your warm greetings.

Mystery Man Takes Baby to Hospital Then Vanishes Into the Night

That heading sounds like the title page of a mystery novel by Edgar Allan Poe, but it isn't. It happens to be the beginning of a real life story. That of Baby "X."

Our story opens in the emergency ward at the Hospital for Sick Children late one evening not so long ago.

Suddenly, from the gathering dusk outside, there appeared a well-dressed man. In his arms he held a baby, carefully wrapped in a blanket.

At once the nurses and doctor on duty sprang into action. Brief examination showed the child to be suffering from a spinal injury.

The strange part of the story is, that when the doctor turned to question the supposed father of the child, he could not be found. Quietly he had come, and as quietly had gone away.

At the time there was no way of knowing to whom the baby belonged, so pending investigation, the little patient went on the hospital register as Baby "X."

No Child Knocks in Vain.

However, this incident was really nothing new in the history of the Hospital for Sick Children, whose doors have never been closed since the day they first opened nearly 70 years ago. During all those years no child has ever knocked there in vain.

All who are in need are cared for and nursed back to health. No distinction is ever made. Regardless of race, creed or the ability of parents to pay, children are given medical aid and nursing care.

Accident cases, children with deformed backs and limbs, defective eyesight, rare diseases and physical disabilities are nursed back to health.

Among the Best.

No matter where you may search on the North American Continent you will not find any hospital of similar type with a better record of low cost operation, or with a higher standard of efficiency. This fact is well known and fully recognized in the hospital world today.

There are over eighty physicians and surgeons on the staff of the Hospital for Sick Children, all of them leading specialists in child ailments. These men give their services free to all public ward patients.

Not Self-Supporting.

The hospital is not self-supporting and the reason for this is not hard to find.

Only 5% of the hospital's little patients are able to pay the full cost of their care. 414 of the 482 cots are in public wards where the cost per patient last year was approximately $1.50 per day more than the combined income from patients (or their municipalities) plus the government grant.

Children of tender age must have individual care. This, together with special diets, medicines, orthopaedic appliances, physiotherapy, and many other items essential in medical cases, are costly expenditures not covered by government or municipal grants.

When Emergency Threatens.

At all times the hospital must be kept fully staffed; equipped and ready to cope with any emergency. It is a serious matter if immediate attention cannot be given to accident cases. And prompt aid must also be available for children with deformed backs and limbs, with defective eyesight, and with rare diseases. If it is not forthcoming, permanent disfigurement, deformity or chronic disease all too often result.

Fourteen days is the average stay in the hospital. But unfortunately, there are many patients who must receive medical treatment and nursing care for weeks, sometimes for months, and in some cases for years.

There Is No Other Way.

These are the reasons why, each year about this time the hospital must appeal for funds to meet operating losses, and to carry on its vital and important work.

There is no other way. Were it not for the generosity of sympathetic and understanding people, business organizations, societies, clubs, etc., the work of the hospital could not be maintained on its present scale.

This year $115,000 must be raised. Because of the fact that patients are admitted from every part of the province, the hospital does not share in the funds collected through Toronto's United Welfare Chest appeal. Therefore it must make its own appeal, and it does so, confident in the knowledge that generous and understanding people will come to the aid of little children who depend on them—and them only—for a chance for health, a chance to take their place in the years to come, as members of a prosperous and industrious society.

Since no canvassers are employed by the hospital, please send your gift addressed to—The Hospital for Sick Children, 67 College Street, Toronto 2.

VETERAN SAVES CHILDREN

Hamilton, Dec. 6, (CP)—The lives of two small girls were saved here yesterday by William MacMunn, veteran of the First and Second Great Wars. One child was pulling the other on a sled across a railway crossing when she became paralyzed with fear at the approach of a freight trin. McMunn, city street railway signalman, acted instantly, hurling himself at the children and tossing them off the track. He himself barely escaped the passing train.

DETROIT WINGS PLAY THE LEAFS IN TORONTO

Jack Adams' Men Could Take Over Leadership by Winning Two

With a helping hand from second division clubs, Detroit's hard-hitting Red Wings this weekend can strike a power blow towards knocking Canadiens off their top perch in the National Hockey League.

The sporting Wings have a chance to move into second place by taking tonight's game at Toronto with Maple Leafs, who have a one-point edge, and in Chicago Sunday Jack Adams' men look for an easy two points against the tailend Hawks. Meanwhile Canadiens tonight play host to the fourth-place Boston Bruins and travel to New York Sunday for an encounter with Rangers, tenants of fifth.

This year's edition of the Red Wings, like Adams-coached clubs of the past, is a group of virile athletes who play straight hockey with emphasis on bumps. Defence and attack both are sound with such respected veterans as Flash Hollett, Syd Howe, Mud Bruneteau, Carl Liscombe, Don Grosso, Murray Armstrong and Joe Carveth performing as efficiently as ever. Supplementing this talent are promising newcomers—Steve Wochy, Ted Lindsay and Mud Bruneteau's younger brother Eddie, boasting one of the hardest shots in the game.

The Wings will be favorites to top Leafs tonight despite the expected return of centre Gus Bodnar to the Toronto lineup. The Detroiters were victorious in both previous clashes with Leafs this season, scoring an easy 8-4 decision in their first Toronto appearance.

Cornwall Cookies Beat Shawinigans

Cornwall, Dec. 16 — (CP)—Cornwall Cookies scored a 3-1 victory over Shawinigan Falls Cataracts last night and strengthened their hold on second place in the interprovincial hockey league, moving to within two and a half games of the leading Valleyfield Braves.

An unexpected shot from the blue line by Bernie Gravel early in the first period set the Cookies on the victory trail, then when Babe Tapin left on a penalty, Bisson raced in to score on Laframboise's pass. Tapin was penalized for remaining on the ice with a broken stick.

Deroche scored what proved to be the winning goal seconds before the end of the frame and in the second period Andy Perron added the 3rd tally.

(Associated Press Sport Writer)

New York, Dec. 16. (AP)—By actual count, one speaker of the recent A.A.U. convention used the words "physical fitness" 31 times in a brief address . . .But there's something else that sport does for kids besides helping them physically—and a notable example is cavorting on basketball courts these days. . . . Big Bob Kurland of Oklahoma A. and M., when he first appeared hereabouts, was an awkward kid who was obviously embarrassed by his seven-foot height and apparently was doing his best to conceal it. . . . Now you'll find him a poised young man who doesn't seem to mind when people gawk at him, who plays basketball as a good team man instead of just a "goal tender", who guides and steadies his younger teammates. . . And you can credit the change not only to Coach Hank Iba's efforts but to sport in general—because so many other kids have undergone the same sort of

'39 Bowl Game Best.

What was the greatest Bowl football game ever played?

It was the 1939 Rose Bowl game in which Southern California tripped Duke by a 7 to 3 score on four straight passes from Doyle Nave to Al Krueger in the last two minutes of play. At least this is the verdict of the voters in the Esquire Sports Poll for next month.

Two minutes and 20 seconds before the end of the game Duke led by a field goal count. Only two minutes and 20 seconds stood between the team and a perfect season in which they had been unscored on. Then, according to Lieut. Commander Al Wesson of St. Mary's Preflight School—"Howard Jones called on Doyle Nave, third string quarterback who hadn't played enough time to win a letter, to go in with the ball 38 yards from the goal. Nave called for nothing but passes to Al Krueger. Two went for short gains and the third was a flat pass completed for a loss. With the ball on the 23-yard line and but 40 seconds to play, Nave called for a long angle pass across the field. Krueger ran at Eric Tipton, Duke's defensive right halfback and then suddenly cut to the left. Krueger's speed soon left Tipton behind and he was five yards ahead of Eric in the end zone when he caught the pass for the touchdown that won." (Tipton later played pro ball with Toronto and Cincinnati.)

Best Single Play

According to the poll the greatest individual play in American Bowl history was Lou Little's famous "KF79" faked reverse and spin play from single wingback formation on which Al Barabas swept 17 yards around end to win for Columbia over Stanford 7-0 in the 1934 Rose Bowl game.

Dixie Howell's work for Alabama in the 1935 Rose Bowl game in which his team beat Stanford, 29 to 13, was rated the greatest individual performance. Howell that day ran for two touchdowns, five yards and 68 yards; gained 111 yards from scrimmage, threw nine passes for 178, one a touchdown pass to Don Hutson, and an average better than 40 yards on his punting.

However, the continent-wide poll proved Bowl games haven't yet surpassed traditional grid rivalries that have come down through the football ages.

Around the Town.

Eastern Ontario junior hockey big-wigs will convene at the Hume Arena tomorrow to draft the hockey schedule for group No. 2 in the junior O.H.A. playdowns....Kingston has a bye in group No. 1.... Six clubs will sit around the convention table tomorrow afternoon and it's safe in assuming they'll still be wangling about playing dates when the Queen's Hotel dinner gong sounds....Junior clubs known to be sending delegates include Tweed, Stirling and Company, Trenton, Campbellford, Hastings and of course the Belleville juniors....And there may be more ....Actually there is more hockey chatter up and down the main stem than has been heard for years.... Maybe the boys are anticipating a long hard winter. Now's a good opportunity to organize a "boosters' club"....See the Bay of Quinte Country Club has re-engaged Bert Hancock as professional for 1945, while on the broad shoulders of Joe Legault lies the games committee chairmanship responsibilities.

Remember When.

Vancouver's Jimmy McLarnin and Billy Townsend scored knockouts at Boston 12 years ago tonight. McLarnin, who later became world's welterweight champion, put Sammy Fuller down for keeps in the eighth round after flooring him four times while Townsend, semi-finalist on the card, sprawled Andy Saviolax to the mat in three rounds.

Looking over the records it was disclosed that the first O.H.A. game played over the three period route by the Belleville intermediates was on Jan. 4th, 1915 at Oshawa when the period scores were 3-1, 7-3 and 11-7 with Oshawa always on top.

What's Doing in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Sam Snead of Hot Springs, Va., pulled up in the second round yesterday of the Richmond, Calif., Open golf tourney with a 69 to go into a tie for first place at the halfway mark with an unknown entrant, Jimmy Walker of San Antonio, each with a total of 139. Behind this pair, with 144, were Ky Laffoon of Chicago and Ernie Pieper of San Jose.

University of Detroit handed Western Mustangs of London, Ont., a 55-26 reverse in an exhibition basketball tilt at the motor city last night.

Jackie Paterson, Glasgow dockyard worker who holds the world flyweight title, will have a return bout with Petty Officer Ben Duffy who scored a knockout over him in their non-title bout at London, Eng. Thursday night. The date of the engagement was not announced.

Georgie Wolff of Cardston, Alta., is out today to win his fourth Gold Cup race at Hollywood Park, Inglewood, Calif., riding the favored Paperboy, Irish-bred son of Payrus. Wolff's previous winners were Seabiscuit in 1938, Kayak II in 1939 and Challendon in 1940.

In a mixed basketball-doubleheader at Guelph last night, St. Jerome's College junior champions from Waterloo topped Guelph Y's men's team 51-43 while London Shamrocks, girls' intermediate "B" champions of last season, outpointed Guelph Royals 37-27. Miss L. Clarke led the London lassies with 14 points.

JOHNNY GRECO EARNS A DRAW WITH BOB RUFFIN

Ruffin Had to Climb Back Twice Off Canvas to Earn Even Split

New York, Dec. 16—(AP)—Those two ex-soldiers, Johnny Greco of Montreal and Bobby Ruffin of Long Island, had a lot of bruises and a pocket full of dough today, and were the centre of a red-hot debate as to which is the better scrapper.

They battled to a sizzling 10-round draw in Madison Square Garden last night, although Ruffin had to climb off the canvas twice to draw even with a late spurt. The referee gave it to Ruffin, six rounds to four, but the two judges called it even for the official verdict.

Greco, discharged recently from the Canadian army, and Ruffin, formerly in the United States army, picked up about $25,000 each from the gross gate of $86,489—fourth largest for the Garden this year—paid by 17,957 fans.

Only Beau Jack, former lightweight, outdrew last night's scrap with his appearances against Bob Montgomery, present New York lightweight king; Al Davis of Brooklyn, and Juan Zurita, Mexico's lightweight ruler.

Ruffin, a master boxer, hit Greco several thousand times without seeming effect, but every time Greco hit the Long Islander the balcony shook. Ruffin's nose, a worthy target, bled during the late rounds, and his left eye was cut slightly, while Greco's eyes were discolored by the pumping left of Ruffin.

The upsurge on the track and the proximity to the end of the war in Europe brought an appreciable rise in already-booming bloodstock values. At Newmarket's September yearling sales 306 lots realized $1,622,200. The average of $5,248 was but slightly under the all-time record of the Doncaster yearling sales in 1928.

Sport Shorts From Britain

By ALLAN NICKLESON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 16 — (CP) — A 40-year-old veteran in an oversized silk cap has become Britain's champion jockey for the 17th time and an Indian potentate who lives in Switzerland amassed a wartime record in stake winnings as England's fifth—and best — wartime racing season ended on an optimistic note that the turf might return to peacetime splendor in 1945.

Gordon Richards, perennial winner of riding honors, had his best wartime season. The little fellow rode 55 winners, compared to 65 when he won the jockey title last year, placed second 51 times and rode 149 third-placers. He was an "also-ran" on 149 mounts.

The fabulously-wealthy Aga Khan, who went to Switzerland from France shortly after war began, won 23 races with a value of $62,900. Of that total Tehran contributed nearly $28,000 and proved himself the best of the season's 3-year-olds in winning the classic St. Leger with Richards up, and placing in two other classics, the Derby and the 2,000 Guineas.

The country's leading trainer was suave Frank Butters, who handled the Aga Khan's string and who has been atop the training list many times. The 18 horses he prepared for various owners won 34 races and $80,000.

Butters' best winner, apart from Tehran and Umiddad, was Sir Alfred Butt's two-year-old Paper Weight, who won his last five races. Umiddad, owned by the Aga Khan and ridden by Richards, took the important Gold Cup.

Lord Roseberry placed second behind the Aga Khan in the owners' list with $45,755 in stakes derived from 13 races won. Of that amount, nearly $43,000 was accumulated by nine horses which he bred and which earned him the title of leading breeder of 1944.

Richards, a triple winner on the season's last day, finished far ahead in seasonal honors. The second-place holder, Bill Nevett, rode 37 winners including the Derby winner, while Michael Beary, in third place, had 34. Richards, however, is not in the services and probably had more opportunity to ride than any other experienced jockey.

All in all the racing season was a season of surprises, whisker-finishes and conjecture that progress of the war might allow the turf game to return to normal in 1945. Decision of the government to allow a limited return of steeplechasing this winter heightened such hopes because 'chasing, only major sport to come under a wartime ban, was stopped by government order two years ago.

Throughout the war flat-racing has been, with exception of a few major races open to horses throughout the country, confined to regional lines whereby horses couldn't be transported more than 50 miles to a meet. As in 1943, only six courses were used — Newmarket, Ascot, Windsor and Salisbury in Southern England, and Stockton and Pontefract in the North.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

Toronto, Dec. 16. (CP)—One experienced sports observer who doesn't think former hockey players should have too tough a time getting back into competition after the war is George (Edmonton Bulletin) Mackintosh. As proof of that he points out that ex-servicemen made up a large proportion of players in the old Western Canada Hockey League just after the First Great War a league which "provided as good a brand of puckchasing as anybody ever looked at".

Among the returned soldiers in that loop were Red Dutton, Herb Gardiner, Bill Cook, Joe Simpson, Duke Keats, Jocko Anderson, Rabbit McVeigh, to mention a few. And plenty of them brought back scars of combat from the fields of France Flanders.

George doesn't cotton to Jimmy Dykes' suggestion that the strain of combat duty would affect their playing ability to any great extent, once they got back in practice. He thinks "Jimmy Dykes and others inclining to his view are unduly pessimistic".

Tribute:

From all over the country, tributes have been coming in to the late Walter McMullen, sports editor of the Hamilton Spectator. Perhaps none is as revealing of the high esteem Walter was held in as that given by Baz O'Meara of the Montreal Star. Asked for identification when trying to cash a cheque in Hamilton one day, Baz mentioned McMullen's name as reference. The cleark didn't even telephone to check on it, says Baz, but cashed the cheque immediately.

Toughest Fight:

The greatest fight Jimmy McLarnin ever staged, he told Ken (Vancouver Province) McConnell, was his last meeting with Mickey Gill, western boxer who has been killed in France with the United States infantry. McLarnin and Gill grew up together, and fought three times. While Jimmy went on to fame and the world welterweight title, Gill fought professionally for a time, but never achieved great success.

Clapper, Beware!

When Dit Clapper took over the generalship of Boston Bruins in the brief absence of Art Ross, the Bears performed a bit too successfully for Clapper's own good, suggests Mike (Kingston Whig-Standard) Rodden. He recalls when Sprague Cleghorn and Frank Patrick on two separate occasions took temporary command of the Bostonians and encouraged them to display unexpected power. They soon were given the gentle heave-ho, so comments Mike: "Clapper would be well advised to read history".

Invasion Brings World Renown to Canadian Forces

BY ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

With the 1st Canadian army, Dec. 16—(CP)—From a sweltering June in Normandy to a bleak, sleety December in Holland and Germany, forces of the 1st Canadian Army battled their way along the Channel coast on the left of the Allied line on the Western Front.

The contribution of the Canadians and the other Allied troops which made up this international force under Gen. H.D.G. Crerar, army commander, was immense. The victories of the Canadian army, the first army formation to take the field in the history of the Dominion, had great bearing on the advance of the Allied forces from the Normandy beaches, through France, Belgium and Holland into Germany itself.

Fighting as they did along the Channel and North Sea Coast, the Canadians and other troops in the army fought what is acknowledged as the hardest battles in the summer and fall campaign. They had many tough, dirty jobs to do, but every one was accomplished despite casualties and tremendous difficulties.

The 3rd Canadian division, temporarily serving with the 2nd British Army, shared in the historic D-day landing on June 6, storming ashore with divisions of British and American troops. The 3rd division took a leading part in the bloody battles of the Caen perimeter and with troops of the 3rd British division captured Caen. The first Canadian Army took its place in the field in the subsequent battle of Falaise. The Canadians with the Polish and British troops fighting with them, broke the Caen hinge which sealed the fate of the German Seventh Army.

The Canadians and Poles helped close the Trun gap and the whole army pursued the Germans to the Seine and then on over the Somme and on into Belgium.

The buzz-bomb coast was cleared, with British troops under Gen. Crerar capturing Le Havre and the occupy Dieppe after the enemy 2nd Infantry Division returning to fled. The 3rd Division came up fast from the Seine, where it had taken Rouen, to storm and capture Boulogne, Calais and Cap Gris Nez. The 4th armored division and the Poles roared into Belgium.

Schelde Estuary Defence

The Germans decided to make a firm stand on the Schelde estuary to deny the Allies the port of Antwerp, which had been captured intact by the British 2nd Army. After all the Channel and North Sea ports, with the exception of Dunkerque had been captured, the Canadian Army turned its attention to the Schelde. Throughout October the battle for the Schelde raged. The 3rd Division cleared the pocket south of the estuary, capturing Breskens and a dozen other key-point towns. The 2nd Division fought its way north from Antwerp and then stormed through South Beveland Island aided by an amphibious landing made by troops of the British 52nd Lowland Division on the southeast corner of the ed, the 2nd Division made the ini- island.

After South Beveland was clear- tial bridgehead on Walcheren Island sending troops out along the causeway leading from Beveland. British commandos and 52nd Division troops then landed at Flushing and other commandos at West Kappelle on the western tip of Walcheren. Within a few days German resistance on Walcheren cracked. Flushing was taken; Middelburg and Veere fell and all the German guns covering the Schelde were overrun. The Schelde was cleared. By early November the port of Antwerp was receiving Allied convoys.

While the Schelde battle was going on, the 4th division with British and Polish formations and the 104th American infantry division pushed north and northeast from Antwerp to clear southwest Holland of the enemy. They drove the troops of the German 15th Army back north of the lower Rhine.

Ever since the 1st Canadian Army went into the line as an army formation south of Caen it has had an unusual international character and General Crerar welded a great fighting force from its various components. At different times there have been in the Canadian Army in the west, Canadian, British, Polish, Czech, Dutch and Belgian and American troops.

Fought At Nijmegen.

From Caen to Holland, the three Canadian divisions were in action together with practically no rest. In mid-November, following the victories on the Schelde and in southwest Holland the Canadians relieved British troops in the Nijmegen salient and took up positions inside the German border of Nijmegen.

Commanding the Canadian corps in the army, Lt.-Gen. Guy Simonds again proved his capacity as a brilliant field commander, particularly in the battle which broke the Caen hinge and led to the capture of Falaise and in the Schelde operations. For the latter, Gen. Simonds was acting army commander when Gen. Crerar was forced by ill health to leave his command temporarily, Maj.-Gen. R.F.L. Keller commanded the 3rd division from the beaches to Caen where he was wounded and other divisional commanders during the six-months campaign were Maj.-Gen. Charles Foulkes, Maj.- Gen. Harry Foster and Maj.-Gen Dan Spry. For a brief period Maj.-Gen. George Kitching commanded a division but was succeeded by Gen. Foster.

The outstanding Canadian achievements were the part the 3rd division played in the landing on D-day and its great fight around Caen; the Canadian Army attack which thrust through to Falaise and to Trun; the tremendous pursuit; the capture of the Channel ports and the freeing of the buzz-bomb coast and finally the battle of the Schelde.

Probably the most heroic single action was the crossing of the Leopold Canal in early October by the Western brigade composed of the Royal Winnipeg Rifles and the Canadian Scottish. Under merciless enemy fire and against heavy counter-attacks the westerners held the bridgehead, drew a large German force down on themselves and enabled another brigade to break into the Schelde pocket by a sea-borne landing southeast of Breskens.

138 Survivors Of Ill-Fated Arnhem Battle Withdrawn

With the British Army in Holland, Oct. 22 —(Delayed)—(AP)—Exultantly singing "The Volga Boatman" under a hail of German mortar fire, 138 more survivors of the ill-fated Arnhem battle have withdrawn across the Rhine.

Now resting at a hospital safely within the British lines, they appeared too exhausted to talk much. But one weary warrior said: "It's like coming back from the dead."

Two Canadian airmen, whose names were unavailable, were also rescued.

After the first evacuation of several thousand survivors of the British 1st Airborne Division in late September, more than 100 men remained in hiding in the German-held Arnhem area. Liaison was established, and at a pre-arranged hour known to British troops on the southern bank of the river a lone British officer crawled through the woods to the enemy-held northern bank and flashed a red light. It was the signal for British troops to send across small rubber assault boats.

Then, in the pitch darkness, this ragged, half-crippled band of "Red Devils" was led to the river-edge by the flash of Bofors guns which were fired on the opposite side of the Rhine.

At first they moved silently. But once in the boats someone began to sing. In an instant, and despite German mortar shells splashing on all sides, the men took up the song in a wild, full-throated chorus.

LESSON NO. 589
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

You may have been busy all week. Or maybe you got tired waiting for the final bid. So, I will show you all the bids for this pair of partnership hands:

SOUTH
♠A K Q J 10 6
♥K Q 8 5
♦7 4 2
♣None

NORTH
♠9 3
♥A 10 4 2
♦A 8 5 3
♣K 6 4

This is how the bidding went:

SOUTH	NORTH
1 S (1)	2 NT (2)
3 S (3)	3 NT (4)
4 H (5)	4 NT (6)
5 S	6 H (8)

This is what the players said to each other:

1. (1S) Pdny, I have a better than average hand with a biddable spade suit. How about you?
2. (2NT) Pard, count on me for three high cards, but no suit of my own or adequate support for yours.
3. (3S) My spades are rebiddable: I have eight tricks; keep this bidding alive to at least a game, or else.
4. (3NT) I'm obeying orders, but have nothing new to show.
5. (4H) I also have a biddable heart suit. But my spades are two cards longer. Which suit should we use for trumps?
6. (4NT) Now I know what will be trump and see chances for slam. I am signalling you that I have two aces and a king and want you to tell me how many aces and kings you have.
7. (5S) This is the signal for showing an ace and two kings.
8. (6H) Our best trump is hearts. With the number of aces and kings you have, a grand slam does not look safe enough.

After looking at the dummy, can you get a plan for taking 13 tricks? Plan with skill and take your fill.

CANADIANS HOLD

Some ground was given at times, but the Canadians reorganized well west of the Naviglio's bank, from which position they refused to budge an inch.

They breathed easier when help arrived from companies of Alberta infantrymen under Maj. Gordon Armstrong of Salmon Arm, B.C. and Capt. George Brown of Lloydminster, Sask.

Then more relief under Maj. Frank McDougal of Regina, Sask., pushed through the sticky opposition, and neatly bagged 40 prisoners, extending the bridgehead's depth to the 400-yard mark.

Brown's boys netted 19 prisoners.

A British Columbia Highland unit brought up the left flank under Maj. Ollie Mace of Innisfail, Alta., Slew Lynch, Calgary, Alta., Don Duncan of Hamilton, Ont., and Capt. Les. Thirwell of Calgary.

By Thursday the Canadians were ready for anything. Their patch of the canal bank positively bristled with rifles, Brens, mortars, machine guns, field guns and tanks of a British Columbia unit.

Flush Enemy Tanks.

Using medium artillery to flush enemy tanks spotted Thursday, the Canadians scored at least two direct hits on one in motion.

Troops manning guns under Lieut. J. R. Toogood of Lethbridge, Alta., from a battery commanded by D. J. Halphide, bagged the moving panther.

Thursday afternoon the enemy launched his strongest counterattack up to that time. The battle was at peak pitch for an hour, and by nightfall still continued. The westerners did not back up a yard.

Air support all day Thursday was beautiful, answering the prayers of the Canadians.

The two-day total of 14 attacks against a bridge was believed unprecedented throughout the 8th army's entire Italian campaign. Fearful of further advances in the Faenza area, Field Marshal Kesselring has made every effort to deny the Canadians their Naviglio foothold, only to be thwarted by the grimmest sort of tenacity.

Local Gains Registered.

Local gains were being registered by the Canadians on the left flank, between the Naviglio and the town of Bagnacavallo, two miles north, along a line running southwest toward the Lamone river.

French-Canadian troops under Capt. Andre Langlais of Quebec City and Lieut. Harry Pope of Ottawa figured in a spectacular attack on a factory east of Bagnacavallo Thursday afternoon with dive-bomber support.

The attack was a complete success and netted more than 50 prisoners.

The Germans were resorting to booby-traps and mines once more—rarities in the earlier stages of the present Canadian drive when the enemy was pulling back hastily.

Prudently "delousing" the traps by shearing their fuse wires, the French-Canadian boys staged a victory celebration, dashing into the factory and setting off the detonators.

Activity on the Canadian corps' right flank was confined. New Brunswick tankmen were cleaning up south of route 16—the Ferrara-Rovenna—while Manitoba boys in Shermans were doing the same thing northward, working toward Lake Commacchio.

Firefighters Return

Maj. David Vivian Currie of Moose Jaw, Sask., and Owen Sound, Ont., and Maj. John Keefer Mahony of New Westminster, B.C., both winners of the Victoria Cross, were among the arrivals. Members of the disbanded corps of firefighters in Britain, soldier-actors of the army show, war correspondents, nursing sisters, members of the C.W.A.C. and other branches of the service also were in the group.

About 400 British war brides of Canadian servicemen, some with young children, arrived to take up new homes in Canada. They were happy to reach Canada, for they waited four days in a crowded port city before embarking, sleeping five or six in one room.

Col. Max Meighen, son of Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, was among the arrivals. A staff officer with the ordnance corps, he is on leave after long service overseas.

CSM. Bruce Lefebvre of Cornwall, Ont., had seen service in Sicily, Italy, France, Belgium and Holland.

A Full Cross-Section

The army personnel who arrived home were the lucky ones of the first contingent who drew from a box of ballots the ticket that entitled them to a month's leave at home. For many, it seemed too good to be true. Many didn't realize their good fortune until they set foot on Canadian soil.

The arrivals constituted a full cross-section of the 1st Canadian Corps embracing every branch from the infantry to the rear echelons. Those that came from Italy, left their comrades preparing to return to action after a few weeks rest.

RSM. Eddie Sanborn, a former orchestra leader in Montreal, headed 28 men and women of the No. 1 Canadian Army Show which arrived in Canada. They will undergo "reconditioning" in Canada and will return overseas to entertain the troops after a brief tour of Canada.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was the last one down to breakfast, and pop was eating his with me and listening to the radio more because it happened to be turned on than because he was intristed, and ma came down and started to eat her grapefruit diet and pop said to her, How do I look?

Why you look perfectly normal to me, I mean you dont especially look either one way or the other, ma said. Why, how do you feel? she said, and pop said, I never felt better, in fact I doubt if I ever felt as well. I wonder what keeps me from bursting with health? I suppose it must be my suppressed vitality, he said.

Well I must say its a strange time to ask me how you look, ma said. People dont inquire how they look unless they expect a disappointing reply for land sakes, she said, and pop said, That's just it. I dont see how I can possible feel any better than I do, and yet those fellows have got me worried. Three of them have been on the air since I sat down, each one ballyhooing a different pep pellet. The first one solemnly declared that Zippies would make me feel like a million dollars, and 2nd swore up and down that if I swallow a Peppy twice a day I'l be sitting on top of the world, and the 3rd assured me in a voice vibrant with emotion that Wowies would make a new man of me, and what a man. So that's my predicament, pop said.

I fail to see any predicament when you feel perfectly well already, ma said, and pop said, Perfectly well, yes, but do I feel as well as all that? I mean I'd be a little uneasy if I thought I didn't give the general impression of a new man sitting on top of the world looking like a million dollars, so how do I look? he said.

Oh you look like the crazy silly thing you are for land sakes, ma said, and pop said, That more than sattisfies me my dear.

Being the end of the subject.

Warden Earl Onderdonk Entertains P. E. County Officials at Banquet

Picton — Warden J. Earl Onderdonk entertained County Council, County officials and friends at the Annual Warden's banquet Wednesday evening, which was held at the Royal Hotel, Picton, where a fine turkey dinner was served.

Seated at the head table were the Warden, F. L. Ward, K.C., who very capably presided as toastmaster. Group Capt. R. F. Gibb, A.F.C.; Dr. S. H. Roblin, Major Gordon Walmsley, J. C. Cooper, Adam H. Lloyd, Deputy Reeve Jerald Anderson, and the Warden's father and brother, John Onderdonk and Keith Onderdonk.

The toast to Our Armed Forces was proposed by Group Capt. Gibb and responded to by Dr. S. H. Roblin.

Deputy Reeve Jerald Anderson proposed the toast to the Warden, responded to by Warden Onderdonk.

The toast to the County Council was proposed by Major Gordon Walmsley and responded to by Mayor Nesbitt McKibbon, H. S. Colliver and the Reeves and Deputy-Reeves present, namely William Henley, Sherman McQuaid, Lyle Branscombe, Earl Brummel, W. O. Striker, Calvin Hughes, Harold Cleave, Chas. Carter and Jerald Anderson. Earl Burris responded on behalf of Hillier Township for Albert Weir, snow-bound. Roy Ketcheson also was unable to attend because of snow conditions.

Interspersing the toasts, musical numbers and comic skits were provided by Al and Bob Harvey, with Ernie Barnes at the piano, Harvey McFarland being the sponsor of this entertainment which was much enjoyed.

The various speakers expressed cordial thanks to the Warden for his hospitality, and to Mr. McFarland for the entertainment. As well they universally expressed their high regard for Mr. Onderdonk, and their appreciation of his fairness during his term of office as Warden.

Groupt Capt. Gibb said that the Air Force is given credit for a lot, but the Navy and Army plod along doing their important part. He praised the record of Prince Edward County concerning enlistments and Victory Loan subscriptions. He asked sympathy and cooperation in re-establishing in civilian life those who are returning from active service.

Dr. S.H. Roblin, replying, was at his best in paying an eloquent tribute to the deeds of valor and sacrifice of those in the Armed Forces.

Jerrald Anderson said that he was most grateful to be able to propose a Toast to his friend of long standing, Warden Onderdonk, who had proven himself a man in every way. They had entered municipal politics together seven years ago, and had thoroughly enjoyed the association in Muncipal and County Councils. Mr. Anderson said.

Warden Onderdonk expressed his pleasure at having those present as his guests and he gave cordial thanks to everyone for the co-operation he had received, specially mentioning the County Clerk, the County treasurer and the Road Superintendent. He complimented the hotel on the meal furnished, and thanked Mr. McFarland for th entertainment.

Major Walmsley said that he has profound respect for the County Council as a result of sixteen years spent in close association with that body. He said that County Councils represent the nearest perfect form of government we know. Being close to the problems they handle, County Councils give them the most adequate attention.

In returning to civil life, Major Walmsley said he had been amazed to see the number of inspectors there are and the number of controls there are related to everything under the sun. These controls unquestionably are necessary in war-time, but, if carried over into peace-time the question might exist as to whether a man on a farm might be permitted to milk a cow with a license? (Laughter).

The speaker felt that Councils in small centres should vigorously assert their right to maintain their authority and exercise control over the expenditure of their local tax levies.

Referring to Major Walmsley's resignation as County as County Clerk, Reeve Sherman McQuaid spoke of his personal desire to have seen him carry on with this office.

In Manhattan

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Dec. 16 — (CP)—It is no longer news to report that Billy Rose's magnificent revue, "The Seven Lively Arts," is the biggest smash of its type to hit Broadway since the late Florenz Ziegfeld glorified the American girl two decades ago.

But the basis of the show's success might bear further analysis. First of all it has stars — Toronto-born Beatrice Lille who never was more sparkling; veteran comedian Bert Lahr whose mugging ability seldom has been on better display; Benny Goodman, the double-personality of swing-king and clarinet virtuoso; and ballet notables Alicia Markova and Anton Dolin.

Perhaps more important still, the stars have excellent material, flung together for them by such big names as Cole Porter, Igor Stravinsky, Ben Hecht, George S. Kaufmann and Moss Hart.

It has striking sets by Norman Bel Geddes, an excellent corps de ballet and good supporting performers topped by Compere Doc Rockwell.

None of this completely explains the sure-fire manner in which the show goes over. There's something of the magic wand about the way in which all this talent is welded together, and the answer lies in the superb showmanship of super-showman Rose.

This latter-day builder of hits has a flair for the spectacular and his early "Aquacade" and "Jumbo" successes have confirmed in him the soundly-based belief that the public loves looking at something that's expensive.

His latest opus cost a reputed $400,000 to stage; but ballyhoo and out-of-town reviews had returned $580,000 in advance sales before the New York curtain went up.

Overshadowed along Broadway by some recent openings, but worthy of the critical acclaim it received is "A Bell for Adano," Paul Osborn's deft adaptation of the John Hersey best-seller. Frederic March and Margo star in this superior war play—first to emerge from the present conflict—which may even remain important after headlines which give it current savor have been forgotten.

AN APPLE FOR EVE

By Kathleen Norris

CHAPTER 15

"Where?"

"I don't know. I'll let you know. Somewhere."

"Bakersfield? Your mother?"

"No, not Bakersfield. I was paid off today and I got thirty-five dollars," Larry said. "I've put twenty under the alarm clock for you. I borrowed five from Annie Lum last month, and I hope you'll return it for me."

Loveday sat down on the bed opposite the suitcase.

"You can't leave us like this. What's the matter with you lately? Why are you going away? A man just can't walk out on his wife and children this way! . . . You're going to enlist!"

She said the last in sudden conviction. Larry's quick answering glance did not deny it.

"Why don't you wait until we get into the war, if we do get in! A man with three children has no business to go off and enlist! What are you going to try for? You didn't like the air service."

"Remind me of that, why don't you?" he said in quiet anger. "I'm going to enlist wherever they think they can use me. I'll shovel manure if they ask me me to; I'll wash dishes! But by God, I'll be myself! I'll not be pitied any more," he went on, warming. "I'll not have everyone asking what poor Larry's doing. This is your house, my dear, and everything in it belongs to you. Your brother, your grandfather, your tables and chairs and plates. That's all right. That's fine. But now I'm going after something that's mine. Your brother shows up and wants to find your money. The whole damn St. George family walks in and out—dearest Loveday, and here's a ham and a turkey and here's your check for fifty or seventy-five or whatever it is every month! You're on old man St. George's pay roll; sure, why not? There's a little bluff about his investing your money so that it always pays you just what you need. It may fool you; it doesn't fool me! He must have made pretty darn good investments to pay you six hundred a year out of about three hundred and sixteen dollars capital. But that's all right."

"You won't leave the children!" Loveday said. "They'll miss you. They always make a fuss when you're away at night."

This reached him and she knew it, although he gave no outward sign of having been struck. After a moment he said somewhat gruffly: "They'll get along."

Loveday watched him, trying to find the right weapon.

"Don't go off this way. It's idiotic! You know you'll feel differently tomorrow."

"Oh no, I won't," he said. "Maybe I'll only get twenty-one dollars a month, but everyone will know that it isn't because of my wife's friends that I'm getting it!"

He picked up the suitcase and left the room. For a moment she sat stricken in a dreadful silence; then went quickly downstairs after him. Larry had gone out to the terrace; there he picked up the twins and kissed them as casually as if he had been leaving only for an hour.

"Good-bye, feller," he said to the baby. "I've done all the sitting around here watching you have fun that I'm going to," he said to Loveday. "It's got to be my turn sometime." For a second his arm was carelessly about her; he kissed her on the temple, said another "Good-bye," and was gone.

One golden autumn afternoon in Hugh's car she and Hugh and the children took the long road to the reservoir in search of Al Harris or news of Al Harris. The day was warm and still; the severest heat of the summer was over; men were boxing apples and pears in the orchards; the Bettancourts were cutting grapes. Loveday was almost silent. She had grown strangely quiet in the long three weeks since Larry had gone away. Even to Hugh she had not talked in complete confidence. Hugh had been told only that Larry had been discouraged at not finding the work he wanted to do and could do and had gone away, threatening to enlist.

"He won't enlist?" Hugh, deeply concerned, had said in his cautious way.

"He might. He's crazy about aviation."

"Yes, but with three children."

"Well, he contended that he wasn't supporting them."

"But — my goodness, that's a mere accident of the moment. He will be. He would be if he stayed here. He wasn't—wasn't angry?"

"Well, he was upset, I think perhaps," she had said soberly.

The narrow dirt road twisted on and on up the hill, and presently they turned a sharp corner and came out of the woods to see the reservoir shining wide and peaceful in the afternoon sun. Across a bridge and beyond a shallow strip of reedy marsh stood the keeper's white cottage. Below it was a little landing and an old rowboat tied to a stake. A bent, lean old man with red hair was puttering with the boat. Hugh hailed him.

He came blinking suspiciously toward them, and Loveday recognized him at once.

"You're Mr. Harris," she said. "I'm Dr. Gurney's granddaughter. Where's Captain Willetts?"

"He drew down to town to git some staples," the old man said, blinking in the sun as he stood looking at them. "What ye want with him?"

"We were looking for you," said Loveday. "I suppose that you've heard that my brother was was found, Mr. Harris? This is Dr. Gurney."

"I heard something about it," Al Harris said grudgingly in the shrill, suspicious voice of an old mountaineer. "Sounded to me kinder queer. Too late to prove them things. The Old Doc's dead, and Mis' Gurney—she's dead too. I don't know what ye want me fur."

"We want to get that memorial hospital for children started," Hugh said, getting out of the car and helping Loveday to jump the children out. "And we thought you might help."

"You can get in the boat," Loveday said to the twins, "but walk on the planks steadily and sit quiet when you get there.... It's my grandfather's money, Al," she went on, turning to Harris. "We think it might still be found. Hugh here—my brother—is following up all sorts of clues, and he wants to how it happened that the child whose body was found had on one of his old play suits."

"I don't know what that'd prove," Harris said, spitting on the ground, looking away, and meditating before he replied. "All I know is I was after a deer an' I got pret' well up to the ridge back here—m' wife and I had a place up that way then—an' I was settin' round, I seen this little end of a blue suit stickin' out from under a culvert—"

"Yes, I know. But the body wasn't my brother's. And the thing is, who was the child, and how did he happen to have on one of my brother's play suits?"

"Well," said the old man in a sort of crafty whine, "now you're askin' me somethin' I don't know nothin' about. Your grandfather losin' all that money didn't seem to me to have nothin' to do with my findin' the boy an' claiming the reward, an' I don't p'pose to stand here talkin' about what's over an' done with."

There was a weather-silvered bench on the pier near the parked car; Loveday and Hugh sat down on it, and Harris, after an irresolute glance about, perched himself on a little barrel top, facing them.

"You were an orderly in the hospital, weren't you?" Hugh asked.

"I's there twenty-seven years, which a dog couldn't have et on," gittin' paid sixty-five a month, the old man answered promptly. "I worked nights sometimes, cleanin' up in the wards; I come in ev'ry mornin' as the clock struck seven, an' often I didn't git my breakfas' until maybe ten o'clock."

"But you did get a check for a thousand dollars?"

"No sir, I never got no check. The doctor had a desk drawer full of money an' he paid it to me in twenties. An' m'wife's brother," Harris said bitterly, "he lost it for me! He was goin' to turn it into five thousand before ye could say 'scat' to a cottontail! Delia, she says, 'He knows what he's goin' to do with it - - -!'"

"Delia did!" Loveday exclaimed.

"Yes'm. She was a great girl for tellin' lies, Delia was."

He rambled on and was presently climbing the mountain again in his familiar narrative to follow a deer, resting in the woods, discovering a strip of child's suit blowing from the mouth of a culvert. Loveday had heard this many times if never before from him.

"We didn't get much out of him, did we?" she said on the drive home, referring to Harris, "except that he was evidently uneasy—scared."

"We got everything out of him, poor rat!" Hugh answered, laughing. "I've got a pretty clear idea of what went on. But exactly how to use it I don't know. We've got to get hold of this Delia Dillon."

"Delia Dillon was a fine, gentle, highly religious Irishwoman. I hope that nothing he said influenced you to think that she'd ever steal anything or have anything to do with a person like him!" Loveday said warmly.

"What do you remember of her?"

"Just that she was big and fine and kind of scary, too, now that I come to think of it. She was always jumping up at the least sound and locking windows and looking under beds. As I remember; she wasn't very young. Thirty-two or three, maybe; I know she was only sixteen when she first came to us."

"But you don't remember her married name?"

"No."

"One thing I got was that Harris was trying to appear bottled up like a clam," Hugh said, "but there were several other things too. For one, he'd gone to desperate means to find Delia Dillon. Illiterate and ignorant as he is, he'd gone to San Francisco and telephoned every Dillon in the book. That's an extraordinary amount of trouble for him to have taken, and if he did that, you may be sure he went over all the Dillons in the neighboring villages as well. Also he went to the post office to find if they had a forwarding address, and he must have bothered them too, because it evidently came to the point of his threatening to report them!"

"You're smart!" Loveday said enthralled.

"It was all there. But there was more too. Evidently he'd been bullying this girl, threatening her, too, perhaps. She knows something or she has something he wants.

Perhaps she held onto the child's clothes for months, perhaps a year. By that time the reward had been offered and he'd had time to think out what he actually did. At least I'm sure he did. He must have gone and collected cadavers for the hospital doctors' college—for dissection, you know. He told us that today too. He'd had an errand over to the Poor Farm."

"Gruesome!" gasped Loveday.

"Every medical student has to have a corpse, my dear. That's simple routine. You get your corpse and you work on it. And what easier than for him to take the bones of some child's body—some poor scrap struck down in the street, perhaps, report to the hospital that the family refused to part with it, and plan his 'discovery'?"

"He isn't smart enough," the girl said, shaking her head. "A mighty clever man would hesitate before trying to put over a thing like that."

Loveday had no word from Chris for some days. Then she wrote Aunt Laura she was coming to see her for a few days and Chris sent a note asking to be permitted to drive her in. At first she decided against it but then she considered it foolish to decline so simple a request. On the way, they stopped at a very Frenchy eating place near Palo Alto.

Groups of late lunchers were scattered about the shady, cool interior of L'Omelette when Chris and Loveday, hot and dusty, went in but presently they had the place to themselves. Loveday had gone to the dressing room for a thorough brushing and dusting and rejuvenating process; she emerged looking trim and fresh, with her eyes as eager as those of a child.

"This is a great adventure!" she said, finding Chris at the small window table that was tucked into an inconspicuous corner.

"Yes, this is an adventure."

"How wonderful to be raving hungry and to know that just the food you want has been gotten ready for you by someone you don't know and never will see," she began enthusiastically. "I never thought of it exactly that way," Chris answered.

"It's been so long since I've done anything quite as daring as this, and I'm loving it!"

Chris looked at her thoughtfully, spoke unsmilingly.

"Very intoxicating talk."

"Well, but I'm intoxicated. "Going to Aunt Laura's house is always enough to send me straight into seventh heaven! You St. Georges are simply amazing people. I don't think that, even to you, your lives seem commonplace. But when they're contrasted to—well, say Buckingham Way in Bakersfield - - -!"

"I never saw that house. But Hugh described it to me. Were you completely yourself when you married your husband?" he asked after a silence.

"Quite as much as a girl ever is. But you had a finger in that, Chris."

"I did?"

"Yes. Hugh—only he was Marc then—and Rod and Nini and I had gone down to visit you and Merle in Hollywood, remember? Merle had gone up to her people in Stockton for some reason or other, and you did the honors."

"I remember every minute of it. Every second."

"It was a week in Bagdad for me!" she said, her eyes fixed on far space. "I went a little crazy—I didn't realize that what was adding part of the glamour—what was really making it—I mean, I hadn't thought that all the time I was liking you."

"I see."

"I thought of you as belonging to Merle, of course," Loveday, regaining a little dignity as she went on, explained simply. "You were the St. George's big brother, of whom they were so terribly proud - -"

"I suppose so," he said slowly.

"That what was making me so happy, making it all seem so magical," she pursued, "had anything to do with you never occurred to me in all those days!"

"You didn't know. I knew," Chris told her.

"It was Nini who saw it," the girl went on. "And the minute she spoke of it it came to me like a thunderbolt—of course that was it! I couldn't bear it—being ashamed and shocked and frightened, and afraid that your mother would be angry at me. I had been alone or with older people all my life until I met you, and then I was so touched that your mother and father liked me, that you all did, and that you included me in all your happiness, that the thought that I'd lost your respect—well, I think I went a little crazy! I was sick, honestly sick, and I didn't know whom to turn to or what to do!"

"So that when you got to Bakersfield there seemed a way out?"

"It was a sort of refuge." She took him up eagerly.

After a lull in hostilities, during which it was reported that E.L.A.S. (Left-Wing Greek group) has come to terms with the British, fighting has broken out again in the streets of Athens. Scarcity of food and water is now adding to the hazard of snipers' bullets.

Advance British Elements Near City of Maungdaw

Kandy, Ceylon, Dec. 16 —(CP)— Advance British elements have reached positions 14 miles southeast of Maugdaw on the west coast of Burma and are within 40 miles of the important west coast port of Akyan, a Southeast Asia communique disclosed tonight.

These elements have cleared Buthidaung, 60 miles north of Akyan in the Arakan district, and have continued the advance down the Mayu range. All the territory to the west of the Kalapanzin, which had been vacated by Allied troops before the Monsoon, now has been reoccupied, the bulletin said.

In the North Burma fighting zone, some 800 Japanese troops of a suicide force commissioned to fight to the death at Bhamo have been squeezed into an area of about 6,000 square feet in the southwestern part of the town, as the 38th Chinese Division made gains in the northern sector.

'High-Sky' Interesting Narrative Of Pinfeather Pilot

A young Royal Canadian Air Force officer, Flying Officer Alec McAlister, of Trenton, and London, Ont., has written one of those colorful interesting little books that come, not too often, from the pens of "first-writers".

He has dubbed it "Hi-Sky"—the Ups and Downs of a Pinfeather Pilot,—and it is exactly that.

McAlister was born with a flair for observation of the smaller things of life, the serious, the humorous together with those ordinary incidents that go unnoticed by the average person. He has also a flair for putting it down exactly as it happened without benefit of Churchillian word eloquence or elaborate elaboration.

"Hi-Sky" is the simple story of a pinfeather pilot who, like thousands of others, entered the service with their pinfeathers yet to sprout. It is written in a delightful boyish style that carries the reader along with a running continuity that misses nothing. The awe of basic training, the dreams and drudgery of I.T.S. and the final air force accolade of wings are noted in a breezy style that is pleasant to the eye.

To those of the air service "Hi-Sky" will come as a pleasant narrative of actual life. It should cause many a chuckle among those who are cognizant with flying and its attendant training tortures. A very full evening's reading which will no doubt, be enjoyed by many.

Incidentally, Flying Officer McAlister, is a son of Mr. Fred McAlister, of London, former President of Kiwanis International. The book is now on sale in city bookstores.—G. McC.

Clever Ruse of Canadian Sergeant Foils Attack of Hun Tiger Tanks Says Local Boy Who Saw the Action

How a gallant sergeant of a famous Western Canadian regiment used his ingenuity and quick thinking to turn almost certain annihilation of his platoon into victory was related here this week by a young Belleville returned soldier who took part in the action.

Things had not been too rosy for this platoon. They had battled fiercely in front of Falaise for three days. Sergt. D. Robertson, Winnipeg, had deployed his men behind a sturdy hedge. Slit trenches were staggered directly to the rear.

They had consolidated their hard-won position. A few yards to the front were crack German troops.

Tosses Back Grenades

A whooshing noise sounded in the evening air. A second later a potato masher bomb, one of those neat little playthings with a handle and a base filled with deadly explosive, dropped into the sergeant's trench. Quickly he reached down, heaved the bomb back and ducked. It exploded a few feet away. Then came another. And another. Four times the gallant sergeant threw back the lethal packages.

Close to the hedge, his Bren gun snuggled close to his side, lay Private John Willshire, nineteen-year-old son of Corporal and Mrs. J. G. Willshire, Forin Street, Belleville, who arrived home last week after suffering severe wounds that took the sight of one eye.

"Neat Trick"

"Sergeant Robertson fooled the Germans with as neat a trick as was ever pulled off in this man's war," said the young soldier.

"That evening he slipped out of his slit trench and crawled to where the platoon lay awaiting attack. He warned us to expect a particularly heavy counter-attack. Then he made a strange request. He asked every man for his anti-gas cape. Taking them he quietly arranged them over the bushes of the hedge. Bullets zipped around him and he went quickly about his work. That fellow surely had guts, and brains too, as it was afterwards proved.

"The sergeant was right. About dark, Jerry laid down a wicked barrage, and later fifteen Tiger tanks came smashing their way toward our positions. They ran slap-bang into the cape-hung bushes and their speed whipped the capes over the visor slits of the vehicle, blinding the drivers. We sat back and picked 'em off with our Piats like shooting ducks. The remainder broke and fled. We chalked up another win for the Saskies".

"If ever a fellow earned and won a decoration it was Sergeant Robertson.

"Just a Flash—Then Nothing"

Severely wounded about the face and legs, Willshire literally "did not know what hit him". There was a binding flash, a spasm of sharp pain—then nothing. The next thing he remembered was a back areas hospital, his head swathed in bandages and an officer bending over him.

"The officer spoke to me, but I was so full of dope and my head bandaged so I could scarcely see out of my good eye", Willshire said.

"Where do you come from son"? the officer asked.

"Belleville, Ontario, sir."

"Belleville, eh? That's strange, I come from that city myself", remarked the officer.

Identifying themselves the two soldiers discovered that prior to the war they had been schoolteacher and pupil at Queen Victoria School. The officer, incidentally, was Major Jack Cousins, now commanding an artillery battery over there.

The youthful private arrived in Canada a few days ago from the hospital ship "Letitia" with a number of other Belleville "repats". His father is a non-commissioned officer in the Veterans Guard of Canada. He married a pretty English girl, who came to Canada last May. They have one child.

CSMC. Yearwood Of Madoc Among Arrivals Home

Two hundred "five-year" men, veterans of a half-decade of service overseas have arrived in Canada for a well-deserved holiday with their families. The men were the lucky ones to draw their names from ballot boxes, and no doubt were the envy of their "buddies", who perforce must be left behind, at least for a while.

Heading the group in this district was Company Sergeant Major C. N. Yearwood, Madoc, battle-scarred decorated hero of the famous 1st. Battalion, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, who was one of three brothers to land in the same company in Sicily. On his breast he wears the red, white and blue of the Military Medal and the laurel wreath of the "Mentioned in Despatches." He won his decorations in the now famous crossing of the Moro River, where Canadian troops played such a gallant part.

Others in the group are Sergeant H. S. Dracup, Belleville; Corporal F. C. White, Holloway; Sergt. R. C. Baker and Corporal R. W. Lawson, Trenton, and Pte. A. A. Heffernan, Picton.

A SHORT NOTICE

Onawa, Ia., Dec. 16. (AP)—When Yeoman Clare Haris, just off ship at an Atlantic port, telephoned the Onawa hospital at 7.30 p.m., and asked to talk to his wife, a nurse replied, "She can't come just now". Haris waited and in a few minutes his aunt grabbed the telephone and told him "you are the daddy of a son born at 7:32". The next voice was the operator cutting in with, "your five minutes are up".

MAJ. CURRIE, V.C., BACK HOME

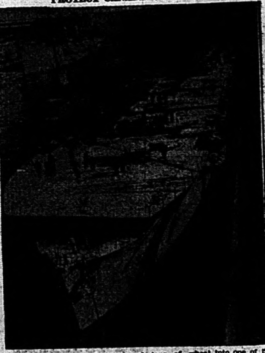
PROTECT CANADIAN CONVOYS



Grain funnels pour thousands of tons of wheat into one of the Royal Navy's pigmy cargo-carriers. Once loaded with an average of 7,000 tons of wheat, the carriers go out in convoys. This is one of the first pictures to be released showing how the Royal Navy's flat tops, former merchant ships converted into carriers, have kept U-boats away down where they belong. The decks are only 380 feet long and navy fliers use less than 100 feet for their takeoffs and landings.

3 Hitch-Hikers Steal Toronto Motorist's Car

Trenton, Dec. 16.—Kenneth John Gardiner, of 666 Eastern avenue, Toronto, reported to Trenton police on Friday morning that he had driven his car from Toronto, picking up three young men enroute and bringing them into Trenton. Mr. Gardiner parked his car on Front street and shortly afterward returned to the spot to discover the car had been stolen.

Trenton police investigated and shortly afterward Constable George Crawford found the car at the extreme north end of Front street at Lock No. 1 in the ditch in a large snow drift. Tracks of three men were seen leading from the car towards the woods into Evergreen Cemetery nearby and came out on the Stockdale road where apparently the men obtained a ride.

Later a Mr. A. McLeod, who formerly operated a White Rose Service Station on Front street in Trenton, informed police that he had given a lift to thee men from the Stirling road into Trenton.

Mr. Gardiner, owner of the car, informed police the lads were all headed originally for Montreal and had undoubtedly obtained a further ride east from Trenton.

Nearby police, including the Provincials, were asked to co-operate in the search and late in the afternoon Belleville city police reported they were holding a man answering the description of the 20-year-old civilian. He gave his name as Fred Naulls of Toronto, and is being held for the Trenton police.

The car was not damaged.

Load Of Straw Upsets

Minor accidents have been numerous on the snow-piled streets during the past few days but fortunately traffic has slowed down to the extent where property damage of any great measure or personal injury have been nil.

A load of straw caused considerable inconvenience to traffic on the Gilmour Hill for a short time on Friday afternoon after the load on a truck owned by Clarke Denbeigh of Agincourt had shifted as the truck endeavored to make a left turn at the top of the hill.

Denbeigh was hauling the straw to the Hinde and Dauch paper mill and as he climbed the hill through the deep ruts of snow the rear end of the truck jack-knifed shifting the load considerably and spilling many bales of straw on the highway. It was some time before the bales could be retrieved and loaded on another truck, and in the meantime, traffic on the hill was considerably hampered.

PICTON

Picton, Dec. 15 — A large gang of workmen and trucks are engaged in removing snow from the streets and have the greater part of the main street of the town cleared.

Reported Wounded

Capt. Gordon Maybee has been wounded in action in Italy, his parents, Mr and Mrs. Ezra Maybee, Wellington, have been informed. No information was given. His brother, Norman, member of the R.C.A.F., is a prisoner of war in Germany.

Wounded Second Time

Pte. Donald Ross, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Ross, Wellington, has been wounded a second time, suffering a cracked wrist. He was first wounded last July while serving in France. He is with a Highland unit.

Storm Restricted Mail

Picton had only one incoming and one outgoing mail on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, as the Trenton-Picton Highway was not passable.

Jack Dunlop, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dunlop, reported to Kingston yesterday, having joined the infantry. The staff of the Fair grocery presented him with a gift.

Children of the Mission Church, numbering 175, enjoyed a supper Thursday night. Carol singing preceded the arrival of Santa, who distributed gifts and sacks of oranges, apples, popcorn and candy.

To Henry May from Robert Ireland.

I wandered near the place dear
Henry,
I sat beneath the tree
Near the old schoolhouse playing ground,
That sheltered you and me
There are none left to greet me
Henry,
And few more left to know,
That played with us dear Henry
Just eighty years ago.
The old schoolhouse is gone Henry,
And all the boys and girls we used to know,
Who played with us dear Henry
Just eighty years ago.
I am very sad today Henry,
Tears come into my eyes,
When I think of eager friends
Those early broken ties,
When the time has come dear Henry
And we are called to go,
I hope they lay us near the place
Where we played just eighty years ago.

—Robert Ireland.

HUNS GAIN SEVERAL MILES IN SUDDEN COUNTER-OFFENSIVE AGAINST AMERICANS

Extent of Enemy Advances And Allied Counter-Moves Cloaked Under News Dimout

Fierce Battle May Prove One of War's Most Decisive

By EDWARD KENNEDY, AP STAFF WRITER

Paris, Dec. 18 —(AP)— The United States 1st Army struck back at advancing German columns of infantry and armor in Belgium and Luxembourg today in a fierce battle which may prove to be one of the most decisive of the war.

The Allied Command accepted the challenge of Field Marshal Karl Rudolf Gerd von Rundstedt who was attempting his greatest counter-offensive against American troops in Europe.

But the situation at the front was reported extremely fluid and for this reason Supreme Headquarters decided upon a strict blackout on detailed information concerning the extent of the enemy advances and the counter-moves of the Americans.

Armor Crosses Thrusts

However, front line dispatches said Hodges had thrown armor against the German thrusts, and that British Spitfires and Tempests came down from Holland to lend a hand to Allied air forces.

The German air force continued to support the German winter strike on the biggest scale since the Allied landings in Normandy.

A new type of V-weapon was used by the Germans along the 9th Army front both by night and day.

More German parachutists were dropped behind American lines last night. But these may have numbered no more than 18. Six were caught.

Tabulations from 9th Tactical Air Command headquarters said 129 German planes had been shot down in 24 hours — more than 20 per cent of the number of carefully husbanded aircraft put over the lines by the German air force.

Lt.-Gen. William H. Simpson, commander of the Ninth U. S. Army on Hodges' left flank, praised the work of the Allied tactical airmen, declaring that despite the great number of planes used by the Germans they are "not able to bother us a great deal."

(The Germans claimed forward American positions along a 20-mile front had been overrun between Luxembourg and the Hohe Venn, "High Marshland," a swampy tract 2,200 feet above sea level extending for 30 miles from Rotgen to Malmedy.

(But the German command also adopted a cautious attitude and said it was withholding details of the action.

Throwing hundreds of carefully-conserved planes, hundreds of tanks, many divisions and even parachutists into a sudden winter counter-offensive, Field Marshal von Rundstedt had achieved a penetration of several miles in the American lines, re-invaded Belgium in the Monschau area 16 miles south of Aachen, and re-entered Luxembourg at two other points.

Today the Germans were pushing their advance along an 80-mile front from the Monschau area to the southern tip of the Luxembourg border with new and more violent attacks.

Allied military authorities said it had been decided not to make public specific information now as to the exact places where the German columns were smashing through and how far they had advanced.

But 1st Army headquarters dispatches said the Germans had gained several miles and American troops were locked in battle. The penetration apparently had been at least four miles in one area ten miles east of Malmedy, a Belgian town just north of the Luxembourg border.

This was a push by a strong German armored column supported overnight by artillery and bombing and strafing planes on a seven-mile front.

Several German armored divisions and infantry divisions were striking savagely and bending back the lines of the fiercely struggling Americans.

Seek Soft Spots.

Elsewhere along the 80-mile front the Germans were delivering stiff punches aimed at seeking soft spots and there were indications the supreme German effort would mount in intensity before it subsided.

On other army fronts there were signs of impending German blows:

A German patrol raid Saturday had probed British 2nd army positions in Holland, but the enemy was driven back. Elsewhere on the 21st army group front, part of which is held by the 1st Canadian army in the De Wyler forest area of Germany, routine patrols were reported.

U.S. 3rd army dispatches said the heaviest enemy rail movement ever seen behind the 3rd army front had been observed yesterday.

Other reports from the British 2nd army from said German fliers in the greatest strength since D-Day had appeared in the skies along the Aachen sector, along with many reconnaissance aircraft over the British front.

10-mile-long German column was blasted by Allied fighter-bombers in the Neunkirchen area, 10 miles northeast of Saarbrucken.

In the Alsace plain German counter-attacks rolled over three villages in the Colmar and Selestat areas.

But at Gen. Eisenhower's supreme headquarters it was said the Allied command is taking measures to deal with the situation and that there was no cause for undue alarm.

Von Rundstedt undoubtedly has thrown a large part of his strategic reserve into this supreme effort, it was said, with the most likely purpose of derailing the Allied winter offensive and holding the Allies on the Roer river and the fringe of the Saar Basin until spring.

It is possible, it was stated, that this may prove to be the final German effort to turn the tables.

By some it was compared to the great German First Great War counter-offensive in the spring of 1918.

Shrewdly Timed.

Shrewdly timed when the Americans were drawn up at the Roer and presumably preparing for the serious effort of getting across that barrier toward Cologne and the Rhine, von Rundstedt's blow was aimed at the Ardennes Forest, path of German conquest in 1940.

It was set off by a proclamation to his troops telling them their "hour has struck" and that they must "achieve the superhuman for our Fatherland and our Fuehrer".

Ninth tactical air force headquarters in Belgium said hundreds of Thunderbolts and Lightnings pounced on concentrations of as many as 300 to 400 tanks and armored vehicles with rockets, bombs and machine-guns as part of the Allied reaction.

Outnumbering the German fighters as much as ten to one the Allied fighters along the entire front accounted for at least 113 of 550 planes put over the lines by the Germans yesterday and the night before.

The Allied planes went down to "deck level" to get in their blows and 33 of them were lost.

"The German air force definitely is coming out and we are shooting them down every chance we get, but fundamentally we now are out there to beat up the "German army", said Maj.-Gen. Elwood R. Quesada, commander of the 9th Tactical Air Force.

33 Planes Destroyed.

British fighters also tangled with 100 German planes flying from northern airfields and destroyed 11 in one series of dogfights. The 29th Tactical Air Force accounted for 23 more.

Altogether Allied planes knocked out 25 tanks and armored vehicles, 16 locomotives, 400 trucks and 300 railway cars.

The German air force continued its bombing and strafing last night, but its diminished effort indicated that possibly the Luftwaffe already was spent as a result of prohibitive losses.

The Germans threw up some of their jet-propelled planes into the assault as well as some of their V-bombs, and began using railroad guns on an increased scale to bombard rear areas of the U.S. 9th Army, to the north of the 1st Army.

Many of the parachutists dropped behind German lines on Saturday night to harass communications as German armor and infantry struck the frontal attacks already had been rounded up and the search for others was going on methodically.

German Tank Force Ruthlessly Pours Machine-gun Fire Into Disarmed Yanks

By HAL BOYLE
(AP War Correspondent)

An American Frontline Clearing Station, Belgium, Dec. 17—(Delayed)—(AP)—Weeping with rage, a handful of survivors described today how a German tank force ruthlessly poured machine gun fire into a group of about 150 Americans who had been disarmed and herded into a field in the opening hours of the present German counter-offensive.

"We had to lie there and listen to German non-coms kill with pistols every one of our wounded men who groaned or tried to move," said Sgt. William B. Summers, of Glenville, W. Va., who escaped by playing dead.

The Americans were members of an artillery observation battalion ambushed and trapped at a road fork by a powerful German armored column of Tiger tanks. There were no heavy weapons in the American column and the entire observation unit had to surrender.

"They disarmed us and then searched us for wrist watches and anything else they wanted," said Summers.

"I guess we were lined up along that road for a full hour. Then they stood us all together in an open field. I thought something was wrong. As we were standing there one German soldier moving past in a tank column less than 50 yards away pulled out a pistol and emptied it on our fellows.

"Then they opened up on us from their armored cars with machine-guns. We hadn't tried to run or anything. We were just standing there with our hands up and they tried to murder us all. And they did murder a lot of us.

"There was nothing to do but flop and play dead."

The survivors lay in tense, rigid silence in the freezing mud for an hour before cautious glances showed most of the Germans had moved away. Three hours after the slaughter fewer than 20 survivors had made their way back to the American lines.

North Burma's Scattered Fronts United in Line

Kandy, Dec. 18 — (AP) — North Burma's scattered fronts were united into a single line when the Royal Scots Fusiliers, advancing toward the south, linked up yesterday with British 14th Army elements pushing toward the east in the jungle area west of Indaw on the Myitkyina-Mandalay railway.

An area containing 2,000 inhabited localities, was freed from the last vestige of Japanese domination by the junction. Pinlebu, important enemy base and communications centre from which the invasion of India Isawau

Prior to the present link-up the 5th Indian Division, striking out from the Imphal Valley, and the 11th East African division, driving down the Kalewa Valley, had made a junction near Kalemyo, about 145 miles southwest of Indaw.

American infantry and artillery, known as the "Mars Task Force," now are fighting in the North Burma theatre and are closer to Mandalay than any other Allied units.

The force last was reported operating in the vicinity of Tonkwa, 120 miles north of Mandalay and about

RED ARMY UNITS REACH NEW POINT OF SLOVAK BORDER

Russ Artillery Again Blasting Budapest From Positions 5 1-2 Miles From City

Moscow, Dec. 18 — (AP) — Soviet big guns firing from newly-won positions within 5½ miles of Budapest crashed an avalanche of steel against the inner defences of the Hungarian capital today while Red Army units reached the Slovak border at a new point 72 miles northeast of the city.

The scope of the Red Army's Hungarian offensive was emphasized by the official Communist party newspaper, Pravda, which said that as many German divisions were engaged on the southern sector of the eastern front as against all the Allied forces in the west. Pravda repeated figures purporting to show that 220 enemy divisions, 200 of them German, were tied up in the east as of Dec. 1.

The Pravda article was directed against the United States Army and Navy Journal for questioning whether Russia had fulfilled the military decisions of Teheran.

Hundreds of Germans were slain in the bloody fighting that resulted yesterday in the capture of Fot, 5½ miles northeast of Budapest, and Mogyorod, eight miles from the capital, the Russians announced.

The Germans came back with furious counter-blows by the Luftwaffe, self-propelled guns and waves of infantry.

The Red Army thrust to Slovakia, with the capture of 40 towns including Szina, represented a gain of 15 miles northwest of Miskolc. It appeared almost certain that the Germans cannot much longer remain in Kassa, the biggest city they still hold in southeastern Slovakia, for it is rapidly being outflanked to the west in this drive.

As Marshal Rodion Malinovsky's 2nd Ukraine Army pushed relentlessly forward alongside units of Marshal Ivan Petrov's 4th Ukraine Army, the entire German salient in eastern Slovakia was in extreme danger.

Other Red Army units in the drive northward from Hatvan along the approaches to central Slovakia yesterday took the big town and railway station of Paszto, 37 miles northeast of Budapest.

Meanwhile the continued pounding of Libau, Lithuanian Baltic port, together with renewed attacks on German communications in East Prussia was seen here as a possible forerunner of new land activity on the northern end of the eastern front.

The ground has become hard and the rivers frozen throughout the Baltic countries, turning the terrain, which had been mushy with early snows, into good tank land.

The presence of a large number of German transports at Libau gave rise to the speculation as to whether the Germans are being forced from the Baltic pocket where they have been hanging on tenaciously and at great cost.

222,565 PRISONERS TAKEN

21st Army Group Headquarters Dec. 18 — (CP-Reuter)—The total of prisoners taken by the British 2nd and 1st Canadian armies since the western European invasion stood today at 222,565. Indicative, however, of the lull on the British-Canadian Netherlands sector, only 27 prisoners were taken last week.

HOG HELPS KILL HAWK

Elberton, Ga., Dec. 18 — (AP) — Herbert Wilcox reports that chicken hawk swept down the other day to grab a hen that was feeding in a hog pen on the farm of S. C. Anderson. Then she let out a tremendous squawk, and the hog went to her assistance. When the battle was over, the hawk was dead and the hog and the hen continued eating.

Maj. Currie, V.C., Welcomed Home

Owen Sound, Dec. 18, (CP)—A crowd several thousand strong was on hand at midnight Saturday to welcome home Maj. David Vivian Currie, Canada's seventh and most recent winner of the Empire's highest military award—The Victoria Cross.

Maj. Currie was welcomed by Mayor W. Garfield Case, and a parade including the Owen Sound City Band, the Canadian Legion, the Air Cadets and Air Cadet Band, and Army Cadets, marched to Queen's Park where the official welcome was read to the Canadian Army hero. Maj. Currie, accompanied by his wife and nine-year-old son, David Jr., replied briefly to the welcome.

Mayor Case presented an illuminated copy of his welcome and an engraved silver cigarette case to Maj. Currie, while a large bouquet of roses was presented to Mrs. Currie by Alderman Mrs. Audrey Rutherford. Maj. Currie said he would remain in Owen Sound until Christmas and then hoped to go to Moose Jaw to spend New Year's with his parents.

BRITISH OPEN HOUSE-TO-HOUSE DRIVE IN ATHENS

Reinforced British Troops Launch Operations to Open Highway

By STEPHEN BARBER
(AP Staff Writer)

Athens, Dec. 18 — (AP)—British forces launched a full-scale drive against Leftwing E.L.A.S. forces in Athens today and it appeared likely to be only a matter of hours before the siege of the capital is lifted.

Within a short time after jumping off at dawn the British had captured an E.L.A.S. stronghold on the highway leading from Athens through the summer resort of Phaleron to the Kalamaki airport. The E.L.A.S. forces, estimated at about 200, had barricaded themselves in a brewery and were equipped with heavy machine-guns.

The Kalamaki airport already had been cleared to a depth of 300 yards and British armored vehicles were traversing the road from Athens to Piraeus.

Before the main attack began, British forces took Sikelias Hill, due south of the Acropolis, which had been strongly held by the E.L.A.S.

The first goal of the British clean-up operations was to open the main highway between Athens, the port of Piraeus and Kalamaki airport.

Armored forces as well as infantry participated. A number of prisoners were taken in the first hours of the drive.

Fighting had increased in Athens during the week-end following a rejection by St.-Gen. R. M. Scobie of E.A.M. peace proposals.

Turn Down Peace Offers

British headquarters reported Scobie turned down the peace offer because it did not provide for the immediate cessation of the two-weeks-old civil warfare as a preliminary to final negotiations.

R.A.F. Spitfires and rocket-firing Beaufighters attacked E.L.A.S. forces in the city yesterday after members of that military auxiliary of the Leftist E.A.M. had opened heavy artillery and mortar fire.

Premier George Papandreou's press secretary announced the E.L.A.S. had been completely cleared from Pireaeus, port of Athens, but the British were continuing operations there.

Relief shipping has piled up at Piraeus and yesterday a general strike was called in Salonika, where other vessels crammed with relief supplies remained unloaded.

Brig.-Gen. Percy L. Sadler, deputy commander of United States forces in the Middle East and in charge of the distribution of American relief supplies in Greece, said Americans in the country "will refrain from any action which could possibly be interpreted as intervention in Greek politics, although naturally complying with British security regulations."

The British said hundreds of armed Bulgarians had infiltrated into northern Greece.

HITLER VISITS FRONT

London, Dec. 18 — (CP)—A Daily Mail dispatch from the western front quoted captured German soldiers today as saying Adolf Hitler had visited the front 10 days ago. The prisoners asserted Hitler told troops in the Roer River area to hold on till Dec. 16, when he promised the Americans would be dealt a nasty surprise.

MINDORO ISLAND NOW SECURELY IN AMERICAN HANDS

Airfields Whipped Into Shape for Raids On Manila Area 150 Miles Away

General MacArthur's Headquarters, Philippines, Dec. 18 (AP)—Airfields were being whipped into shape today on the southern end of Mindoro Island, now securely in American hands, while Allied infantrymen were 11 miles from the beachhead they established at dawn Friday.

Only scant resistance was encountered, a spokesman reported. The Americans had command of strategic high ground and set up a wide defence six miles beyond the town of San Jose.

On Leyte island to the southeast, troops of the U.S. 77th division outflanked Japan's Yamashita line at the southern section of the Ormoc corridor and drove seven miles north toward an ultimate junction with forces pressing southward.

American and Australian construction engineers on Mindoro were busy making ready captured airstrips for day and night fighter planes. These airfields are only 150 miles from Manila—a flight of less than half an hour.

Carrie- plane blows against the Manila area gave strong support to the Mindoro advance.

Maj. Richard I. Bong of Poplar, Wis., top United States ace, shot down his 39th enemy plane Friday in a fighter sweep over Negros island in support of the Mindoro operation. That is one more than the total of Wing Cmdr. J. E. (Johnny) Johnson, British-born leader of an R.C.A.F. Spitfire wing in Europe.

The flanking movement of Leyte entained some of the bloodiest fighting of the Philippine campaign. Gen. MacArthur listed 2,012 new Japanese dead to add to the 37,154 already counted on Leyte.

The 77th division was only two miles from Valencia, headquarters of Gen. Suzuki, commander of the 35th Japanese army. At the north end of the bloody corridor the Yank 1st cavelary division made a two-mile advance to cut the Yamashita line between Mount Catabaran and Valencia, and the 32nd division in the same general area captured large quantities of enemy equipment.

Thorough Pasting.

American aircraft gave Japanese shipping airdromes and fuel installations a thorough pasting. Three freighters were set afire off Mindoro and a fourth was damaged. Two more were set ablaze off Masbate in the Visayan group.

Oil tanks at Tarakan, North Borneo, were pounded anew.

The concentrated day and night attack on the Manila area by carrier nd lnd-based planes caused the Jpanese to black out the city for the first time since they captured it.

COMMENT RELAYED

Boise, Idaho, Dec. 18 (AP)—Home on leave from general headquarters in the European theatre of operations, Col. Arthur J. Melanson relays this comment by Gen. Eisenhower on when the war will end: "It's just like pushing an auto up the hill in a fog—we'll never know until we get to the top"

German Garrison at Dunkerque May Hold Out Until End of War

By DON CAMPBELL
(Reuter War Correspondent)

Outside Dunkirk, France, Dec. 18 —(CP-Reuter)—Dunkirk has settled in for the winter. It may not be avenged now until the end of the war.

Nothing decisive is happening at the moment in this bleak, desolate, almost-forgotten corner of France. Inside the port the Germans are cosy. Outside, British troops are drawing lots for "Blighty" leave.

It is more than two months since I saw a procession of people with their sheep and cows quit this coastal fortress.

It might have been another Calais but Capt. Scheinder, naval commander of the 15,800-strong German garrison is made of tougher stuff.

The besieging forces have been firing shells into Dunkirk for weeks. An occasional prisoner is taken and odd deserters, but nothing extensive is being done to wipe out the memory of 1940, when the British Expeditionary Force withdrew by sea after being bottled up at Dunkirk by the Germans.

The Germans are in the town's best billets, with good wireless sets and reading matter.

It is a crazy fantastic deadened sort of war here. The GeGrmans cannot use the port, and a major offensive to capture it would afford little strategical advantage. But a force must be maintained there to contain the Germans, who are in no hurry to do anything.

Dunkirk has been invested since early in September. It was last reported besieged by British troops of the 1st Canadian Army and at one time Czech units under Gen. Crerar's command held the perimeter around the port.

3 Nazi Railheads Supplying German Drive Are Smashed

Huge Allied Air Formations Strike Blows on Hun Cities

London, Dec. 18, (CP) — Eleven hundred heavy bombers and fighters raced from Britain to the flaming American 1st Army battlefront today and smashed three German railheads supplying the German counter-offensive.

Attacking after 1,300 R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. bombers raided the German cities of Munich, Ulm and Duisburg last night, 500 American heavy bombers today dumped 2,000 tons of bombs on Cologne, Coblenz and Mainz despite solid cloud which blanketed them from view.

The clouds robbed the escort of 800 fighters of a chance to mix it with the German fighters.

The night force dropped an estimated 7,000 tons of bombs on the three German cities, all key points in the German railway network.

Day of Bitter Air Combat

The triple blow last night— one of the first struck by heavy bombers in weeks—came in the wake of a day of bitter air combat between German and Allied fighters.

Seventeen planes, four of them Canadian, are missing from the night operations.

Duisburg was the Canadian target, more than 200 R.C.A.F. planes attacking the city.

The eGrmans had 108 fighters and bombers blasted otu of the air yesterday in air battles accompanying the enemy's grond attacks. Two R.A.F. fighters were lost, both due to flak, and 31 American pursuit craft were listed as missing.

From all sectors Allied fighter craft were summoned—even the R.A.F. Spitfires, Tempests and Typhoons from the Netherlands—as a sudden break in the weather exposed long columns of German tanks, trucks and troops moving slowly toward the battle raging in the U.S. 1st army lines.

The break in the weather forced the German command to rush planes in the air in an attempt to provide cover for the attacking ground troops.

American bombers based in Britain could not get into the fray yesterday due to bad weather. Fighter-escorted American flying Fortresses and Liberators from Italy, however, crossed the Alps and bombarded railroads at Salzburg near the old German-Austrian frontier, a target at Wels; oil refineries at Blechhammer and Odertal in German Silesia and the Moravska Ostrave refinery in Czechoslovakia. Allied fighters strafed transports on a rail line southeast of Munich between Rosenheim and Wels.

In these and other operations 48 enemy aircraft were destroyed and 29 Italybased Allied planes were missing.

R.A.F. heavy bombers from Britain were out soon after dark for the Allies' first big raid on the southern German rail centre at Ulm —midway between Munich and Karlsrute.

The Germans still were battling blazes in Ulm when a second big bomber force rumbled over Munich and spilled incendiaries.

The third R.A.F. operation was the blow at Duisburg, a railhead on the western edge of the Ruhr which has been hit heavily in past weeks

NAGOYA, HANKOW HEAVILY HIT BY SUPERFORTRESSES

Attack on Jap Target in China First Made by U. S. Air Force

Saipan, Dec. 18 —(AP) —Superfortresses bombed Nagoya, Japanese industrial city, for about two hours today with approximately the same number of planes which staged the damaging raid of Dec. 13th.

After the B-29s took off on today's raid, Brig.-Gen. Haywood Hansell, Jr., 21st Bomber Command head, disclosed that additional photos showed that the Hatsudoki factory in Nagoya was damaged more than previously supposed in last Wednesday's raid.

He said four large assembly buildings and 22 smaller structures in the factory area were destroyed or badly damaged.

Washington, Dec. 18 —(AP)— Two Japanese targets—Hankow, China, and Nagoya on the enemy's homeland—were struck yesterday by giant B-29s of the 20th Air Force, it was announced early today.

The attack on Hankow was the first made on that target, the War Department said.

A previous attack was made on Nagoya Dec. 13.

The text of the War Department communique:

"Aerial attacks on two separate Japanese targets were made yesterday, Sunday, 17, December, by twin bomber commands of the 20th Air Force, General H. H. Arnold, commanding general of the 20th Air Force, announced at the War Department.

"A sizeable force of Superfortresses from Major General Curtis Lemay's 20th Bomber Command bombed enemy targets in the Hankow, China, area.

"B-29s from Brig.-Gen. Hansell's Saipan Base Bomber Command in sizeable force again struck at the Nagoya area on the Japanese homeland.

"This information is from preliminary reports received at headquarters of the 20th Air Force. Additional details will be announced later"

The Tokyo radio announced that "several formations" of B-29s "forced their way" over Japan after 1 p.m. today (Japanese time).

The Japanese broadcast, recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, said "Japanese fighters and anti-aircraft units are now giving a hot reception to the enemy raiders."

OVERSEAS MEN JOIN IN "Y" OPEN HOUSE

Three members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment who had been overseas for four years spent Sunday at the "Y" on their way home for Christmas leave to Madoc, Bancroft and McArthur's Mills. Owen Jones, R.C.A.F., a member of the "Y" for several years, was also home after service overseas and joined in the group.

The regular Sunday program of social games, music, etc., was conducted throughout the afternoon. Afternoon tea was served by the "Y" at five o'clock, with the following young ladies helping to entertain: Dorothy Little; Kay Harris, Gwen Kitchen, Barbara Palmer, Rita Webster, Cecilia Bolland, Margaret Aman.

CHARGES PENDING AFTER ASSAULT

Showing outward signs of having been physically attacked, three Hastings County youths complained to city police they had been attacked by a young man on Front St. Saturday night and struck in their faces. The complainants gave their names as Harold Holden, West Huntingdon, Elmer Morgan, R. R. No. 1 Belleville and Ted Fleming, Ivanhoe. The trio alleged they had been approached and struck, without provocation, by a stranger. Armed with a description of the alleged aggressor P. C. Wm. Evans later apprehended George Palmateer, 87 Pinnacle St., who was taken to the police station for questioning in the matter of the alleged assault. Today city police officials revealed charges were pending in the matter.

ALERTNESS OF YOUTH AVERTS CAR BLAZE

The alertness of 16-year-old Cecil Lennox, 15 West Moira Street, undoubtedly saved a parked automobile from burning up shortly after midnight Saturday. Young Lennox was passing the intersection of McAnnany and Front Streets, when he observed smoke emerging from a Plymouth sedan bearing licence plate number 5-L-634. The lad immediately opened the car door and found the front seat of the vehicle smouldering. He pulled the seat out and promptly extinguished the fire. Later he reported the incident to city police authorities. It is believed that a cigarette butt dropped beneath the upholstering, kindled the fire. The owner of the car was not located at the time of Lennox's prompt action.

TWO CARS DAMAGED IN REAR-END CRASH

Skidding into the rear of a motor car in front of him, considerable damage resulted to two automobiles on Highway No. 14, sixteen miles south of Belleville on Sunday afternoon, when a car driven by Allan Lipes, 123 Front Street, crashed into the rear of another motor car driven by Frank Rutter R.R. No. 1, Belleville.

Traffic Officer Harry Caldwell investigated the accident and reported that apparently Rutter was proceeding in a northerly direction, when Lipes' car struck him from behind while proceeding in the same direction. Extensive property damage resulted to the front portion of Mr. Lipes' vehicle and the rear of the Rutter car. Lipes told the officer he was of the opinion Rutter was parked.

Pussy Willows Found in Bloom Near Plainfield

It looks as though Old Mother Nature is giving the prognosticators, savants and seers, who squint at a snowstorm and thereby predict a hard ruthless winter, the well-known horse laugh.

For right on the heels of these predictions comes an irrefutable sign of Spring. Believe it or not the pussy willows are blooming, and if this is taken to be the ravings of one who is attempting to counteract the long-winter prophecies, just take a look in the woods at the rear of the farm of Ross Lott, Plainfield.

There, are to be found plenty of the green shoots with their fluffy willowy buds in all the silverness of bloom.

Mrs. Lott, brought a large bouquet of the Pussies to the Ontario Intelligencer offices on Saturday, with the story that one is being "born every minute and the woods are full of them."

Now, the "hard long winter" predicters, have reshuffled their prognostication cards, in an effort to refute this unexpected advance on the part of the Spring offensive.

SALVATION ARMY BAND SERENADES

Former P. of W. School Pupils Receive Yuletide Boxes and Letters

For the fifth consecutive year, former pupils of the Prince of Wales School, Thurlow, are again to receive Christmas boxes and in addition a letter from the pupil at present attending this school.

This week the last of these boxes and letters were placed in the mail. They went to two brothers serving in the American army in the Pacific or to someone in Italy or an airman at Torbay, Newfoundland. Already word has been received of the safe arrival of at least one box in England on December 3rd.

Some sixty former pupils of this school are serving in some capacity with the armed forces, four of whom have already paid the supreme sacrifice, one in the Army, one in the Royal Canadian Air Force and two in the Royal Canadian Navy.

Those responsible for these boxes take this opportunity of thanking the public who so gratefully contributed to this cause and made the sending of these gifts possible.

Pupils Hear Address By J.O. Herity on His Recent Trip to Mexico

It was a long way from the snow and drifted roads of Ontario in general and Thurlow in particular to Mexico and Mexico City but the senior pupils of the Prince of Wales School enjoyed such a travel talk on Friday last by J. A. Herity of this city.

Illustrating his address with beautiful pictures, articles of Indian art and specimens of petrified wood the speaker carried his listeners to the little-known land of Mexico and there unfolded the past history and the present state of this country which is rapidly coming to the foreground of the countries of the Western Hemisphere.

The highlights of this same address have been published before and it is not necessary to repeat them but as a mark of the interest with which this address was received were the many and varied questions which the speaker answered at the close of his address.

Mr. Herity was introduced and thanked by the Principal, K. M. Bird.

Staff Sgt. Brown Wins First Place In Turkey Shoot

Turkeys and records went by the boards at the annual Christmas turkey shoot of the Sergeants' Mess of the Argyll Light Infantry (Tank) Sunday afternoon.

The keen-eyed marksmen of both the Argylls and the 34th Battery senior N.C.O.'s battled it out on the ranges for the Christmas dinners, and a record was established when three finished with possibles, or perfect scores.

The theory of application and grouping had to be resorted to to ultimately decide the winners and when the smoke of judging had cleared, Staff Sergeant Don Brown finished in first place, Sergeant H. Casey, second and Sergeant H. Burley in third. The winners received $6, $4, $2 cash prizes presented by the Mess Committee besides the gobblers.

Thirty-five members of the combined mess took part in the shoot and each received a turkey.

Staff Sergeant Brown, at an informal ceremony was presented with the "medal" emblematic of the championship of the mess. On it is inscribed "Best Shot in the Sergeants' Mess." Mess regulations state the staff sergeant must wear the medal when in uniform in the mess for the next three months. The penalty is the same as if he appeared there with his hat on.

A feature of the after-shoot ceremonies was the presentation to 2nd Lieutenant Herbert D. Willerton, who recently received promotion to commissioned rank from that of regimental sergeant major, of a handsome plaque. On the gift was engraved "To R.S.M. Herbert D. Willerton from the members of the Sergeants' Mess, Argyll Light Infantry (Tank) on the occasion of his promotion to commissioned rank." The presentation was made by R.S.M. A. W. Lacey. 2nd. Lieut. Willerton in a brief address expressed his appreciation of the gift and thanked his former mess comrades for their co-operation.

Belle and Capitol Theatres Give Staffs Christmas Party

Employees of the Belle and Capitol theatres were guests at a Christmas party held at the New Queens Hotel yesterday. They were the guests of the two theatre managers, Mr. George Forhan and Mr. Thos. Mascaro.

During the evening the employees were presented with gifts from the management in a token of appreciation for the splendid co-operation that prevailed throughout the year at local theatres. Following a Christmas dinner, the party adjourned to the hotel reading room where they were entertained by the Misses Barbara and Caroline Forhan, talented daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Forhan. Petite Caroline delighted the gathering with three seasonal solos being accompanied by her sister at the piano. The conventional seasonal novelties added to the occasion to make it a memorable one.

On behalf of the employees of the Capitol Theatre, Mr. Robt. Blaind, assistant manager, expressed the thanks and gratitude of his associates to Mr. Mascaro, while Edward Buckley extended similar words of appreciation to Mr. Forhan on behalf of the Belle employees.

Sixty to Eighty Thousand Outgoing Letters Handled Daily at Post Office

The annual Christmas postal rush descended in earnest upon employees of the Belleville post office over the weekend with the lobby being crowded practically all day on Saturday as residents from the city and district sought to purchase stamps and mail out their parcels and greeting cards.

The same was true early Monday morning with two long lines of people waiting for their turn at the stamp wicket.

But the bustle in the lobby and at the stamp wicket was reflected fully one hundred percent in the main room of the post office, where overworked postal clerks sought vainly to handle the flood of greeting cards, parcels and letters being dumped into their hands from lobby and street letter collection boxes and from rural mail couriers.

Assisting greatly in the sortation of mail are the two boxes, one large one in the post office lobby and the other at the Pinnacle Street letter drop, for city mail only. Sixty-one temporary employees, mostly high school students have been engaged to assist in sorting and delivery of the Christmas mails.

Carrier's Work Lightened.

Postal carriers are to have their work lightened this year and instead of them having to arrange their mail in sequence before they leave on their delivery routes, this work will be completed for them by extra help engaged for the purpose.

The same procedure holds true for parcels for city delivery. These are marked for their various routes by experienced route separation clerks and go to the basement by means of a special chute, where they are arranged for delivery by carrier assistant.

But it is the thousands of greeting cards bearing only one cent postage, which create the headaches for the postal staff. These require the same separation as first class mail and they roll in in seemingly unending streams.

An indication what a Christmas rush at the post office means is the fact that from 60 to 80 thousand outgoing letters and cards will be handled each day. Incoming mail will be heavier even than this, while parcel mail will be tremendously increased from normal.

War Veterans Give German Soldiers Credit for Being Good Fighters

One of the first Canadians to leave for overseas following the beginning of the war CSM. Cecil N. Yearwood, MM. of Madoc is home again and in time to spend Christmas with his wife and three children. He arrived in Kingston Saturday morning with a group of Canadian repatriates who were returned to Canada on 30 days' rotation leave.

Proceeding overseas in November, 1939 with an advanced party of the 1st Division, CSM. Yearwood is a member of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment and has seen the most action of any one in his battalion. He went to France with his unit in 1940 and stated he had seen action in every big battle in Sicily and Italy. Hardest fights were termed the Moro River crossing and the battle of Ortona.

He had praise for the Germans he had met as prisoners of war. "Most of them speak English and they seemed very fair," he said. "Of course they used tricky tactics in battle, but if we are foolish enough to fall for their tricks it was our own fault.

Has Seen Much Action

Cpl. E. A. "Dinty" Moore, Coleman Street, Belleville, was still wondering why he received his 30-day leave under the circumstances of which leaves are granted. Single and very shy, he was happy to be home after five years in the service. He arrived back Saturday afternoon.

The returned soldier admitted he had seen a great deal of action in Sicily and in Italy and had participated in battles right through Italy to Ravenna. He refused to talk about the Italians, but was quick to admit the Germans were the best enemy soldiers and considered them good fighters.

Sgt. W. A. Magill of Picton is planning to use his 30-day leave to good advantage and after five years overseas will be married to Miss Rita Kirby. He will spend Christmas with his bride-to-be. He went overseas with an infantry battalion but transferred to an anti-tank unit. He had had some "near ones" he stated but had come through without being wounded.

Wears M. M. Ribbon.

Wounded through the chest last December and awarded the Military Medal in March of this year, Sergeant Harold Dracup, son of Mr. and Mrs. Salborn W. Dracup, 36 Bettes Street was one of the group. He was met in Kingston on arrival by his brother Private Jack Dracup, who arrived home himself recently and who has been a patient in Kingston Military Hospital since.

Several of the returning men will see their children for the first time. Pte. H. J. Cunningham, Detlor, will see his five-year-old daughter Muriel whom he has never met.

Wounded three times during active service, Corporal F. E. Dunkley, Picton, and Corporal J. H. Ruttan, Port Stewart, were among the group who will spend Christmas with their families.

Among district men returning were Pte. A. H. Heffernan, Picton; and Corporal R. W. Lawson, Trenton.

Return For Reposting.

Included among those soldiers who returned for reposting, as prisoner-of-war escort and for adjutant general disposal were: Pte. J. T. Beckwith, 37 Benjamin Street; Gunner W. R. Chapman, 26 Jones Street; Sgt. A. E. Crouter, 80 S. Front St.; Tpr. R. E. Gilbert, 8 Brassey St.; Gnr. W. J. Keenan, 169 Station St.; Pte. C. A. Lepore, 34 Brassey St.; Sgt. A. E. Foster, 30 Cannifton Road; Pte. R. H. Bradford, 132 Catherine St., who has been wounded three times; Corp. H. J. Clark, Trenton; Corp. W. A. Crawford, Trenton; Bdr. A. H. Newton, Consecon; Pte. F. Lloyd, Marmora; Pte. R. M. Selman, Picton; Pte. C. E. Ward, Trenton; Pte. C. J. Branscombe, Picton; Pte. W. J. Jones R.2, Picton; Pte. M. W. Lees, Madoc.

NOTHING DECIDED

London, Dec. 18 — (CP)—Spokesmen at 10 Downing Street said today that "nothing has been decided" as to whether Prime Minister Churchill will make a broadcast review of the war and political situation within the next few days.

The same spokesman Saturday had said it was "quite possible" Mr. Churchill would broadcast Sunday night, but the Prime Minister did not go on the air.

IN MEMORIAM

WOOD—In loving memory of a dear wife and mother Grace Wood, who passed away December 18, 1943.

The world may change from year to year
And friends from day to day,
But never will the one we loved
From memory pass away;
But some sweet day we'll meet again
Beyond the toil and strife,
And clasp each other's hand once more
In Heaven, that happy life.

Sadly missed by husband and children. D18.

61 Taken On At Post Office To Assist Staff

Running on the assumption that the tremendous volume of overseas Christmas mail handled during the past few weeks is merely a harbinger of the gigantic flood which will be flowing to all parts of the country during the coming week, arrangements have been completed at the Belleville post office to take on 61 temporary personnel to assist in sorting and letter carrying, it has been announced by Postmaster J. V. C. Trumisch.

Original arrangements called for the temporary employees, the majority of whom are local high school students, to begin their duties on Monday morning but old man weather intervened and Christmas school examinations which were to have been completed at that time will delay many in starting at the post office on the scheduled date.

As result of the storm which blocked rural roads and country streets, collegiate examinations were delayed and thus students will not be free to begin their temporary duties at the post office at the intended date.

Already the Christmas flood of post cards and parcels have begun to arrive at the local office according to Mr. Trumisch. During the past few days a huge volume of parcels has been received for shipment to outside points and regular postal staff has already been called back for overtime to handle the volume of mail. Starting on Monday it is expected the heaviest mailing in the annals of the post office will be under way.

In view of tremendous volume of mail expected it is cautioned by postal authorities that Christmas delivery cannot be guaranteed unless deadline posting dates are strictly observed. In simple words this means mailing early for Christmas —before and not on or after the closing dates which have been set by the Department. Letters, cards, parcels and greetings for local delivery should be mailed before December 19th and proportionately earlier for more distant places.

Airstrip Material Great Development Of Present Struggle

Toronto Dec 18. (CP) — Ralph Allan, Globe and Mail war correspondent, says in a dispatch to his paper that the story of how Brig. H. H. Storms of Hamilton developed a new prefabricated surfacing for airstrips was told for the first time yesterday at Field Marshal Sir Bernard Montgomery's headquarters.

The surfacing made it possible for thousands of Allied planes which otherwise would have been grounded by the mud of western Europe to fly thousands of sorties in support of Allied armies on the western front.

Allan wrote: "The army's name for the new airstrip material is PBS —for prefabricated bituminous surfacing. It comes in 100-pound rolls and either before or after laying resembles a waterproof roofing material—which it really is. Its evolution by Brig. Storms, a handful of his fellow-Canadian engineers and a Russian civilian, has undoubtedly had a greater influence on the war than the evolution of V-2 by the crack scientists of Germany". Charles Baskine was the Russian civilian. He also formerly lived in Toronto.

Pte. Goldie Fitzgibbon Lost Right Hand, Suffered Fractured Skull in Fighting at Caen

Struck by shrapnel from a German mortar shell a month after Canadian forces stormed ashore on D-Day, Pte. Goldie Fitzgibbon, 280½ Front street, is home again in Belleville after almost five months convalescing in an English hospital.

He was a platoon member of the Cameron Highlanders of Ottawa and went ashore in France early in the morning of June 6 with the Regina Rifles to take a railroad objective at Bretteville. On July 12 he lost his right hand and suffered a fractured skull when struck by a mortar shell on the outskirts of Caen.

"I had been on watch all night and was just coming off duty when the Germans opened up with their mortar barrage," the Belleville soldier stated. "Our boys were just forming patrols to rout the German snipers from strongholds in the more central part of town."

Stiff Opposition

According to the Belleville soldier Canadians ran into really stiff opposition during landing operations on June 6. German pill-box crews poured a withering fire into invading forces and despite heavy ship artillery barrage and aerial bombardment, landing craft were "blown right out of the water" by hard-hitting German 88 mm's. These guns were reported to be the stiffest opposition which Allied forces had to contend with.

The fighting Regina Rifles took their railroad objective and held to it for two days in the face of stiff enemy resistance until reinforcements were brought up. Immediate landing of heavy equipment was delayed by the heavy storm which lashed the channel following initial landing operations.

Nazis Efficient Soldiers

German soldiers manning coastal pill-boxes were declared to be efficient soldiers but were ready to give themselves up when they saw the game was up. Being a reconnaissance unit, Pte. Fitzgibbon's platoon took no prisoners.

German robot-bomb attacks on the London area were well under way when Pte. Fitzgibbon was returned to England as a casualty six days after his injury was received. He described the Croydon area as being practically razed to the ground as result of the robot-bomb raids. He had heard explosions of the latest German terror weapon, the V2 or rocket bomb, and had visited craters, where they fell.

One of four brothers in the services, Pte. Fitzgibbon has two brothers, Martin and Fred in the Navy, and another, Fergus, with an armored corps now fighting in Belgium.

Looking Ahead in Ottawa

(By the Ottawa Staff of the Canadian Press.)

Ottawa, Dec. 18 (CP)—One of the most important events on the labor horizon is a move by the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) to obtain a national agreement covering employees in three General Motors plants in Ontario—Oshawa, St. Catharines and Windsor.

Separate agreements covering these plants are about to come up for review and George Burt of Windsor, Ont., Canadian director of the Union, has advanced the proposal that they should be combined in a national agreement.

The Union is also seeking union shop provisions which would require all General Motors employees to become members of the Union. So far there has been no reaction from the company to these requests. The Union bases its claim to a national agreement on the ground that the existing contracts run almost concurrently and are generally similar in terms.

Reconstruction authorities think that the greatest post-war changes in living comforts will be on the farm. Building experts have indicated that the post-war city will not be much different from that found in Canada today as heating by sunlight and cooking by pressing a button are still far from practical operations.

But down on the farm the changes are without number. Authorities in all provinces agree that young people who have been in the forces and war industry will not be satisfied with shacks and oil lamps when they return to the farm. They will demand electricity, plumbing, good roads and community centres where they can enjoy the amenities of life on a basis comparable to that of city residents.

Filling these demands, whether the work is done by Dominion, Provincial or Municipal governments, or by private companies, will give extensive employment. And the provision of adequate employment above all, is the objective of all government bodies after the war.

Contrary to the statement he is reported to have made when he left Ottawa after resigning from the Cabinet Hon. C. G. (Chubby) Power, former Air Minister is not definitely through with politics.

Maj. Power has not yet decided whether he will run again for the House of Commons in Quebec East but is pretty sure he can win if he does. In any case he is keeping his political fences in order.

With another session of parliament in prospect for the end of January Maj. Power is not moving to Quebec yet. He is keeping his home in Ottawa and going to his home city each week while re-establishing the law practice he gave up nearly ten years ago when he entered the Cabinet.

Many Liberal members of parliament, who are hoping for re-election when the next general federal election rolls around, have informed government authorities that most of the complaints they have received from their constituents were in connection with price controls, rationing and taxes, it was learned from an authoritative source on Parliament Hill.

The authorities were reported to have told the members that they would give no assurance that price control, rationing and taxation policies would be changed to any great extent before the next election. Even if the election came after the war ended controls and high taxes would still be necessary for at least part of the post-war period, the authorities were reported to have said.

John Simpson Of Green Point Drowns in Bay

Picton, Dec. 18—John Simpson, 46, a resident of Green Point, six miles east of Picton, was drowned in the Bay of Quinte on Saturday while walking on the ice. The body was recovered in twelve feet of water. Mr. Simpson resides off the main road and was walking along the shore, to call on a neighbor. He took a short cut across a cove. His cry for help was heard by his wife, but she was too late to save him. Neighbors were quickly on the scene and recovered the body within an hour.

Mr. Simpson was a farmer and moved to Green Point last spring. Survivors are his wife and two children.

No inquest was deemed necessary by Coroner Dr. R. A. Thompson of Wellington.

Jamboree Success

In spite of heavy roads which kept many rural residents from attending, the Christmas jamboree, sponsored by the Rotary Club, in the Armouries, Friday and Saturday nights, was a success. Bingo was very well patronized. Ringing of three live ducks was a novelty. Proceeds are for Christmas cheer and underprivileged children.

Draper for information which would lead to the arrest and conviction of the unknown assailant who fired two bullets into the cobbler's body.

$200,000 Estate Left by Lupe Velez

Beverly Hills, Calif., Dec. 18 (AP) —Hollywood celebrities and friends who knew her during her tempestuous lifetime have volunteered as pallbearers for Lupe Velez, Mexican actress who ended her life Thursday. Funeral services may be conducted Monday.

Among the volunteers is Johnny (Tarzan) Weissmuller, her former husband who figured in the only one of her many and hectic romances that culminated in marriage.

Meanwhile immigration officials said they planned no investigation of Harald Ramond, 28, member of the French film colony whom the actress accused of "faking" love for her in a death note which named him the father of her unborn child expected in about five months. Officials said Ramond's entry into the United States in 1941 was legal.

Coroner Frank Nance announced there will be no inquest into the 34-year-old actress' death. Notes left to Ramond and to Mrs. Beulah Kinder, Miss Velez' secretary, "are conclusive proof that she took her life," he said.

The actress named Mrs. Kinder executrix of the estate, which was estimated in excess of $200,000. The will, dated May 14, 1942, bequeathed one-third of the estate to the secretary and provided a trust fund for Miss Velez' mother, Josefina Velez, of Alyoapozalco, Mexico, and other sums to relatives.

MENTHOLATUM

On Earth Peace to Men of Good Will

With the advent of Christmas this year, these words hold for us an added significance:
"Peace to men of good will!"

WE Canadians, whether we fight in the factory or on the farm—in industry or in the armed services, wish peace on earth to men of good will the world over. We are fighting that the spirit of Christmas shall endure. And we rejoice that this Christmas brings with it the definite promise of freedom for all mankind.

Last Week Before Christmas

Christmas is very near. The last week before the greatest of the festivals has come and only five business days and Sunday remain before the celebration. During the past week the vagaries of nature have played a part in respect to Christmas buying, snow drifts making it more difficult to do not only for the people in the city but also of the countryside. Snow is always welcomed as an adjunct of Christmas and a white Christmas is more to be desired by the people of this land than a green Christmas, but not such heavy storms are welcomed at this season of the year when they can interfere with the Christmas preparations.

Yet in spite of the snow business has been good. On Saturday the number of buyers was very large as the crowded condition of the shops showed.

With fairly-fine weather this week business should run high in spite of the wartime restrictions and shortages which cannot but modify trade.

The public is eager and ready to buy without demanding too much. Buyers are considerate and the merchants have done their very best for the sake of satisfying their customers.

This week will be long and strenuous for the business people, the merchants and their staffs with six days of business, a full week, but there is the fact of an intervening Sunday between the end of their work on Saturday night and the festival of Christmas. Next Sunday will not only give the tired business men, boys and girls time to rest and at the same time begin their celebration of Christmas for it will be Christmas Eve and to most people the result will be a two-day festival of the great winter event.

The coming Christmas is happier for many folk because they have home again their sons, brothers, fathers who have served overseas for five years and are now or will be at Christmas on leave for thirty days in Canada. To others this will be a celebration full of high hopes of the return on leave of other servicemen in the coming months and to all it will bring the hope of being the last winter of war in Europe and of the homecoming of the troops when the war is won. All had hopes that this year would see the end of the war and many thought that possibly the end might come in 1944, but the course of the war has indicated that it may be well on into next year before the struggle ends.

So this coming sixth Christmas of war offers a great hope that it will be the last Christmas of the struggle against Hitler's Germans. But though the people are confident, they know that they must do their utmost at home as the men are doing abroad to make this the final Christmas of the second war with Germany.

The mood of the people reflects this hope and determination at this time.

Now Japs Feel It

Japanese civilians are to be evacuated from Tokyo for United States airpower has proved its ability to visit the capital at will and rain bombs upon the military production plants and communications.

The war in the Pacific has come back a long way from Pearl Harbor and Corregidor.

The Nipponese capital is now accessible to attack. Montreal Gazette says that pyschological studies of the Jap soldier reveal that he has a tendency to 'blow up' when things are going against him, resorting to mass or individual suicide. And the Jap is the same psychologically, whether he wears battledress or kimona."

It must be stern realization of war to the Japanese to know that the things they have had faith in, the vaunted inaccessibility and security of Tokyo have no substance in fact, that their homeland is subject to attack as are any Japanese in the lands that Japan overran in the first few months of the war.

Nazis' Offensive

The Germans have started a powerful offensive, the first since the fighting in Normandy, it is said, being stung by the success of the Allied armies which are threatening the territory and defence of Germany. The pressure of Allied power has been keenly felt by the enemy. Naturally the enemy which has utilized all its manpower for the purpose of war-making is still powerful and a powerful enemy can mount such an offensive, even though the Allied might is so much greater. The blow is one Germany has had to strike and such has been expected somewhere along the Western Front.

At this time the Russians are striking a powerful offensive apparently aimed at the Austrian capital, Vienna. The Hun is in plenty of trouble.

How the supreme force of the United Nations is being thrown into the field is indicated by the action of the United States in freezing all civilian production indefinitely at present levels. Nothing is to be allowed to interfere with the task of cutting down Hitlerism. It is felt that the civilian public is faring well at this time and that the production of industry must go for the overthrow of Germany.

Exit With Laughs

(Christian Science Monitor)

While it is still open season on day dreams and speculations about exits for Herr Hitler, pointed recently by the rumor via Sweden that the Gestapo might blow up Berchtesgaden with Der Fuehrer in it as a sort of Nibelungen finale, we venture to report a couple of hopeful suggestions neatly designed to explode the Hitler legend beyond possibility of revival:

1. Let Hitler be discovered trying to escape disguised in skirts and caught by disillusioned and scornful members of his own SS guards.

2. Or it might be equally effective were the liberated Jews of Germany (what is left of them) to find Adolf in their midst posing as one of them.

How the stage could be set for such embarrassing scenes we are not told. But given anything similar to such an exit or attempted exit, his later appearance for trial and punishment could never be made solemnly heroic to clothe him with dramatic martyrdom.

Nazism built up such a solemn, pretentious facade of her worship among its adherents and for the German people that to laugh it to death would help to make it stay dead.

Old-Timers

(Royal Ontario Museum News)

In the Royal Ontario Museum there are tracks and trails preserved in rock, of animals that lived millions of years ago. On exhibit at present are footprints made by two animals, thought to be amphibians, that eked out an existence in a coal swamp near Parrsboro, Nova Scotia, 200,000,000 years ago.

At that remote time in history the amphibians (represented now by frogs, toads and salamanders) were among the highest known types of animal life.

These creatures lived near the swampy border of a shallow sea. Their footprints were left in ripple-marked sands exposed by the ebbing tide. The sun beat down upon the beach and baked the imprints, thus fixing them. Again and again the returning tides spread layers of sand over the imprints preserving them for posterity.

A Suggestion

British propaganda agencies probably need no advice, but there is an irresistible temptation to suggest that a leaflet telling of the disbanding of the British Home Guard would make wonderful material to drop upon the heads of the German Volkssturm. Members of the Volkssturm fight under a recognizable compulsion, but they migh not fight quite so well or long if they knew that their opposite numbers in Great Britain had been relieved. That old proverb about being able to endure the troubles of others is not reversible; it doesn't go for the joys and relaxation of others.

Fate! There is no fate.—Between the thought and the success God is the only agent.—Bulwer.

JUST FOLKS

(Copyright, 1944, Edgar A. Guest)

By EDGAR A. GUEST

JUST A WEEK

Just another week to go
For the parcels you must tie;
For the wishing it will snow,
And the final rush to buy.
Just another week to go
To the last gay Christmas gift.
For the youngsters, oh how slow!
For the grown-ups, oh how swift.

Here it is a week away
And the children asking "When?"
And to count it, day by day,
And then run it through again.
In a week old Santa calls
Where asleep all childhood lies.
For the children, how it crawls!
For the grown-ups, how it flies!

Six more times to go to bed
And to dream of dolls and drums,
Then the sleigh bells overhead,
And at midnight Santa comes!
Just a week. And if they could
They'd delay it, say the old!
But it's long for being good,
And for doing as you're told!

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS.

20 YEARS AGO

Dec. 18th, 1924.

The Intermediate puck chasers took to the ice last evening for the first time this season and went the pace for sixty minutes. Among the regulars Bill Green and "Bunny" Frechette were the only pair in action. Johnny Hibbard and Al. Wardhaugh of last year's junior O.H.A. squad worked out, but the remainder were new faces. Of the new men on last night's showing, Dr. I. R. Hough appeared to be the best shows promise. He handles himself well on the blades, has weight and excellent condition. Other new men out were Dr. Fred Rutherford and Tom Ingram, Vern Weir, S. Hagerman, 'Doc' Whalen, Bill Finkle and other last season regulars were absent last night, but the large attendance of rail birds showed that hockey interest has not died in this city.

Turkeys sold on the Saturday market at prices ranging from $4 to $7 each, the average price being 40 cents per pound; geese sold at $3 to $4 each, the average price being 35 cents per pound; chickens sold at $1.25 to $2 per pair; fresh eggs sold at 65 cents per dozen and butter sold at 40 cents per pound.

30 YEARS AGO

Dec. 18th, 1914.

The closing exercises at Queen Victoria School, Pine Street, took place last evening and there was a large attendance. The principal feature of the evening was the presentation of the Governor General Gold Medal to Master Clare Mott who won it at last year's entrance examinations.

George Dicks, a former well known resident of this city, died in Toronto on Dec. 14th, at the age of seventy-two years.

A vacant house on Strachan Street was considerably damaged by fire last night. It was owned by Thomas Harris.

Sergeant-Major Jordan, W.O., will probably go to Montreal to assist in organizing and instructing the new battery of the 6th Brigade.

40 YEARS AGO

Dec. 18th., 1904.

Mr. Angus Pringle is home from McGill College, Montreal, to spend the Christmas vacation.

Ald. Patterson is the first in the field with his election card.

Mayor W. W. Chown addressed the men's meeting at the Y.M.C.A. on Sunday afternoon.

The work of installing the new Casavant Freres electric-pneumatic pipe organ in St. Thomas' Church is about completed. The instrument will be excellent and is fitted with every mechanical device known to organ builders.

Mr. Harry Coon is home from Queen's University, Kingston, to spend the Christmas vacation.

St. Michael's Church as a result of fire, which occurred on Saturday, is nothing but ruins. All that remains of the massive, imposing Gothic structure are the smoke blackened walls. The fire is thought to have started from a stove in the basement. All vestments were lost and the aged and worthy incumbent, Rt. Rev. Monsignor James Farrelly, was an eye witness to the destruction of his beautiful church. He keenly feels the loss of the handsome gold chalice which was presented to him by the priests of the diocese upon the occasion of his golden jubilee. It was valued at $400. The erection of the church begun in 1886, the corner stone being laid on August 26th of the same year and the church was opened for services on October 7th, 1888. The loss is estimated at $75,000. All citizens sympathize with the people of St. Michael's parish in their great loss. Mayor Chown immediately offered to Monsignor Farrelly the use of the city hall in which to conduct his services, but arrangements have been made to use the Catholic Foresters' Hall.

50 YEARS AGO

Dec. 18th., 1894.

The pupils of No. 4 division of the Central School called at the home of their teacher, Miss C. Urquhart, on Bridge Street east, and after reading an address of appreciation presented her with a handsome rocking chair. About fifty boys and girls were present and a pleasant evening was spent. Miss Urquhart served refreshments.

William Brown has opened his bowling alley under the Hub Hotel for the season.

Capt. Frederick has opened a grocery store in the store formerly occupied by H. K. Smith, on Front Street.

Mr. Alex. Embury is home from Queen's University, Kingston, to spend the Christmas vacation.

ELECTORAL COLLEGE

Today the 531 members of the electoral college "appointed" in the general election November 7 will meet in the capitals of their respective states and cast their votes for President and Vice President.

The number of electors in each state is the same as the number of that state's delegation in Congress—one elector for each Representative and each Senator.

The present statute, passed after the adoption of the 20th or "Lame Duck" Amendment to the Constitution, provides that the electors shall meet and give their votes on the first Monday after the second Wednesday in December next following their appointment.

Presidential electors receive no pay for their formal function, except most states pay their travel expenses between their homes and the state capital where the electoral votes are cast.

The electors in each state are required to mark their ballots and then send them by registered mail to Washington, where they are "canvassed" by Congress in joint session.

After the electoral votes are opened and counted they are kept in the files of Congress.

Presidential electors are regarded as state officials, although they, like Representatives and Senators, perform a dual state and federal function.

Everybody knows in a general way, of course, that the voters on election day do not vote for the candidates for president and vice president, but for the candidates for electors in the state in which they have their residence; but it is not so generally known that the final election is not valid and has no legal and constitutional standing until after the electors have cast their votes.

When the "electoral college" was adopted by the founding fathers it was supposed that the electors would use their own judgments in selecting the "best man" for the presidency. The electors did act independently in choosing George Washington and John Adams; but after that they became mere "dummies" and with a few exceptions carried out the wishes of the legislatures or voters who "appointed" them.

In 1876 when Horace Greeley died between the general election and the meeting of the electoral college, many of the electors, not knowing what to do, proceeded to vote for the dead man.

Canadians Take 1,100 Prisoners In Recent Action

Rome Dec. 18 — (AP) — British 8th Army units today held a line along the Senio river, stretching 5 miles southward from the Bologna-Rimini highway, Allied headquarters said.

Meantime it was announced that the Canadian Corps had captured more than 11,000 prisoners since it went back into action with assaults west of the Montone river two weeks ago.

The Canadians had been engaged in fierce fighting a major part of last week at "the Anzio of the Adriatic"—their Naviglio Canal bridgehead — but a delayed dispatch from Canadian Press war correspondent William Boss said that by Friday night the battle had "settled down . . . to normal close-contact fighting."

Today's communique said without details the Canadians had made further gains south of Bagnacavallo "against strong resistance." Bagnacavallo is 11 miles west of Ravenna, and close to the left flank of the Naviglio bridgehead.

The south anchor of the 8th Army line was held by Polish troops who yesterday captured Limisano and Casette in a drive toward the Senio against strong enemy resistance.

Canadian troops to the north held the other anchor near Bagnacavallo, while other 8th Army units virtually cleared the Germans from captured Faenza, which fell to New Zealand troops yesterday. Headquarters said isolated pockets of enemy resistance still remain in the northern outskirts of the highway stronghold.

Only patrol activity was reported from the Allied 5th Army front.

GIVEN TOUGH JOB

Toronto, Dec. 18 — (CP) — Col. Maxwell C. G. Meighen, younger son of Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, former Conservative Prime Minister of Canada, who was among arrivals of servicemen who have spent five years overseas, said in an interview that Canadian soldiers know and are proud they have been given as tough a job as any Allied Army in the liberation of Europe.

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

AREN'T WE ALL?

There just isn't room to kid ourselves here about graying hair. That eminent geriatrician, Eben E. Rexford, told the whole truth in ten words, to wit:

Darling, I am growing old,
Silver threads among the gold.

A man of twenty-eight or twenty-nine, said Dr. Osler, may have the arteries of a man of sixty. Longevity is a vascular question (in ordinary language how long you will live depends on the condition of your arteries). As an involution process (continued Dr. Osler) arteriosclerosis (hardening of the arteries) is an accompaniment of old age. (Involution means retragrade evolution, degeneration, premature decline, or, according to Webster it means "presenile decline, marked by the menopause in women and by the decrease of vital force in both sexes".

Now I wouldn't say this if I thought it would go any farther, but just between ourselves I believe if you go all over that again substituting gray or graying hair for arteriosclerosis or hardening of the arteries, you will begin to understand what gray or graying hair really means notwithstanding our popular illusions about it. Like hardening arteries, lessening agility, wrinkling skin and some other manifestations I shall not mention here because heaven knows too many simple-minded ones do themselves harm trying to conceal them, graying of the hair is one of the signs, manifestations results or symptoms, if you please, of the involution, degeneration, decline or atrophy which Noah Webster defined as presenile decline, but as we are not kidding ourselves here we candidly call old age.

But let's not get sad or worried about it. Anticipation of growing old is worse than realization, as every one at forty knows if he or she remembers how it looked at twenty, and every one at sixty ditto in respect to forty. After all, it is a question of health and not of age.

So far as premature graying, premature aging, premature decline is concerned it is mainly nutritional deficiency.

In the first place, as I explain in the pamphlet "Young Folks and Old Folks" (copy mailed if you provide stamped pre-addressed envelope) there is almost a universal deficiency of calcium and vitamin D, and of vitamin B complex, particularly the "anti-gray hair vitamins" calcium pantothenate, para-aminobenzoate, riboflavin, etc., thanks to ultrarefined diet and fear of exposure. Then, too, in most instances there is also iodine deficiency.

If you ask me I do not believe any of the things mentioned will restore the original color to hair that has turned gray. I do believe premature decline and all of its manifestations can be prevented by supplementing the diet with the vitamins and minerals mentioned or with foods that supply adequate amounts of the essential vitamins and minerals, and sufficient exposure of the body to sunshine or skyshine.

Now take Juan Ponce de Leone, for example—or no, I see we can't take him today. We'll hold him for a day or two.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

What a Man!

I used your Iodin Ration for years. I am now 58, have five sons in service—eight children in all. Feel swell and would like to stay that way. May I have the anti-gray hair pamphlet? (—— ——)

Answer—Coming up! Man, it is inspiration just to look at the picture of your handsome family—six sons, two daughters, mother and—for a while I was not sure whether the second from the left is you or your eldest son. If I find myself compelled to quack in earnest, I'll just print a full page picture of your family with the legend "This man takes Ol' Doc Brady's Iodin Ration". Is that all your own hair on top? Brother, where do you get your iodine?

No Poisonous Effect

What poisonous effect if any would children get from eating frankfurters or other meat products which contain the "usual curing agents" sodium nitrite and sodium nitrate? (C. H. W.)

Answer—Potassium nitrate (saltpeter) is used in curing salting or pickling meats to give a bright red color. It is harmless. Some is converted into potassium nitrite, equally harmless. Sodium nitrate (Chile salt peter) likewise.

GOOD MANNERS

Belated Christmas Greetings

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

I'm desperate! I've been so busy with my war job and with home responsibilities, that I haven't had a minute to buy any Christmas presents for my friends, and I didn't order any Christmas cards. Now it's too late to mail my presents. Have you any possible suggestion as to what I could do to show my friends that I at least have them in my thoughts?

E. S. W.

My suggestion is that you go forth at once to a department store or stationer and see if you find some of the charming and festive-looking letter-paper that has been specially designed this year for personal Christmas notes. They come in large double-sheeted paper, in single sheets, in medium size letter-paper, and in semi-note size. And they feature some Christmas-y motif—some have, in gay red script at the top, "Christmas Greetings", or "The Season's Greetings", or just "Greetings"; some a pert little Christmas tree, or a wreath or candle or two lyric-looking bells; some have bright red or green borders; and some have plain white sheets with the gayest of gay envelope-linings. And they all are so delightful that they will lure you to write your warm-hearted greetings to your friends. If I were you, I wouldn't do any apologizing about not sending gifts or cards, but "give" with your words of good wishes, of devoted thoughts about your friendship-for-your friend, a real "remembering" message. Such good words, warm and honest and glowing, are a real gift, from friend to friend.

Gifts For Soldiers!

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

A nephew of mine, a cousin of my husband's, and two of their buddies all stationed at a camp quite near our home, are coming to spend Christmas Day with us. . . if all goes well with their plans. They are all privates, and therefore don't have much spending money. My husband and I thought that perhaps it would be a nice idea to give each of them a five-dollar-bill, as well as the special presents we will put on the Christmas tree for them. But it seems awkward (perhaps even not proper) to hand them this money. Have you a suggestion as to how we might "present" this gift more gracefully?

Esther

Money is certainly a great "desirable" on a soldier's Christmas list, and I know they'll bless you for your good thought. Why not "package" the money-gift by enclosing it in one of the special gifts you're giving them? Perhaps in a bill-fold of military cloth, or in a leather bill-fold stamped with the proper insignia; or tie it gaily in a small red-striped box on which you have applied a cut-out of Santa Claus. Also I suggest you enclose the bill in a folded card, with a special message written on it. . . perhaps something like this, "And here's a bit of 'folding money' for you to buy something that will say to you a 'Happy Christmas from us, and every devoted wish'."

For An Army Camp Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

My fiance is stationed in an Army Camp and we are to be married in a small chapel of a church near his camp. I am wearing a white wedding dress (no train and a finger-ding dress (no train) and a finger-me, and we would like to have you tell us just what she should wear.

Anita

The type of wedding dress and veil you are planning to wear, and the setting of your wedding make it a semi-formal one. So appropriately your mother should wear a street-length dress in a becoming color, with hat and gloves in a matching or contrasting color.

Advice to the Lovelorn

WAC Writes About Seeing World.

These days girls do not die or what best sellers a generation or two ago used to call "a broken heart". Modern girls have more sense. They console themselves with "I made a lucky escape. Anyone who could behave as HE did isn't worth worrying over".

In grandma's day the broken-heart complaint was more prevalent. There were fewer things of interest to make a girl forget her woes. To day every sort of job is open to her, also she can travel, see the world, and at the same time serve her country, and have a thoroughly good time while doing it.

I've just had a highly entertaining letter from WAC in New Guinea. No broken heart went with this girl to account for her wandering. But—she had a sister and a pretty weak sister at that who had had what is known as a "disappointment". In trying to persuade this girl to forget a thoroughly worthless man her sister got so intrigued with the idea of travel and all the advantages it presented, and at the same time doing a good patriotic job, that she joined the WAC and finally let the sorrowing sister flounder in her own tears.

This WAC whom I had known before she entered the service is now in New Guinea. She writes: "Think of me being in this far-flung place that used to seem like a great splash on the map. Have you ever noticed that its outline does resemble that of a guinea fowl? Well, here I am with four other girls in a tent, and it's jolly, like being back in boarding school".

My young friend goes on to tell me they're billeted on a mountain overlooking a lake, that she won't attempt to describe the scenery, because it would sound like the description of a picture postal. But it's truly magnificent. Of course, there's plenty of hard work which the girls manage to take in their stride. And there are also parties and recreation. Some of the entertainment is amateurish but still lots of fun.

They could do very nicely with an iron instead of folding their slacks with the crease in just the right place and sleeping on them. Working hours aren't too bad, from 7.30 a.m. to 11.00 a.m. and 1.00 p.m. to 4 p.m. What they enjoy most of all is a visit to some of the native villages. Joining the WAC and seeing the world is certainly a liberal education for a girl.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Take Things Easy, Mrs. Santa Claus

This is going to be a tough week, mother, and you know it! Unless you hush-hush your central nervous system, you may come out of it looking ten years older and feeling 100. The kids, home from school, will be rushing pell-mell from one social rumpus to another. Daddy will wander from one office party to the other, bringing home a congenial friend to dinner just when there is one pork chop for each member of the family and not a can of beans in the house.

Well, it is the merry merry season, but mother often wonders about that. Christmas is a lot of fun—lights and presents and everything—if it doesn't half kill you. Mother must remember that there is no space in hospitals now, so she can't pull herself together in a nice white room with a calm, sweet nurse putting ice on her throbbing brow. If she goes nuts, they'll probably just chuck her in an institution and forget all about her until next Christmas, when she'll have to do it all over again.

It's swell to have presents bought beforehand; every wise woman does that. But there are always last minute ones, suddenly thought of by Daddy or the children. And shopping is not the pleasure it once was.

We must urge mother, for the sake of her survival, to skip every duty that can be postponed. It is no time to be seized with the thought that the dining room curtains can be washed before the great day comes. Because, just when mother is putting them on the drying frames, daughters will be in a dither, demanding that her new party dress be taken in at the waist, as it is a size too large right there. Also, it could be an inch shorter. So mother must knuckle down to that task, which cannot be done in a minute.

If mother has any idea that she can enjoy pre-Christmas parties, she's crazy. Late hours are not for her at this stage of the calendar's recording. It is only by piling into bed at a reasonable time that she can face the activities of the next day. Her fun can wait. Nothing is fun if one is dog tired, in a state of confusion.

Should it happen that Santa Claus brings mother a nice, whooping fat check, we hope she will not spend it for something practical, but will go on a grand old beauty bender during holiday week. She can indulge in a facial, a hand and arm massage, manicure, shampoo and wave set, pedicure and anything else she can find lying around the premises.

The beauty shop offers solace to wives and mothers who have weathered Christmas but who are partially wrecked and in need of pulchritude repairs. Seek it, you poor dears; be comforted and reconditioned.

The Marry Go Round

What Price Success?

How often does a successful career-woman make a successful marriage?

Not often! Even though I happen to know a number of brilliant professional women, who have married happily and successfully. Happily married career-women are still the exception.

Men are being gradually but slowly educated to the idea of sharing a wife with her job or her profession. But next to teaching them to like spinach, that has been the hardest task we women ever undertook.

Yet since more and more wives are destined to be career-women or business-women in the years to come, both sexes will have to be educated to make a success of the fifty-fifty marriage in which two careers, two pay-envelopes and two temperaments have to be harmoniously adjusted—and blended.

You see, men may admire an efficient girl who can take care of herself but the average man is more likely to fall in love with the girl who flatters him by letting him take care of HER.

Too often a characterful career-girl marries an irresponsible playboy because she is attracted by that type. It's the mother-instinct in her. And sometimes she marries a charming weakling because that is the type which is most attracted by HER. Either way she is stymied from the start. She finds that she has "taken a child to raise".

But when a beautiful and highly successful young woman marries a worthwhile, ambitious, upstanding man with a profession or a career of his own—and then proceeds to make a mess of her marriage, (as in Ilka Chase's novel and play, "In Bed We Cry")—it is time to find out why that marriage didn't click.

The career-girl in this case, is a wealthy and famous beautician, whose first husband (a fine, honorable he-man leaves her when he finds himself, his own career and his work being buried under his wife's effulgent success. Fortunately, he pulls out in time to save himself and his career from utter annihilation or suffocation.

And that's the secret of it. Nothing so effectively suffocates a man's ego and dims the light of his ambition, as to marry a woman who is in the limelight of popularity. When a brilliant lady lawyer, writer or actress marries an average man, sometimes he is so dazzled that he just goes around in circles and never gets anywhere. And sometimes, as in this case, he run out on her.

When will a woman's career and a man's ego allow them to adjust themselves? When will men learn to take pride in a wife's success and not to let it stymie them?

To the many hundreds of farmers, truckers and highway maintenance workers who, together with public and municipal officials and employees, fought last week's deep drifts and lashing blizzards to keep towns and cities in the storm areas supplied with milk, we of the Ontario Milk Distributors Association want to express grateful thanks. Tribute is also due to the army of dairy employees who, in many centres, worked day and night to maintain essential distribution services and restore normal home deliveries as quickly as possible.

To the public, and the storekeepers, restaurant and hotel operators we wish to express — on behalf of our members, the dairies of Ontario—grateful acknowledgment of the consideration, patience and co-operation so cheerfully shown by all throughout the emergency.

Breaking all records for severity, the storm and its aftermath of blocked roads threw a heavy strain on the long chain of milk delivery service that stretches from farm to consumer. Junior O.H.A. Clubs Convene With 6 Teams Facing Barrier, Belleville Opens Season Away

Four of the Clubs to be Eligible for Group Playdowns; Two New Entries

SCHEDULE LATER

Six teams will face the barrier in group No. 2 of the Junior O.H.A. in 1945, it was announced following a group meeting at the Hume Arena yesterday. The clubs entered include Tweed, Stirling, Trenton, Belleville, Campbellford and a combined club from Hastings and Norwood. The latter two clubs are newcomers to the group this season.

Opening game dates were announced with Trenton, Norwood and Tweed drawing home openers. The group scheduled will be drafted and sent to the various clubs for confirmation by convener A. G. Meagher later this week. The opening dates are as follows—

Jan. 2nd—Campbellford at Trenton; Jan. 3rd—Stirling at Hastings (Norwood); Jan. 3rd—Belleville at Tweed.

Play-off Program

Home and home games will be played in a single schedule that brings each team in the group to Belleville for one game. In the matter of a group play-off, however, the top four teams in the regular schedule standing will meet in a semi-final play-off when the first and third placed clubs meet in series "A" with the second and fourth placed clubs playing off in series "B". These games will be the best two out of three matches with the third and final game being played on the home ice of the highest ranking teams in the regular schedule standing. The winners of series "A" and "B" then meet in a group final series, which also will be of the best-in-three nature completed under the same arrangements as the semi-final series.

In the event of a tie for play-off berths after the regular schedule has been completed the goal average of the season will determine the team to advance into the group semi-finals. In the matter of financing the third and final games in all series the visiting club shall receive fifty percent of the net gate receipts, after expenses for referees and advertising have been deducted.

Referee System

Regarding the matter of officials for each game the delegates present adopted the referee-linesman system of two officials. The visiting club will provide the referee, while the home team will name the linesman for the night. A list of accredited officials will be submitted by each club to the group convener this week and a complete list of the same to be forwarded to each club along with the proposed group schedule.

The team delegates present were as follows: Belleville—Wm. Dennis and A. R. Holway; Trenton—Chas. Allore, Les Farrell and Chas. Stain; Tweed—Jerry Quinn; Hastings-Norwood—Jas. Stephenson, M. Fife and R. Renwick; Campbellford — Keith Bond and Forrest Dennis; Stirling—R.A. Hermiston.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
(Associated Press Sport Writer.)

New York, Dec. 18 (AP)—The National Football League may not be seriously worried about being tossed out of baseball parks in September—Those games were generally exhibitions, anyway—but it is taking a determined stand on proposed rival leagues. The National League won't accept any circuit as an affiliate, says publicitor George Strickler, unless that league proves its financial stability and recognizes Elmer Layden as "commissioner of football."....Even then it would have to prove its right to a "major league" rating, which would be difficult under those circumstances ....Just to make it stick, National Leaguers point out that some of the strong backers of clubs in the new loops were turned down by the established circuit which still is looking for a 12th club.

Monday Matinee.

Note to New York grid fans: Don't be suckers again..Saturday's Randolph Field-2nd Air Force charity tussle drew 8,356 customers — and it looked like a liberal count... Yesterday's pro play-off drew 46,016, including 4,563 service men.... The service game probably was the better of the two, despite weather conditions....Only two reporters covered the recent A.A.U. convention at Atlantic City and at the same place and time 11 were on hand for a bridge tournament.

GALT RED WINGS DEFEAT OSHAWA AND MOVE UP

Falcons of St. Catharines Retain Their Undefeated Record

By The Canadian Press

Only one change in the relative position of the clubs in the O.H.A. junior "A" league standing took place as a result of the three contests Saturday. Galt Red Wings moved into undisputed possession of third place behind St. Mikes and St. Catharines by recording a 6-5 victory over Oshawa at Galt after being tied with the Memorial Cup defenders at six points apiece.

Red Wings scored their fourth triumph of the season after a nip-and-tuck battle with Generals when Babando slapped in the winning goal here minutes before the end. They were deadlocked, 3-3, at the end of the first period and Galt were clinging to a 4-3 margin going into the final stanza in which both sides scored twice. Galt's points were spread among six snipers, these being Krompotich, Curik, Mayer, Adamo, Pollock and Babando. Sullivan of Oshawa was the only player to register two goals, the others going to Petsura, Shewchuk and Smith.

Keep on Even Terms

St. Catharines kept on even terms with St. Michaels for first place, both with six straight wins against no defeats, by holding off Toronto Young Rangers 6-4 at St. Catharines Saturday night, although the visitors iced only 10 players. The Falcons were never far in front, leading 2-1 in the first and only 4-3 at the close of the second frame.

Payne of Rangers was the hot shot of the fray with two counters when the returns were all in. Scorers for the Falcons were McBride, Unger, Smelle, McMurdy, Davis and Delmonte. In addition to Payne, the Toronto goal-getters were Rutledge, Jr., and Pidherny.

St. Michael's College ran away with Marlboros on Toronto ice, making it 14-3 for the matinee performance. Joe Sadler led the parade with four tallies; Ted Sloan notched a trio; Gravelle took a brace and singles went to Mortson, McCormack, Turik, Slute and Gray. Those who managed to find the net for Marlies were McNabney, Kane and Michanik. This was the seventh loss for Marlboros in eight starts.

BUFFALO BISONS HOLD FIVE-POINT LEAD IN LEAGUE

In Western Division Capitals Hold Four-Point Lead and Going Strong

By The Canadian Press

Buffalo Bisons, eastern division leaders in the American Hockey League, gained a five-point margin by defeating Hershey Bears 4-2 last night at Hershey. The second-place Bears tied with Cleveland Saturday 3-3, while Bisons dropped their game with Pittsburgh 6-3.

In the western division, Indianapolis Capitals maintained their 4-point lead over Pittsburgh by a 6-1 victory over St. Louis. Cleveland Barons, by defeating Providence 6-5 Sunday following their Saturday draw with Hershey, moved within one point of second-place Hornets.

At Buffalo, Robert Leger opened the scoring for the home team in the first minute of play and Bisons stayed in front all the way. Len Halderson notched up two goals for the victors, one of them unassisted, and Eddie Emerton one. Scorers for Hershey were George Patterson and Tommy Forgie.

The Buffalo victory cost manager Eddie Shore $100 when he was fined for unbecoming language after referee Rabbitt McVeigh penalized Bisons for having too many men on the ice.

Sparked by Coach

At Indianapolis the Capitals, sparked by coach Johnny Sorrell who scored twice in the first seven minutes, won their eighth successive victory of the season on home ice. Capitals piled up a 6-0 lead before Art Giroux made the lone St. Louis goal toward the end of the final period.

At Providence, Cleveland Barons won the deciding goal in the 19th. minute of a fast, wild game featured by 14 penalties in the first period. Three times Reds came from behind to tie the score before Lou Trudel put Barons ahead to stay. Danny Sprout scored twice for Cleveland and Paul Courteau accounted for 2 of Reds' goals.

In Saturday's game at Pittsburgh, Robert Walton starred for Hornets, scoring three of their six goals against Buffalo.

At Cleveland, Hershey Bears took a lead on goals by Hec Pozzo and Art Strobel in the first period and Bill Warwick early in the second before Barons opened up and tied the score. Ed Speaker, Ed Prokop and Les Cunningham scored for Cleveland.

Yesterday six clubs went to the post when group No. 2 in the junior O.H.A. convened here to clear the decks for the coming puck season. Those ardent hockey fans can rest assured of seeing a strong group with plenty of good junior hockey on the season's menu. The teams entered included Tweed, Stirling-Marmora, Trenton and Belleville from last season along with Campbellford and a combined team from Hastings and Norwood making a six club loop.

This season will see three squads of "combines," as Jerry Quinn, Tweed's hockey mentor, told the meeting he was anticipating some player strength from nearby Madoc, while the Hastings entry, who play their games on the large Norwood ice surface, will draw playing material from that village as well as Havelock. Then there is the usual Stirling-Marmora combination back to defend their laurels as group winners last spring.

Open on the Road.

When opening dates were drawn for "Toots" Holway's Belleville "Bearcats" drew a road game to pry off the season's lid at Tweed. Campbellford and Trenton open the season on Jan. 2nd. at Trenton, while Stirling goes to Norwood the next night, Jan. 3rd., the same evening Belleville invades Sam Curry's adopted village. On Friday, Jan. 5th the three road teams for the openers will have their opening games for the 1945 season.

All team delegates to the convention carried the crying towels contending they had lost many players to the armed forces since last season, but those "crocodile tears" weren't very convincing as all concerned seemed to be otherwise quite satisfied with the six-team set-up. Les Farrell carried a smile of satisfaction when he had to admit "Barney" Lesperance was back in the Trenton fold after playing a season with the St. Michael's College "Buzzers". However, there seems to be some confusion regarding the status of Floyd Hamilton, the Havelock lad who played a lot of hockey for Trenton last year. Floyd is back home in Havelock, so it looks very much as though he'll have to line up with Jim Stephenson's Hastings entry.

Although there was a lot of pre-meeting talk about the possibilities of Saturday night hockey in the group, not a single club advanced the question. That is except Trenton, who reported the Trent Arena flatly refused to consider such a move. Looks as though some person is missing the boat in this respect.

A single schedule will be employed with the top four teams playing off in a semi-final and subsequent final series for the group title. The delegates weren't at all concerned about the O.H.A. playdowns, as they feel their group carries a strong appeal for the fans. Of course the group winners will move out against Kingston when the time comes for the provincial play-offs.

Coal is scarce! Wasting fuel by overheating your house is unpatriotic. Health authorities state that moderate temperatures are better for the health: Wear warmer clothing. Avoid cold drafts from open doors and windows. Do everything you can to save fuel.

Every kind of fuel is a vital war necessity. Without fuel, trains and ships cannot speed troops and material to the battle fronts. Munitions factories and shops cannot operate. There are fewer men to produce coal in the mines; fewer trucks and drivers to deliver it—that is why you must save all the fuel you can.

Co-operate with your fuel dealer. Order fuel as far ahead as you can. Be ready to take delivery when he can send it. Remove all obstructions to your coal window or chute. Think of all the other people who need coal too.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 560
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Plan your bridge plays in advance and make it easier on yourself. Say you are declarer in the south at a six heart contract in this deal:

SOUTH

West starts out with an opening lead of the club queen and you get a look at dummy. With a little care, your 12 tricks are easy to take. But with good planning, 13 tricks are there.

Straight trump leads will take four tricks. Solid spades will run six more. The diamond ace will take another. So, if you can trump two dummy clubs, there is a clean sweep for you.

However, if you take out all the opponents trumps at once, you will not have two south trumps with which to trump that many clubs. So, what does your advance planning tell you?

It warns you to trump the second dummy club before pulling the third round of trumps. At the same time, you must plan your entries to dummy. In this case, they are the diamond ace and spade nine.

Trump the first club trick in south and lead king and queen of trumps. Then lead a south diamond, win with dummy diamond ace, and lead another dummy club. Trump that in south.

Now lead the south spade six and overtake in dummy with the spade nine. Dummy leads both the trumps from there and enters south with a spade. The rest are all south good spades.

There is a special feature in this deal that you must carry with you for the future. Notice that if spades are trumps, you will take only 11 tricks; not even enough for a small slam.

This will show you a reason for the rule about choice of suits. It is: When your pair has two good suits, prefer as trumps the suit most evenly divided in the two hands.

With another suit for ruffs, use a longer suit for sluffs.

Canadiens Have Commanding Six-Point Lead in Defence Of National League Title

Montreal Squad Polishes Off Boston and N. Y. Rangers Over Weekend

By The Canadian Press

Montreal Canadiens assumed a commanding six-point lead in their defence of the National Hockey League championship as they swept week-end games from Boston Bruins and New York Rangers by scores of 8-5 and 4-1.

The Frenchmen were aided by the offensive collapse of Detroit Red Wings, who scored only two goals in drawing 1-1 with Toronto Maple Leafs and losing 2-1 to the lowly Chicago Black Hawks. The Detroiters' poor showing left them one point behind Toronto in the battle for second place.

Black Hawks, by scoring their 3rd victory of the season and their first since edging the RedWings Nov. 26, since edging the Red Wings Nov. 26, Rangers.

Subdue Bruins

Canadiens displayed first attack, the defence in building their longest lead of the current season. They brought out heavy artillery before home fans Saturday to subdue Bruins for the fifth straight time. With Maurice Richard and Toe Blake firing two goals each, the Habitants ran up a 7-2 lead before the Rossmen came back with a three-goal burst late in the game. Other Montreal goal-getters were Glen Harmon, Dutch Hiller, Butch Bouchard and Buddy O'Connor. Armand Gaudreault with a pair, Bill Cowley, Herb Cain and Dit Clapper were the Boston marksmen. The Montrealers gave New York fans a look at their defensive prowess Sunday as they routed Rangers with little difficulty. A spirited fist fight between Richard and Bob Dill of the Blueshirts seemed to enliven the visitors' attack in the last half of the game, with Bob Filion and Fern Majeau punching home shots to improve a previous 2-1 margin.

Rangers Once in Lead

Grant Warwick shot Rangers into the lead almost from the opening face-off but Richard equalized before the end of the period and Hiller gave Canadiens the winning margin early in the second.

Toe Blake drew an assist on Filion's goal which combined with his four points Saturday to give him the league scoring leadership 33-32 over Bill Cowley who was held to a single point. Both have 32 points.

Goals by Earl Siebert and Bill Mosienko gave Black Hawks their surprise triumph over Detroit. Playing their best game of the year, Paul Thompson's men held the initiative most of the way. Mosienko's unassisted effort clinched the decision late in the second period after Syd Howe had tied it up for the Red Wings.

Harry Lumley, manager Jack Adams' latest goaltending candidate from Indianapolis Capitols, was a major factor in earning Wings' draw with Toronto. He parried 35 Leaf drives in a dull hockey exhibition. Mel Hill gave Leafs the draw with a third-period score after the visitors had nursed a 1-0 margin since the first, when Steve Wochy registered.

BRYAN NELSON NAMED ATHLETE OF THE YEAR

Averaged Less Than 70 Strokes for 78 Rounds of Golf This Season

By HAROLD CLAASSEN
(AP Sport Writer)

New York, Dec. 18—(AP)—Byron Nelson, who averaged less than 70 strokes for 78 rounds of big time tournament golf, is 1944's athlete-of-the-year.

Seventy - nine sports writers throughout the United States, who scattered their affections on 40 different athletes, named Nelson successor to Gunder Haegg, Sweden's miler and last year's winner.

Nelson's smooth-as-silk performance on the fairways brought him $44,208.66 in war-bond prizes as well as 16 first-place votes in the present tabulations. Each such ballot was worth three points with two points for each second-place vote and one for a third-place mention.

The Toledo shot-maker finished with 75 points, five ahead of Martin (Slats) Marion, Mr. Shortstop for St. Louis Cardinals, recently named the most valuable baseball player in the National League.

Les Horvath, Ohio State's all-American quarterback, was third with 30 points and is the leading amateur. The play-for-fun athletes have topped the poll seven times in the past decade with only Joe Louis in 1935 and Joe Dimaggio in 1941 crashing through from the salaried ranks.

Nelson is the second golfer to have reached the pinnacle in the 14-year history of the poll, preceded by Gene Sarazen in 1932.

The 32-year-old shot-maker opened the year by taking the San Francisco Open last January with a 72-hole card of 275. He then sailed through a spring and summer of almost monotonous winnings and still was in form early this month when he returned to San Francisco to retain his title in the Open there with a one-stroke verdict over Sgt. Jim Farrier of Camp Roberts, Calif.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was on the living room floor reading my new lyberry book, and ma said, Benny, stop that scratching.

Mam? What scratching? I'm not scratching, I said.

Which I wasn't, and ma said, You certainly seemed to be scratching.

Scratching itch as scratching does, pop said.

Being a joke, and after a while ma said, Benny, do you mean to tell me you're not scratching now?

No mam, holey smokes, ma, I mean G wissickers, I'm just laying here reading, gosh, ma, G roomlem, I said, and ma said, Then why should I think you're scratching?

Search me, ma, I said, and pop said, Search me, too, I happened to be watching him that time, and he was holding his book with one hand and turning a page with the other, and that's all the hands he's got, so how could he of been scratching? You must be haunted, my dear. You're seeing things, he said.

No I'm not, but I'm disappointed in P. Willis Hinkle for the first time, ma said. His collum today is all about the power of suggestion and what an important part it plays in life, and as a simple illustration he claims that if you suggest to a perfectly innocent child that he's scratching himself, the child invaribly will begin to scratch as an actual fact, she said, and pop said, For Post sake you'd probably get quicker results if you rubbed pepper well into the child's skin.

Which by that time I felt so itchy all over I started to scratch for real, and ma said it made her nervis and claimed I was doing it on purpose, and I claimed she had hipnotised me and I couldn't help it, the result being I took my lyberry book up to my room and read it peaceful.

Arrogance of German Sub Crews Seen in Copy of Letter Captured

Irrefutable evidence of the arrogance and "superman" ideas of the German submarine crews came to the office of the Ontario Intelligencer today in the form of a photostat copy of a prayer written by a captured member of the submarine sunk by HMS "Snowberry" off Cape Finisterre, some time ago.

The sub surfaced by depth charges was sunk by the corvette's gunfire, and a number of her crew taken prisoner.

Unadulterated conceit is seen in the lines of the prayer in which the Nazi writer pays tribute to God, Who makes it known that not every "blackguard" is privileged to meet the "joyous seamen", presumably the German navy.

The prayer bears the insignia of the Nazi submarine service, which depicts the sea with a large broom sweeping a sinking merchant ship out of the way. This insignia was painted on the side of the U-boat and was plainly seen by the crew of the Snowberry.

The prayer which follows was signed personally by those officers and crew of the sub who were taken prisoner.

"Honour be to God upon the sea. He has appointed the sea so wisely makes it known through His wisdom, that not every blackguard with which the earth is so plentifully blessed, meets with the joyous seamen out there."

The captured officers were proud arrogant types of the Nazi superman, imbued with the idea that Hitler and the German Reich is invincible. This was proved by the fact that just before reaching a British port, the commanding officer of the submarine demanded to write a further message on the prayer. He wrote: "In spite of our fate, the broom sweeps on."

The prayer copy is the property of CPO. Wm. Hirst, member of the crew of the Snowberry.

Toronto, Dec. 18 — (CP) — Although Judge K. M. Landis hasn't been dead long, the rumors now say the owners probably won't lose too much time changing some of his rules — especially the one banning anyone connected with racing from having any connection with organized professional ball. That seems like a smart idea, though, since very few people even believed it was necessary to go that far to keep the sport clean.

Of course, that doesn't mean all the bars will be taken down, but it will give a decent break to some people whose presence in the game would probably do it much more good than harm. You can't say hockey's integrity and honesty has been destroyed because people like Leo Dandurand and Joe Cattarainich, for instance, have had a strong interest in racing as well as hockey. So the average fan doesn't see why there is any need for the bitter ban against racing men.

Rogers Hornsby was one player and manager who offended the iron clad code by dallying with the horses, and as a result he was barred from the big leagues by the owners and officials, and there have been others who escaped that fate only by keeping their extra-mural activities strictly under their hats.

As long as gambling on a large scale isn't allowed to enter baseball, the owners don't need to fear any trouble because one of their number owns a few nags.

Hottest Shot?

Doug Vaughan of the Windsor Star relays the information that Detroit Red Wings players have nominated Eddie Bruneteau as the fastest shot among them, in fact, the hottest shot in the N.H.L. They even are comparing his drive with that blistering one of Charlie Conacher's.

Complimented?

Al (Brantford Expositor) Rose says everyone in the east is getting a bit provoked about hearing so often how many hockey players they develop in Western Canada. Al says the Westerners shouldn't be upset because eastern teams try to take their players away from them, but rather should regard it as a compliment. Says he: "They must have so many around (according to their story) that they wouldn't miss what the east used to take."

Soldier Talent:

The makings of a fine hockey team are available in the Petawawa military camp now, but just how long the gilded array will stay there is a question. With the military situation the way it is, we don't envy the lot of an army hockey squad coach or manager.

CHAPTER 18.

"But if you'd faced it out, come home to my mother, broken your engagement with him, she would have understood. She would have forgiven you, if there'd been anything to forgive. Nini probably would have worked off that little-girl spitefulness of hers, probably wouldn't have said anything to my mother at all. As for Rod, he puts you in a place apart. He might never have won you, but he always would have—always has—thought of you as the perfect woman!"

"And I love Rod," she said, her eyes far away and faintly smiling. "If it had been 'Rod—if I could have felt that way about Rod—" she began and stopped short.

"Felt what way?" Chris followed it up in his unhurried fashion.

"Happy all the time," she answered simply.

"But you never," he said slowly, "felt that way about Rod?"

"No." She put a spoonful of orange ice into her mouth and looked at him seriously.

"Nor Larry? If you don't mind my being your father—confessor."

"No, nor Larry," she answered hesitatingly.

"But it's very silly," she broke off to say with a sudden return to everyday common sense, "because it is all over and done with, and I am a settled, middleaged woman with two daughters and a son to raise."

"All of twenty-five, aren't you?"

"Twenty-six."

"As for everything being over and done with at twenty-six, that is a manifest absurdity," he said. You've given me your side of the story. I wish you'd let me give you mine."

"From the moment I met you at Mother's house six years ago I knew that every woman I had ever dreamed of had come to life. Rounded, like one of the pre-Raphaelites' women, and tall, with thick brown hair with a gold sheen on it.

"I was married to Merle then; but I never had been married to Merle in one sense. From the beginning it was a compromise. I don't know whether you knew that we had been married for ten years. Merle had been extremely pretty. I met her when I was holding my first job as a newspaper reporter and they sent me to Stockton to do a flower pageant. She and her three sisters were on a float with Washington and Columbia and the Graces and Cupid and I don't know what else, all garlanded with ropes of hydrangea and roses and white stock. Merle was Martha Washington, in hoop skirts and ringlets. She said she liked the hoop skirts and nobody would know the difference anyway. So Martha wore hoop skirts. And that was like your Hollywood week. Everything was roses and hospitality and dancing and excitement. Every girl had a beau, and I was Merle's. Now suppose I told you there are women who are destined to careers. They aren't always geniuses themselves; perhaps usually they're not. But their biographies get written, and they leave their mark upon their own generation.

"Suppose I meet such a woman. It isn't that she is more beautiful than other women. When I meet her first she is only a young girl, awkward-divinely awkward—but I know then that she is such a woman. In her bigness and her ignorance and her inexperience, yet it's all written there—magnificence."

"I like to hear you say those things, Chris. But they aren't true."

"I'm telling you what's true to me, not necessarily what you think of yourself. Well, I get to know this girl a little better, and it—it doesn't leave my own pulses unstirred. She dreams a dream perhaps in a few days in Hollywood, but I do too. Everything seems to be swimming about in a sort of opalescent glory, and I sense the beauty of life as I never sensed it before."

"Yes, I know," she agreed in a

"So that when I hear a few weeks later that my career woman was to be married to keep a childhood promise--"

"Not quite! If I — if she was twenty when she made the promise!"

"But she might be a child at twenty after such a childhood," he reminded her. "Well, I hear that she is married and hear years later that there are children and that she is struggling with poverty and heat and hard work and fatigue. That the blue-veined hands have been roughened with dishwashing and cooking--"

"And gardening and swimming in the old dam and picnics!" she put in.

"And that she had been deserted by the husband," Chris said, playing his trump card; "he has left her to carry the entire responsibility of their venture herself."

"Not quite that. He wanted the responsibility. One reason he was angry was that I was the important one, if either of us were," Loveday told him conscientiously.

"And then I think," Chris pursued it, unimpressed, "of what that woman's life might be if she chose to take the freedom he has so unceremoniously offered her a writer husband who adores her and who can give her the society, the position for which she is fitted. A modern colonial house on Long Island."

"This divorced woman with three small children," she said.

"Certainly. 'Mrs. St. George was married before; the children are hers,'" Chris conceded; "that's all there'd be to that. And what of it? Surely, brought up as I was in a big family, with cousins all over the place, the more laughing running around and noise the better! What if they do come West to visit their father's people now and then? They may not like it, but that'll all straighten out. Kids take that sort of thing for granted. And painters will paint you, Loveday, as they did Rossetti's wife, and poets will write to you as Francis Thompson did to his Egeria, and your husband will plot all his plays about you!"

"It's hard not to want all that, Chris," she said simply with one reproachful look as she got to her feet. She was trembling inwardly as she went to the car. He would know that, of course, he would know just the effect of those words on any women.

It was once more a place of refuge and delight to her, the St. George house. Loveday was a happy girl again.

Fanny was at home with two small girls; Nini was ecstatic over wedding plans. Martin Lancaster, Nini's young man, was always in evidence, and Rodney, very handsome in his uniform and affectionate and anxious to talk to Loveday about his girl, came home for one evening. The old laughter and the old games went on, shadowed slightly by the war cloud that lay over the world, but still laughter and still games.

One evening Chris took them to a new play, and afterward he and Fanny and Loveday went back to her dressing room to meet the star.

"Chris, I hear you've bought Sam Barnard's beautiful place down at Oyster Bay," said the beautiful Jayne Pomeroy.

"All mine now, Jenny," Chris said.

"How many rooms set aside for me?" the actress asked, her magnificent eyes sparkling in a frame of black fringes and heavy make-up."

"Only the master bedroom, dear."

"Oh, perfect! And when do you go back to Hollywood, darling? I'm in Los Angeles next week, you know."

"I go tonight," Chris said.

"Tonight!" Fanny protested when they three were out in the dark street again. "You do not! Was that what Mother was talking to you about in her room before dinner? I heard her say that she thought you ought to go back and I amost died."

"Your little habit of eavesdropping, Fanny, would make you invaluable to the F.B.I." Chris said amiably.

Loveday had been stricken to the heart; she could not speak. Her hands were icy and her throat dry. Oh, she had known it had to end, but not so soon!

"Mother suggested that I get to work," Chris said, talking over his shoulder as he drove home. Something in the grimness of his tone gave Loveday fresh fear. Why had Aunt Laura felt this; how had she put it to him?

"Was Mother mad?" Fanny asked, amazed.

"Not at all. She simply turned me out in the snow, that was all. So I'm off—well, not tonight," Chris said, "but so early that you ladies will be still dreaming about me."

"Chris", Loveday said, delaying him just a second with her hand on his arm when they were in the hallway at home, "do I—am I—are you taking me back to Indian Hill with you tomorrow? I have to go home".

"No, too early for you", he answered lightly, not looking at her as he freed his arm and slipped out of his coat. "Mother reminded me that Hugh comes in tomorrow to see Dr. Barnes, and he'll take you home".

Subdued and tired, Loveday packed her bags the next afternoon and started for home with Hugh.

"Loveday", said Hugh as he drove steadily along through the warm, hazy Autumn afternoon, "have you the slightest idea about getting hold of Delia Dillon? Come to life, my dear! I'm asking you if you have any idea about getting hold of Delia Dillon? The maid who was in Grandfather's house for years".

"I beg your pardon, darling! I was half asleep. Delia Dillon? No, because, you see, she married and went away and simply disappeared into space. I was away at school, anyway, when she went. Why, do you think she knows anything?"

"Now I'll tell you the sequence of events and why I think she does. She was a fine girl, wasn't she?"

"As far as I know she was. Yes, she certainly was. Nobody could seem as simple and honest and conscientious as Delia and be anything else".

"Then she didn't steal the money, did she?"

"Oh, heavens, no!"

"Exactly. Well, here's what happens: I'm lost, a small child of not quite five years old, evidently not smart enough to identify myself when I'm picked up by a man and a woman in a car a few days later"

"Feverish, frightened, starving, what would you expect of 'a poor scrap that age? That's the twins' age—mere babies".

"Well, anyway, I'm smuggled off overseas, and my grandfather offers a thousand dollars for information that will lead to my recovery. This man Al Harris conceives the brilliant scheme of nabbing one of the little suits my mother sends to the hospital and faking a body—either by odds and ends of bones he picks up in the laboratory or by actually getting hold of some child's corpse".

"You think that's what he did?"

"Sure of it".

"What could they do to him?"

"Well, I don't know. It's rather an unusual crime. It's obtaining money under false pretenses, to say the least, but it would be awfully hard to prove that twenty-five years ago he lifted a body from the hospital if he chose to deny it. I don't know who'd want to do it; I wouldn't."

"He wouldn't have murdered some child?"

"No, thank God", Hugh said; "in America the poorest little scrap of babyhood can't disappear without causing considerable fuss. He'd have been caught at that. He didn't have to murder anyone. But he did see the doctor's money when he was paid the reward, and all through the years he had his eye on it, especially when years later the old man became a little weak-minded and perhaps told Harris at the hospital that he didn't trust any investments or any banks and that the only thing to do with money was hide it somewhere".

"At the end Grandfather told everyone that. There was no secret in that".

"But he never told anyone where he put the money?"

"Not that I know of. No, for Mother and Grandmother talked of it—happened to just a few days before they died".

"That money would be a swell thing to find, Loveday."

"You'd be surprised", she thought wearily, "how little I care about it!" Aloud she said, "To build the hospital?"

"Not only that. You'd have enough, perhaps, to live nicely at the old place for life".

"Until you sued me for half of it, Hugh", she said affectionately.

"Until I brought suit, of course. I probably would" he replied smiling. "Harris thinks Delia Dillon knows something about that money".

"Did he say so?"

"No, but he gave me a clue".

"You and your clues!"

"He keeps hinting that it would be to Delia Dillon's advantage to get in touch with him. But the truth is he wants to get in touch with her. Mrs. O'Connor, who manages the laundry at the hospital, told me he had some authority from the Old Doc that Delia had questioned. She dislikes Harris and says he was a sneak and a spy all the time he was in the hospital".

"I suppose a detective bureau could ferret Delia out".

"I suppose so. But it doesn't seem fair to her to go about it that way. She's evidently taken great pains to lose herself. Harris —I've seen him several times—keeps harping on the little trunk she took away with her, one of Grandfather's trunks. She had a small leather bag and a big broken old bag fastened with new straps and this chest or trunk".

"What was in the trunk? Oh, the money? Of course. But Delia could not have quietly packed a trunk with hundreds of thousands of dollars and walked away with them right under Grandfather's nose, could she?"

"Unless he told her to take them somewhere and leave them for him. You see how inconspicuously an extra trunk of hers could have been gotten out of the house?"

"Boss Telephone", Annie Lum said, welcoming Loveday home.

"Boss Telephone?" Loveday echoed incredulously, shocked into sudden interest.

"Last night. Wing Foo here", Annie further contributed.

"What say?"

Larry had telephoned, finding her away with the St. Georges and the children in complete charge of Annie Lum! Loveday's heart beat nervously. Where had he been? What was the cause of the telephone call!

"Him yellow paper", Annie elucidated.

"Oh, Telegram? They telephoned a telegram? What say?"

"Come lunch today, two fiends", Annie said.

"He was coming to lunch today with two friends? Then he must be near! He didn't come, Annie!"

Dog's Nonchalance Assures Firemen His Master Safe

Toronto, Dec. 18 (CP)—Nonchalance of a brindled bulldog assured firemen and onlookers at a fire in West Toronto yesterday that his master, James Naughton, was safe.

"You never see Mr. Naughton but you see his dog", onlookers told firemen who feared the man was trapped inside.

Investigations revealed Naughton in fighting the fire, received burns on his hands and face and walked to a nearby hospital for treatment.

Kidney Acids Rob Your Rest

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They turn and toss—lie awake and count sheep. Often they blame it on "nerves" when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisons from the blood. If they are faulty and fail, poisons stay in the system and sleeplessness, headache, backache often follow. If you don't sleep well, try Dodd's Kidney Pills—for half a century the favorite remedy. 103

Sgt. E. Cruikshank Wins Commission As Pilot Officer

Trenton, Dec. 18—Earl Cruikshank, twenty-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Cruikshank, Trenton, has recently been awarded his commission after completing a year overseas with the R.C.A.F. with the City of London Squadron. He has taken part in many raids over Germany and enemy held territory, and stated Holland has been the hardest hit of any of the occupied countries. Miles of Dutch farm land is now under water, the sea pouring through the dikes which have been destroyed.

PO. Cruikshank is planning some of his Christmas holidays with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Jilbert formerly of Trenton, but who now reside in County Cornwall, England. Earl came to Trenton with his parents from Prince Edward County and attended school in Trenton. Leaving high school he was employed on the staff of the "Quinte Sun" in Trenton and the Reliance Aircraft Corporation, Belleville. He enlisted in the R.C.A.F. in February 1943, and trained at Toronto, Kingston, London, MacDonald, Man., and Trenton being presented with his air Gunner Wing in November 1943. He left for overseas a month later as a sergeant.

Fractures Wrist.

Mrs. J. McHenry, King Street, suffered a fractured left wrist on Saturday evening when she had the misfortune to fall on the ice at the intersection of King and Division Streets.

She was taken to the office of Dr. J. F. Farley and later removed to her home.

Arrives Safely.

Sub.-Lieut., Jerry Anderson, of the Fleet Air Arm has arrived safely overseas according to a cable received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Anderson.

First Trenton lad to enlist in the Fleet Air Arm Sub.-Lieut. Anderson took his initial training in England and returned to Canada on leave more than a year ago. He then trained at Pensacola, Fla., where he graduated in May of this year and was commissioned as a sub-lieutenant.

He spent some time in Norfolk, Va., and Lewiston, Me., before going overseas about a month ago.

McNaughton Says Some Draftees Had 'Gone Forward'

Ottawa, Dec. 18 —(CP)— The first of the 16,000 Home Defence draftee infantrymen conscripted for overseas service may actually have arrived in the war theatres in the opinion of some capital circles speculating on Defence Minister McNaughton's Saturday speech at Owen Sound, Ont.

Back in the capitol after accepting the Liberal nomination to run in Grey North riding by-election Feb. 4, Gen. McNaughton did not elaborate on his acceptance speech comment that large numbers of reinforcements had already "gone forward."

It was understood that military security prevented the General from making his reinforcement reference any more explicit.

He actually said:

"Many thousands of men are now in movement towards the assembly areas in Eastern Canada where they are being marshalled prior to dispatch as reinforcements to our army. Large numbers have already gone forward."

Concluding a two-day visit to launch his candidacy—the first political venture of his career—the General was photographed at the Owen Sound station shaking hands with his Progressive Conservative opponent—Mayor Garfield Case.

Mayor Case had attended an organization meeting in Meaford, Ont., earlier in the day and had rushed back to be at the station to say good-by to the General. They chatted for five minutes, mostly on the plans for the Saturday night reception in Owen Sound of Maj. David Vivian Currie, Canada's most recent Victoria Cross winner.

Missed Reception.

Gen. McNaughton missed the reception but as the trains bearing the new defence minister and the war hero crossed, Gen. McNaughton shook hands with Maj. Currie and told him, "Your citation, Currie, was the finest Victoria Cross citation I've ever read."

He told the Liberal supporters he wanted the seat only for the period between now and the federal general election, when he expects to accept the invitation of his native Qu'Appelle riding in Saskatchewan, now held by E. E. Perley, a Progressive Conservative.

He also disclosed that when he returned from Britain early this year he had thought of entering political life, but had given up the idea in October when he concluded that it would be best to "undertake work of another character entirely."

Gen. McNaughton had a word about his plan of 30 days home leave, exclusive of travelling time, for men with long service overseas and he added that these men wouldn't be sent back to the fighting front unless they were fully fit. A high proportion of the men would be retained in Canada for use as instructors.

He said the leave plan had originally contemplated that 450 men would be home for Christmas. This number he said has been extended and "well over 1,000 will be here before the New Year and I have every expectation this rate will then continue and increase."

U.S. Allows Japs Back on W. Coast

Washington, Dec. 18—(AP)—The War Department has revoked its order excluding all persons of Japanese ancestry from the United States west coast.

An announcement by the army said that the revocation order was issued by Maj.-Gen. Henry C. Pratt, chief of the Western Defence Command, with the approval of the War Department.

"Favorable progress of the war in the Pacific, as well as other developments," was given as the reason for the revocation.

The revocation order provides that any person of Japanese ancestry about "whom information is available indicating a pro-Japanese attitude" will continue to be barred from the coast states.

More than 115,000 persons of Japanese ancestry were evacuated from strategic areas on the West Coast, the states of California, Washington and Oregon. The majority of them eventually were transferred to relocation centres located chiefly in the mountain states, including Arizona, Utah, Wyoming and Colorado.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

Toronto, Dec. 18 —(CP)— Stocks weakened moderately this afternoon on Toronto Exchange. Industrials held the decline. Volume totalled 296,000 shares.

The Yellowknife stocks ruled higher. Giant and Frobisher were up 10, Transcontinental Resources gained 9 and Bear added a cent or two. Other strong golds were Preston, Aubelle, Wasa Lake and Anglo-Huronian.

Waite-Amulet firmed 5 cents and prices were down 5 to 10 cents for Steep Rock and Labrador.

Moderate weakness was displayed in the industrials by papers, steels and foods. Bell Telephone and Canada Wire A slackened a point.

WALL ST.

New York, Dec. 18 — (AP) — Recently strong stocks took a little more selling punishment in today's market without exhibiting any pronounced weakness. Speculative and investment sentiment was chilled to some extent by European diplomatic wrangles and launching of the big German counter-offensive. Dealings were relatively quiet throughout but few comebacks were in evidence near the fourth hour.

Prominent on the offside were Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Great Northern, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Goodrich, Douglas Aircraft, American Can, General Electric and Allied Chemical. Canadian issues dipped fractionally. Dome the only firm spot, up 1/8.

Two Trenton Men Return Home On Special Furlough

Trenton, Dec. 18—Home for Christmas is now a reality for both Sergeant Reginald C. Baker and Corporal R. W. Lawson of Trenton who were among those to arrive home early Sunday morning on special Christmas leave provided for some who have spent more than five years in the army overseas.

Sergeant Baker is the son of Mr. Charles Baker, Dundas Street East and he went overseas with the Hastings & Prince Edward Regiment, in December 1939. He has been all through the campaigns of Sicily and Italy and escaped with only slight injuries. Once he received slight injury to his right hand and another time to his left arm but has now fully recovered.

He is feeling extremely well and looking forward to an exceptionally fine Christmas with his wife and family of five children. They live on North Front Street and Sergeant Baker is spending his leave at his home there.

When he returns to England he expects to take up duties as a physical instructor.

Corporal R. W. Lawson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Lawson, West Street, and he also went over with the famous Hasty Pee's in December 1939. During the campaign in Sicily he was credited with destroying two enemy machine-gun posts, which were threatening the advance of his regiment.

He has two brothers James and Allan on active service overseas and another brother Alfred was discharged and returned home because of a physical disability some months ago.

RESTRICTIONS WITHDRAWN

Ottawa, Dec. 18 — (CP)— Selective Service regulations which made it necessary for women university students to obtain a Selective Service permit to return to their studies if they failed to make qualifying marks during a university term have been withdrawn, Labor Minister Mitchell announced today.

Maj. S. Ketcheson Listed Wounded For Second Time

Trenton, Dec. 18 — Major T. S. (Stan) Ketcheson, second in command of the H.&P.E. Reg't. has been reported wounded for the second time according to official information received from Ottawa by his father, Mr. Walter Ketcheson of the Continental Can. Co. here. He was first wounded last February in Italy and at that time suffered shrapnel wounds in the leg and neck. He spent about a month in hospital but was later returned to his regiment, the famous Hasty Pees.

Major Ketcheson was with the H.&P.E. Reg't. several years prior to the outbreak of war and left for overseas with the First Battalion in December 1939 as Captain. Shortly after his arrival in England he was promoted to Major and spent considerable time in taking various courses in army work. He returned to Canada in January 1943 and spent about nine months at various camps throughout the Dominion as an instructor. He returned to England in September of that year and was sent directly to his regiment in Italy.

Just recently he has taken a sixteen-days' course in Italy and qualified as a lieut-Colonel though the official promotion has not yet come through. He is now second in command of the regiment.

Two brothers are also serving in the Army, Lance Bombardier Douglas Ketcheson suffered a fractured wrist and other injuries in France following the invasion and was invalided back to England where he still remains, while Signaller Horace Ketcheson who went overseas in Sept. 1943, after enlisting at Kingston, Ont., is serving in Italy.

H.&P.E. Regiment Congratulated On Splendid Stand

Toronto, Dec. 18 —(CP)— Bert Wemp, Toronto Evening Telegram war correspondent in Italy, says today in a dispatch to his paper that two Canadian regiments—one a Maritime regiment and the other the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment from Eastern Ontario—have received congratulations from General Sir Richard McCreary, commander of the British 8th Army, for beating off 13 strong German counter-attacks in nine hours.

Wemp reported that German losses in men and equipment were heavy. The few yards of ground lost by the two Canadian regiments was all regained by Western Canada units which pushed on another 500 yards.

Runaway Horse Killed in Crash With Motor Car

After upsetting a cutter and throwing the occupants out, a horse was killed at the intersection of William Street and Victoria Avenue, on Sunday afternoon when it ran away and crashed into an automobile driven by Edward Young, 185 Victoria Ave. It is believed the animal broke its neck as the result of running at top speed into the side of the moving vehicle.

The horse was being driven by Miss Connie Maker and Miss Theresa Callaghan, both of this city, who had engaged the horse and cutter to enjoy an afternoon's brisk drive. They were accompanied by a small boy.

At the corner of William and Forin Streets the cutter upset when it struck a deep snowbank. The three occupants were thrown out without sustaining injuries. Apparently the horse became frightened during the commotion and ran away. At the intersection of Victoria Avenue the animal ran at full speed into the side of Mr. Young's car, which was proceeding east on the avenue. P.C. Rathwell investigated the accident and found the horse had been instantly killed. Considerable property damage resulted to the entire left side of the motor car as the horse crashed full speed into the side of the moving vehicle.

Public Confused By Contradictory Winter Prophecies

The weather man is throwing the well-known monkey wrench into the mental machinery of Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Public.

Aided by the prognostications of those who inevitably bob up following something unusual in atmospheric conditions, apparent refutations by Mother Nature, and vagaries of the weather itself, the old boy has raised hob with the mental status of the bourgeoiserie.

It all started with the big storm of last week.

The savants, and seers, those "in the know" and oldtimers, more or less comfortably buried beneath varying depths of snow, started to recall the terrific storms of yesteryear. Strange signs were apparent, they said, that foretold the coming winter to be the most severe of its kind since Washington crosswater. All these signs became

There is moss on the trees, unheard of before at this time of year. The squirrels have laid away tremendous stocks of nuts. Beaver and muskrat houses are high out of the water. All these signs become apparent, or at least were brought to light, after the big storm.

Then along comes a venerable Indian seer of the Mohawk Reserve. He scoffed at the supposed long, hard winter and went so far as to produce some sort of verbal evidence that the present snow would disappear and the city and countryside would bask in the atmosphere of a green Christmas.

The government has issued appeals to "save coal." The storm thwarted any attempts at deliveries.

Pussy willows are growing in a Plainfield woods. Now along comes the news that the mercury took a dive to level off somewhere around the eight below zero mark, with possibilities of more to come.

Who and what to believe is having its effect on the mental setup on the poor guy of the street.

Anyway, Christmas falls on Monday, and he is sure of that, unless some savant comes out with a prophecy that it is being laid over until Easter.

POLICE BLOTTER

City police had to remove a Ford roadster from Coleman Street early today. The vehicle, which carried licence plate number 46-H-17, had been parked in the same position for three successive nights and was impeding the flow of traffic.

Overcoat Stolen.

Sergt. H. H. Day, of No. 6 Repair Depot, Trenton, informed police his overcoat had been stolen at a local hotel Saturday night after he placed it in a window sill while he left momentarily to converse with friends.

Quell Disturbance.

Police were called to 62 Burton Street early Sunday morning where disturbances, that caused neighbors some concern, were reported. It was found to be a family disturbance and police warned the parties concerned to refrain from making their private difficulties so boisterous.

Wrongfully Wearing Uniforms.

Police apprehended two local lads wearing Reserve Army uniforms, which is contrary to military regulations, on Sunday evening. The boys promised to return home and remove the clothes.

Horses Returned to Barns.

Provincial Police investigated the matter of horses running at large on Highway No. 2 adjacent to the Bay of Quinte Country Club. It was disclosed the animals had broken their stable, but had been recaptured and tethered upon the arrival of police. Passing motorists deemed the situation extremely dangerous.

Lupe Velez Will Not Be Buried From R.C. Church

(Copyright, 1944, By The AP)

Beverly Hills, Calif., Dec. 18—(AP) —Lupe Velez, divorced actress who took her own life Thursday, will not be buried from the Roman Catholic Church with formal Catholic rites, although friends attempted to obtain a dispensation, the Associated Press learned Saturday.

But the body of the actress was moved Saturday from the non-denominational Forest Lawn cemetery to a Catholic mortuary where Rosary services may be said the night before the funeral. Rosary services might have been said by laymen friends at Forest Lawn but a priest could not participate there.

An authority in the Archdiocese said that Miss Velez may be buried in Calvary, a Catholic cemetery, and friends announced Saturday that that is where the little Mexican actress will be laid to rest. The church does grant dispensation for burial in a Catholic cemetery, the authority explained, "when the background of the individual is Catholic although the individual may not have been a practising Catholic." Miss Velez was born a Catholic and was educated in Catholic schools.

John E. Tresona, Jr., manager for Miss Velez, said Saturday that the body is being moved to a mortuary and that the funeral will be at 11 a.m. Tuesday.

Marriage Not Recognized

The Los Angeles Archdiocese, a spokesman for the church said, did not consider Miss Velez a communicant because she did not return to the church after living publicly in a marriage which the church did not recognize because it was performed in a civil ceremony.

She divorced Johnny Weissmuller in 1938.

That Miss Velez committed suicide did not enter into the decision, the spokesman said.

The recitation of the Rosary, a Catholic practice for the dead, is sometimes permissable in such cases, the church authority said, indicating that a priest might be allowed to say such prayers for Miss Velez. Later, however, the same authority said that "On consideration" a priest would not participate in the Rosary services.

Nor will any prayers be said by a priest at the cemetery, the same spokesman said. However, laymen may lead the Rosary service as well as graveside prayers.

The official requiem of the church is the Mass, which must be said by a priest in a church. Thus, the religious rites for Lupe will be Catholic in character although not official.

GERMANY'S COUNTER-OFFENSIVE STORMS AT LEAST TWENTY MILES INTO BELGIUM

24,000 White Captives Perish Under Inhuman Japanese Treatment

London, Dec. 19. (CP)—The War Office asserted today that the Japanese had worked more than 60,000 white captives under such brutal and inhuman conditions that 24,000 of them had died.

The Japanese themselves have erected a memorial to 25,000 men who died in building the Thailand-Burma railway and road, the War office said. Of the 25,000 men, the War office reported, fewer than 1,000 were Japanese and the remainder were English, Australians and Dutch.

In an urge for speed, the Japanese disregarded completely "the cost in human life", the War office said. Sick prisoners were even carried to work on stretchers. Severe beatings were administered to officers and men, the statement said, and there were also cases "of torture and killing".

The statement supplemented an oral report to Commons by Sir James Grigg, war secretary, who said the Japanese used at least 60,000 white prisoners "regardless of conditions under which the prisoners worked and of the cost in human life".

"The figure is probably much higher", he added.

Sir James said "the great majority were from the United Kingdom or Australia. In addition many thousands of Asiatics were used and the death rate among them was almost certainly much heavier than amongst white men".

Sir James reported conditions improved "somewhat" after completion of the railroad in October, 1943, but he said "I should make it clear to the House these conditions are far below anything which would be regarded as reasonable for our prisoners of war in Europe.

Report Confirmed.

"Men have however adapted themseves and become to some extent inured to these lower standards while many of the conditions which caused such heavy sick and death rates in jungle camps did not obtain in rear camps to which the men were withdrawn."

Sir James said the report was confirmed by British troops formerly in Japanese hands who were rescued by the United States navy from the sea in September after a prison ship was torpedoed.

He told the House of Commons that the protecting power has been asked to make the "strongest possible protest regarding past conditions in Siam and Burma" and said Britain would continue to press the Japanese to allow all prison camps to be inspected regularly by neutral observers and to make arrangements for Red Cross relief supplies.

All the prisoners travelled from Singapore to Thailand in metal cattle trucks so crowded that the men could not lie down for five days and nights, and were forced to sleep leaning against piles of equipment or against one another, the War Office said.

Drank From Mud Puddles.

They were forced to march 50 miles through disease-ridden jungles, so thirsty they drank from muddy puddles, the statement said, and so exhausted they fell to the water-logged ground at the end of each march, wrapping their heads in anything they could find as protection against the mosquitos.

The prisoners were forced to work if they could move at all. They were required to move one and a half cubic yards of earth and rock a day—a task sometimes requiring 15 hours labor. Worn-out clothes were not replaced and some men were reduced to going naked or were clad only in a loincloth.

The War Office said the prisoners' rations sometimes included meat but "the quantities can be judged from the fact that one pig was supposed to provide for 1,200 men."

Weather Forecast

Lake Superior — Moderate to fresh winds; partly cloudy and moderately cold tonight and Wednesday with snowflurries.

Kenora and Rainy River—Cloudy tonight and Wednesday with light snow; colder Wednesday night.

Manitoba — Mostly cloudy tonight and Wednesday with light snowfalls or flurries; becoming colder on Wednesday.

51 BULGAR OFFICIALS ACCUSED

London, Dec. 19 —(CP)— The Moscow radio said yesterday that 51 high state functionaries of Bulgaria had been accused of crimes against the country. Included were the ex-Regents, Prince Cyril, Bogdan Filov and Gen. Nikola Mikhov. Some of the accused have fled and others are dead, Moscow said.

Thirty-Three More Japanese Ships Sunk by U.S. Subs

Washington, Dec. 19 — (AP)— Thirty-three more apanese ships have been accounted for by United States undersea raiders.

A Navy communique yesterday reported the new successes if its submarines which are hunting in the far Pacific. The announcement boosts the total of Japanese ships sunk by United States submarines to 907 of which 94 were fighting ships. In this latest tally (the last announcement was Dec. 4) are 12 combatant ships—a light cruiser, three destroyers, six escort vessels, a mine-sweeper and a mine-layer.

The Navy never announces details of the place or circumstances under which one of its submarines makes a kill, but the categories mentioned in the communique suggests that enemy convoys furnished most of the targets.

Chaplin Jury Selected

Los Angeles, Dec. 19—(AP)— A jury of seven women and five men was chosen late yesterday to hear the suit in which Joan Berry asks that Charles Chaplin be named the father of her 14-month-old daughter, Carol Ann.

Among the jurors, most of whom are middle-aged, are a retired Navy man the wife of a philatelist, a divorcee, the wife of a postal supervisor, a Beverely Hills property manager, a real estate broker, an interior decorator, the wife of a floor finisher and a retired telegraph company employee.

They were chosen and sworn at the end of the third day of questioning veniremen, Mr. Chaplin's attorney, Charles A. Millikan, repeatedly asked candidates whether they had any reluctance toward accepting testimony by physicians concerning blood tests concerning paternity.

He also inquired whether they would consider an admission by Mr. Chaplin of sexual intimacies prior to December, 1942, as evidence also of such acts in that month, when Miss Berry alleges that conception occurred.

Each side had six peremptory challenges. Miss Berry's lawyer used four and Mr. Chaplin's six.

CANADA'S BLOOD DONATION RATE HIGH

Toronto, Dec. 19 —(CP)— Blood donations in Canada are proportionately greater than in the United States and Britain, Dr. Albert Fisher of Connaught Laboratories said last night in an address to the General Accountants Association. He said Canadian donations in 1944 would total 300,000.

SEND CHRISTMAS GREETINGS

Toronto, Dec. 19—(CP)—Nearly 200 Canadian prisoners in Stalag 344, German prison camp, in a cable message through the Canadian Red Cross society have sent christmas greetings to relatives and friends at home. The message thanked "For all you have done in our behalf."

REDS THREATEN EARLY COLLAPSE OF ENTIRE SALIENT

Troops Swarm Across Czechoslovak Frontier And Pour Into Valley Leading to Kassa

London, Dec. 19. (CP-Reuters)— A military commentator broadcasting over Moscow radio today said "the fate of Budapest is sealed".

The stranglehold around it was tightening daily, and the two arms of the Soviet Pincers were now only 15 miles apart, he said.

"Budapest has lost all its military and economic value to the Germans, and the only remaining railway to Austria is within range of Russian artillery at some points," he added.

London, Dec. 19 —(CP)— Red Army troops swarmed across the Czechoslovak frontier from northeastern Hungary today on a widening front, threatening early collapse of the entire German salient in eastern Slovakia between Poland and Hungary.

Driving down out of the Kecske mountains, Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's 2nd Ukraine Army units gained up to 12 miles and poured into the broad Bodva and Hernad river valleys leading to Kassa, the enemy's major east Slovak stronghold.

By yesterday, Moscow said, one of Malinovsky's columns already was within two miles of the Germans' southern highway escape route out of Kassa. Once it is cut the garrison in Hungarian-annexed Kassa would be able to flee only through the patriot-infested Czechoslovak mountains.

By Russian and German account, the Red army was closing in on Kassa from three directions. Moscow placed vanguards within 14 miles on the southwest and 11½ miles on the southeast, while Berlin reported other units attacking 16 miles to the east.

One of the most extensive new crossings of the frontier occurred in the Horvaty-Janok-Buzita area, 30 miles north of Miskolc and just south of the communications centre of Moldava. It was here that the Russians, already two miles beyond the border, were approaching the enemy's highway escape route to the west.

The Russians also advanced into Slovakia in the area of captured Banreve, 23 miles northwest of Miskolc. There, they seized the rail station of Kamenec on the Slana river.

Russian infantrymen were fighting within 5½ miles of Budapest, but there was no official word of new gains there.

Only Light Snowfall During Last Night

Toronto, Dec. 19 (CP). — The weatherman came up today with comforting assurance for any who might be apprehended that last night's snowfall in Southern Ontario was the foretaste of another heavy storm like last Tuesday's. Only light snowfall or snowflurries are likely in the province today, the Dominion Meteorological Bureau reported. Last night's fall was general throughout the southern part of the province. The heaviest was at Parry Sound with 3½ inches. Toronto had 2½ inches. In most places it was an inch or less.

Great Maginot Forts Begin to Crumble Before Yank Bazookas, Dynamite

By ROBERT C. WILSON
(AP War Correspondent)

Near Bitche, France, Dec. 19 —(AP)— Huge Maginot Line Fortresses in this part of northwestern Alsace began to crumble yesterday under the combined assault of American infantrymen and engineers employing every weapon from bazookas to dynamite.

Two sections of Fort Simershoff and eight sections of Fort Schiesseck were overrun by the troops who have been hammering at the powerful pillboxes for nearly a week. Both forts are within two miles of Bitche.

It was necessary to capture some of the pillboxes two or three times because the Germans filtered back into them through tunnels.

"It took 675 pounds of dynamite to wreck one pillbox so the Germans couldn't use it again," said Capt. Charles Hibbard of Pineville, Ky., of an engineer battalion.

The main forts of Simershoff and Schiesseck are concrete structures 800 yards long and 300 yards wide surrounded by dozens of pillboxes and subsidiary fortifications, all on commanding heights and all with thick steel doors and almost impenetrable roofs. The Germans tried unsuccessfully to take them from the French in 1940.

Their fall would open the way for forces here to follow the other 7th Army troops into Germany.

In the Wissembourg gap, meanwhile, 79th division men probed beyond Berg along the Rhine in the Palatinate.

Allied Vanguards Within 30 Miles Of Base of Akyab

Kandy, Ceylon, Dec. 19. (AP)—Allied vanguards on the West Burma coast are more than 20 miles southeast of Maungdaw in the advance on the important bases of Akyab, now less than thirty miles away, a southeast Asia communique disclosed tonight.

Meanwhile in North Burma little more than eighty miles of road separated two Chinese forces steadily approaching one another from Burma and Western China.

When these two armies meet, the first land route to China since 1942 will be opened, although supply convoys may not roll from India to China until several months later.

On the West Burma coast, Allied naval craft shelled a group of Japanese two miles ahead of the vanguards driving down toward Akjab.

News Blackout Is Maintained

London, Dec. 19 (CP). — Prime Minister Churchill, telling the House of Commons that "a great battle is proceeding now", today maintained the news blackout on the western front at the request of Gen. Eisenhower.

The prime minister turned down until after the Christmas recess a request for a general war review.

Mr. Churchill's declaration came after one member observed that newspapers were publishing stories from German sources and asked him "to see that the British press had the fullest information from British sources in regard to British prowess".

"The question of a temporary news blackout on the western front," said the prime minister, "is one for the supreme commander to settle on the spot and we, of course, support him."

Mr. Churchill will speak in the House of Commons tomorrow on welfare conditions in India and the Southeast Asia Command, Sir Edward Grigg, Secretary for War, announced today.

BRITISH FORCED TO LEAVE BASTION BY ELAS ATTACK

Quisling Former Premier, Jean Rallis, Escapes During Disorder

Athens, Dec. 19 (AP).—A strong E.L.A.S. attack on the Averoff prison has forced the British to abandon the bastion. Quisling former Premier Jean Rallis, who apparently escaped from the prison during the disorder, was being sought today.

The attack on the prison was made late yesterday. This morning the British launched a counter-thrust to relieve the 115 policemen, 149 wardens and members of the British garrison. A British communique said the garrison of 130 of the Greeks in the prison and "some political prisoners" were successfully withdrawn.

The E.L.A.S. immediately began to fortify the prison

It was estimated that some 205 men and 30 women prisoners out of 475 persons held there, escaped in the disorder. Most of the inmates were awaiting trial on political charges.

The fate of the remainder of the Greek prison attendants and the other prisoners was not immediately known.

All cells were locked when the west wing caught fire from mortar shells.

Hunt Taken Up Immediately.

The hunt for Rallis was taken up immediately by the British and Greek forces and undoubtedly by the E.L.A.S.

Rallis became premier in April, 1943, and resigned by his own decree the day the German commander quit Athens. October 13 the 67-year-old lawyer was imprisoned by the government of Premier Geo. Papandreou. In an interview then Rallis contended he took over the premiership during the German occupation to combat Communism.

British authorities said the recapture of Rallis was considered a "highest level affair". He was reported to have visited his wife's apartment briefly shortly after his escape.

GREEK SITUATION GREATLY IMPROVED SAYS CHURCHILL

Challenges Heckling Opponents To Force New Confidence Vote In His Government

London, Dec. 19 (CP)—Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today that the situation in Greece "has greatly improved," and, in effect, challenged his heckling opponents to force a new vote of confidence in his government if they wanted another showdown on Britain's policy of intervention.

Later, reiterating his defence of Britain's armed intervention in Belgian disturbances last month, he told the House "we were acting under American instructions when we did that."

Kept Supply Lines Open.

The Prime Minister said Gen. Eisenhower had directed that supply lines through Belgium be kept open and added Britain "had been right to intervene in putting down disorder on the lines of communication at the request of the supreme commander.

He said he had no intention of raising the question of British policy in Greece himself until his scheduled war-review after Christmas. He would not hesitate to debate the question, however, if challenged on another confidence vote.

There seemed little disposition on the part of Mr. Churchill's critics to accept his challenge on those terms.

Mr. Churchill's government won a vote of confidence, 281-32 less than a fortnight ago, following an earlier debate on Greek affairs.

GERMAN WARSHIPS SHELTERED AT GDYNIA BOMBED

500 R.A.F. Lancasters Used on Raid While Others Hit Nurnberg and Munster

London, Dec. 19—(CP)—German warships sheltered in the Baltic port of Gdynia north of Danzig were attacked Monday night by some 500 R.A.F. Lancasters while other British heavy bombers struck Nurnberg and Munster.

One enemy plane was destroyed in the night operations which also included attacks on airdromes well behind the German lines. Five British planes were missing.

The night blows followed up an emergency daylight mission by 1,100 Britain-based American planes which bombed the Rhine rail hubs of Cologne, Coblenz and Mainz—centres feeding Field Marshal von Rundstedt's powerful counter-offensive.

The greater part of what remains of the Nazi surface fleet—was the objective of the Lancasters, which carried nearly 2,500 tons of bombs to the Polish harbor. The British planes made a round-trip flight of 1,600 miles.

The Air Ministry said Gdynia became Germany's main naval base when Kiel and Wilhelmshaven became too vulnerable to air attack.

Including 20 Nazi aircraft shot down by ground gunners the German airforce in two days has suffered at least 190 losses in the Western Front area alone, and 101 more of its planes have been damaged or probably destroyed. At least 48 others were belted from the sky by Italy-based planes which attacked oil and rail targets in German Silesia.

The latest figure of the total Allied losses was 85 planes.

Despite ground-hugging clouds, fighter-bombers based on the continent made 600 trips along the battlefront south of Aachen yesterday and gave Nazi armor and supply transports the worst mauling since the German 7th Army was pounded in the Falaise gap in Normandy last summer.

Fighter pilots destroyed or damaged 112 enemy tanks and armored vehicles and knocked out 265 trucks, 60 freight cars and three locomotives and damaged 181 other vehicles. Marauders, Havocs and Invaders bombed 30 fortified buildings and silenced 30 gun positions.

Driving in Broad Flanking Threat to Aachen and Heavy Action Rages on Wide Front

No Information Whether Bold Onslaught Checked

By EDWARD KENNEDY, AP STAFF WRITER

Paris, Dec. 19 — (AP) — American troops and tanks struck back today at the German armor-powered counter-offensive that had cut 20 miles into Belgium, while to the north 1st Army patrols crossed the Roer river barrier into Duren.

American blows to stabilize the front were thrown in as the bold German push probed into Belgium and Luxembourg on a 80-mile front.

Patrols Enter Duren.

The 1st Army maintained pressure on the Cologne front despite the menacing counter-offensive. Just before noon American patrols crossed the formidable Roer River and pushed into Duren, stronghold city 20 miles from Cologne.

Supreme headquarters imposed security silence on the powerful German counter-offensive, but a 1st Army dispatch said one German tank thrust south of Monschau "had some success in a frontal push" with the Germans being contained on some sectors.

Allied and German planes struck powerfully again along the battlelines. Allied fighters and fighter-bombers knocked out 25 tanks in one enemy column and numerous motor vehicles, adding to the toll of 112 armored vehicles destroyed or damaged yesterday.

The Germans were striking from north of Monschau to near Echternach. The deep plunge into Belgium carried a broad flanking threat to Aachen.

Massed Reserves Used.

The German onslaught was powered by massed reserves and supported by a new vengeance weapon of an undisclosed type. Supreme headquarters was silent on details of the battle.

But the Germans at one point were 20 miles or more inside Belgium, and 25 miles south and slightly west of Aachen. And air report told of British Typhoons shooting up Nazi armored vehicles "west of Stavelot", which lies 18 airlines miles and nearly 22 by road from the German border.

The 1st Army line had been wedged back 15 miles or more at this point. The enemy assault gouging in at Stavelot may have been launched from somewhere west of the Reich border itself.

The 1st Army patrols sent into Duren felt out some of the main strongholds on the Cologne plain, the Germans had pulled back to the east bank of the Roer on a broad front north and south of Duren after weeks of long costly battle.

The crucial battle was centred on the 1st Army sector of the fierce German lash-out, and fighting still was heavy and costly.

The news blackout was 24 hours old—hours in which much could have happened. The Germans had swept to Stavelot in a day and a half.

This was the second time that news silence had been imposed over an Allied reverse. The first was at Arnhem.

It thus had a strongly sobering influence while word was awaited on the fight that might prove the hinge to the outcome of the whole western campaign.

Berlin said Hitler himself had planned this recoil drive.

(Berlin dispatches to Bern declared the counter-offensive was designed to retake Aachen and expel Allied forces from Nazi soil.)

Stavelot Near Liege.

Stavelot is but 24 miles from the fortress city of Liege, and 4½ miles southwest of Malmedy. The situation at Malmedy or other towns in line of the drive was shrouded in silence.

The circumstances hardly call for easy optimism, but maps show the Germans might possibly be headed for more trouble than they bargained for.

Their "risk-all" drive, could, by a deep wedge, threaten lateral communications between the Allied northern and central fronts but on the other hand, the Germans are pushing into a pocket of their own making—a hazard so obvious that Field Marshal Karl Rudolf Gerd von Rundstedt or perhaps even Hitler must have weighed the danger long before committing the German forces in such strength.

Game Tried Before.

The Germans have tried this same desperate game before—and both times when Hitler snatched control from his generals. He attempted it once in Africa and again about a year ago in the Ukraine with the famed but futile "iron avalanche" counter-offensive intended to wrest back Kharkov and split the Red army offensive.

Against this latest bid for a bargained peace, Allied airpower again may tip the scales, as it did at Avranches and in the Falaise gap.

The weather was bad today but it was bad yesterday when British and American fighter-bombers gave German armor one of its most ruinous batterings. Revised U. S. 9th Air Force figures claimed 112 German tanks, half-tracks and other vehicles destroyed or damaged yesterday, trimming earlier estimates of 95 smashed and 36 destroyed. The British did not report their total for the day.

Former British Ambassador to Spain Tells of Nazi Influence in Madrid

London, Dec. 19 (CP). — Lord Templewood, who resigned Dec. 17 as British Ambassador to Spain, asserted in the House of Lords today that Spain was "morally occupied" by the Germans during the first part of his five-year stay at Madrid.

Reviewing his Spanish experiences in his maiden speech to the House of Lords, Lord Templewood, who went to Madrid five years ago as Sir Samuel Hoare, instructed to keep Spain neutral if possible, said "although Spain was not militarily occupied in those early years of the war Spain was morally occupied."

"I have many instances in my own experience of this kind of non-military occupation. I had gestapo living in the next house looking over the wall between me and them, watching every movement I made.

Lord Templewood related, "I had the gestapo constantly trying to suborn my domestic staff. I saw the gestapo taking photographs when riot was stirred up for the purpose of breaking the windows of the British Embassy."

"I saw again what was more sinister. From time to time the gestapo would seize some man or woman in Spanish territory and take them over the frontier to their death or torture in Germany or one of the occupied countries."

The former ambassador declared, "I had a conviction this German influence—this terrible German peril—was leaving behind it corruption, bitter hatreds and vendettas and was steadily under-mining all moral standards of life into which it instilled its poison."

He dew a parallel for all Europe from his Spanish experience.

"When the final account is made against the Nazi regime," he declared, "I belive that though the material devastation in Europe is great, posterity will say the worst German crime is this studied destruction of all the moral values of Europe."

Lord Templewood asserted that Europe would drift into an "invertebrate anarchy" unless it could be given "a backbone".

He spoke in support of a motion which stated that "the unifying forces of Europe stand in urgent need of strengthening, and that every European citizen should be insured of certain fundamental rights and liberties, without which European civilization could not continue.

Jap Mainland Again Attacked By Superforts

Washington, Dec. 19 —(AP)— China-based Superfortresses bombed the Japanese mainland today less than 24 hours after their attack on Hankow, China.

The latest attack was carried out in medium force against industrial targets on Kyushu, one of the main islands of the Japanese homeland, the War Department announced. The term "medium force" indicated that up to 40 B-29s participated.

The planes were from Maj.-Gen. Curtis Lemay's 20th Bomber Command.

Some 200 of the big planes pounded Hankow, communications and supply centre in conquered China, and the giant Hatsudoki aircraft plant at Nagoya yesterday. Nagoya is located on Honshu, the principal Japanese home island.

Large fires were observed at this biggest Nipponese aircraft centre and "good" bombing results were recorded for the Hankow smash.

All planes returned from both strikes.

The Saipan-based bombers whittling at Japan's aircraft production reported "heavy explosions and large fires in the target area of the Mitsubishi aircraft plant," a communique said.

Docks and warehouses at Hankow were pounded. The Superforts knocked down five intercepting planes and damaged seven more.

Saipan raiders uncorked a destructive raid on the Nagoya area Dec. 13.

V-WEAPONS CAUSE CASUALTIES

London, Dec. 19 —(CP)— The Germans renewed their V-weapons attack on England Sunday night. The Ministry of Home Security said "damage and casualties were reported."

About 230 feet of the 430 foot wall has been constructed and had mild weather continued, more of the work would have been finished before seasonal operations closed.

Work will be resumed, it is expected, as soon as the weather breaks as the company is anxious to have the wall completed as soon as posible next year.

COUPONS FROM DOCTOR'S GASOLINE BOOK STOLEN

Some sneak thief entertains high ideas of additional gasoline for the holiday season. As a matter of fact today he possesses several gasoline coupons, which are of no lawful value to him, that is, according to the federal gasoline regulations.

While attending patients at the hospital here on Monday Dr. W. C. Morgan left his motor car parked in the customary parking place reserved for visiting physicians. During his absence a thief entered his car and stole three full pages of gasoline coupons from a special ration book issued to doctors. As soon as the loss was discovered Dr. Morgan immediately notified police, who in turn warned gasoline station operators of the loose coupons in circulation.

L. BUSKARD BITTEN BY VICIOUS DOG

Attacked by a dog near his home, 12-year-old Larry Buskard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Buskard, 118 Chatham St., was bitten on the leg yesterday. The dog bit with such viciousness that it tore the lad's trousers and underwear before inflicting a nasty leg wound. Police turned the matter over to County Constable Thos. Thorne, dog pound custodian, for investigation.

PARKED CAR DAMAGED BY HIT-RUN DRIVER

Imagine your surprise to walk out to your automobile and find the fender torn off and the body of the vehicle badly damaged as the result of a hit-and-run crash.

That is exactly the position Ralph Burley, 165 Albert Street, faced after visiting friends on East Moira Street Monday night. Mr. Burley parked his automobile while paying a friendly visit only to find the rear fender had been sheared off, the rear light bracket broken off, gasoline tank damaged and the body generally dented as the result of having been struck by another motor vehicle. No undue report of a collision was heard in the home where Mr. Burley was visiting to indicate an accident. Police were notified and today are looking for a motor vehicle damaged along the right front side.

Looking at Files Airman Finds He Won D.F.C.

Montreal, Dec. 19 —(CP)— Flt.-Lt. Aaron Glustien of New Waterford, N.S., has won the D.F.C., but he didn't know about it until he came across the information in the R.C.A.F. personal records here.

Flt.-Lt. Glustien, back after 65 operational flights over Europe, has been attached to No. 3 Training Command here. He had occasion to look at his files for some incidental information and there he found that he had been awarded the D.F.C. Dec. 1. Apparently notification hadn't caught up with him.

PRESTO MUSIC CLUB

The December meeting of the Presto Music Club was held Monday evening at the home of Dr. and Mrs. A. C. Locke. Instead of the usual musical program the famous Christmas Carol of Charles Dickens was given on the Victor Recording machine, the records being loaned by Mrs. Clinton MacDonald.

Prior to the meeting the Presto Music Club ladies chorus, under the direction of Mr. Alec Gordon, sang a Cantata for women's voices by Paul Bliss for the Bridge Street United Church Young People's Union in the church rooms. Mr. V. P. Hunt, President of the Presto Music Club, read the scriptural passages of which the Cantata was illustrative.

The amount of six dollars was donated by the club members and guests for the Christmas gift fund to the Children's Aid Society, Belleville.

J.V.C. Truaisch, Postmaster, Completes 45 Years Service With Post Office in the City

City and Rural Delivery Introduced Since Mr. Truaisch Joined the Service

A service record dating back before the turn of the present century and one which will see 45 years completed on December 23rd is the claim of Belleville's postmaster, Mr. J. V. C. Truaisch. He is now going on his 15th year as postmaster, being appointed in July, 1930, succeeding Mr. Alfred Gillen.

"A great many changes have occurred in the local post office and in and around Belleville since I first came here," recalled Mr. Truaisch as he paused in the midst of the Christmas postal rush to show this reporter the temporary facilities installed for handling of the holiday mail. "When I first came here in 1899 there was no rural delivery and no city letter carriers. All mail was received by residents through general delivery or through post office boxes."

Native of City.

A native son of this city, the popular local postmaster entered the postal service as a clerk as a young man and has progressed through the various departments to assume the highest post possible at the Belleville office. He was appointed assistant postmaster in 1919 and was elevated to his present position with the retirement of Mr. Gillen.

Bringing out the post office register which dates back through the entire history of the local office, Mr. Truaisch showed Simon McNabb as the first postmaster in Belleville, assuming that position back in 1798. He was followed in turn by Thomas Parker (1817); James Meachem (1882); John Taylor (1895); Thomas Duncan (1897); D. R. Leavens (1900) and Mr. Truaisch's immediate forerunner, Mr. Alfred Gillen, who served from 1911 until 1930. Mr. Gillen still takes much interest in the affairs of the post office.

Carrier System Introduced in 1912.

Casting his eye out over the two long lines of local residents waiting to purchase stamps for their Christmas parcels and letters, Mr. Truaisch recalled the daily rush at the Belleville office prior to the inauguration of the present letter carrier system back in May 1912.

"Everybody in Belleville and immediate district in those days came to the post office to get their mail, to purchase their stamps and to post their letters and parcels," recalled Mr. Truaisch. "The public was served by three general delivery wickets which were closed during the sorting of mail, and by about 1,000 post office boxes."

Rural Mail Opened 35 Years Ago.

The postmaster indicated that rural mail delivery was tried almost for the first time in Canada in Prince Edward County, while rural mail carriers first started to operate out of the Belleville office around 35 years ago. The general delivery wicket now handles mostly transient mail, or immediate Belleville and district areas not served by rural couriers or letter carriers. Stoney Lonesome and the Marshall Road district are two such areas.

The most essential requirements for efficient operation of a post office were claimed by the postmaster to be lots of room in which to arrange for sortation of mail and proper facilities for accommodation of the extra staff required during rush seasons. During the Christmas season space at the Belleville office is at premium, it being necessary to utilize part of the basement to arrange rural and carrier route mail.

POLICE COURT

It must have been the Christmas spirit that prevailed over today's session of city police court held before Magistrate T. Y. Wills when no penalties were imposed.

Displaying a badly discolored optic, Harold Holden, West Huntingdon, appeared before the court to charge George Palmateer, of this city, with assault. After viewing the alleged aggrieved party, Mr. E. E. Follwell, counsel for the defendant asked for an enlargement in order to prepare a defence. The matter was laid over until Jan. 5th. by mutual consent.

Juveniles Appear.

Two juveniles appeared on separate charges, one of removing mail from mail boxes in George Street Apartments and the other of obtaining lodging by fraud. In the former case His Worship administered a severe lecture to the youthful offender and placed him in the custody of his parents.

Charge Enlarged.

Regarding the fraud case, however, Crown Attorney R. C. Dounan suggested the matter be enlarged until Jan. 9th in order that the accused youth might raise the money to pay for his keep. The lad has been returned to his mother in Tyendinaga.

Mr. R. D. Arnott K.C., appeared on Children's Aid Society case heard in camera.

C.N.R. Veterans Hold Annual Draw for Turkeys

Termed as the most successful ever to be staged by the association, the annual turkey draw of the local C.N.R. War Veterans' Association, was a largely attended event at the Quinte hotel on Monday evening. Sparkling entertainment helped round out an enjoyable evening which was climaxed by the draw for the turkeys. Numbers were drawn by Sgt. Marner and by Pte. Ted Broad, the latter recently returning from overseas where he was a recipient of "cigs" sent by the local C.N.R. fund.

Following a one-minute silence in honor of comrades fallen in battle, President Larry Amo expressed his thanks to those attending the function and also expressed his appreciation to the women's committees serving under Mrs. Gardner and Mrs. Pigden, for their financial assistance. During the evening a donation of $6 was received from the Helping Hand Club.

Albert Jones, chairman of the cigarette fund, gave a resume of their activities, indicating a total of 1,636,800 cigarettes had now been sent to Belleville boys overseas. These had cost $5,448, it requiring $45 weekly to give a repeat order every six weeks to all those on the list. The fund has been in operation since August, 1940 with the boys overseas getting almost 100 per cent delivery of smokes.

Miss Madeline Walden's dancing troupe composed of herself, Beverly Aselstine, Helen Caverly, Dorothy Cavert, June Genjia, Iva Reynolds, and Ann Putman with Mrs. Grace Calvert at the piano highlighted the entertainment giving a varied program of tap and toe dancing, interspersed with solo numbers and songs. Jamie Clarke and his bagpipes also contributed towards the evening's enjoyment.

Girls Go On Spending Spree

Los Angeles, Dec. 19 (AP)—"Just put it down to fun" was the comment of Bonnie Barker, 22-year-old waitress, yesterday as she told police of a 60-day spending spree in which she and a girl friend assertedly spent $11,000 belonging to a Detroit businessman.

Last August, Rubin Frumkin of Detroit complained to police here his brief case containing $11,000 was stolen while he was in a downtown cafe.

"My girl friend told me she found the money," Bonnie said, adding that they went to Phoenix and Little Rock, Ark., where "we had ourselves a time." She recounted that they paid for lots of thick steaks, parties, hotel suites and a lot of shopping expeditions.

The waitress was booked on suspicion of grand theft and police continued search for the girl friend whom she identified only as "Sonny."

Ten New Members Formally Admitted To Rotary Club

Bringing its membership to the highest since the inception of the club over twenty years ago, ten new city members were formally admitted and welcomed to the Rotary Club at the weekly luncheon at the Hotel Quinte on Monday.

The new Rotarians and the members who introduced them are Lieut. Colonel Thomas Wills, introduced by Lt. Col. A. B. Gribble; Fred Fisher, by Arthur Bateman; Roy Mackiem, by W. A. Morrison; A. Wonnacott, by Herb Middleton; Thomas Tucker by Walter Douglas; Harry Croll, by Walter Douglas; Rev. Grant Sparling, by O. Richards; Fred Chamberlain, by Jack Marshall; Newton Thompson, by Walter Douglas, and Walter Luscombe by Orland Pinkston.

The new members bring the aggregate membership of the club to eighty-two which is the highest on record of the local service organization.

President Orland Pinkston following the various introductions by the sponsors, formally welcomed the new members into the club and presented them with a Rotary "bible".

Rotarian Mack Robertson, who weathered a preliminary storm of good natured heckling by Rotarians Jimmy Bone and Howard Clarke, the sergeant "without arms" or fine box, finally marshalled his verbal forces and pointed out the obligations of the new additions to the club. He stressed the value of attendance, fellowship and other Rotary essentials.

Rotarian Bone also addressed the new members but confined his remarks to a lighter vein interspersing his talk with typical Bonian humor and stories.

The next meeting of the club is scheduled for Jan. 8 when the new mayor, city council and commissioners will be guests.

Christmas Trees A Fire Hazard

As a result of fire hazards, which exist only during the holiday season and because of carelessness which would not be tolerated at any other time, every year from a few days before Christmas until after the New Year many lives are lost throughout Canada because of a plague of fire which rages up and down the country.

Christmas trees and their decorations are the foremost fire hazards during the holiday season and should be watched most carefully, it is pointed out. When a tree is brought into the house it begins to dry up and becomes a more serious fire hazard every hour. At the end of a week's time it is highly inflammable.

Officials of fire protections associations suggest that fresh trees be brought into the house only a few days before Christmas and that they be taken out as soon afterwards as possible. Cutting the base of the tree on an angle and setting it in a pan of water during the entire period it is in the house will also assist in preventing the tree from drying out and presenting a fire hazard. The tree should also be kept away from stoves, radiators and other sources of heat.

Non-combustible material is suggested for house decorations while candles for Christmas tree decorations are definitely ruled out. Electric tree lights can also be a hazard as a short circuit in worn wiring may be sufficient to start the tree burning.

Benedict-Proctor Plant Suffers Damage From Fire

Trenton, Dec. 19 — Firemen were called to the Benedict-Proctor Manufacturing Company's plant on Ontario St. Monday afternoon when fire broke out in the extreme north end of the building.

Three lines of hose were laid to the fire and the blaze was brought under control in a short time but considerable damage was done by smoke and water.

It is understood this part of the building was used for war work which the plant is doing at the present time.

From reliable authority it was learned the plant would be ready for operation Tuesday morning.

Firemen also answered a call to a chimney fire on Bay St. on Monday afternoon but no damage was caused.

Girl Escapes Injury.

Nine-year-old Caron Bradshaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Bradshaw, King St., miraculously escaped injury on Monday afternoon when it is alleged she darted from behind another car directly into the path of a car driven by Lloyd Mitts of Trenton.

Mitts was driving west at the time on Dundas St. West and was just passing the Gilbert House. The child was struck by the front bumper of the car and dragged about five feet. She was removed to the office of Dr. E. A. McQuade where she was found to suffer no apparent injury.

Store Hours.

Trenton Chamber of Commerce has announced that from December 18th. to Saturday, December 23rd., inclusive, all Trenton stores will be open every evening, also Wednesday afternoon, December 20th. All Trenton stores will be open all day Wednesday, December 27th., following Boxing Day. Loblaws, A & P and Dominion Stores will observe their regular store hours.

Child Swallows Pin.

While playing about her home at 60 Queen St. on Sunday afternoon two-year-old Barbara Ann McCord, daughter of Sergeant and Mrs. Harry McCord of the R.C.A.F., had the misfortune to swallow a pin.

The child was rushed to the office of Dr. J. V. Byrne where X-rays showed the pin to be in the stomach, however, it later moved to the bowel and Barbara Ann is so far none the worse for her experience.

The pin was the ordinary common variety and it is expected an operation might be avoided.

Turkeys Remain Scarce on Market

Although the time for getting the Christmas turkey into the oven is drawing steadily nearer, this choice fowl of the holiday season remains scarce almost to the vanishing point on the local produce market with Tuesday's market being no exception. True there were a few geese and chicken offered but turkeys were non-existent.

The few vendors who offered geese were asking up to 44 cents the pound for Grade A birds while B variety sold at two cents less. Chicken was also available but despite the scarcity of fowl takers were not over-anxious apparently being in search of other type fowl to grace their Christmas tables. Eggs sold at the usual 40 cents for first and down to 30 cents for pullets.

On the outside market the offering of Christmas trees predominated with vendors quoting up to $1.50 for large sized trees and down to 50 cents for smaller types.

VICTIMS IN ATHENS UPRISING

Lying grotesquely where they fell, the victims of police bullets, are the bodies, one of a woman, of two demonstrators that fell in the civil uprising in Athens, Greece. Comrades of the fallen two point to the bodies as a gesture of protest as they face the cameraman.

BRITISH FORCED

Meanwhile R.A.F. headquarters at Kifissia, 12 miles northeast of Athens, was subjected to a still E.L.A.S. siege with noncombattant R.A.F. clerks and base officers thus far successfully holding out against 600 E.L.A.S. troops seeking to halt strafing by rocket-firing Beaufighters and Spitfires.

The British communique said E.L.A.S. troops were being cleared from the main Athens-Piraeus highway and that British troops were consolidating thei positions astride the route.

Elsewhere in Greece, the communique said, "there is nothing to report".

Christmas Greetings Sent From Boys To Kinsmen Club

Christmas greetings from Belleville boys overseas featured this week's mail received by Chairman Buster LaBarr of the Kinsmen "Fag Fund", while cards and letters of appreciation for smokes already received were interspersed with seasonal greeting cards from the various theatres of war.

Scores of such replies have been received at the Kinsmen Fag Fund office during the past few days, all of which saw the respective senders conveying seasonal greetings and at the same time expressing thanks and hopes of the continuance of Canadian cigarettes being sent overseas.

Special greeting cards from Italy and the Western Front were observed in the mails, all of which had been provided the Canadian armed serves for the holiday season.

To Remain a Secret

The name of the new British battleship launched by Princess Elizabeth is likely to be kept secret until there is clear evidence that the enemy has discovered her identity.

This is a more stringent precaution than was taken in the case of the ships of the 'King George V' class, whose names were withheld only until they were in full commission. The reason for this special secrecy is that the new ship is the first of a new class. Whether she is one of the two battleships projected before the war—the 'Temeraire' and the 'Lion'—or something entirely new, born of war-won knowledge, is information that the enemy would like to know.

If the name of the ship were known, the enemy might be able to link up odds and ends of intelligence in his possession with his knowledge of the pre-war projects; thereby he might arrive at some very useful clues about British naval ships and British naval plans for the future.

Home On Leave

Christmas this year will be more than ever a time of rejoicing and happiness for many Canadian homes as they welcome on thirty-day leave members of their families who have fought in the Allied armies of liberation in Italy, in France, and other western European countries. Every one of those gatherings is something that will live forever in the memory of those who come back and of those who welcome them. It is one of the supremely great occasions and soul experiences of their lives.

And Christmas is the ideal time, the period of festivity, the occasion of family gatherings, it is the time when the heart and sentiment are paramount and mankind feels a wider sympathy than at any other time. Canadians do wish these boys and all others who will come very happy days.

To the returned on leave, these days will be days freighted with the richest experiences though they will all be thinking of their comrades "over there" who have not come home on leave. To the boys from Italy, France, Belgium and Holland who have known the hardships of war it must come as a great change, almost unreal, to be in the presence of their loved ones, and yet overpoweringly real when they and their friends meet face to face in greeting. Such an occasion is what every man overseas has yearned for and the dream has come true or will come to about 1,000 or more men, according to report. For the time of their active service on the fronts they have lived in the very strange world of war differing from the run of life in a Canadian city, town, hamlet or in the wide countryside—and now these men are back or coming back into the old scenes, among the dear old friends, parents, wives, boys, girls and sweethearts separated by the long years of service.

These men are an inspiration to the home front. These are the men who have been defeating the Hun—in the game of war in which the Hun has thought himself superior to all mankind. They have come from Canadian homes from all over the land, for instance from Belleville, Trenton, from the villages and settlements of Hastings and Prince Edward—from every part of this great country.

They will have a joyous happy and merry Christmas with the familiar turkey and goose and duck and other fowl, the dressing, the plum pudding and they will rest once again within the familiar walls of home, where so many of them grew up and where every part of the house and everything has a precious memory—home.

Busy Time for Bulldozers

Bulldozers are found in many lands today, servants of the military and civilians, for the jobs they do are such as only such a goliath of a modern machine can perform. In war they are doing service of the greatest importance in building or uprooting defences; they are serving as road builders as well as removers of debris; they excel in the building of an airfield and runway. They have gone into speed and taken on armor and guns; at home it is at work excavating roads from under the snow and digging foundations for houses in a few hours.

Last week in this province they had their work at home in greatest volume. They do the work of numbers of men and in an hour they can do many hours of man work, in a time when labor is at the point of scarcity. They clear our city streets to the ice and hard snow foundations and give them a semblance of runways while at the side of the streets pointed mounds of snow lift themselves up as the machine goes by.

The bulldozer has proved its importance in lightening human labor as the operator sits and makes this mammoth of a machine gulp up earth, rock, rubble and deliver it where it is wanted. It is a rough-looking machine, its movements are heavy, it is something like an elephant or what one might conceive of the pre-historic monsters which used to roam this and other continents before man came on the earth scene. But while nature found the monsters of the jungles of old too heavily loaded with armor plate and too heavy to live and requiring too much food so that perhaps they eventually starved out or became the prey of other animals, the bulldozer is easily satisfied, all he wants is oil for lubrication and fuel oil to burn.

A Hitler Report

Now, according to a German soldier captured on the Western Front, Adolf Hitler was visiting the front in the Roer region about ten days ago. It is long since he was heard on broadcasts of Nazi meetings and some time ago the Hitler mystery for a few days intrigued readers, some thought him dead, others that he had fled Germany to Japan or elsewhere.

What is true is that Hitler has not been reported at meetings of the Nazis and speculation has laterly had it that Hitler has been supplanted by Heinrich Himmler, who has seen his power over Germany grow during the war.

Nothing that Hitler would say would affect the outside world today as the war goes on. The Allied world is rightly confident that it holds in its hands the power that will crush German Nazism and Hitler and the gang he has had about him. What power he might have in Germany is unknown as his course has been discredited by Allied success of the past two years and more.

But the whereabouts and health of Hitler today concern the Allied peoples very little really. His cause is on the way out and the Germany he tried to force upon the world cannot now protect her borders from the United Nations whose forces are on their way through her walls on the road to Berlin, the root of the Nazi cancer and militarism that have caused so great trouble in the world.

Fire-Proofing Christmas Tree

(Owen Sound Sun-Times)

A Christmas tree can be a serious fire hazard, but it needn't be, point out the Washington Merry-Go-Round coolumnists, Pearson and Allen. They state that a tree can be fire-proofed by following these simple directions from Martin Leatherman, crack chemist of the U. S. Department of Agriculture:

1—At a drug store buy a quantity of ammonium sulphate equal to one-fourth the weight of the tree. That is, if the tree weighs 12 pounds, you need 3 pounds of the chemical, which is cheap and readily obtainable.

2—Put the chemical in a glass jar, or some other container with a narrow mouth to lessen evaporation, and add 1½ pints of water for each pound of ammonium sulphate.

3—While the tree is still fresh, saw off a small part of the trunk at the bottom, preferably at an oblique angle or in a V shape, then set tree in the solution in a cool place, away from direct sunlight, and leave it there until the solution is absorbed.

The degree of fire resistance of the tree depends upon the amount of solution absorbed. Also, the increased moisture content acts to keep the tree green and preserve it for a longer time.

JUST FOLKS

WEARY

I long to settle down to rest,
But still the need is great
And boys are dying, east and west,
If but one ship be late.
And should the lesser task of mine
One hour neglected lie,
Some gallant soldier of the line,
For want of things, may die.

'Tis good to read the pleasing news
Of victory drawing near,
But there are battles we may lose
If we stay loitering here.
I couldn't sleep the long night through
If word should come my way
That death had taken boys I knew
When I took time to play.

I'm sick of war and all it means,
But sicker must be they
Who eat from tins a meal of beans
In fox holes, night and day.
I'm weary of it all, 'tis true,
But land and sky and sea,
Those boys who fight for me and you,
How weary they must be!

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS.

20 YEARS AGO

Dec. 19th., 1924.

Mr. R. U. Brown is spending a few days in Toronto.

The schools closed today for the Christmas vacation and will re-open on Jan. 5th.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Lloyd, who have resided in the 8th. concession of Thurlow Township for some years, have come to Belleville to make their home. Mr. Lloyd has been cheesemaker at the Zion Cheese Factory for the past ten years. The departure of the family is much regretted in the community where they lived and prior to leaving a large number of their friends gathered at their home and presented them with numerous gifts. The Rev. R. G. Thompson acted as chairman and an address which was signed by B. Sayers and W. C. Ketcheson, was read by Miss Edna Ketcheson.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Lake of Deseronto are hear to spend Christmas with friends.

Mr. Porte Marshall is home from Toronto University to spend the Christmas vacation.

30 YEARS AGO

Dec. 19th., 1914.

The 15th. Regimental Band will hold a Christmas Tree entertainment and band concert in the Armouries on Christmas afternoon. The program will consist of music and drills especially for the children. Every child will receive a present. The management is endeavoring to get a complete list of the names of children who might not otherwise have a visit from Santa Claus. Citizens are urgently requested to send the names of children not likely to be visited by Santa Claus to Charles Hanna, manager of the band.

Pimlott, Belleville' star hockey player last season, will address the men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. on Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. C. H. Elliott, who has taught a class in Bridge Street Church Sunday School for thirty years, is retiring from the work and the girls of her class recently presented her with an address of appreciation of the great services she has rendered the Sunday School and especially to those who from time to time have been members of her class.

40 YEARS AGO

Dec. 19th., 1904.

The people of St. Michael's parish worshipped in the C. O. F. Hall on Sunday following the destruction of their beautiful church by fire. At the 8 a.m. Mass His Grace Archbishop Gauthier of Kingston was present and after sympathising with the congregation in their loss, he announced that steps would be taken to immediately re-build the church, but not on such elaborate lines as was the church just destroyed. He announced also that the Rt. Rev. Monsignor Farrelly had expressed a desire to resign his charge and that his request had been complied with and he will make his home in the Archbishop's Palace in Kingston. At the eleven o'clock Mass Monsignor Farrelly addressed the congregation amid many signs of heartfelt emotion. He resigned, he said, because he did not feel equal to undertaking the task of re-building the church and that a younger man should undertake the task. He spoke feelingly of the many kindnesses shown him during the many years he lived here as Parish Priest, not only from his own people but from all citizens. This paper sincerely hopes that where ever destiny takes the kindly, cultured and venerable priest, Monsignor Farrelly, his lines may fall in pleasant places.

50 YEARS AGO

Dec. 19th., 1894.

Never before has Front Street had so many beautifully dressed show windows in the stores as at the present. There seems to be a rivalry in this line and the result is indeed pleasing.

Mrs. W. H. Dingle of this city is visiting her parents Col. and Mrs. Cole, in Brockville.

1st Canadian Army's Fight on Schelde Described as Finest Operation Of Western Campaign Says 'Monty'

By DOUGLAS AMARON
(CP War Correspondent)

With the 1st Canadian Army in Holland, Dec. 19 — (CP Cable — The 1st Canadian Army's hard fight to clear up the Schelde estuary in Holland so the port of Antwerp could be opened to seaborne supplies was described today by Field Marshal Montgomery as the finest operation of the Western Front campaign.

The commander of the 21st Army Group, of which the 1st Canadian Army is a party, expressed hope that his praise of the Canadians might be known in the Dominion and said he felt the Canadian Army had not received the credit it deserved for the important fight it waged along either side of the Schelde estuary.

He included in his tribute, made at a ceremony when decorations were presented 70 officers and men of the 2nd division of the 2nd Canadian Corps, praise for British infantry and commando troops who participated in the October-November Schelde fighting.

Speaking after the hour-long investiture in the barracks theatre of a town in the Canadian Army area, Field Marshal Montgomery gave the troops some details of past and present operations as he praised the Canadian army's part in the Western Front campaign. His operational comments, however, were "off the record."

It was the first investiture for these formations and the decorations covered the period from the Normandy landing to the end of the fighting open Antwerp.

Awards received include 10 D. S. Os., 17 Military Crosses, four Distinguished Conduct Medals, one Bar to the Military Cross, 35 Military Medals and three British Empire Medals.

They don't represent all the honors won by these formations because many others who received awards have since become casualties. One sergeant who was to have received the Military Cross was wounded only yesterday.

GREEK SITUATION

Not Deteriorating.

Labor leader Arthur Greenwood asked: "Does not the Prime Minister realise that this is not a question of a vote of censure but a quite legitimate demand for the elucidation of a developing and deteriorating situation?"

"I do not think the situation is deteriorating," said Mr. Churchill. "I think it has greatly improved."

Emanuel Shinwell, Labor, asked Mr. Churchill whether the suggested establishment of a regency in Greece "is being i nany way frustrated or impeded by the attitude of King George II?"

"I said just now that I had no further statement to make at the present on Greece," said the Prime Minister.

"Would it not be wise to advise that all shooting should stop in Greece, and the debate should take place not here but in Athens?" asked William Gallagher, Communist.

"I am afraid you cannot always stop shooting by saying you would like to stop it," replied Mr. Churchill.

Shifted to Belgium.

Opponents of Britain's policy of intervention then shifted their fire to Belgium, attempting to challenge the accuracy of Mr. Churchill's account of precautionary steps taken in November when truck-loads of armed insurgents were moving on Brussels from Mons.

The Prime Minister said he had checked his facts with the "best authorities," and that most of the disarming of the insurgents had been done by Belgian authorities, "but in a few cases Belgian civilians willingly approached British troops to surrender their arms and they were naturally helped to do so."

The Prime Minister said Gen. Eisenhower personally visited Brussels "and gave very decided and clear instructions as to the importance of preserving the tranquility of communications. Therefore—far from withdrawing anything I said in my speech—I may say that mature reflection apart from some small details leads me to reiterate it."

Sir Richard Acland leader of the Commonwealth Party, suggested Mr. Churchill should confirm his sources of information, "which seem to be letting him down all over the world."

The sharp exchange continued as Mr. Churchill gave his account of a demonstration at the Belgian Chamber of Deputies.

"I believe there was also an advance by a large crowd on Parliament House or wherever it was," he began.

Not so Peaceful.

"A peaceful demonstration," shouted Sir Richard.

A peaceful demonstration until you get well mixed up with troops," continued the Prime Minister.

"An unarmed demonstration," broke in Sir Richard.

"You don't know who is armed or who is not in these days when small pistols can be produced from a pocket," said Mr. Churchill. "At any rate there was firing and very regrettable loss of life."

With tempers taut, Aneurin Bevan, Labor, a bitter and frequent critic of Mr. Churchill, scoffed at the Prime Minister's account of the Belgian "coup d'etat" and demanded:

"Will he desist from deceiving the House in this irresponsible manner?"

Insults Considered Compliments.

Amid cries of "withdraw," Mr. Churchill snapped back: "I certainly do not ask Mr. Bevan to withdraw. Insults from him are compliments."

Then he asserted:

"I repeat that supreme American authorities and British authorities on the spot were extremely anxious about the position in Brussels for four or five days surrounding these events"

"I have not tried to deceive the House," he said. "Why should I try to deceive the House? I should certainly not think Mr. Bevan worth trying to deceive."

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

YOU LOOK AS YOU FEEL

Long before we ever heard of anti-gray hair vitamins readers of this column, scores and scores of them, assured me that after a year or more of the Iodin Ration (that is, taking a wee nip of iodine once or twice a week the year around (instructions sent on request if you provide stamped pre-addressed envelope) their gray or graying hair had regained its pristine natural color. I never quite believed it. Indeed I expressed my skepticism from time to time and suggested that one's feelings, spirits or temperament at the moment may have a good deal to do with it. That is, when one is feeling depressed, a bit blue, tired or melancholic (as one with an iodine shortage is so likely to feel) one sees so many gray hairs, wrinkles and other signs of on-coming age in the mirror. On the other hand when one is feeling cheerful and fit one notices with satisfaction how very few gray hairs, wrinkles or other signs of advancing age the mirror reveals.

Even if that accounts for it, I still think most people who are beginning to turn gray need more iodine than their regular food and drinking water provides.

When it comes to the restoration of natural color to gray hair by the anti-gray hair vitamins, I must admit it does happen. I do not mean miraculous rejuvenation, but in numerous instances I have observed considerable restoration of color to gray hair when the individual has continued to supplement his or her regular diet with iodine and the anti-gray hair vitamins for a sufficient length of time.

In any case if the anti-gray hair vitamins retard or check graying of the hair it is through improvement of general nutrition and vitality. Here again one's spirits are concerned—when one feels just fine and dandy instead of feeling tired worn and listless, a few gray hairs or wrinkles scarcely matter.

Come to think of it, a physician learns considerably more than you may think when he takes your pulse. He learns how you feel — how your arteries feel, how your skin feels, how your muscles feel (state of muscle tone)— and so he knows how old you really are. How much hair you have or how much you have lost and the degree of grayness in your hair, if any, and whether your skin shows wrinkles are questions of little significance to the physician.

It should be remembered that hair normally grows at the rate of one-half to three-fourths inch a month. It is therefore vain to expect any striking improvement in the color of the hair in less than six months. In numerous instances it has required a year or more to bring about this effect. The individuals continued taking the anti-gray hair vitamins, iodine, B-complex and D, because they had experienced the improvement of general nutrition and vitality in the first few months and so they found it well worth while to continue the experiment for a sufficient length of time.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Girl Goes Off Handle

Daughter, 18, dieting, as she says, but starving herself, as I believe. She weighed 138 pounds, but in two weeks has gone down to 123 pounds. She hardly eats a thing and goes without lunch entirely. She looks so thin and gets so tired out.

(Mrs. C. P.)

Answer — Reducing at that rate is enough to ruin any one's health, vitality, good looks if any and chance to attain a reasonable degree of happiness in life. If the girl is not utterly and really demented, it may still save her to read "Rules for Reducing"—for copy send twenty-five cents and stamped pre-addressed envelope. First thing she knows she will find she has developed an assortment of sags and slacks and it may be too late to recover natural resiliency, elasticity, vigor, pep, vite or bounce — which is the feature that distinguishes natural youthful beauty from the sad sack type.

Prenatal Sex

Is it possible to determine the sex of the child before birth, either by X-ray examination or by the rate of heartbeat?

(Mrs. G. J.)

Answer— No. Notion that more rapid fetal heart beat indicates female has not been borne out by observations in large maternity hospitals — the rate varies so much from time to time that no reliable prediction of sex is possible.

PEARL OYSTERS

Do edible oysters produce valuable pearls?

Pearls are produced on the shells of various oysters, clams and mollusks and the gems resemble the shells or "mother-of-pearl" on which they are found.

Only "pearl oysters" and certain fresh-water mollusks have sufficient iridescense, translucence and lustre to produce valuable pearls.

We often hear of pearls found on common edible oysters that would have been valuable "if not spoiled by cooking."

Such stories are probably never true. No pearl of any real value is ever found in the North American variety of edible oysters.

It is a fact that cooking would deaden the lustre and destroy the color of valuable pearls, but the common edible oyster never produces pearls of commercial value because of the limited iridescence of its shell.

Nevertheless there is no direct relationship between edibility and pearl bearing.

The worthless pearls found on edible oysters are formed in the same manner as the valuable pearls found on pearl oysters.

The finest pearls in the world are taken from oysters found in the Persian Gulf, chiefly around the Bahrein Islands.

Only a small percentage of pearl oysters actually contain pearls, while dozens of pearls may be produced on one oyster shell.

Fresh-water mollusks, which bear valuable pearls, are edible, although as a general rule they are tough and not of good flavor.

The black pearl occasionally formed on the black-lipped oyster, is regarded as an oddity rather than a gem of commercial value.

Snow Removal Equipment For Sidewalks To Be Bought And Probably Street Plow

City Council Transacts All Remaining Business for Year at Final Session

As soon as priorities can be established and equipment delivered, Belleville will have snow cleaning equipment, which can be used to speedily remove the snow from the city streets and sidewalks according to a recommendation unanimously adopted by the members of the council at their last regular meeting of 1944, on Monday evening. Farewells were said to Mayor Harry Rollins and Alderman R. A. Pringle, who will not be members of the 1945 council. A motion by Ald. Follwell and Ald. Pringle with respect to the Mayor said "That whereas His Worship Mayor Rollins has during his two years as Mayor of the City of Belleville fulfilled his high office in a most competent manner and provided to the citizens of Belleville and the city council, leadership and guidance in all municipal enterprises and activities therefore be it resolved that this council go on record in expressing to him their deep appreciation for having so capably provided such outstanding leadership and extend to him their best wishes for the future and hope that he will find the opportunity to be of further service to this municipality".

Suitably Replied.

Mayor Rollins suitably replied to the motion thanking the members of the council, the city officials and employees for the courteous treatment that had been accorded him in his term as Mayor. "I shall certainly miss this bunch of good fellows but I shall also be watching their progress and will find time to come down and visit with them once in awhile", said the Mayor. His Worship on behalf of himself and his wife wished for all citizens health and happiness in the years ahead and a very joyous Christmas. Ald. Hyde expressed the appreciation of the services of Ald. Pringle for the past five years to the Corporation and "Bob" replied in a very gracious manner. The Alderman stated, that he believed the 1944 council had started and completed more projects than any council in a great many years and he enumerated the sewage disposal plant, the snow removal question, the Riverside Drive, the Beaches as some of the projects not forgetting the Gas question. "I hope the council will pursue the gas question and keep after the government to appoint a commission, who will give a concise and complete report and that the council will act immediately on the recommendations", said Ald. Pringle. He gave a review of industrial expansion under his chairmanship and the prospects for the future, which for the present must remain on the secret list. He thanked the council for their many courtesies and the city officials for their kindness to him through his term of office.

Adopt Recommendation.

Respecting the future of snow removal in the city the council adopted a recommendation "that 1st: Not more than three tractors and plows complete be purchased; 2nd: That Ald. (Mayor-elect) Follwell, Ald. Clapp and Ald. Armstrong be added to the committee; 3rd: That the committee have the power to purchase the equipment at as early a date as possible; and 4th: That the committee have the authority to recommend new snow cleaning equipment for the streets. Ald. Trudeau opened the discussion on the question stating that the council would be well advised to buy but two tractors and two plows at the present time. "It will be two months before delivery", said Ald. Trudeau and "I think the extra $1,500 that we will spend on the third tractor and plow could be used to purchase a bulldozer. I am sure that new tractors will be very much improved over the ones now on the market and we can get the improved one if we need it later on".

Ald. Clapp: "I am in agreement with Ald. Trudeau. We have approximately 55 miles of streets which will give 110 miles of walks. One plow can do eight miles an hour and in seven hours the two plows can clean every sidewalk in this city and I think that is a reasonable time to have the streets cleaned.

Need Equipment Badly.

Ald. Follwell: "There is a great deal of merit in what the two Aldermen have said but we need equipment and we need it very badly. The lack of equipment has tied us up on more than one occasion and I think that three plows and tractors are not too much".

Ald. Woodley: "I agree with Aldermen Clapp and Trudeau and think two plows are enough at the present time".

Ald. Armstrong: "We must purchase some equipment and I think if plows for streets are to be considered that two plows should be purchased so that both hills be given equal courtesy."

Mayor Rollins: "I think the third tractor if purchased could be used to clean out the intersections and other works while the other two tractors were working on the sidewalks".

Ald. Clarke "Could not some of the snow plowing equipment used at the airports be purchased?"

Ald. Allin: "We were told in Montreal by the War Assets Corporation that snow cleaning equipment would not be available for purchase for at least two years because federal and provincial governments and the larger cities would have priority over the smaller municipalities in the regards to purchasing the equipment". This closed the debate and the recommendation was passed unanimously with the committee having almost full power to act.

Should Assist Plows.

In regard to the snow cleaning question Ald. Harvey asked if it would not be possible to have parallel parking on Front Street during the winter when all available space is needed to move the traffic and Mayor Rollins informed the Alderman that the by-law would have to be given the plows and that parking. It was generally agreed among the members that every facility should be given the plows ad that parking of cars along where the plows are working should be materially restricted. "The council wants a good job done but there must be hearty co-operation by the motorists", said one member.

Raymond Arnott was the only tender for the market lease for the coming year and his tender of $2,200 was accepted and an agreement was drawn and signed for this amount. The Mayor was authorised to proclaim Boxing Day, December 26, as a holiday excepting in plants where war work is going on and all the city offices will be closed until Thursday morning as Wednesday is a half holiday. The cheques for the employees will be paid before Christmas and any bills occurring after the last meeting will be paid on the certificate of the Comptroller. The Chairman of Public Works, Mayor-elect Follwell, Aldermen Trudeau, McDougall, Butler, Clapp, and Chamberlain were appointed as a committee to consider the advisability of filling the marsh near Zwick's Island and that the committee has permission to present proposition to the Board of Health and report to 1945 council.

Ordered to Obtain Options.

The City Solicitor was authorized to obtain six months' option on deeds where possible on all properties required for the Riverside Drive the same to be presented to council not later than the first committee meeting in March of 1945. The council will purchase from the War Assets Corporation all A.R.P. equipment discounting certain equipment returned for a price of $1,735. A letter was received from the Department of Municipal Affairs stating that no request had been made by the Public Utilities Commission for an independent Commission to investigate the gas plant in this city. The letter was referred to the Utilities Commission suggesting that an early request in this matter be made. There will be no garbage collections made on Christmas nor New Year's Day and a notice will be put in the local paper to that effect.

Board to be Answered.

On the question of snow removal from around the city schools, a letter was received from the Board of Education, which stated that the welfare of the children was being considered before snow removal. Ald. Woodley agreed that the children should be cared for but that also the citizens must be considered. "They have to tramp through the snow around the schools and then go home and shovel their own snow or action is taken", said the Alderman. "Octavia Street was not shovelled last year and it has not been shovelled so far this year". Ald. Harvey suggested that the caretaker had enough to do without shovelling snow. Ald. Woodley said "I am not asking the caretaker to do it but the Board can do the same as the city does hire someone to shovel the snow".

Ald. Chamberlain "The Board of Education is simply "passing the buck". They should be in the same provision as the corporation and the city has to shovel the snow".

Mayor Rollins: "I request that a letter be sent regretting the tone of the letter received and asking that the Board comply with the city by-law with regards to snow cleaning". This suggestion was adopted by the council.

No Action Taken.

The request for rebates on oiling was tabled and the council voted that no action be taken. Ald. Wilbur brought the question up again under inquiries and Mayor Rollins explained that a man purchased a corner lot to have a good view and there was no reason why he should not pay for both streets. "If you paint a house you have to paint the front as well as the sides", said His Worship.

The U.A.W. (C.I.O.) Local 426 requested the council to protest to the federal government the curtailment of vital Mosquito Aircraft production which involves the lay-off of some 150 Belleville employees at the Reliance Industries. Mayor-elect Follwell was asked to take this matter up and dictate a letter to the proper authorities but some members thought that possiby the federal government were ahead on this type of production and that the employees could be used in other fields. There were many inquiries at the last meeting and Ald. Clapp started the ball rolling when he inquired about the convalescent hospital that was proposed in this city. Mayor Rollins stated a meeting was being held in the city this Tuesday night with the Department of Health authorities from Toronto and he appointed Aldermen Follwell, Woodley, Butler and the Comptroller to attend and represent the city at the meeting. His Worship stated that the whole outline of the plan would be submitted at the meeting. Ald. Hyde wanted to know where all the A.R.P. equipment was at the present time and Ald. Woodley answered it was under the supervision of the Fire Chief.

Rinks Opened by Christmas.

Ald. Harvey asked about the progress of the skating rinks and Ald. Clapp stated if the weather continued there would be skating for the children on the city rinks on Christmas Day. Ald. Clarke asked what progress had been made on arrangements to send the fire equipment outside the city and Ald. Woodley stated he was sorry that he could not report at the meeting. "This is a serious question", said Ald. Clark. Action was promised in the matter. Ald. Wilbur inquired of the Chairman of Public Works if the snow when being removed could not be plowed to the centre of the street instead of to the sides. Ald. Armstrong stated that would delay traffic more than the way it is now being done. Ald. Clapp did not agree. Ald. Pringle wanted to know where the picture of the S.A. Veterans had gone and hoped that the picture would be hung in its proper place after the new council took office. Aldermen Chamberlain and Harvey will have charge of this matter.

Matter Referred Back.

Under general business the request for a caution light near the Ann Street School was referred to the incoming council and Ald. Clapp was informed that the Public Utilities are willing to place lights on the skating rinks and also a light on Bridge Street East near McDonald Avenue. A number of by-laws were passed conveying property to purchasers from the city. The agreement for snow plowing between Morley E. Smith and the Corporation was ratified and the by-law to amend the Dance by-law which will permit opening after midnight before holidays was passed. The by-law approved by the property owners with respect to the borrowing of up to $50,000 for the purchase of property for the Riverside Drive was given its third reading. It will now be sent to the Department of Municipal Affairs for ratification. The time was extended one hour for the meeting and council adjourned shortly before the midnight hour.

The sympathy of the Council was expressed in the recent deaths of Ex-Aldermen G. H. French and Robert Goudy.

The inaugural meeting of the 1945 council will be held on Tuesday morning, January 2.

Canadians on Christmas-Shopping Spree Have Money-Filled Pockets But Find Merchandise Supply Limited

(By The Canadian Press)

Canadians from coast to coast are on one of the greatest Christmas sprees in history in the face of a paradoxical situation which finds them with more money to spend and retail stores with a more limited range of articles to sell.

A Dominion-wide survey by The Canadian Press shows that buying everywhere is on a much larger scale than in 1943, the increases ranging from 15 per cent in Quebec to as high as 30 per cent in Edmonton.

Everywhere the demand exceeds the supply. There are shortages of such articles as men's shirts, women's stockings, silverware, leather goods, cuddly dolls and metal toys and novelties and in some places of watches and chocolates.

The Christmas shopping rush is one of the most sustained on record. Many far-sighted Christmas givers starting buying their gifts in the summer months.

With more money available than usual, there is a heavy demand for luxury goods for domestic gifts. In demand are higher-priced lines of lingerie and toilet articles, jewelry including watches, good books, glassware, china and good toys, which are generally scarce.

Toys generally are of better quality than in 1943 but they are still inferior by pre-war standards.

The Picture by Provinces.

Briefly, the picture across the country is as follows:

British Columbia — Shopping began early in October and much of it now is finished except for the usual late rush for toys and similar gifts. Victoria department stores report a 15 per cent increase over last year.

Alberta — In Edmonton some firms report buying as much as 30 per cent more than in 1943. There is a heavy demand for used pianos and radios.

Saskatchewan—Buying has been going on in Regina for months and Harold Wright, Retail Merchants Association secretary, says there is a 20 to 25 per cent increase over last year. Luxury and ordinary goods are selling fast.

Manitoba—In Winnipeg the buying for overseas parcels was the largest since the war started. Children's clothing and winter sports equipment, especially skates, are in short supply.

Quebec — In Montreal the rush began two weeks earlier than usual and the emphasis on luxury buying with cheaper goods apparently lacking appeal. In Quebec sales are up 15 per cent with shortages showing in such lines as furniture, pipes and cigars.

Maritimes — Buying is earlier and heavier than usual with the emphasis on better quality goods. Some lines, such as winter goods, already are sold out.

Ontario — More shoppers with more money and early buying have all been general in Ontario. The shopping rush was slowed up in some centres by last Tuesday's storm but has resumed again.

Clothing Shortages.

In Toronto the demand exceeds the supply and there are shortages of men's shirts and women's stockings. Business is about 20 per cent ahead of last year. London reports the earliest and heaviest Christmas buying splurge on record. There were two rush periods, one for overseas buying in late September and the domestic rush which started in mid-November. Sales for overseas gifts were 15 per cent ahead of last year.

In Windsor customers "are buying everything they can lay their hands on," one merchant said. Shortages, lineups and other shopping difficulties in Detroit have brought many Americans to Windsor to do their shopping. Hamilton is looking for an all-time sales record in a buying spree which began November 18 and has continued almost unabated ever since.

The early rush in Kitchener and Waterloo was so concentrated that many shelves were bare of merchandise early in December. There is little worry about prices. Buyers will take anything that is offered, regardless of cost. Money is plentiful in Guelph and the buying pace has been so sustained that some stores may be out of stock this week. In Stratford the rush for gifts has been on for two months.

Men Overseas Get Parcels.

The early buying for overseas gifts in Brantford has already brought word from men in the services that their Christmas parcels have been received. Domestic buying has been brisk but all except luxuries are generally in short supply. In Galt the rush began a week earlier than usual and early in December some merchants reported that they had sold 80 per cent of their Christmas merchandise. While toys are in demand, Galt shoppers are shunning military toys. The lively demand in St. Thomas is handicapped by the scarcity of much of the better class of goods. The supply situation in Sarnia has led some merchants to close Wednesday afternoons as usual in December. In most years they remain open that month to accommodate shoppers.

In Peterborough the rush of buying for overseas gifts reduced the supply for domestic purposes but shopper are cheerfully accepting substitutes. Brockville shoppers are buying more expensive articles than usual and cheaper goods are not moving fast. The shopping rush began so early in Cornwall that merchants do not anticipate any late splurge. Larger population and increased buying power is believed to have contributed to Ottawa's shopping rush, which began as much as a month and a half earlier than usual. The gift supply is better than in other years.

In Sault Ste. Marie, there is a demand for scarce articles.

Jewelry is popular and price seems to be no object with most shoppers. Shelves in North Bay stores are being stripped to a minimum in a shopping rush which began in November, much earlier than usual. Late comers are taking whatever they can get.

SLAIN WOMAN LED "DOUBLE LIFE"

London, Dec. 19.—(CP—Reuters)—Scotland Yard today was trying to piece together the "double life" of Evelyn Hatton, 38, attractive brunette found strangled Saturday in her Mayfair flat. Blackmail and robbery have been suggested as motives for the crime.

6,000 Ducks Dive To Death in Sask.

Regina, Saskatchewan, Dec. 19—Mistaking flames from a burning straw pile reflected on a hoar-frost-covered stubble field for water, 6,000 ducks dived to their deaths at Clair, Sask.

During a terrific fog Don Knox, a farmer, set fire to a straw stack, and the next morning he found hundreds of dead and dying ducks, some with smashed bodies, some with broken legs and wings. Hundreds of others were able to fly away when lifted from the heavily frosted stubble.

Never before had the district experienced such a mass migration so late in the year.

U. S. AIR OFFICIALS SEEK MISSING PLANE

American Army Air Force officials are seeking to locate a U.S. army aeroplane that is believed to have been forced down somewhere between Belleville and Port Hope. The plane was from Louisville, Maine, an A. S. Army Air Force training centre.

U.S. Army officials from Louisville yesterday contacted officials of the Ontario Provincial Police here seeking information regarding the missing plane, as the last position radioed from the aeroplane indicated the crew was about to make a forced landing on the north side of Lake Ontario.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Army and Navy Vets, Unit 48, held its regular meeting on December 14. Several new candidates were initiated and given a hearty welcome. Mayor Rollins drew the winning ticket, No. 228, on the quilt, and it was won by Mr. W. Quance, 58 Cannifton Rd. A splendid sum was realized. Mayor Rollins gave a very interesting talk, after which a social hour was spent playing euchre.

Mrs. A. G. Fox, 96 West Bridge Street, was hostess to a cup and saucer shower on Friday evening in honor of Miss June Lowery, bride-elect of the month. A pink and white umbrella laden with prettily wrapped gifts, hung from the archway, along with pink, white and silver bells. Mrs. Fox served delicious refreshments.

Just coming into the picture for popular acceptance is the color scheme of black and brown. This winter it has appeared in clothes in the upper brackets, and everyone likes it. Tobacco-brown moire with jet buttons, worn with a Persian lamb cape lined with the moire, is one striking example of this color alliance.

GOLDEN WEDDING DAY IS OBSERVED

Prof. Hunt Speaks On Church Music, Christmas Hymns

The regular monthly meeting of the W.C.T.U. was held at the home of Mrs. E. N. Baker, 28 Queen St., on Friday.

The President, Mrs. Denton, presided and opened the meeting.

Mrs. Moore was then called upon and in her gracious manner made the presentation of a provincial life membership certificate to one of the members. Another local member of the W.C.T.U. was made a life member of the Dominion organization.

Mrs. Denton then received the new members in the usual manner. There were seven new members in all, three being present.

Mrs. Wood had charge of the devotional and a gave an inspiring Christmas message, the story of our Saviour's birth and the promise it holds for us. Mrs. Wood said all man-made treaties can be destroyed overnight and only the love of God in our hearts can bring lasting peace and the joy of singing all over the world "Peace on Earth—Good Will to Men".

Mrs. Farnsworth introduced the guest speaker, Professor Hunt, who gave a most interesting talk on music. He spoke of the quality of every country's songs, but classed rhythm as the most important of all; the Nativity, the greatest of all and chief of all festival hymns. One of the oldest Christmas carols was read and the hymn, "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear", was sung.

Mrs. Houston sang a lullaby song, also an Austrian hymn. In conclusion Mrs. Houston and Miss Brown sang "Silent Night".

Mrs. H. K. Denyes was present, and gave some of her personal experiences in the Temperance work.

The President thanked Mrs. Baker for opening her home for the meeting, also for all who had participated in the program.

Refreshments were served, and the Christmas decorations were an added attraction which made the Christmas Spirit predominant.

Red Cross Report for Nov.

The regular monthly meeting of the executive of the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society was held on Dec. 14 with the vice president, Mrs. Mikel, in the chair in the absence of the president, Mr. M. P. Duff.

The treasurer Mr. Zeran, reported for November: Receipts $752.76; Bills $43.89.

Mrs. A. H. Ketcheson read the regulations governing Red Cross awards which are made at the Ontario Division annual meeting and of which there are three kinds. The committee who is looking into this matter was increased in order to get more local information.

Concerning accommodation for war brides it was reported that the Y.W.C.A. will procure accommodation for them when necessary.

Mrs. Mikel reported some good results from the appeals made for workers but more are needed.

Miss Lynch reported that a local cable and letter had been accepted for delivery in Greece.

A nominating committee was appointed for the 1945 officers.

War Work Committee.

Mrs. Mikel reported for the Women's War Work Committee as follows:

10 cartons were shipped to the Ontario Division of the Canadian Red Cross during November, totalling 748 articles. There were 30 leather and Grenfell cloth jerkins for sailors, 35 quilts and 32 pieces of civilian clothing. The latter are wonderfuly made and show skill and taste in the sewing and decoration. We have again through the News Bulletin, the official magazine of the Ontario Division, received "high praise for the garments received at the Richmond Street warehouse. They are exceptionally well made and packed." We are greatly indebted to the many groups for their faithful work and attendance at their weekly meetings, and to others who through their groups take the sewing home to do. Some of the groups in the city to whom we are indebted are St. Thomas W.A., St. Andrew's R.C.U., Baptist Church W.A., Bridge Ct. Church R.C.U., Catholic Women's League R.C.U., Christ Church Senior W.A., Contact Club of Christ Church, Kiwanis Ladies R.C.U., Bethel Hall R.C.U., O.S.D. Red Cross Workers. In the surrounding district are Melrose W.I., Foxboro War Workers, Stone Church, Carmel W. I., Holloway War Workers, Chatterton W.I., Aikens W.I., Bethany, 2nd. Line Thurlow's Neighbors' Aid, Cannifton R.C., Avondale Neighbors' Aid, Plainfield W.I., Roslin R.C.U., Phillipston and Zion, Wallbridge W.I., Moult War Workers, Whaley Church Ladies' Aid, Neighbors' Aid, Trent Road, Gilead United Church R.C.U., Pine Grove and Marsh Hill Unit, Centenary R.C.U., Deloro R.C.U., etc.

The work of these different groups is responsible for the good name that the Belleville Branch has attained for the splendid type of work that goes to headquarters. However the report of the year's work in Ontario is not encouraging. Mrs. Fraser, Chairman of the Ontario Division reports that the "women in Ontario must sew something like 186,000 garments for civilian relief; knit about 130,000 items as comforts for men in the services. These are the approximate figures by which Ontario is short in the 1944 quotas. These must be completed and shipped within the next two months." This means we have to do our share to complete the demands for clothing for the civilian population of Britain's area as laid waste by the enemy, and also the clothing and equipment for men and women in the armed forces. Let us all do our share in this necessary work.

Lillian E. Mikel, Chairman,
Women's War Work Committee,
Belleville Branch.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Trim Waistlines

Permitting the mid section to thicken, the svelte waistline to follow a policy of expansion, is to impair the health. Don't lift your eyebrows! Any physician will tell you that teacher isn't fooling. When the muscles of the abdomen are weak and relaxed, the organs within the abdomen may drop out of their normal positions. The sagging abdomen denotes a case of visceroptosis. If the stomach has also dropped, it is called gastroptosis. Now what do you think of that, Mrs. Plumpie?

If a woman eats wisely and exercises properly, the abdomen will not protrude. To keep muscles strong and vigorous, they should be used. When a broken arm is kept in a cast, the muscles lose strength, they wither. When the fibers are put back to use, resiliency and vitality are restored.

Adipose tissues, permitted to collect on the torso, weaken the whole structure; they do not appear when the musculature is in first calss condition. The woman who goes in for outdoor exercises walking, skating, rowing, golfing or tennis seldom loses youthful outlines. One can keep in form by spending ten minutes a day in bending and torso-twisting.

It seems too bad to let a lovely figure go to seed because one hasn't the inclination or energy to keep it strong and healthy.

When the internal organs have dropped out of place, digestive processes do not go on in the normal manner. Constipation often results. The medical profession claims that the nervous system may suffer to a certain extent; that individuals with bay windows are often high strung, irritable and jittery.

Corrective measures are found in arranging a diet low in fats, sweets and starches, and in taking regular daily exercises which must be fairly strenuous. A long walk recommended, but few of us have time for that these days; too, it is the last thing in the world that the heavyweight enjoys, especially if her feet are not up to standard. Exercise that will not only tighten abdominal fibers, but also will have a toning effect upon the inner organs, in this:

Lie flat on your back in bed, hands under the buttocks for support. Lift the legs slowly until you are fairly standing on the back of your neck; lower them slowly.

Sometimes the protruding abdomen appears on a person who is underweight. Then it is not caused by an accumulation of adipose cushions, but it is due to poor posture, loss of muscle tone or some intestinal disturbance. Home treatment in these cases is not advisable. The doctor should be consulted. He will probably suggest a general health-building regime, lay down diet rules, insist upon enough exercise to create appetite and bring restful sleep.

The Marry Go Round

IT'S THE BOY IN HIM

Men have laughed at woman's "funny ways", meaning her little idiosyncrasies, ever since Eve first stuck a daisy in her hair and used a palm leaf for a parasol to keep the freckles off her nose.

But most of a woman's little "peculiarities" are not peculiar at all. They are characteristic of her whole sex. Whereas, every man appears to have his own pet complex, his personalized propensity.

What is your husband's pet habit, for instance? What does he do automatically? Does he collect loud and fancy neckties, or does he hoard old bottle-tops and corks "just in case"?

Will he cling to an old mothfall to pieces? Or does he keep a working in the garden) until they eaten hat or a pair of trousers (for closet full of old shoes, fishing-tackle and other ancient relics, like Fibber McGee's?

Is he a taxicab-hater, and would he rather buy you a brand new car than spend fifty cents for a cab when it's pouring down rain? Or does he imagine he's a fancy cook and insist on hanging 'round the kitchen and mixing curries and other queer dishes for your parties?

Nearly all women have the same little odd proclivities. They all pinch the tooth-paste from the middle; do strange things to their hair, paint their finger-nails startling colors and wear ridiculous hats and head-dresses. They have done these things for generations.

But men's idiosyncrasies come in as many varieties as pickles or petunias. They are almost as individual and personal as fingerprints.

Many of the foibles and eccentricities of famous men are familiar to us. Reading dime novels for diversion, giving away dimes, carrying peanuts or an apple in the pocket and keeping toy spaniels have been among them. And one pretty-colored stones for pastime. well-known playwright collects When the collection gets too large, his wife scatters the stones on the gravel driveway. She must get several loads of gravel a year, that way.

Some men love to play tunes with their fingers on the arm of the chair. Never marry a tune-player or you will have to wear rubber plugs in your ears to save your nerves. Other men enjoy snooping through the ice-box and nibbling cold left-overs. Any old thing that he refused to eat at the table tastes good to an ice-box snooper after 12 P.M.

Still other men have a mania for reading the newspaper aloud to anybody who will listen. They will read you everything in it, from the front-page scare-heads to the last advertisement. Just fascinated by the sound of their own voices! I sometimes think that the pyramids are just the result of some Pharoah's propensity for piling up stones on his vacation from the King business. Oh well, men will be boys!

NURSING BY V.O.N. IN HOMES GROWS MISS GORDON SAYS

442 Home Visits Made by Nurses and Seven Clinics Attended

The last meeting for the year of the Victorian Order of Nurses was held in the Chamber of Commerce on Monday evening with the President, Mrs. F. Frederickson in the chair. A decrease in the attendance at this particular meeting was noted. Mr. H. B. Fetterly gave the secretary report.

In the nurses' report submitted by Miss Ethel Gordon, the fact was stressed that there is an increase in the staff of the Victorian Order, in which case the nurses will be able to do a better service for the citizens of Belleville. The nurses desire to give nursing care where it is needed and no one need fear that the nurses are too busy. "During the month of November", said Miss Gordon, "the nurses made 442 home visits, and attended seven clinics. The immunization clinics were quite well attended. Babies and young children numbering 400 attended the clinics during the year; 128 received the full course of diphtheria toxoid, and 116 the course of whooping cough inoculations".

Miss Gordon commended the work of Mrs. Smith, recent addition to the V.O.N. staff. According to a statistical sheet prepared in April, bedside nursing showed a steady increase over a period of years. The big increase of visits in 1943 which gave a peak total over all other years was the obstetrical emergency in the Autumn of 1943. While the nursing calls are away up, the actual total visits for 1944 will be under that of 1943 and considerably above that of 1942. The V.O.N. actual nursing care in the homes has increased considerably".

"Of the 331 births in Belleville to October 31st this year, 148 received nursing supervision from the Victorian Order in the home, and 80 others showed up at the baby conference", reported Miss Gordon. "It is an interesting statistical point too", she said, "that none of the eight infant deaths in that period was among the 198 supervised".

Servicemen All Good Samaritans Says Mr. Federick

The meeting of Holloway Street Y.P.U. was held on Monday evening. A rather lengthy business period was presided over by Norman Frederick, following which the Christian Fellowship group took charge.

The worship service centred around the Christmas theme and was opened with the playing of quiet music by Ana English. Dorothy Mitts led in prayer. The Scripture was read by Ruth Ireland and a poem was read by Winnifred Holden about the lament of the Inn Keeper. The worship service was concluded with a Christmas legend by Maude Burke.

Iva Horton and Ana English then played a very lovely piano duet "The Fairy Queen".

Mr. C. L. Frederick, principal of Queen Mary School, who was intro-

Guest speaker of the evening was duced by Ray Gunsolus. Mr. Frederick based his remarks on the story of the Good Samaritan which ends with the Master's Words: "Go thou and do likewise".

"The paralysis of the world today has its counterpart in our selfishness", stated the speaker "Our boys in the services are, each and every-was a 'Good Samaritan', protecting and aiding the bleeding and wounded masses in Europe', said Mr. Frederick, relating some of tragedies inflicted on the people under the German yoke.

Mr. Frederick, in closing this interesting message, urged the Young People to look on every person with the eye of a brother, regardless of his color, race, or creed, that "in ministering to the needs of those who require our help we may carry out Jesus' command to 'Love The Lord, Thy God—', and 'Thy Neighbor as Thyself'."

Appreciation to Mr. Frederick for his challenging address was voiced by Dorothy Mitts.

AVONDALE NEIGHBORS' AID

The Christmas Party meeting of the above group was held at the home of Mrs. Arthur Clare, Trent Road, with 21 members present. In the absence of the President, Mrs. H. Elvidge, who was snowbound in Toronto, the chair was taken by the Vice President, Mrs. L. Reid. The meeting opened with the carol "Angels from the Realms of Glory", followed by a prayer. Reports and letters were read. It was decided to send $25 to the Prisoners of War Fund; $25 to the Red Cross, and $10 to the Salvation Army Red Shield. The President then gave a reading on Christmas, interspersed with Bible readings by Mrs. W. Rowsome, Mrs. F. Denyes and Mrs. S. Lough. A poem entitled "Are You?" was also read. The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

A draw on a cup and saucer was held by the November War Committee, the winner being Mrs. Doris Daniels. The meeting was then turned over to the program convener, Mrs. Button and her committee: Mrs. Mitchell in charge of games; Mrs. Morton in charge of gifts and prizes. The ladies were put into the Christmas Spirit by singing carols followed by "Jingle Bells", played by the Hair Comb Band. Several amusing games were played, the highlight being the "Pyjama Clowns", the winning clown being Mrs. W. Rowsome.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and the committee. Mrs. Morton conducted the exchange of gifts. Mrs. Button who was prevented from holding this meeting by snow blocked roads, thanked Mrs. Clare for taking over. Mrs. F. Denyes thanked the committee for a very enjoyable afternoon.

FASHION FLASHES

GRAY CLOUDS continue to dot the sartorial horizon. Made for after five wear is a beautiful dress of dull gray silk jersey, its rippled peplum edged with matching gray ostrich. Beautiful with sky blue, pink, tangerine or brown accessories.

Stripes coming up in the news for Spring. A smart profile beret made on flat lines is of striped pink and black satin, draped to lie flat in wheel folds radiating from a centre disc of black satin, finished with a black satin bow.

Do you want an evening wrap that is smart but not too dressed up or decorative? Then the raglan topper or slinky wrap-around of black satin is your dish. It looks delightful with a simple black crepe sheath, ideal for theatre wear, these times.

Many a woman who goes in for tailored clothes out of doors, likes a rich or very decorative negligee for house wear. Black velvet trousers topped by a flaring tunic of gold-dotted white jacquard makes a stunning fireside ensemble.

RAWDON

MAIL DELIVERED BY TEAM, SLEIGH AND BY CHILDREN

Rawdon — On Monday afternoon, Dec. 11th the second big snowstorm for this district arrived and by midnight traffic on the Concession roads blocked. "Old timers" say it was the heaviest fall of snow in years with anywhere from a foot to fifteen inches on the level and where it drifted the roads were piled five feet high. Mail deliveries and all transportation was at a standstill Tuesday and late Wednesday several of the Concession roads were shovelled out. The farmers gathered in groups and with the aid of homemade snowploughs, old Dobbin and his mate and a retinue of snow shovels the easiest roads were cleared.

The mail was delivered via team and sleighs and school children but the fourth concession of Rawdon west of Highway No. 14 was isolated with no mail from Monday till Thursday. The first half mile in from the Highway is still piled full of drifts between the hills and it will take hours of ploughs and shovelling before it is passable for cars. The County snow plough cleared the pump street road on Wednesday and the Peterborough bus was able to make its daily trips.

Mr. Blake Sharp and a gang of men were busy opening the County road from Mount Pleasant to Wellman's and along the sixth concession.

Late Wednesday afternoon a group of farmers opened the third concession road, and if there are no more storms it is hoped to have all roads cleared by Christmas and to see again the Daily Mail delivery.

Supports Claim To German Lands E. of Oder, Neisse

Moscow, Dec. 19 —(AP)— Pravda printed today an article by Dr. Stefan Yendriowski, representative of the Lublin Polish Committee of National Liberation, supporting claims to the German lands east of the Oder and lower Neisse.

(The Oder flows within 30 miles of Berlin northeast of the German capital. The Neisse joins the Oder southeast of Berlin).

Yendriowski said the governments of France, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and Soviet Russia and Prime Minister Churchill of Britain support these claims but "some persons and even groups of the United States have not grasped the complex problem of our western frontiers and for this reason do not see eye to eye to our demands."

Declaring Poland's right to "ancient Polish territories which have always been populated by Polish tribes," he laid claim to these lands:

1. Both upper and lower Silesia (which would include Breslau).
2. "Border territories to the east of the Oder."
3. Western Pomerania to the Oder.
4. The Vistula Estuary (Danzig).

Plan To Administer O.A.C. Independently

Toronto, Dec. 19 —(CP)— Col. T. L. Kennedy, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, said today legislation will be introduced at the next session of the legislature to provide for independent administration of the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph. The O. A. C. now is administered by the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

"Our idea is to remove the administration of the college from politics," Col. Kennedy said. "It is not the intention to make it a separate university. It will continue as part of the University of Toronto and will be administered by an independent board. The relationship will be the same as for other colleges affiliated with the university."

The O. A. C. has been affiliated with the University of Toronto for about 30 years, the Minister recalled.

"But I don't see why it should be administered by my department. Dr. Vivian, Minister of Health, doesn't administer the University of Toronto Medical School and the attorney-general doesn't administer the law school at Osgoode Hall."

Col. Kennedy described a report in the Toronto Globe and Mail that the O. A. C. would become a separate university as "conjecture." "I know that has been talked about by some members of the commitee" appointed to investigate the college but "that isn't our plan at present."

War Against V.D. Getting Results ThruCo-operation

With the Canadian Corps on the Adriatic Front, Dec. 19 —(CP)— A little legion of medical men, giving their attention exclusively to the one subject, are waging a war against syphilis, gonorrhea and their lesser kin which they predict, with the proper co-operation from the troops, can beat venereal disease in the Canadian Corps in Italy within three months.

Their attack, mounted first in August near the end of the long summer rest that saw the incidence of V.D. leap to record heights, has moved ahead to "definite results" on the strength of these contributing factors:

1. Appointments of V. D. control officers, one for each division, one for corps troops, one for 1st echelon, who, among other things, have trained a group of C. O.'s to lecture throughout the various units on the subject.

2. Use of new methods for treatment, including the rapid arsenotherapy, a nearly purely Canadian method, which can clear up syphilis in 21 days, and penicillin, which with few exceptions has proved itself capable of eliminating gonorrhea within three days.

3. The work of two V. D. treatment units, one with a general hospital, the other, with its mobile laboratory, a unit in itself. Through these facilities the medical men have been able to make the blood test much more available than before, with the result that within six weeks of October and November 2,500 men from one division came forward to be tested.

Fully aware of the not infrequently sheepish, even furtive outlook of the average man towards the diseases, the medicals have directed their educational and moral offensive at the common sense inherent in some degree in every soldier. For one thing, he has been asked to come forward for a blood test as a volunteer, not under compulsion.

A sound a method as any was put into practice recently in a coastal resort town.

Hundreds of soldiers saw the educational films shown twice daily, terse admonitions of the value of prophylactics, of the dangers of V. D., of the virtue and sense of abstention.

Here, too, they could have their blood tested and from the charts that ranged the walls they could see how their unit compared with other units, how their division compared with other formations, how their corps compared with other corps and armies in their rate of V. D.

V. D. control officers include Majors Ed Flahiff, Paris, Ont., John Colthart, Rodney, Ont., William Turner and G. E. Duff Wilson, Ayr. Ont. They work with hygiene sections of the R. C. A. M. C.

FO. F. S. Finner Of Trenton Tells Of Bombing Raid

London, Dec. 19 — (CP Cable) — More than 200 Canadian Lancaster and Halifax bombers attacked Duisburg in the Ruhr Sunday night as the R. A. F. bomber command sent out 1,300 planes to raid this and two other cities.

Munich was another city raided in blows at the German rail network and Canadians in the R. A. F. participated in this attack. The third German city hit was Ulm.

R. C. A. F. men who raided Duisburg said weather conditions complicated the attack, which was made through "layers of cloud," and assessment of results was difficult. Aim of the attackers was to complete destruction of railway and other facilities in the city which was last pounded by the Canadian Bomber Group Dec. 1.

"I saw concentrated explosions and two in particular were very large," said Wing Cmdr. F. R. Sharp

Mess Room Chatter Of Canada's Airmen

With the R. C. A. F. Overseas, Dec. 19 —(CP)— Two Montreal airmen — Sgt. Earl Carney (of 5208 Decarie Blvd.) and FO. Leo Kendall (of Rosemount) — had a good view of the German "scarecrows" thrown up to frighten allied aircrews into believing bombers are being shot down all around them.

It was while bombing Dusseldorf that they saw the curious rocket-like device which bursts into flames ahead of British bombers and falls to earth like a burning aircraft.

"The first few fooled us," said Kendall, air-gunner in a plane piloted by Carney. "We thought some of our planes were geting it until we noticed that all the 'flamers' were at the same height and we spotted them as scarecrows."

"They spread flame all over the place when they hit the ground, like real aircraft crashing," said Carney. "They must be loaded with petrol."

Flt. Sgt. Sam Shutka (113 Bloor St.) and Flt. Sgt. Tom Romanchuk (702 Cedar St.), both of Oshawa, Ont., have been having good luck in the air. During a recent raid by the Goose Squadron on Oberhausen these two gunners shot down two planes and the next night in a raid on Bochum they downed another.

For 18 months FO. R. C. Smalley of (3145 12th Ave. W.) Vancouver instructed at the R. C. A. F. bombing school at Mountain View, Ont., dropping 11-pound practice bombs on peaceful Lake Ontario while younger fliers went overseas.

Recently he went on his first operational sortie, volunteering to fill in when an R. A. F. bomb-aimer became ill. The flight was to Dusseldorf and he came back happy as a clam.

"After 18 months of practice bombs, 12,000 pounds of high explosives in one chunk . . . Whew!" he whistled. The raid left Dusseldorf in flames visible for 80 miles.

Still in step, the Sherlock twins from Simcoe, Ont., and (17 Ridley Gardens) Toronto have completed their second tour of bombing operations, piloting Halifaxes in an attack on Dusseldorf.

Flt. Lts. Alan and Eric, both D. F. C. winners, flew their first bombing sorties together in twin-engined Wellingtons from a Tunisian base in a blow against the Naples rail yards in 1943. They ended their second tour with the Lion squadron of the Canadian bomber group based in Britain.

They say their closest shave wasn't from enemy flak but from a near collision between their two planes.

"It was at night," said Eric, "and neither of us knew who the other was until we got back to base and I told Alan about how I was nearly chopped by another Wellington. He cracked me on the head and said he was flying the other aircraft. We checked times and found it was true, all right."

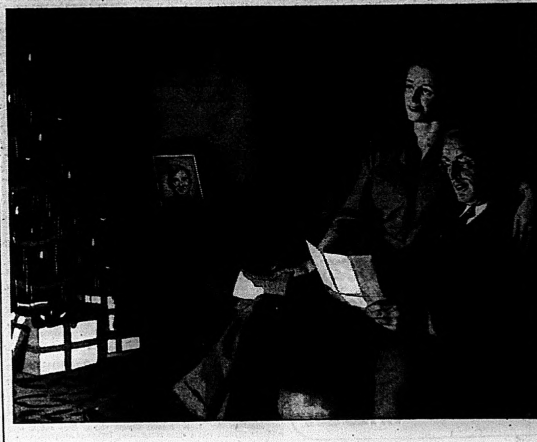
of Mossomin, Sask., and Trenton, Ont., returning from his first operation as commander of the Goose squadron. "The weather was against us for as soon as we hit the French coast we were in cloud."

FO. F. S. Finner of Trenton, Ont., a bomb-aimer with the Bison squadron, said: "We were the first to bomb. Clouds were up to 8,000 feet and there also was cloud above us."

Slight to heavy flak was encountered and there were some fighter combats.

One of the bomb-aimers in the R. A. F. attack on Munich, where six-ton "earthquake" bombs were dropped, was FO. Ray Clark of Meadow Lake, Sask.

"The sky was perfectly clear and the markers were right on the aiming point," he said. "These six-ton jobs certainly pasted the area."



and all through the house...

IT TAKES A KID TO MAKE A CHRISTMAS . . . even when the kid is a six-footer, and twenty-two next birthday. Even when he's now a seasoned fightingman with a string of campaigns behind him, and maybe one or two ahead.

◆ To Mom and Dad this Christmas Eve he's still the little boy with the big eyes, who sneaked out of bed and peeked between the bannisters for a glimpse of Santa Claus.

◆ Funny little codger he was . . . hoping to catch Santa in the act of filling his stocking . . . trying to figure out how he managed to squeeze down the chimney . . . forgetting all about it in the wild excitement of Christmas morning . . . stamping around the house beating his new drum, whooping it up, singing carols at the top of his voice . . . that was quite a while ago!

◆ Once again it's Christmas Eve. "I'll be thinking of you, Mom and Dad," he writes; "Gosh, it's hard to believe it's my fifth Christmas away. Bet the tree looks swell. And the candy canes and pop corn. Save 'em for next year and we'll all celebrate together."

◆ Mom can't see the postmark very clearly, or the writing either. Dad seems to be having trouble with his glasses, too. But when they look at the kid's picture they know from his cheery grin and big confident shoulders that the job he's doing is in good hands . . . that the Spirit of Christmas will live and flourish again all over the earth.

Canadien First-String Forward Line of Blake, Lach, Richard Would Look Good in Peacetime

Trio Packs More Than 50 Per Cent of Champions' Scoring Wallop

By BOB NIELSEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer,

Montreal Canadiens are so generally regarded as keep-'em-out marvels that it's sometimes overlooked that their present high estate, in a large measure, can be credited to a trio that specializes in putting them in—Toe Blake, Elmer Lach and Maurice Richard.

This unit is probably the only present-day N. H. L. unit that would have stood out in prewar hockey, as one of its members, redoubtable wingman Blake who has just recaptured the league scoring leadership, actually did.

On Blake's opposite wing is the ever-dangerous comet, Richard, headed for the goal-getting title with 19. Rugged Elmer Lach who pivots this talented pair rates high on the list of all-time centre-ice generals, both offensively and defensively.

The trio packs more than 50 per cent of the champions' scoring wallop, with 38 goals of a team total of 72, and probably controls the play more completely than any other line in the league.

Second in point of goal-getting potency, but probably not in all-round effectiveness, are Boston's Herb Cain, Bill Cowley and Bill Jennings who have a total of 35 goals. These men are sharpshooting opportunists who show little inclination for backchecking.

Chicago Black Hawks' effective unit of Pete Horeck, Clint Smith and Bill Mosienko are third in scoring with 25 goals, two more than Toronto's front line of Sweeney Schriner, Gus Bodnar and Lorne Carr, which has not operated in its entirety since Nov. 18. The Maple Leaf trio probably would be crowding the great Habitant line had it been intact throughout.

35 HOSTAGES HANGED

Rome, Dec. 18. (CP)—The Germans hanged 35 hostages in Bologna in the historic "Paviglione Portico" in the Central section of the city, the Italian News Agency reported yesterday. The victims, including workers and professional men, were selected by the Germans after a German ammunition truck had been blown up in Bologna by members of the Communist Party, the Agency said.

JOEY FERRIER WINS DECISION

Toronto, Dec. 19 —(CP)— Joey Ferrier, of Toronto, punched out a clean-cut decision over Sudbury's Pat Kelly in five rounds last night at Massey Hall here in one of the feature bouts of the card. Ferrier's ringmanship and greater experience enabled him to make every round a winning one. Both weighed 135 pounds.

Kelly tried hard from the start, but Ferrier was too crafty for him and the Sudbury boy was in difficulty several times.

In the semi-final, Frank Pucci of Toronto was hard pressed to earn a five-round decision over Steve Hagen of Windsor. Hagen looked good for three rounds, but weakened considerably in the last two stanzas.

In preliminaries Mike Zeduk, Guelph, decisioned Jimmy Sicurella of Hamilton in three rounds; Manny Sarbora won a three round decision over Albert Whitney of Hamilton; and Red Carroll of Guelph won in three rounds over Jimmy Dumas of Montreal.

ST. MIKES DOWN FALCONS 9 TO 2 LEAD ALL WAY

Irish Squad Remains Unbeaten and Untied in Junior A Series

(By The Canadian Press)

The Junior O.H.A. game of the year turned out to be almost like any other—for St. Michaels. At Toronto Maple Leaf Gardens last night the students took St. Catharines' Falcons in their stride, 9-2, and continued on their unbeaten and untied way with seven scalps hanging to their collective belt.

For the faltering Falcons it was the first setback after six straight successes, and the result split the co-operative leadership of the rivals in the league race, sending St. Catharines into second place but still four clear points ahead of Galt and Red Wings.

Falcons' hopes soared when Smelle found the twine for the initial score at 5:49 but Blute equalized three seconds before the close of the opening period and, after that, it was mainly the college boys. The second stanza closed 3-2, then the school staged a splurge of six straight scores as the visitors weakened.

Leading St. Mikes' spree was Gravelle with two goals and three assists, while both Johnny Blute and Johnny McCormack were in there for two goals and one assist. Turik also made a brace of goals.

T. Smelle made both St. Catharines' tallies and Peterson assisted on each of them.

Heusser Leads N.L. Hurlers In Earned-run Rating

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

New York, Dec. 19 (AP)—Ed Heusser, Cincinnati's much-travelled 35-year-old right-handed hurler, who has pitched for 15 teams in 10 different leagues since entering organized baseball in 1929, led National League pitchers in earned-run rating with 2.38, official 1944 averages showed today.

The veteran curve-baller of Bountiful, Utah, gave up 51 earned runs in 193 innings, while winning 13 games and losing 11, to nose out teammate Bucky Walters by two percentage points. Walters, first in 1939 and '40, finished with 2.40, pitching 285 innings and 27 complete games.

Following Heusser and Walters came Mort Cooper, 2.46; Ted Wilkes, 2.64; and Max Lanier, 2.65, all of the champion St. Louis Cards.

Wilkes had the best won-and-lost average, 17 victories against five defeats for a percentage of .810 to become the first freshman to lead the league in this department. He also had the longest winning streak, 11 straight, starting July 2 against Brooklyn and ending Sept. 2 against Pittsburgh. The streak established a league record for a rookie pitcher.

Four hurlers won more than 20 games, Walters topping the list with 23. Cooper was one behind and Bill Voiselle of the New York Giants and Truett Sewell of Pittsburgh each won 21. Cooper hurled the most shutouts, seven, one more than Walters.

Voiselle, the Giants' sensational rookie, was the iron man of the league, hurling the most innings, 313; facing the most batsmen, 1327; and starting the most games, 41. He completed 26 games, three less than Boston's leading Jim Tobin. Voiselle also led the loop in strike-outs, 161.

Hank Wyse of Chicago allowed the most hits, 277, and Philadelphia's Ken Raffensberger lost the most games 20.

Harold Gregg of Brooklyn earned the dubious distinction of hitting the most batters, 9; allowing the most bases on balls, 137; making the most wild pitches, 10; allowing the most runs, 142, and the most earned runs, 130. Gregg also suffered the longest losing streak, 9.

WO. Gourlay Wins Canadian Outdoor Small Arms Shoot

Montreal, Dec. 19—Warrant Officer A. Gourlay of No. 2 Wireless School, R.C.A.F. Calgary, has been awarded the Outdoor Small Bore Championship of Canada for 1944, the Canadian Small Bore Association announced today.

Shooting brilliantly throughout the Association's matches of the past summer, Gourlay ran up an aggregate score of 1194 x 1200. Under a variety of weather conditions, Gourlay missed the ten-ring only six times and, in addition, placed 70 of his 120 shots in the small central x-ring. Runners-up were two other Alberta shooters—J. C. Hiebert of Nanton with 1191 and Jim Edmunds of Medicine Hat with 1189.

Edmunds scored again in the "Any Sights" Championship which he won with a perfect 400 x 400, setting a new Canadian record with 32 of his 40 shots in the x-ring.

Marie Barnes of Wyoming, Ontario, upheld the shooting honor of Eastern Canada and added "50-meter" Championship to her long list of titles with a near-perfect score of 480 x 500.

In the match restricted to Life and Annual members of the C.S.B.A. Martin Ostergaard of Calgary won top honors with a perfect 400-31x.

A special match open to all Overseas Veterans was won by Jim Irvine of Vancouver, a World War I veteran, with 395 x 400.

Army's Unbeaten Squad Chosen Team-of-year

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sport Writer

New York, Dec. 19—(AP)—Army's explosive unbeaten and untied football team that rolled up 504 points in gaining the mythical United States National championship today was picked the 1944 team-of-the-year in the annual Associated Press year-end poll.

Breaking a 12-year monopoly by Major League Baseball teams, the Cadets polled a total of 209 points to finish far ahead of the 104 garnered by the second-place world champion St. Louis Cardinals.

The unbeaten and untied football teams of Randolph Field and Ohio State were third and fourth, respectively, with 28 and 23 points. Completing the first five was the St. Louis Browns, whose feat of winning their first American League pennant earned them 21 points.

Montreal Canadiens, Stanley Cup holders and National Hockey League titlists last Spring, took sixth place with a six-point total.

Sparked by Hula-hipped Glenn Davis, National high scorer with 120 points, and a pile-driving fullback in Felix (Doc) Blanchard, the Cadets snowed under North Carolina, Brown, Pitt, Coast Guard Academy, Duke, Villanova, Notre Dame, Pennsylvania and Navy for their first perfect season since 1916.

CASUAL COMMENT

by K.J.C.

A farmer was visiting his son's classroom at State College. He was quite intrigued by the reports and other paraphernalia in the chemistry class and asked what they were doing:

Professor—Our research project now is trying to discover a universal solvent.

Farmer—What's that?

Professor—Why that's a fluid that will dissolve anything.

Farmer (after being quiet a few minutes)—That's a great idea? When you find it, what are you going to keep it in?

After Fitzpatrick.

Fame is far reaching, especially when top-ranking colleges are seeking football and other sports talent from the sticks. When St. Michael's Academy won the Bay of Quinte COSSA rugby football championship much of the squad's success was heaped on the shoulders of their versatile quarterback, Dick Fitzpatrick. Now comes word that Fitzpatrick's ability as a football player has been recognized afar, as a matter of fact as far off as Ottawa. Last week Dick was approached by St. Patrick's College of Ottawa offering him tuition subsidies to attend that school and play his sporting qualities for the Ottawa "Irish". At first the St. Pats' heads suggested Dick transfer his academic efforts from Belleville to Ottawa at the opening of the next school semester in January in order to qualify for hockey with the Capital City "Irishers". However, wiser heads at this end of the negotiations deem it advisable to leave Dick at St. Mikes for the remainder of the school year.

There is little doubt but Dick Fitzpatrick can hold his own on any senior secondary school grid team in this province. He possesses all of the attributes necessary for a good football player, especially as a field general at the quarterback spot. In the event Dick accepts the St. Patrick's College call it will be Ottawa's gain and Belleville's loss in the football world.

Of course Wally Hilton went from the Belleville Collegiate to star with Western University. Jimmie Follwell also left B. C. I. to boot 'em high up and far away for O. A. C. and later Argos, while Mase Rigby left the same seat of knowledge to later turn up with Toronto Balmy Beach seniors, while still other locals football players have left town to whittle a notch in the grid iron hall of fame.

If Dick remains here he says he will abandon the goal pads this winter and try out for a wing position with the Belleville Juniors.

Word of Hastie.

Bill Hastie, who played a lot of good hockey for the Reliance O. H. A. club in years past, is now in the Canadian Navy, along with "sailor boy" Tims Williams.

In his Kingston Whig-Standard sports column M. J. "Mike" Rodden had the following to say about Hastie—"Among the spectators at Wednesday night's doubleheader at the Harty Arena was Bill Hastie, one of the most amazing stick-handlers the sport has known. Bill, who is now in the Navy and who hails from Gananoque, reports that there is much activity among the hockey-minded Tars on the Atlantic sea wall, (locations censored).

Hastie was one of those famous players who aided the Oshawa Generals to scale championship heights. He could certainly make that puck behave and, had he so desired, could have become a professional.)"

Remember When.

Ernie Schaaf pounded out a 10-round decision over Max Baer in his first big fight at New York's Madison Square Gardens 14 years ago tonight. In 1933 Schaaf was pounded unmercifully by giant Primo Carnera and was carried to his corner while 20,000 skeptical fans howled "fake". To the chagrin of all and to keep the records of boxing straight Schaaf died in hospital just four days later.

This and That.

It is being rumored about in the South that the reason George Tech accepted an Orange Bowl bid before the Sugar Bowl had named its teams was because the Sugar Bowl this year was offering only $12,000 and expenses. That, if true, is a new low for the major bowls. Miami is paying more.

It is said the Sugar Bowl people are "sugaring themselves" by keeping more of the receipts to pay for the stadium.

Back in the late 'thirties when the New York Legislature was debating a new race bill, proponents of mutuel betting said the sport would give the State ten millions a year in revenue. Well, in 1940 New York got six millions, in 1941 seven millions, in 1942 just short of ten millions, in 1943 eighteen and a half millions, and the past season twenty-eight millions.

LESSON NO. 881

By SAM GORDON

The Kibitzer

You must never go to sleep in a deal that must be planned. You may wake up feeling cheap with a lily in your hand.

Become declarer in the south at four hearts with this deal:

NORTH
♠A K Q 3 2
♥J 3 2
♦8 6 4
♣8 3

WEST
♠J 9 8 6
♥9 7
♦A K 3
♣10 9 5 2

EAST
♠10 7 4
♥10 8 6
♦Q 10 9 7
♣K Q J

SOUTH
♠5
♥A K Q 5 4
♦J 5 2
♣A 7 6 4

West and east take three diamond tricks right off the bat. A club is led to the fourth trick and it looks at if the second round of clubs must lose. If that happens, your contract is sunk.

So, you must stay awake long enough to find the safest plan for saving the second club. First thing you will notice is that south clubs can be sluffed on dummy spades.

After stepping in with your club ace, you will think of pulling trumps. But don't get in a little nap right there. If you do, you are likely to draw three rounds of trump right there.

If you do, you will get a jolt. All of a sudden you will find yourself stranded. There you will be with spades you are unable to use. As a result, you will not be able to sluff enough clubs.

However, if your eyes are open wide enough, you will not grab three trump rounds fast. You will take only two of them with south king and queen. Then you will win a spade trick with dummy queen.

A small dummy spade is next trumped by south. Now a small south trump is won in dummy with the heart jack for the third trump round. That wipes out opponent trumps and dummy is in the lead.

With two spade rounds already gone, dummy wins two more tricks in that suit with tops. On these two, opponent spades are picked up and two south clubs are sluffed.

The last dummy spade is now as good as the biggest ace. Lead it and sluff thereon your last south club. Thereafter you can chalk up a game for your side with your remaining trump.

All this talk has been directed straight at you. But most of the time I have been thinking of two other guys down the street. They are the ones who go to sleep on the job.

Pains must be taken to bring home the bacon.

What's Doing in Sport

(By The Canadian Press)

Following the decision of the Royal Canadian Golf Association to revive the Canadian Open in 1945, it was announced yesterday at San Francisco that the U.S. Golf Association would conduct the National Open next summer for the first time since 1941 when Craig Wood of Mamaroneck, N.Y., won the title at Fort Worth, Tex. Wood himself is quoted as opposing the revival of the competition in wartime on the ground that it would be unfair to many good players now in the armed services.

Ann Curtis, 18, of San Francisco, holder of 18 U.S. swimming records, yesterday was named "woman athlete of the year" in a poll of The Associated Press in which 31 of the 71 participating editors gave her top ranking for the title. Mildred Didrikson Zaharias, who now specializes in golf, was second in the voting; Pauline Betz, tennis, drew third, and Dorothy Germain, golf, came fourth.

Paul Courteau of Providence Reds continued to lead the weekly individual scoring record of the American Hockey League, announced yesterday at New Haven, Conn., with 36 points. Three were tied for runner-up position with 30 points, these being Pete Leswick and Byron MacDonald of Indianapolis Capitals and Tom Burlington of Cleveland Barons.

Betty Mitchell, junior champion of Manitoba, and Eileen Whalley, senior titleholder, both of Winnipeg, have been invited to compete in the mid-western speed skating championships at Detroit Jan. 1.

Official records of the Quebec Senior Hockey League, issued at Montreal last night, showed Nils Tremblay of Quebec Aces holding the lead in individual scoring with 16 points. Second with 13 points were Jack Carthy and Smiley Meronek, both of Montreal Royals who are a-top the team standing.

Toe Blake Ahead Of Bill Cowley By Single Point

Montreal, Dec. 19 (CP)—Montreal's veteran Toe Blake climbed into the leadership among National Hockey League pointgetters during the last week, with today's official figures showing him out ahead of Boston's Bill Cowley by a single point.

Two goals and two assists as Canadiens defeated Boston 8-3 at Montreal Saturday night shot Blake up into a tie with the former leader, and another point Sunday night at New York put him out in front.

Blake's 33 points were made up of 15 goals and 18 assists, while Cowley was right behind with 11 goals and 21 assists. Blake's line-mates, Elmer Lach and Maurice Richard, held down third and fourth places respectively, with 26 points and 25 points. Clint Smith of Chicago slipped to fourth spot with 22, one more than team-mate Bill Mosienko, Gus Bodnar of Toronto and Herbie Cain of Boston.

Canadien's big line dominated the statistics for the week, with Blake leading on points, Lach tied with Cowley among the play-makers, and Richard leading the league in goals. Cowley and Lach each had 21 assists, for a comfortable margin on Blake, who had 18.

MASEFIELD SEES RUSSIA STRONG FORCE FOR PEACE

Poet Laureate Says Russia Determined There Shall Be No Third War

By RUSSELL C. LANDSTROM

Associated Press Staff Writer

Burcote Brook, near Abingdon, Berkshire, Dec. 19 —(AP)— John Masefield, England's poet laureate, said Saturday he believes Russia will be one of the strongest forces for peace in the post-war world.

"Russia seems determined there shall not be another European war, that the craze for conquest shall not again get out of hand on this continent," the 69-year-old gray-haired man of letters said in an interview.

Mr. Masefield predicted that Russia would come out of the war "with plenty of weight behind her convictions; for we have seen an astounding feat in the east, a profoundly significant re-birth of a vast nation within a generation.

"Russia Will Emerge Triumphant"

"Russia will emerge triumphantly from the war, knowing her political system will stand almost any shock and with the knowledge that she virtually has saved Europe. Her voice will be strong indeed in world councils."

Mr. Masefield said the two "danger points" in Europe as he saw them "are Germany and the Balkans. Russia will have her realistic way dealing with the Germans, and she may well be a means of controlling threats in the entire Balkan area. People of those lands, hot-tempered mountaineers, love fighting and thrive on national hatreds to a degree incomprehensible to us and especially to Americans.

General Desire For Lasting Peace

"Most of the other European countries — even Italy should have had her fill of war — desired lasting peace. That will provide Russia with her golden chance. It should be our chance, too — to help build a practical community of nations in Europe."

Mr. Masefield added, however, that "what I fear is that most of the European nations — perhaps all except Russia — will be too tired after the war, just as they were after the last war, to do what will be required to keep the peace.

"Nations will want to rest rather than to tackle peace problems boldly and vigorously. Alas, active scoundrels then will be quick to take advantage of such unguarded and apathetic times, just as they did before."

No Half Measures Says Writer in Pravda

London, Dec. 18 — (CP) — The Moscow press said yesterday that "one cannot liberate a people from Fascism of one kind and deliver them into the hands of Fascists of another kind."

Without direct reference to any country, Ilya Ehrenberg in the Communist party organ "Pravda," declared that "there can be no half measures. If Fascism is left to breed anywhere, then, in 10 or 20 years time, rivers of blood will flow again."

The article, as reported by the Soviet monitor, added: "The Red Army has shown what it means to liberate. The Poles, the Norwegians, Serbs and Slovaks know it. We do not replace Fascists by semi-Fascists."

Merchant Ships Being Constructed Again in England

By JOHN DAUPHINEE

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 18 — (CP Cable) — Ships designed for the shipping routes — the backbone of Britain's top rank merchant navy before the war — are now being built again as ship owners start a long grind of rebuilding fleets wrecked by U-boat sinkings and Admiralty requisitions.

Two fast freighters with accommodation for a few passengers, aimed ultimately at the South Africa run although now on war work, have just gone into service and more are on the ways or are being planned. So far as it is known here the building of speedy liners for passengers exclusively is not yet feasible.

But with reduced submarine losses and an end of the European war in sight, part of the emergency building is off and some berths are available for other than standardized "utility" ships. A government committee has been established to determine building priorities for the different types of merchantmen and to allocate shipbuilding facilities.

No Short-term Business

The reconstruction is no short-term business. Shipping men generally estimate at least five years will be needed to put the merchant navy back into pre-war shape — and some 15 years seems to be nearer the mark.

Before the war Britain's commercial fleet, at about 18,000,000 tons, was about twice as large as any other; and it contained 48 per cent of all ships of more than 15,000 tons, 60 per cent of ships more than 15 knots and 38 per cent of all refrigerated ships. While accurate figures are not available it has been estimated that British tonnage perhaps has been cut in half and that specialized ships which have been lost have been replaced by "utility" types. Thus, while increasing the tonnage, British shipyards also must turn out much replacement tonnage and also try to get back into the business of building ships for export.

One redeeming feature is that the war has brought a big increase in the capacity of British shipyards.

Students Threaten Strike Unless Co-ed Reinstated

Baton Rouge, La., Dec. 18 —(AP) —A student strike was threatened today at Louisiana State University unless a pretty 18-year-old co-ed who wrote a leaflet on sex and campus kissing was reinstated.

The girl, Gloria Jeanne Heller, daughter of a Havana hotel manager, resigned last week at the request, she said, of President W. B. Hatcher. She continued to "stick around."

The student council, exhorted by campus leaders that a general student strike was threatened, adopted a resolution last night protesting the manner in which Miss Heller was "ordered" to leave the university.

The resolution termed the action of President Hatcher "a violation of the student council code and therefore invalid" and the council informed him a strike was imminent unless "prompt action" is taken.

The President said he would meet with the council tomorrow to discuss the "situation."

Joe Simone of Kaplan, La., adjutant of the Campus Veterans' Association, said a majority of members of three student organizations were resolved to strike and suggested a mass meeting "to prevent a strike, not to foment one."

The council resolution denied that the comely American-born girl had "advocated anything immoral."

President Hatcher said he had given Miss Heller a choice of resignation or expulsion from the institution after telling her "we can't have promiscuous kissing on the campus . . . couldn't have people here who advocated free love."

Miss Heller said she had written and distributed the leaflet in an "attempt to show that I thought the university dealt with sex problems in such a way as to overemphasize them."

She said she objected to university action against some of her friends kissing their "dates" goodnight and quoted Hatcher as saying "there be no kissing of students here."

Masses Apathetic and Confused In Reich; Anti-Nazi Ties Lacking

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER

London, December 18. (AP)—Apathy among the masses, confusion, lack of co-ordination among anti-Nazis and fear of punishment in Nazi ranks were found to be the dominant characteristics of the German situation by an agent of German refugee circles who recently returned to a neutral country from a clandestine trip to Berlin, Leipzig and Silesia.

I was permitted to study his detailed report. Knowing the source I feel his observations deserve attention.

The great masses, especially industrial workers, cherish but one wish, this observer found—that the war may end.

The people were found to snap out of their lethargy only if authorities fail to provide the prescribed rations or if the number of war casualties in any given family piles up particularly high, or if their ire is aroused by insolent Nazi leaders and their wives, who continue to live off the fat of the land and bear few hardships.

It might then easily happen that someone would "accidentally" run into such Nazis or their wives with their bicycles, or pounce upon them in an air raid shelter and give them a sound beating. These cases, however, were exceptional.

From time to time this apathy gives place to temporary outbursts of hysteria which may prove contagious throughout a war plant. Only sharp measures by the Gestapo can then restore the equilibrium.

Nowhere except among Nazi office holders did the secret visitor find anybody who was not aware that Germany has lost the war.

Countless times the visitor asked people, "If everybody is so sick of the war, why don't the people demand peace?"

To this he received two answers. The first was Gestapo terrorism. The second and somewhat surprising one was that the food situation continues better than anybody anticipated. By no means has the low food level of the 1917-18 been reached.

More than anything else has been hammered into the consciousness of the people the dictum of Propaganda Minister Goebbels: "Peace will be more terrible even than that war".

The investigator found much evidence of underground resistance to Nazism, but said it was neither well organized nor united as to purpose and outlook.

And this underground effort lacks a positive political conception as to what should become of Germany. Vaguely the resistance groups are made up of Lutherans, Roman Catholics, Socialists and Communists, and vaguely they all want some sort of democratic state with a social outlook. They are through with the Junkers, the big business tycoons, and the millionaire bankers. But beyond that they differ widely as to what should happen after the war. Some lean to Moscow—others to the western powers.

Trolley Wire Breaks Causes Car Delay

Toronto, Dec. 18. (CP)—A broken trolley wire early today cut off power from a large area in East Toronto and caused almost half an hour's delay on eight street car routes. Toronto Transportation Commission officials said the wire snapped shortly after six a.m. It dropped to the ground and fused to the street car tracks, disrupting power.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma and pop were waiting for Mr. and Mrs. Spruance to come and play bridge, and ma said, I do hope Hilda wont get on the subject of her operation. There's simply no end to it when she starts, and she's certainly been making a practice of starting.

Well let's hope she takes a night off, but I think I can put a crimp in her stile if necessary, pop said.

Which just then the doorbell rang and it was Mr. and Mrs. Spruance, the first thing Mrs. Spruance said being, We can only stay for a few rubbers, because since my operation I'm suppose to go to bed quite early till I'm my own self again. My, that operation was something to remember, she said.

So was mine, pop quick said. I dont remember the actual operation, of course, although they tell me I was there all through it. Going under the ether was the part that I cant forget. It took 40 drops to knock me out. Each drop seemed to fall with a crash like a clap of thunder and each drop seemed to give me a different hallucination. I remember whole 40 hallucination that'll give you an idea of how vivid it was. When the first drop fell I thought I was hit by a red comet with a green tail. At the 2nd drop I thought I was hit by a blue comet with a pink tail. Or maybe that was the 3rd drop. Anyway, right after that I thought I was hit by a yellow comet with a black tail, so that must of been either the 3rd drop or the 4th drop, or was that the 5th drop? pop said, and Mr. Spruance said, Great heavens, man, what's the difference?

Maybe you're right, pop said. Anyway I assure you I remember the entire 40 drops, though perhaps not in their exact order. I'm almost sure the 6th drop was a speckled comet with no tail at all, and the 7th drop was a speckled tail with no comet. That was an odd one. And then came the 8th drop, he said, and ma said, And now comes bridge, I hope, because dont forget that Hilda has to leave early for land sakes.

And she got the cards out and made pop set the table up without any more comets.

AN APPLE FOR EVE

By Kathleen Norris

"No come". Annie was sousing baby linen up and down in a small wooden tub placed on the sink. Loveday studied her fine, wise old ivory face for a few minutes in perplexity, then went to the telephone. The telegram was readily repeated to her: "Expect me and two friends lunch Thursday. Love to all. Larry".

It had been sent from Chicago. They must have been flying. They had probably reached Mills Field some time in the morning and taken the bus to Indian Hill.

But Larry had had no answer to his telegram and he had not come. Loveday was aghast at the mischance.

She was startled by the sound of the telephone bell. There was another telegram for her. Loveday's spirit eased itself into complete relief and thankfulness as she grasped its meaning.

"Grounded in Cheyenne", it said. "Expect three of us for lunch Saturday. Sorry about delay. Love. Larry".

Saturday ,day after tomorrow! Everything was all right again.

Larry Comes Home

The table was set on the terrace, and Loveday, when Larry and his guests arrived, was flushed with running in and out of the kitchen and up-and downstairs and looked her prettiest in dark blue linen, with her soft brown gold-tipped hair braided about her head.

The meeting was as casual as if they had been parted for eight hours rather than as many weeks. Larry looked surprisingly well in a cadet's aviation uniform; the other two men were ensigns from Canada; Larry had joined the Canadian flying forces, he told her, and was in training near Toronto. Hugh joined them almost immediately, and the talk became all of war. Ensign Anders and Ensign Waite were eager to get away to service in the mother country.

"This is a grand old place you have here, Mrs. Ingersoll".

"This is a grand old place you have here, Mrs. Ingersoll".

"This was our grandfather's place; his father built it—when was it, Hugh?"

"Sixties somewhere. Eighteen-seventy, maybe. The cupola and the millwork ought to date it", Hugh said.

"Pretty nearly everything is raised on the place, isn't it?" Larry said with the satisfied air of the householder.

"Well, let's see. The chickens and the corn, the lettuce and tomatoes, yes. But the flour in the bread, no." Loveday smiled. "Larry seems so changed, or is it just that I haven't see him?" she thought. The uniform and the trim haircut were extremely becoming.

While the men ate, Loveday dressed the children and brought them down to the terrace. Betsy and Martha crowded on their father's lap.

"Beat it now, kids", Larry said after a few minutes, getting to his feet; "we're going out to see the camp with Hugh, and Waite and Anders will stay there", he said. "But I'll be back for dinner. We can all get in your car, can't we, Hugh. Ought I telephone Captain Williams if I want to catch him? The thing is, he's anxious to get hold of all this—"

His voice dwindled as he went away toward the car. Loveday, left alone with the children, felt a little dazed. She had not wanted to make a scene before newcomers, but after all, Larry had not even taken the trouble to tell her that he had entered the Canadian Air force. Not even a post card had come to his wife when the ambition of his life had been gratified.

"Dearest", Larry said when the men returned; "we've got to go south tonight. Waite and Anders and I are supposer to get started back with a bomber. Monday morning, and on account of our being delayed Thursday we're late now. We're catching the Lark in San Jose, so if you can give me some supper about seven I'll pick up the others and be on my way".

"Oh, Larry!" she said, automatically using a wife's air of protest and disappointment.

About six o'clock when she was upstairs with the children he came up from the library where had been talking with Hugh and, while taking a shower in the most comfortable fashion imaginable, wandering in and out of her room and the nursery, asked her if she had perfected her plans for the apartment she was going to partition off from the second floor of the house.

"I'm wondering if it seems as reasonable to you as to me, Larry", she said. Then gradually she told of her thoughts concerning Chris. He was widowed, had always liked her, adored the children and it might be smart to face conditions and not drag on, as so many did, living half lives, never quite happy.

"What would you propose to do with the children?" he asked finally.

"We'll, take them, of course. He has this wonderful place on Long Island. But if you or your mother—" She stopped short. She didn't meant this. "I just wanted you to think about it", she said uncomfortably; "it's not a plan—it's not definite, of course".

"Think you'd be happier?" he asked now briefly. Her cheeks reddened.

"Well, I don't know. But Chris is an important person. And it does not seem fair to you or to him, either, not to let you know what's —what I feel —what'—"

"What's going on between him and my wife", Larry finished grimly. "Now, I'll tell you", he said, his dressing compelted, "there's something kind of disgusting about a married woman with small kids who tears the whole thing up and goes off with another man. Maybe you'd get away with it, but lots don't. You'd get the kids, I guess, because they're so little and they need you. I can't give them a home until this war is over, anyway. But the St. Georges won't be so crazy over the whole thing, and don't you fool yourself they will.

"I'm going to kiss the kids good-night—and good-bye" ,he added. "And then I'll go down, but I'll tell you what my solution would be; this flying business isn't the healthiest life in the world. I'm in it, and I'm going to stay in it until it's over. Wouldn't it be more dignified, more up your street, as Waite says, to skip the divorce and the talk and the arguments and the dragging of my children about and give me a little chance to get myself killed? I give you my word that after this little talk I'll be as quick about it as I can be".

He went out, closing the door.

Chris came to Indian Hill a few days later, for the first time giving no other excuse for his appearance there than he wanted to see Loveday.

He walked into the dining room quietly, nodding at her with an appreciative smile in his eyes and taking a seat to watch her feed the children.

"I didn't hear your car!" Loveday began.

"I should think not. I could hear the children babbling as soon as I stopped the engine."

"They're all dying of sleep. They've been gardening with me all morning. I'll go up with them, Chris, and be down in five minutes My hair has been slowly slipping—"

"It looks very nice that way," Chris said mildly.

They lunched together, loitering and talking, talking, talking. Afterward he said he must go up to camp to see Hugh for a little while, but he returned to join her and the children again while they were up in the barn inspecting a wet new calf.

But after dinner, when they went back to the library fire and the old house was wrapped in silence and darkness except for the subdued light of one lamp and the glow of the coals, he seated himself on the old brocaded sofa that was set facing the hearth and touched the space behind him with his hand.

"Larry was here, wasn't he, last week? Hugh told me."

"Saturday, yes. Did Hugh mention that he is in the Canadian Air Force?"

"Yes. A grand thing for him to do. And that," Chris said, "has made a difference, hasn't it, in the way you feel toward him?"

"I don't know that his being in the air force has made a difference," she said thoughtfully, "but something he said did. He was angry. He felt you had an advantage, that you are rich, Chris, and famous, and able to give me — to give any woman—everything she could want, and that it wasn't fair?"

"No, it's not fair, of course," he agreed quietly.

"But life isn't often fair. One man is sweating in a black mine to give his children poor bread that tastes of coal dust, and another is a king with twenty palaces and three hundred changes of clothing. We can't help that."

"No, but we can try to balance it; we can play fair," she offered.

"If the whole world wasn't so full of divorce," he said, still without any particular emphasis, "if everyone didn't accept it as part of our way of life, it would be different! But we live in a generation that can correct youthful mistakes. If a girl like you blunders into marriage at twenty, finds a few years later that there is a happier, a wider prospect opening before her—"

He paused, patted her hand for a moment without looking at her.

"You see, I love you so horribly, my dear," he said.

"It isn't what the world or what anyone except myself would think," she began with a little difficulty. "It's that—I have to live with myself, Chris. And I promised, and I am his wife, and there are my children."

"I know," he said. "I know." And for a while they were both silent. Chris moved a little and put his arm about her shoulders.

"I want you to understand something," he presently began. "It is enough for me to know that such a woman as you exists. It's enough to think about you and now and then to see you and come here and hear your voice. I don't care whether you're splitting apricots or spooning mush into Owen or rushing in and out of the kitchen with pans of biscuits—it's enough that you're here."

She settled her head against his shoulder; one hand lay in his hand.

These were happy and exciting days. She had a strange and exhilarating feeling, especially when Chris gave her a second-hand car. Did she like it? It wasn't new, he said without apology, but he knew she never would accept a new one.

ISN'T IT THE TRUTH? By Ti-Jos No. 62

GOING OVER YOUR PRESS NOTICES, JOE?
WHY, NO! I DIDN'T DO ANYTHING TO GET IN THE PAPERS
THEN WHAT ARE ALL THE CLIPPINGS?
THIS ANTI-INFLATION CAMPAIGN
OH, THOSE ADS! D'YOU THINK PEOPLE READ 'EM?
SURE! EVERYBODY'S TALKING ABOUT KEEPING PRICES DOWN!
BUT ARE THEY DOING ANYTHING?
WELL... I GUESS THEY MUST BE OR THE PRICE CEILING COULDN'T HAVE WORKED!
AND I WOULDN'T BE SURPRISED IF THAT ISN'T THE MOST IMPORTANT THING ON THE HOME FRONT!

IN OUR HANDS!

It's little things that hold the ceiling—carefulness in everyday living. If we are to avoid inflation, every one of us must play fair. So let's all pledge ourselves to keep down living costs . . . Buy only what we need . . . Observe the ceiling . . . Save for the future of a happy and prosperous land!

YARDS LIFT EMBARGO

Toronto, Dec. 19—(CP)— The embargo on livestock has been lifted by the management of the Union stockyards here. Effective today rail shipments of all livestock may be loaded and truck shipments will be accepted Wednesday, Dec. 20, the management announced.

PATCHED UP HEART

One of the most unusual surgical operations performed since D-Day on the Western Front was described by Lieut.-Col. Stuart Welch (above), of Albany, N.Y., who wielded the scalpel. Holes were torn in the heart muscles of a U.S. captain and the organ was hanging from the pericardium when the patient went under the knife. The heart lining also had been grazed by shell fragments and a lung perforated. After removing the shell splinters, Col. Welch sutured the heart and its lining and the wounded officer showed almost immediate recovery. The damaged heart was exposed for 90 minutes during the operation.

ALONE SINCE 1939

Looking at you here is Helmuth C. Stes who made headlines because he has not been out of his room in the Chase Hotel, St. Louis, since he registered there on March 18, 1939. He paused while eating a meal to permit the photographer to have his picture. The wealthy recluse, who inherited a fortune when his parents died in the 1920's, cuts his own hair and shaves himself. The hotel obtains anything he wants from the outside and charges it to his account. The management says he is an ideal guest. So let's leave him alone.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 19 —(CP)— The stock market was heavy in the early session today and all four index groups showed losses at noon. Volume for the first three hours was 206,000 shares, about even with the recent average.

Steep Rock recovered today to 2.35 and was holding around 2.40 this afternoon for a net gain of 15 cents. Lake Dufault and Noranda were a bit heavier and Nickel held a minor gain.

Gold issues losing 5 to 10 cents included Giant Yellowknife, San Antonio, Wasa Lake, Madsen, MacLeod-Cockshutt, Chesterville, Conwest, Transcontinental Resources, Macassa and others. Queenston firmed 6 cents to 1.12.

The weak industrial groups included the papers, steels, foods and utilities and in the western oil list mild weakness was displayed by Home, Mid-Continent and Pacific Refineries.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

New York, Dec. 19 —(AP)— Rails left the rest of the stock market behind today and negotiated the swift recovery push that put favorites up fractions to more than a point at new 7-year tops. Trends generally were a shade uneven near the fourth hour. Volume expanded on renewed bidding.

The strong German thrust in Europe apparently revived the carriers on the thought that a longer war was possible and that traffic would hold at a peak for months to come.

Conspicuous gainers included Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Great Northern, Baltimore & Ohio and Atlantic Coast Line.

Canadian issues were generally lower.

LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Dec. 19 (CP)—Prices were steady on cattle sales up to mid-session on the livestock market here today. Boner steers and heifers were $5.50-$7.50, a few good butcher steers up to $11.50, butcher cows $7-$9, canners and cutters $3.50-$6.50 and bologna bulls $6-$7.

Calves were strong to 15 cents higher for the week at $15-$16 with a few tops at $16.50 and common to medium $9-$14.50.

Lambs were steady $12.50-$13 with a few choice at $13.50, $11.50-$12 bucks and $7-$9 culls.

Sheep were steady at $2-$5.

No price was established for hogs which closed previously at $18.15-$18.35 grade A dressed at yards or plants.

Receipts reported by the Dominion marketing service were: Cattle 40, calves 100, hogs 400, sheep and lambs 150, unsold from yesterday were 900 head of cattle.

LIVESTOCK

Montreal, Dec. 17 (CP)—Trading was dull today on the livestock markets. Receipts: Cattle 10; calves 10; sheep 20; hogs 20.

Roosevelt Returns From Vacation

By D. HAROLD OLIVER
(AP Staff Writer.)

Washington, Dec 19. (AP)—President Roosevelt returned today from a three weeks' vacation at Warm Springs, Ga.

Among those accompanying the President was Leighton McCarthy, retiring Canadian Ambassador to Washington who is also a trustee of the Warm Springs Foundation.

Facing momentous months in the fields of war and Allied diplomacy—plus the beginning of a fourth term and organization of a new Congress—The President came back to the capital sun-tanned and a few pounds heavier. He arrived by special train and went immediately to the White House to start a routine day.

He returned from Georgia via Camp Lejeune, on New River at Jacksonville, N.C., where yesterday he made a two-hour inspection tour of a marine combat reservation. This was his only side trip outside of Georgia during his absence from Washington.

Mr. Roosevelt planned to hold his regular news conference late today, the first since the special one he called Nov. 27, the day he left for Warm Springs, at which he announced the resignation of Cordell Hull, as secretary of State.

For security reasons, news of the trip was withheld until the President was back in the White House.

The President transacted official business during his trip much as though he had been at his desk in Washington. His little white cottage atop Pine Mountain overlooking the Warm Springs Foundation for the after-treatment of infantile paralysis fairly hummed with dictation and the comings and goings of secretaries with war reports and congressional news. All executive actions, however, were announced at the White House in Washington.

742 Jap Planes Put Out of Action During Past Week

General MacArthur's Headquarters, Philippines, Dec. 19 (AP)—The easiest invasion job of the Pacific war went ahead at full tilt on Mindoro island today without the slightest ground resistance as U.S. commanders announced at least 742 Japanese planes put out of action the past week.

Admiral Nimitz announced at Pearl Harbor that 461 enemy aircraft had been destroyed or damaged in three days of sustained attacks on Manila Bay and elsewhere on Luzon. At least 28 Japanese ships were sunk in the strikes at Luzon and 66 others were damaged.

Gen. MacArthur said today many scores of other Japanese aircraft were knocked out of the sky by army and navy fliers supporting the amphibious invasion of Mindoro.

U.S. infantrymen scored gains on Leyte, invaded nearly two months ago. Seventy-seventh division troops seized an airdrome near Valencia, nine miles from captured Ormoc, in their drive up the Ormoc corridor toward a juncture with the 32nd division pressing southward. Thousands of crack enemy troops are caught in the squeeze, and the fighting is bloody all the way.

On Mindoro the surprised Americans encountered no ground opposition in their advance northward from the beachheads they established with unprecedented ease Friday dawn. Air fields were nearing completion at Mindoro's southern end to bring Manila within 30 minutes' flying range.

The enemy threw aircraft against the invaders, however. MacArthur reported 23 Japanese planes destroyed by anti-aircraft fire and aerial interception, against the loss of only one American plane.

Planet Venus "Seen" Near Moon's Crescent

Washington, Dec. 19 (AP)—The planet Venus apparently stood close to the crescent of the moon early last night in an infrequent phenomenon. But many miles actually separated the two celestial bodies.

The phenomenon was attributed to the planet and the moon being in a straight line, to observers on the earth, as the planet moved in its orbit around the sun and the moon travelled around the earth.

The moon is about 240,000 miles away, and Venus, at its nearest point, is about 25,000,000 miles away.

Council Adopts Special Report Of Committee

The special committee appointed to examine the civic salaries, the staffing of various offices and co-operation pertaining to the several offices and report back to the council submitted their report to the council at the regular session on Monday evening. There was no discussion on the report and it was adopted in all the clauses but the question of salaries was laid over for the consideration of the incoming council. The report was an exhaustive one covering every phase of municipal life and is herewith given in verbatim form—

Belleville, Dec. 14, 1944.

His Worship Mayor Rollins and Gentlemen of the City Council:

Gentlemen:—Your Special Committee appointed to examine into the civic salaries, staffing of the various offices and co-operation pertaining in the several offices, and to report back to you with recommendations, beg to report as follows:

At an informal meeting before we actually entered upon our duties, we agreed to take the three departments on separate days, each department to be represented by the head of that department. The City Hall staff, by Comptroller Bateman; the Fire Department, by Chief Lynch and Public Works, by Engineer Mott and these officials were advised to come prepared to present the views of the respective departments. In our final meeting we were favored by the presence of the Chairman of Public Works. We outlined to him our proposals in that department, and we received his approval and advice, which was duly appreciated.

In the course of our deliberations we collected a great deal of material which we carefully considered to the best of our several abilities, and we are now prepared to submit for your approval, our findings and recommendations. Part of our recommendations were submitted to you in an Interim report which you accepted, but is also included in this report so that this will be a full report. Some criticism was offered, re—that interim report but, gentlemen, it contained recommendations which had you refused approval, the balance of our report concerning that Department must have taken an entirely different line. What we mean is that had you refused to approve of a working foreman, and the re-placement of Mr. Matthews, our recommendations re —Public Works Department must have been governed by that refusal.

We dealt with the departments in order named above, and in dealing with any department, where we desired it, we called in the comptroller for his views.

Here are some of our findings supported by what we consider reliable evidence. We find that the assessment work takes so much of sor, that he is not able to do the sor, tha the is not able to do the supervising and directing that should be done in his capacity as Comptroller. A good deal of the annual assessing is repetition, and could be done by efficient help, while cases requiring his personal attention could be handled by him in person. That is why we recommend to you in the Interim report, that a working foreman be appointed in Public Works, and that Clifford Matthews be made Public Works Clerk and Assistant to the Assessor. The firemen asked for a flat increase of ten per cent in salary; that the age limit be deleted from their by-law; and that the accident insurance be left as at present instead of by the plan already approved by you to come into effect on January 1, 1945. Chief Lynch approved of the co-operation of his staff but intimated that some one or more had interests outside of their work as firemen.

Under efficiency he classed his men as follows: First Class—Vance, Orr, Pomeroy, McDonald, Waddell, Adams, Frank Post, Edward Post, Culhane, Grills, Darvell, Fair. Second Class—F. H. Post, Mattis, Carter, Wilson, [illegible]. This last man was injured while on duty and cannot do ladder work. The three new men—Smith, Longhurst and Smith, are shaping up well. Inefficient by reason of age—Mattis, Carter. Mr. Mott had no comments re wages but later he said that the men wanted an increase of five cents per hour; co-operation he said was satisfactory, and all employees were able to do what was required of them except McInroy, Christie, and Saunders. He had no knowledge of drinking going on at the corporation barns. In reply to the mayor, he said, that the five car loads of washed gravel, at present banked on the quarry property, were ordered to complete the oiling job as five cars were lost in the railway yards. We heard another explanation.. In our investigation we were forced to the conclusion, that more system is desirable in the Public Works Department—that working gangs should go out under a working foreman—that the truck drivers should be given instructions to cover the day and not have to drive to the City Hall for directions between jobs — that employees should not come to the Treasurer's office for their pay-checks each Friday morning between 11 a.m. and noon;—that considerable working time is lost by the men quitting before quitting time and not getting back to work by starting time—all assessing now done through the Public Works office, such as street oiling, local improvements, etc., should be done through the Assessment Department.

We also are satisfied that there is more or less drinking going on during working time, and that different officials leave their respective offices without leaving word as to where they can be located.

This is some of the material that we have collected.

Recommendations.

(1) That Clifford Matthews be made Public Works clerk and assistant to the comptroller-assessor, and that a "working foreman be appointed in the Public Works department. (This was already approved by you.)

(2) That the Engineer's by-law be amended as follows—that there be added to clause "3": The working foreman shall have full charge of the projects as laid out by the Engieer and full charge of the employees in his department and he has c onsule with the Engineer and Comptroller, submitting to them his recommendations as to engagement or discharge of employees, who will in turn report to council through the Chairman of Public Works. That clause 6 be deleted from the said by-law with the exception of the following—The Engineer shall pass on all equipment and supplies for his Department on delivery, and before the same are accepted by the Comptroller. That there be added to clause 10—except on authority from the Comptroller.

(3) That the Engineer shall make out daily work sheets in triplicate, outlining the work for the following day one copy for Comptroller, one for the working foreman and one to be filed in his own office. He shall consult daily with the working foreman in preparing these work sheets.

(4) Suggested duties of working foreman, approved by Chairman of Public Works and the Engineer.

(a) He shall be 'on call' at all times day or night in emergencies, and if he knows that he will not be able to answer such calls, he shall notify the Engineer before hand.

(b) He shall be subject to the regular hours of Public Works Dept.

(c) He is to receive his instructions re-projects from the Engineering Dept.

(d) He shall check on the work sheets, work as completed and report such completed work to the Engineer at the end of each day, who shall report the same to the Comptroller.

(e) He shall be responsible for the maintenance, repair and safe-keeping of all Public Works equipment and supplies.

(f) In an emergency he shall have authority to engage and dismiss temporary help.

(g) In an emergency, he shall recognize a request for assistance from the Police Dept., or Fire Dept.

(h) He shall have authority to suspend any employee in his Dept. for cause and shall report the same to the Engineer and Comptroller, who will report to Council through the Chairman of Public Works.

(5) We recommend that no action be taken at this time re Public Works' wages but that the working foreman shall report to the Public Works Committee at the end of two months giving his recommendations re rates of pay and the efficiency of each man on his staff; that in this report he give special attention to his "key men", so that the P. W. Committee may intelligently deal with the matter.

(9) That the three requests from ary of the Public Works Clerk and Assistant to the Comptroller-Assessor be $2,000 per annum chargeable to Administration.

(7) That all assessing now done through Public Works department such as Local Improvements, Street Oiling, etc., be done through the Assessment Dept.

(8) That should a change be made at some future date in the position of Working Foreman, and Clifford Matthews wishes to be considered, that he receive consideration.

(6) We recommend that the sal- the Fire Department be not entertained, but that the department be brought up to full strength as soon as possible after hostilities cease in Europe; that consideration be given to the members of the force now on military leave; and that in filling vacancies preference be given to veterans returning at the end of hostilities. And further that all firemen shall give full time service to the department during the hours that he is expected to be on duty, or if unable to do so that he shall report promptly to the chief, submitting a satisfactory reason for his inability to do so.

(10) That no general revision of salaries be made for 1945 but in view of the fact that our so-called "War Bonus" of $10 per month has already been made an integral part of the salary in the Fire department, the Police department and for part of the City Hall staff, we think this principle might well be applied to the remaining members of the City Hall staff, and we so recommend.

(11) In order to co-ordinate the offices and thus improve the opportunities for closer co-operation, we recommend that all offices at present in the City Hall, be placed on the ground floor, as soon as it is possible to proceed with the necessary re-modelling of the building.

(12) That the following changes be made in the Comptroller's By-Law No. 3394:

(a) Paragraph 2—Add—The Comptroller shall have authority to suspend any employee in any department for "cause" and shall report such suspension to council at their first meeting following the suspension, for their decision.

(b) That any employee of the Corporation who is known to be drinking or is under the influence of intoxicating liquor during working hours, OR who brings liquors, such as whiskey, wine or beer, whether in closed packages or not, on or into any property owned or controlled by the Corporation, shall be subject to immediate suspension by the Comptroller, who shall report to council as in "a" above.

(c) The Comptroller may suggest and put into effect any change of administrative policy deemed advisable by him in the best interests of the Corporation and shall report the same to Council for confirmation.

(13) No official of the Corporation shall leave his office during working hours without first reporting to the Comptroller's office as to where he can be located.

For, your information we append a schedule of present salaries.

We held meetings as follows—Oct. 25, Nov. 1, 15, 22, 29, Dec. 6.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

N. C. Wilbur, chairman; W. H. Rollins, Mayor; Chas. L. Hyde, F. G. Chamberlain, H. J. Clarke, Sec., Committee.
